

FARMERS OF COUNTY PROMISED MORE GRASSHOPPER BAIT

The past week has seen the greatest drive to stop the inroads of grasshoppers ever undertaken in this county. The government furnished a car of bran and 5600 pounds of sodium arsenite that was distributed to those farmers who were troubled with the insect and these farmers in turn have bought additional poison and bran to help in the campaign. The records on file with the county agent show that up until Tuesday morning, June 22, there were 352 sacks of bran distributed to 200 farmers. Mr. C. H. Gable, assistant State Grasshopper Leader, spent Saturday with Ross Jenkins, Co. Agt. located a surplus car of bran that will be divided 50-50 with Eastland county. This will allow Callahan an additional 200 sacks or 10 tons more bran. Farmers must match the allotment pound for pound, however, and mix the poison in the bran before it is given out from the mixing station at Baird. It is suggested by the government that hulls be used since they are cheaper and do just as well. The Extension Service has found that molasses mixed with the poisoned bran will attract the insects and keep the mash wetter in the north where much grasshopper work has been carried on it seems that the addition of syrup or other ingredients do not pay but in the South it is hotter and drier, thus a different situation exists. Blackstrap molasses may be purchased locally for the bait. It is believed that a sufficient supply will now be on hand by the time this reaches the reader that as many pounds may be delivered to each farmer as he is willing to match. A slight mixing charge will be made to defray labor cost and unloading charges but that item is very little compared with the value of the materials obtained. The reports on file show that 14,000 acres of cotton are being treated and 2600 acres are being protected or a total of 16,600 acres are being protected by poison.

The First National Bank of Baird will not be open for business on Monday, July 5th. July the 4th, which is a Legal Holiday, coming on Sunday. The Bank will observe this holiday on Monday, July 5th.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Mitchell of Houston are visiting Mrs. Mitchell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Beck.

Social Security Representatives Visits Baird

Social Security was the subject of discussion in numerous interviews in Baird, recently, by Charles von Rosenberg, representative from the Social Security Board at Austin. Mr. von Rosenberg spent one day in Baird helping people who were in any way confused over the program. He particularly discussed the old age benefits program.

The old-age benefits program applies to establishments with only one employee the same as to large firms, the representative said.

Benefits are based on wages received, and beginning next July each employer will be required to make a simple report to the Bureau of Internal Revenue on every person who has worked regularly, part-time, or temporarily, since January 1. The report will show name, address, account number, wages paid, date of payment, and period of service covered. From the employers' reports on wages paid, the employees' wages will be posted to their Social Security accounts, and their monthly benefits when they reach age 65 and retire will be paid on the basis of the wages credited.

In view of these informational returns, the first of which will be made in July (and quarterly thereafter), it will be seen that employers should now be keeping records, von Rosenberg said, showing for each person who has worked since the beginning of 1937, the name, address account number, wages paid, date of payment, and period of service covered. Employers who have kept such records will find it easy to make up the simple information return, but the employer who is not keeping records may find difficulty in making up his reports.

Account Numbers
In order that each wage earner in the United States may be assured that his wages will be posted to his social security account and not to some other wage earner's account the Board, von Rosenberg said, has set up a system to assign numbers to all Social Security accounts, and employees have been required to file applications for account numbers in order that certain identifying information can be obtained from the applications.

Every employee in covered employment must have an account number. He should get his number immediately after getting a job, and he should tell each employer for whom he works what his number is, so the employer can use it in reporting the employee's wages. If there are any employees in Baird, von Rosenberg said, who do not have account numbers, they should get them immediately. All one needs to do is to go to the post office, fill out an application and the post master will get the number in a few days. After June 30, the post office will cease issuing account numbers. Then applications for numbers will have to be filed with the Social Security Board office at 104 Old Federal Building, Austin, and it will be a little more troublesome to get a number.

Claims

Benefits are now being paid in the following manner:
Any person who has worked in covered employment since the beginning of 1937, and who has become 65 years of age since January 1, 1937, is now entitled to a lump-sum payment in the amount of 3 1-2 per cent of the total wages he has received between January 1 and his 65th birthday. Also, in the case of any person who has worked in covered employment after December 31, 1936, and has died, the estate is entitled to a death payment in the amount of 3 1-2 per cent of the wages

Cambridge University

The Senate House, Cambridge.

Prepared by National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service

MANY American college men, old and young, find odd contrasts between university life in the United States and that of ancient Cambridge. These differences are plain in discipline, in daily life, in the relations between faculty and undergraduates (never "students" at Cambridge), and in certain customs peculiar to this venerable seat of learning.

There is little about the dingy railroad station at Cambridge to suggest that somewhere thereabouts stands a great university town.

A policeman of whom you ask your way to "The University" offers no help; he cannot, simply because there are so many colleges here, each in itself a little university. However, after driving into town along a wide thoroughfare which your taxi man tells you had been in ancient times a highway used by Roman soldiers, you finally arrive at St. John's college which you are to enter.

Because John Harvard, principal founder of the famous American center of learning which bears his name, was educated at Cambridge, this university holds a special interest for people in the United States.

John Harvard entered Emmanuel college in 1627. In an old leather book there you see his signature, and a notation that he paid a ten-shilling matriculation fee.

Now a tablet is set up in the chapel at Emmanuel to his memory; and last year Cambridge in England observed with sympathetic interest the movement in Cambridge, Massachusetts, to celebrate the 300th anniversary of the founding of Harvard college.

Each Cambridge college is a separate entity. Each has its own chapel, lecture rooms and assembly hall, but most of the space is devoted to residential quarters.

This independence has been characteristic of Cambridge from its earliest days. It dates from the foundations established by religious orders, such as the Dominicans and the Carmelites, most of which belong to the first part of the Thirteenth century. It continued with the foundation of the colleges, the first of which was Peterhouse, established in 1284. The majority of the others followed in the Fourteenth, Fifteenth, and Sixteenth centuries, though Selwyn was founded as recently as 1852.

Process of Discipline.

But when a capture is effected, proper formalities must be observed. "Sir," says the buller, polite but puffing, "the proctor would like to speak to you for a moment."

And when you are brought before the majesty of authority, the conversation is equally courteous. "Sir, I regret to see that you are not properly dressed; I should be glad if you would call on me in the morning."

Your name is noted in a book, and when in a spirit of due repentance the visit is made the next day, you are fined. If you are a bachelor of arts the fine is larger, for surely years of discretion, accompanied by the right to wear a longer gown and a proper tassel on the cap, must be expected to bring a proper respect for the laws of the university. Offenses committed on Sunday also involve a double penalty. No offender escapes. It is on record that King George VI smoked what was probably the most expensive cigarette of his life during his undergraduate days at Cambridge.

Friendly rivalry among the colleges is shown in the wide variety of sports jackets, or "blazers." They appear in all colors and combinations of colors, and may denote not only membership in some particular college but also some athletic achievement, such as membership in the cricket eleven or the Rugby football team.

Most coveted is the pale blue blazer which only those who have represented the university in athletics are entitled to wear. For the remainder of their lives these fortunate ones will be remembered as Cambridge "blues." There are "half blues" for the less arduous sports, such as shooting, or even chess!

"Blazers" owe their very name to Cambridge, for this was the term quite naturally applied to the scarlet coats which the Lady Margaret Boat club, of St. John's college, adopted as its uniform.

Sports in general hold a high place in life at Cambridge. Rugby and association football—known as "rugger" and "soccer"—are popular in the winter, while in summer cricket and tennis take their turn. But the sport of sports at Cambridge is rowing.

Thermometer in Shade, Sun
A thermometer shows a higher reading in the sun than in the shade because it absorbs solar radiation. A thermometer in the shade gives more nearly the true temperature of the air, but is exposed to radiation from surrounding objects. Most thermometers used by weather bureaus are sheltered and protected from radiation, while permitting the air to circulate freely about them.

Gowns Are Important.
This division of the university's life into colleges is seen in the differences in the gowns, which all undergraduates must possess. These are curiously abbreviated garments, a survival of the clerks' uniform of the Middle ages; but the forms of each college have distinctive features, such as the three small velvet chevrons on the sleeves of those of St. John's.

Normally the gowns are black, but those of Caius (pronounced "Keys") are blue with black facings, those of Trinity a darker blue. They, and their accompanying square mortar-board caps, are often in the most decrepit state, since a tattered gown or a crushed cap is regarded as a sign of seniority; hence, "freshers," as the first-year undergraduates are called, frequently indulge in an orgy of near-destruction to acquire this outward mark of seniority. This procedure can prove expensive. It may involve the purchase of an entire new outfit to secure the approval of outraged authority.

Gowns are worn when attending lectures, or when dining in college hall, which is the one occasion when the members of a college meet together, a certain number of nights each week, whether they wish to or not.

Gowns must also be worn on the streets after dusk, and woe betide the unfortunate undergraduate who encounters a proctor when not in this garb. It is an equally heinous sin if he be found smoking in the streets, even when he is properly attired. These are two of the offenses against the dignity of the university for which the proctors, who have charge of university discipline, are on the lookout.

A proctor, to the undergraduate, is an impressive and fear-inspiring being not only because of the moral weight of the authority behind him but also because he is always supported by two "bulldozers" or "bullers." These robust college porters, in spite of silk hats and formal black suits which they are obliged to wear, are often surprisingly agile in their pursuit of a delinquent undergraduate.

How to Judge Pictures.

To begin with let's take up painting. If a painting is pretty or cheerful or pleasant to look at, you can know right away it's an egg. But if it's the portrait of some homely old person, so dark and dirty you can hardly see it at all, well you can take a chance and say you like it. It's probably a Rembrandt. If it's of a very fat girl with not enough clothes on, you can say it's okay, too, because it's a Rubens (Not a sandwich, you idiot, but a Flemish National Institution!) But if the picture looks like one no artist could paint, and has funny-looking, sad-faced religious people in it, with landscapes which look like second-rate movie sets, you can also say "it's wonderful" because it is probably a Primitive. This class of picture was painted when the world was so primitive that there were no ash-cans in which to throw them away, which is why so many of 'em survived.

Another safe rule to go by is the Artist's name. If the Artist died over a hundred years ago and you can't pronounce his name, it's a good picture. If it's kind of pretty and you enjoy it, be careful. Liking, or claiming you like the portraits of Gloomy Gus, makes you a connoisseur. From the word "con" meaning phoney and "sewer" meaning sewer. The French are great at Art, and, of course, you've heard of the Connoisseurs of Paris.

The Art of Painting, however, had an honorable start in the world. It was invented by an Elk. At least the portrait of an Elk is the first known drawing and is in a Chromium, or Some Kind of Crow, Cave in France. Or maybe it is really the picture of a Moose.

Then the Egyptians came along and illustrated the first Mummy-Songs. That's where Jolson got those out-stretched hands—remember 'em? The Egyptians were good at Primary colors but they never got beyond the first reader.

Peek at the Primitive.
Next came Rome and the early Murals. These were generally in the Banquet-halls, hence the knock-knock, "A mural gonny stay to dinner?"

After which came the Primitives

You can't dust under it, you can't put it in another part of the room without a derrick and nobody else will take it off your hands.

By NINA WILCOX PUTNAM

WHAT is Art and what can be done to prevent it? That is a question which has troubled the average person for more time than it takes to make out a laundry-list in Russian.

To begin with Art is the world's best alibi for being unreliable and wearing your hair kinda funny. If you have an easel parked in your living room you can throw the dishes around, make rude remarks, and neglect to pay your bills and all the public does about it is gasp and say "It's the artistic temperament." It's easel-ily the simplest method of getting your own way about things.

As soon as this good news got around the easel-business was in for a boom. The artists that couldn't paint went so far as to paste out canvases on their canvases and stick tin cans on 'em and call the thing "Soul of the Canning Factory" or something like that. And don't blame these artists, they don't take the rap for the portraits of junk-heaps we see. The people who are really responsible for murder of that kind are the vast army who are always saying, "I don't know anything about Art, but I know what I like."

If you are in the class which doesn't know anything about Art, let me give you a few hints on how to tell what's good.

But if it's the portrait of some homely old person, so dark and dirty you can hardly see it at all, well you can take a chance and say you like it. It's probably a Rembrandt. If it's of a very fat girl with not enough clothes on, you can say it's okay, too, because it's a Rubens (Not a sandwich, you idiot, but a Flemish National Institution!) But if the picture looks like one no artist could paint, and has funny-looking, sad-faced religious people in it, with landscapes which look like second-rate movie sets, you can also say "it's wonderful" because it is probably a Primitive. This class of picture was painted when the world was so primitive that there were no ash-cans in which to throw them away, which is why so many of 'em survived.

Another safe rule to go by is the Artist's name. If the Artist died over a hundred years ago and you can't pronounce his name, it's a good picture. If it's kind of pretty and you enjoy it, be careful. Liking, or claiming you like the portraits of Gloomy Gus, makes you a connoisseur. From the word "con" meaning phoney and "sewer" meaning sewer. The French are great at Art, and, of course, you've heard of the Connoisseurs of Paris.

The Art of Painting, however, had an honorable start in the world. It was invented by an Elk. At least the portrait of an Elk is the first known drawing and is in a Chromium, or Some Kind of Crow, Cave in France. Or maybe it is really the picture of a Moose.

Then the Egyptians came along and illustrated the first Mummy-Songs. That's where Jolson got those out-stretched hands—remember 'em? The Egyptians were good at Primary colors but they never got beyond the first reader.

Peek at the Primitive.
Next came Rome and the early Murals. These were generally in the Banquet-halls, hence the knock-knock, "A mural gonny stay to dinner?"

After which came the Primitives

(see above, because you can't see any lower) and then the big guys, like the one I mentioned who did the out-sized ladies in the Misses sized nighties, Rubens. It was about this time that everyone was singing "Ruben, Ruben I've been thinking!" Boy! No wonder!

After which Art got realistic and began to look like people and so forth and, oh well, if you like that sort of stuff you've only got your first million. This is the Ice-Cream Epoch in Art and few millionaires are brave enough to pass up caviar in favor of a banana-split.

Of course, all Art is not confined to painting, although if some painters were confined there wouldn't have been any great popular movement to get 'em out. But I was really thinking of Sculpture. Yes, let's take up Sculpture—you bring the truck!

One of the things which has always interested me most about classic sculpture is, where on earth did the Greeks get all those Californians to pose for their statues? The Apollo, and old gal Venus d' Milo, and the Discus-Thrower—all that Olympic material never came out of any other state. Ah well, I suppose it's one of those Historical difficulties which will never be solved, like who threw the lighted lamp at Mother?

There are not nearly so many sculptors as painters, and one reason for this is undoubtedly the difficulty of peddling the goods. Gee, I hate to think of the trouble the feller who sculpted the statue of Liberty must have had before he got it placed! Can you imagine the poor man lugging that around Paris from office to office, up and down stairs, trying to get somebody to take it off his hands? Well, at that, I expect he had a cinch compared to the sculptor who finally sold Pharaoh the Sphinx.

Architecture at a Glance.
Sculpture can never be as popular as painting because once you own a piece of sculpture there, it's practically nothing you can do about it. It's just there. You can't dust under it, you can't put it in any other part of the room without a derrick and nobody else will take it off your hands.

Of course, there are other branches of Art, too, like Architecture, you know, the guys who built the Fallen Arches in Rome and the busted Lincoln Memorial on top of that hill in Athens, Greece. The Greeks had a word for it—Parthos-something; parthetic, I think! In the old days the Architects used to build churches for the love of it and Forums and Fivems and other civic decorations and they were a sort of cross between a sculptor and a mason. Nowadays they are a cross between an engineer and a financier.

Bookbinding and badly made jewelry also try to sneak in under the heading of the Arts. Even dodging bill-collectors has become a fine Art, and so forth, until the word Art has come to mean "getting away with something." In other words, a trick you can't quite put your fingers on, like the middle shell in the old carnival game.

A lot of slang terms founded on Art have gradually become a part of the English language. What the Dickens! For instance, the expression about a man being an Artful Dodger. This originally meant one who could get out of going with his wife to Art Exhibitions, and then in natural sequence went on to mean a guy who could get out of anything.

Oh well, I guess maybe after all I don't know anything about Art, but I know what I like. I like the funny papers.

STAR DUST

By VIRGINIA VALE

PERHAPS the happiest, but certainly the most bewildered family in the country just now consists of Michael Kelly, his wife, and five children who live in that part of New York City known as the Bronx.

Their twelve-year-old Tommy has been selected to play Tom Sawyer in the Selznick-International film of the Mark Twain classic.

Such an opportunity for a youngster would be a dramatic thunder-bolt in any family, but for the Kellys it was the first good break in years. Papa Kelly has been on the relief rolls for two years, his jobs as janitor in a school and life-guard at a beach having dwindled to nothing. Mama Kelly has been to the movies only three times in her 23 years of marriage.

Tommy and his father are in Hollywood now, and Michael gets a day's extra work every now and then while his son is being groomed for stardom.

When you see Claudette Colbert in "I Met Him in Paris" you will find it the gayest, most utterly delightful film in many months. Claudette Colbert, Melvyn Douglas, and Robert Young romp through the picture as if they were having the time of their lives. It is the story of a girl who has saved for five years for a trip to Paris, and when she gets there everything happens as it might have in a fantastic dream. A giddy novelist and a cynical playwright fall in love with her.

Claudette Colbert

For the first time since their marriage, Joel McCrea and Frances Dee will play opposite each other in the Paramount picture "Wells Fargo." Adolph Menjou and the Mrs. known to us as Verree Teasdale will be together in Sam Goldwyn's "Marco Polo" and the one extra clause they insisted on in their contract was that the dividing wall between two dressing rooms should be taken down so that they could be together.

Everybody is wondering just what is to become of Simone Simon. After a few days' work in "Danger—Love at Work" she was taken out of the cast and Ann Sothern substituted. The heroine was supposed to be an American girl educated in France, and Simone's heavy accent was just too much to be convincing. Twentieth-Century-Fox officials still have faith in her, and say that when they find just the right story for her they will put her to work again.

The dinner party that marked the end of the recent Twentieth-Century-Fox convention put on a show that included about a million dollars' worth of talent. Irving Berlin sang "Remember," the Ritz Brothers made the rafters ring with hilarious shout by their impromptu foolishment, but Eddie Cantor walked off with the honors of the evening when he arrived in blond curls and baby dress and did an imitation of Shirley Temple. Prettiest girls at the party were Loretta Young, who came with Merle Oberon's former fiance, David Niven, and Alice Faye, who came with her constant beau, Tony Martin. Incidentally, Tony will be back on the radio regularly again soon.

Mary Pickford is asking $700,000 for Pickfair, because when she sells the house she will include all the treasures that she and Douglas Fairbanks collected in their travels around the world. When she marries Buddy Rogers, she will live in a simple beach house and an old-fashioned ranch house, and wants no reminders of her former life around to haunt her. Whoever is purchaser will possess an estate at which notables of the world were entertained in the days when Mary and Doug were filmdom's most celebrated couple.

ODDS AND ENDS—Martha Raye gets furious when anyone refers to her as a rubber-faced comedienne, but Joan Crawford always refers to herself as Elephant Annie, because she never forgets anything. . . . All the girls on the RKO lot are grateful to the costume designer, Eddie Stevenson, for making them look so elegant. By way of showing their gratitude Ann Sothern, Harriet Hilliard, Gertrude Michael and Ann Shirley got together and knitted, sewed, and bought him a knookout summer wardrobe. . . . Mary Carlisle has added a pretty penny to her earnings by having Bing Crosby advise her on horse-race bets.

Underwater Treatment

By
DR. JAMES W. BARTON
© Bell Syndicate.—WNU Service.

SOMETIMES wonder whether the new methods of treatment for pain and stiffness in muscles and joints have not made us forget some of the methods used hundreds, yes thousands of years ago. There are more "pain killers" available now than ever before, many of which do excellent work in emergencies or when other methods are not suitable, and all of which get away to a great extent from the necessity of using opium.

When we think of the hot baths used so many years ago to ease pain and prevent stiffness as compared with the modern method of using pain killing drugs, the hot baths may seem crude and clumsy. However the big point about easing pain and getting stiff joints loosened up is that the hot water allows movement without causing too much pain and increases the blood circulation in the part.

As you know objects are "lighter" under water and so the raising or movement of a crippled or sore arm or leg under water is done with less effort and pain than when out of the water.

In Europe there are many "bath" sanatoriums in charge of physicians of high standing. These physicians are called balneologists (balneo meaning bath).

What German Experts Say of It.
The Berlin correspondent of the Journal of the American Medical Association reports a paper read by Balneologist Hartel before the Berlin Medical society recording the good results obtained by the underwater method employed at Warm Springs, Ga. Films showing patients under systematic exercise under water were exhibited.

At this same meeting Dr. Scholtz of the Virchow hospital in Berlin spoke of his experiments with lame persons. Movement in a crippled arm or leg is almost always first made possible by the removal of its weight in water; after the first movements, continued regular bathing and exercise increase the strength of the limb and its power to control movement. The removal of the weight of the limb because it is under water allows the patient to exert his whole power and attention on the movement instead of on the effort of the lifting of the weight of the arm or leg.

A child shown by Dr. Scholtz who had been entirely crippled by infantile paralysis had now the normal use of his limbs after receiving this treatment.

This underwater treatment should be of great help in loosening up old stiff rheumatic joints, or in injured joints where the pain of movement has brought on stiffness.

Underweight Who Feels Ill.
A physician meeting a friend on the street jokingly criticized him for allowing himself to get so fat; in fact added a little warning as to the consequences of carrying so much extra weight.

The friend quite calmly replied, "Well, I've just been down to the hospital to see a very thin friend of mine who is confined there. As I went through the wards I had a chance to look into a few private rooms as I was passing. I didn't see any fat patients; they were all very thin."

Generally speaking thin men and thin women may live longer than those who are fat but there is a degree of leanness or underweight that carries with it nervousness, lack of energy, lack of concentration, and early fatigue. These individuals feel so weak and despondent that they are constantly consulting not only their own physician but many others. And the strange thing is that after careful examination while there may be such simple conditions as blood pressure slightly below level, and the temperature slightly below normal, there is, in most cases, no organic condition found.

In many cases the reason these thin individuals do not feel well is because they have been born with "nerves." Other cases have acquired "nerves" because of some underlying defect in the body, or because they have been under severe strain or emotional disturbances.

Dr. E. V. McCollum in his book, "Food, Nutrition and Health," thus describes these thin patients:

"These are the restless, active, and over-conscientious people who habitually work beyond their capacity, because their strength is so limited. They worry and expect the worst. They are possessed with fear for their health, fear of failure in business or occupation, fear for the safety of family and friends. Most of them have digestive disturbances."

CHILDREN LIKE THEIR SPINACH

Thorough Washing Important Part of Preparation.

By EDITH M. BARBER.
SPINACH for a number of years has been the topic for jests and has almost replaced the classic mother-in-law joke. It was rather interesting to find that the children instead of disliking this vegetable actually chose it as one of their favorite foods, according to a recent survey. Spinach actually ranked next to ice cream.

Because of the two types of spinach which are on the market at different times of the year, and because seasons in city markets are long extended through shipments from various parts of the country, we can find it in its fresh form throughout the year. And, of course, we can always call on the canners.

In the preparation of spinach for the table, perhaps the most important point is the washing as every grain of sand must be removed. No one likes gritty spinach. The easiest way to handle this question is to use two large pans and to lift the leaves after first washing into a pan of fresh water and to continue this until no more sand is deposited on the bottom of the pans.

Spinach will need no more water for cooking than what clings to the leaves after washing. It should be cooked just until the leaves are tender, usually not more than six to eight minutes. Butter or cream which is used for dressing, should be added to the vegetable, which which results after cooking. If you like, you may chop or puree the leaves before dressing them. Salt, pepper, a little nutmeg, lemon juice, vinegar, horseradish, sweet or sour cream as well as butter all bring out the flavor of this vegetable.

Spinach on Toast.
Wash one peck of spinach and cook in a covered pan five to eight minutes. Turn into colander and press out as much water as possible. Mince very fine. Melt three tablespoons butter in a frying pan, add two tablespoons flour and stir until well blended. Add spinach and cook five minutes, stirring constantly. Add one cup cream, salt and pepper, cook three minutes and serve on toast.

Spinach Nests.
6 bread cases
Melted butter
2 cups cooked spinach
Salt, pepper
1/2 cup grated cheese
Make bread cases by cutting bread into three-inch squares and cutting out the centers. Roll each case in melted butter. Chop the spinach, mix with seasoning and fill the bread cases. Sprinkle with the cheese and bake in a hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit), until bread is light brown and the cheese is melted.

Cole Slaw With Cooked Dressing
3 to 4 cups shredded cabbage
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
1/2 teaspoon mustard
1 teaspoon sugar
2 tablespoons flour
2 egg yolks
2 tablespoons butter
1 cup milk
1/4 cup vinegar.
Mix the dry ingredients. Add slightly beaten egg yolks, butter, milk and vinegar slowly. Stir over hot water until thick. Pour while hot over shredded cabbage. Two tablespoons of chopped green pepper or pimento may be added if desired.

Chicken Salad.
1 1/2 cups diced cooked chicken.
1 cup diced celery
2 tablespoons French dressing
1/4 cup mayonnaise
Lettuce
1 tablespoon capers or sliced stuffed olives
Combine chicken, celery and French dressing and chill. When ready to serve, mix with mayonnaise, arrange on bed of lettuce and garnish with capers or sliced stuffed olives. Sliced hard cooked eggs may also be used as a garnish.

Fancy Sandwiches.
For sandwiches of fancy shape, cover large spread slice with an unspread slice, cut into squares, diamonds, or finger lengths with knife, or into hearts, spades, diamonds, clubs, or stars with special cutter.

Butterscotch Pudding.
2 teaspoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons cold water
2 cups boiling water
1 cup brown sugar
Salt
1/2 cup sliced Brazil nuts
Measure cornstarch into top of double boiler. Stir in cold water and when smooth, add boiling water, brown sugar and salt. Stir over direct heat until mixture boils, set over hot water and cook twenty minutes. Stir in Brazil nuts and pour into one large pudding dish or into six sherbet glasses. Chill and serve with shipped cream.

Celery Stuffed With Lobster.
2 stalks celery
1 can lobster paste
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
2 tablespoons butter
3 drops tobacco sauce
1 teaspoon German mustard
Separate celery and clean. Cream butter and mix with lobster paste and seasoning. Fill celery stalks with mixture. Endive may be used instead of celery.

Household Hints

By BETTY WELLS

MABEL has been busy on her side porch the last few days. We've had glimpses of her through the trees that dip between her house and our study window. So we were dying to go by and get a good look at things.

We found that she had bought two new porch chairs—reed with beige cushions—a new green porch rug and a new green slat-type roll awning for one side to complement the beige and green striped canvas awning that she already had. She had kept her old wicker settee, making new beige cushions for it, and had brushed up the wicker table to match it. For this she had bought a new tray, quite a big one with a glass over the bottom and firm wicker handles so that a load of refreshments can be carried out and served right from the tray set on the table. She uses natural color or stone wear cookie jars and pitchers, with green linen napkins fringed all around and green glassware.

Mabel is a nice hostess anyway, so you can imagine what pleasant afternoons and evenings her family and friends will have here during the outdoor months. In the evenings she uses fat candles in old time hurricane chimneys. They give a pleasant shadowy light that's adequate for any need here but read ahead that all but specify this very outfit.

Mabel Has Been Busy Fixing Up Her Side Porch.

ing. And as Mabel remarked about the candle light, "A lady should always remember to flatter herself without actually bringing the subject up." Well, Mabel's husband dotes on her, so take your choice!

But there are lots of other becoming things you could do for summer comfort. We like a wrought iron table with a glass top—this will reflect a lot of flowers in its base effectively, can hold magazines and cigarettes and that pitcher of iced tea and will do double duty as an outdoor dining table. Chairs should be bought primarily for complete relaxation. The Adirondack variety are tilted just right for comfort but are a little hard, so invest in one or two beach mats to pad them. Get mats that are water-proof and fold up into a handy roll, for they will also be handy when daughter is holding court with the local swains. (Why is it that teen-age boys love to sprawl?) All chairs should be easy but for an especially comfortable one, a luxurious chaise-longue on gentle, long rockers is our idea of solid summer joy.

Freshening Up.
Finger to cheek, a lady sits of a morning, wondering just what she should do to freshen up the scene for the summer.

How about your lamp shades? Don't tell us that you've bought a lot of those oil silk covers to hide your lovely lamps! We are all in favor of saving beautiful things from the ravages of summer dust, but we're not in favor of hiding our light under a bushel—or under an oil silk cover. Our suggestion would be to change lamp shades with the seasons. Crisp, light, ridiculously inexpensive shades can replace more elaborate silk shades for summer and give the house a crisp, cool appearance; or clever fingers can fashion decorator-shades at microscopic prices.

Lamp Shades Should Be Changed With the Seasons, Too.

White linen or pique shades on a series of living-room lamps, for example, especially in a room where the slip-covers on the furniture have chalk white backgrounds with sprawling, luscious roses in the pattern. And pale green walls, white linen draperies and white pottery on the mantel to finish a particularly cool and inviting summer living room.

Then there might be frilled organdy, dotted swiss, gingham, chintz, or dimity shades for lamps in a bedroom. Simply shir them on a wire frame. If you are ambitious you will probably be sewing away like mad on a new summer bedspread and curtains for your own bedroom. Use your left-over material to make lamp shades for your bureau or dressing table and complete the hot weather ensemble with a flourish.

Old hat boxes are the obvious answer to the storage problem for winter lamp shades.

'Way Back When

By JEANNE

DREISER WAS A BILL COLLECTOR

IF YOU lived in Chicago, Ill., years ago, you may have bought carpet tacks or a can of paint from a young hardware clerk who looked like nobody at all to you. A few years later you might have rented an apartment from the real estate office where he clerked; a little later you may have seen a young man persistently ringing the doorbell of that neighbor of yours who was careless about her furniture installments. For Theodore Dreiser, famous in American letters today, was in his youth hardware clerk, clerk in a real estate office, and bill collector for a furniture house.

He was born in Terre Haute, Ind., in 1871. A poor boy, he attended the public schools of Warsaw, Ind., quitting at the age of sixteen to go to work in Chicago at $5 per week.

An ordinary young man, with an ordinary background, who could have foretold that some day he would produce a book ("American Tragedy") which would arouse world-wide controversy, banned in some cities, required reading in some school systems?

After the collector's job, persistent calling at the Chicago Daily Globe got him a job as a reporter. His rise was rapid as he developed a clear reportorial style, until 1898 he became editor-in-chief of the Butterick Publications which included Delineator Magazine. His first book, "Sister Carrie," was published in 1900 and immediately lauded for its frankness. It was not until 1911 that his next, "Jennie Gerhardt," appeared; and it was followed at regular intervals by other books of the "call a spade a spade" type. "American Tragedy" appeared in 1925, was translated into many languages and was adapted to the stage in America and in Germany as late as 1936.

LOWELL THOMAS WAS A COOK

THE life of Lowell Thomas has been tremendously exciting, but it may be encouraging to those of you in everyday jobs, and pining for adventure, to know that he was not always free from humdrum occupations.

The radio and news-reel reporter was born in Woodington, Ohio, in 1892. The family moved to Cripple Creek, Colo., where Lowell attended public schools set in the midst of a typical rough-and-ready mining town. His parents were not wealthy, and Lowell Thomas had to work for a higher education. While attending Valparaiso university in northern Indiana, he was a janitor, a salesman, and night cook in a short-order restaurant. Thirsting for more knowledge after graduation, the boy went on to the University of Denver where he took several degrees, working at odd times for a newspaper. During the summer months, he punched cows and pitched alfalfa. In Chicago Kent College of Law, he studied law, and then took post-graduate work in English literature at Princeton. After that he worked as a teacher and on a newspaper.

His beginning did not promise excitement and adventure. But then came the World war, and Lowell Thomas went to the front with a staff of cameramen making official pictures! It changed his whole life. He joined D. H. Lawrence and his bedouin army in Arabia, emerging from that "revolt on the desert" with the exclusive story and pictures. It was the beginning of his fame. Since then, he has met almost everyone of importance, seen everything of note, and reported his observations in newspapers, on the screen, and over the air. In a graphic style that has gained him an audience of millions. He has traveled from Alaska to Burma, spoken in almost every town over 5,000 in population in the United States, and has written a score of books.

Removing Spots From Tile.—Spots can be removed from the tile bathroom floor by rubbing with a cloth moistened with kerosene and then polishing with one moistened with paraffin.

Frying Doughnuts.—To keep doughnuts from absorbing too much of the fat in which they are fried, put a drop or two of vinegar in the dough when mixing the ingredients.

Barbecued Ham.—Fry the required number of thin ham slices from a left-over boiled ham. Arrange them in a serving dish, and pour the following sauce over them; add to the ham fat in the frying pan a teaspoonful of made mustard, half a teaspoonful sugar, three tablespoonfuls vinegar and a tablespoonful of red currant jelly. OFFICE AND CANDIDATES

My wife and I are receiving many letters every week, asking if my wife is again going to run for Governor. Some of the letters seem to be merely seeking information, while many of the letters urge my wife to run for a third term. By the way, there is a quite well defined rumor around Austin that Governor Allred is thinking of standing for a third term. Some of his close friends are talking about his chances.

My wife has asked me to answer the letters which she is getting and tells me to say that she has no desire to again meet the rigors of a political campaign. While my wife's health and my health is better than it has been in years, yet we are fully aware and we have not forgotten the physical ordeals of political contests, and neither she nor I are looking for the hazard and turmoil of politics.

Unless there should be some wide spread and general demand amounting to a public duty to render a personal service, my wife says that she is willing to leave the field to the younger statesmen who are willing to extinguish themselves on the altar of their country.

Frankly, I do not look for any such demand that would induce my wife to become again a candidate. However, there is already a well developed idea in the minds of the people that there must be a decided change in the administration of the government, both state and national.

With continued spending yearly of over seven billion dollars ($300 per family a year by the Federal government and over 85 million a year by the state ($70 per family) amounting already to thirty five billion debt by the Federal government and a deficit of over 32 million by the state of Texas, it is already so burdensome that the people are alarmed and they are impressed with the serious necessity of electing people to office who will have the courage to call a halt to governmental extravagance.

A 32 million deficit of the state of Texas is far more oppressive than a debt of billions by the Federal Government, because the nation has more sources of revenue with which to pay its debts.

This is why so many people urge my wife to again run for Governor. The miserable mess which has been made of state affairs is causing the people to ask who can best handle the deplorable situation that confronts us. It is not that my wife's admiration was so good but that the present administration is so bad that makes the people want a change.

In any event the people should select the next Governor from the standpoint of ability and qualification. Certainly we have had enough of hand shaking and baby kissing politicians. The people are entitled to a break, and it won't hurt if we have a dozen candidates to draw from in the next race for Governor. What we may fail to get in brains might be made up in luck. Come on statesmen and tell us where you are "frum" and what you are "fur."

MR. HAIRY VETCH AND MISSES YELLOW AND BUR CLOVER

Two fine members of the Legume family have recently moved into Callahan County and the county agent is hopeful that they will be accorded a most welcome reception, especially on the farms that are sandy to mixed soils.

On an inspection trip this week the county agent saw twenty-two acres of hairy vetch in the pecan orchard of Ross Wolfe and found that it had totally covered the land so that neither grass nor weeds had been able to grow in its midst. It was growing on moderately fertile, sandy soil. It came up in September and protected the soils against erosion by both wind and water and has heavily seeded itself so that from now on there will be no need for further planting of seed.

There are many species of wild vetch growing in the pastures of Callahan which show that the plant is well adapted to this section. It should be planted in every orchard in Callahan County and it is one of the best of the soil builders that men may plant on their soil conservation acres. Along with the vetch was growing colonies of bur clover. This little legume has shown itself well adapted to the soils and moisture conditions of Callahan. It is a rich plant for cattle to graze. It will smother out all other vegetation and comes in early in Spring before all other grasses or weeds have a chance to get started and it provides an abundance of fine grazing, rich in protein.

A chance specimen of annual yellow clover was grown in the flower bed in front of the court house this Spring. This plant is being preserved in the office of the county agent and shows what Ranchmen and farmers interested in growing a good pasture should, when passing through Clyde, stop at the yellow school sign just west of the Clyde business section and inspect the colony of creeping bur clover growing around and near this school stop. It has smothered out Bermuda grass and has matured millions of seed. A suggestion would be that each person passing that colony rake up a few of these seeds and scatter them about his farm or ranch and watch the tremendous growth that this little plant will make. Every person then who owns an orchard should mix these two legumes, hairy vetch especially for the orchard, and plant them this fall. Seed may be thrown on the land now and it will come up at the proper time. Samples of all three plants are on exhibition in the county agent's office.

AGENTS BROWN AND JENKINS TO STEPHENVILLE PHOTOGRAPHIC SCHOOL

There has probably never been as much interest in pictures as there is today. The field of agriculture is now being covered by pictures of every farm and kind of project that is known. People forget how a heavily loaded tree of fruit looked or how much beauty was found in a yard or how completely a wardrobe had been arranged but when pictures are taken they preserve for all time the likeness of those objects.

In recognition of the value of pictures the Extension Service called the county farm and home agents into a one day school at Stephenville on Monday, June 21, and they met with the chemistry and photographic teacher, S. F. Davis, of John Tarleton College for hints on how to make better pictures.

There were twenty four agents in attendance from District 7.

Both county agent Jenkins and home agent, Clara Brown, have good cameras with a rating of F-4.5 and with shutter speeds up to two hundredths of a second. This type of camera will get the picture whether the day be light or dark and these pictures are adding a great deal of interest to the work of the agents throughout the state.

Field Offices to Assign Social Security Numbers After June 30, 1937

Austin, June 24—With 7 days remaining during which social security account numbers will be assigned by postmasters throughout the country, the Social Security Board today announced the virtual completion of its plans for taking over the job on July 1. Applications for account numbers under the Federal old-age benefits program were made at the rate of approximately 41,000 a working day during the month of May, the Board said. It was added that this rate probably be lessened after June 30. The total of assigned account numbers in the Records Division of the Bureau of Federal Old-Age Benefits on June 1 was 27,787,838.

M. D. Dewberry, manager of the Austin field office of the Social Security Board, explained that workers may continue to obtain blank application forms from the post offices after June 30 except in cities where the Board has established field offices, but that the actual assignment of account numbers will be made in Texas through designated field offices in the following cities: Austin, Dallas, El Paso, Houston, and San Antonio.

Dewberry stated that the reasons for requesting all wage earners in occupation covered by the Social Security Act to apply for account numbers without delay are:

- First, because it is essential to the subsequent setting up of their accounts, which are used in determining the benefits to which they may ultimately become eligible;
 - Second, because it will simplify the employer's task when he hires new employees can give their account numbers;
 - Third, because it will be helpful in keeping the records maintained by the State unemployment compensation administrations.
- Until July 1, the Board explained, an employee may choose any one of four different ways to file his completed application. They are: (1) by giving it to his employer, (2) by giving it to his labor union, (3) by delivering it to his local post office, (4) by mailing it in a sealed envelope addressed "Postmaster, Local".

By the last day in June every employer in industry and commerce will have to make sure that each of his employees has a social security account number in order to make a required report to the Treasury Department on wages paid for employment since Jan. 1 1937. If an employee has failed to obtain a number, a Treasury regulation stipulates that the employer must file an application for an account number on his behalf. The employer must file this initial information return on or before July 31.

BRANCHING OUT

The vast oil industry of Texas is primarily dependent upon the widespread use of the automobile for its welfare, but not entirely. Its ramifications are many. There is kerosene for cooking and for lighting; there are the industrial lubricants, ranging from heavy greases to special oils so carefully refined you could use them in a salad dressing if you chose; there are numerous specialties for the home and car—from body polishes to window cleaners; there are fuel oils, diesel oils, spray oils for fruit trees—the list is endless. And almost daily, the engineers, the chemists, the whole army of the oil industry's technicians are adding to it . . . It's a far cry these days from the "coal oil" can with a potato on its spout.

The Humble Company keeps abreast of all the new developments. Its Baytown refinery is one of the largest, most up-to-date, in the world. But Humble technicians still leave no stone unturned in their day-to-day efforts to improve the products you buy under the Humble sign.

Save the vitamins! Why cook away so much food value? Electric cookery preserves precious energy . . . energy that disappears into thin air when food boils or bakes the boisterous way over a flame-type stove. Electrically-cooked foods cook gently. With Baird Baptist

We closed the meeting out at the oil camp Sunday night, and it was a real good time, we had many I believe the best services I ever held I think. We had no professions and no one joined the church, but every service was marked with intense interest in the truth of the Lord, perhaps one of the two reasons why there was no move, the time was maybe too short, just a week and only one service a day, and then another reason, maybe I am just not preacher enough to put it over, anyhow the meeting is over I preached to these fine fellows the truth of the Lord and I am one who believes the statement of Paul when he said: The Gospel of Christ is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. Rom. 1:16 I am willing to leave the results with the Lord.

We moved into town and started a meeting here, and for some nights will have services out in the open just north of Mr. Bounds Blacksmith shop. We invite all to come and help it is for all.

We will have our regular services at the church next Sunday and I will preach at Dudley Sunday afternoon I am sincerely anxious that every one be at his masters business.

The meeting here in town will continue up to Wednesday night the 30th and the Midway meeting begins Thursday night the first of July. Lets pray and work to be ready for the Lords use.

From the tilt of her hat to her trim shoes and ankles, she has style. Her voice, her every gesture have a way in making a favorable first impression. One day she invited a foursome in for bridge. Steel Refuses to Sign Contracts . . . And So There's a Deadlock . . . Look to U. S. for Strike Settlement

Monroe (Mich.) Women Defended Their Husbands' Right to Strike.

Edward W. Pickard SUMMARIZES THE WORLD'S WEEK

There is no issue of wages, hours or other material demands in the strife between the independent steel corporations and John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization.

The C. I. O. demands that the corporations put their agreement in the form of a written contract. The corporations refuse.

Union officials have taken the position that if the company officials are willing to agree orally to union demands they ought to be willing to confirm the agreement in writing.

Tom Girdler, chairman of the board of the Republic Steel corporation, explained the companies' stand.

The reason the C. I. O. wants a signed contract is because such a contract would be the first step toward the closed shop and the check-off.

Under the closed shop every worker has to belong to a union, whether he wants to or not.

Does the C. I. O. contract preserve industrial peace? It does not. They have broken numerous contracts.

It was virtually certain that there would be some federal action in the steel strikes, with Gov. Martin L. Davey of Ohio and Mayor Daniel J. Shields of Johnstown, Pa., appealing desperately to the President for aid.

Informed Washington correspondents were of the belief that the bill hasn't a chance of being passed, even with amendments.

Secretary of Labor Frances E. Perkins named a mediation board of three to meet in Cleveland and hear the cases of the union and the companies.

In Monroe, Mich., where the C. I. O. union threatened to import thousands of pickets from Detroit, a band of several hundred deputized vigilantes, armed, kept the peace, aided by the police force of twenty.

The Republic Steel corporation filed in the Federal District court in Washington a petition for a writ of mandamus compelling Postmaster General Farley to deliver parcels

What Irwin S. Cobb Thinks about

Summer Influenza.

SANTA MONICA, CALIF.— In this favored land we are now starting to celebrate the customary seasonal rite of having our summer influenza.

Summer influenza is distinguished from winter influenza by the fact that the former does not set in until September.

The symptoms remain practically the same. The eyes water copiously, but the nose runs second. The head stops up thoroughly, thus providing proof of the fallacy of the old adage—all sinus fall in dry weather.

One objection is stated frankly. They are afraid that if the government fixes a minimum wage it will tend to become the standard wage.

Every once in a while there is a hint that the fixing of wages is a matter which should be left to collective bargaining.

There was a small contingent of the original brain trust which saw this very clearly, and welcomed the day when it would mature.

LESSON Lesson for June 27

By REV. HAROLD L. LUNDQUIST, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.

LESSON TEXT—Hebrews 11:3-10, 17-22.

GOLDEN TEXT—These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, and were persuaded of them, and embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth.—Hebrews 11:13.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Honor Roll. JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Honor Roll. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Heroes of Faith.

The great "heroes of the faith" chapter, Hebrews 11, provides an excellent review summary of the messages in Genesis, which we have studied during the last three months.

Our study may well attempt no closer analysis of the text than to note the results of faith as they appear in the verses of our lesson.

I. Understanding (v. 3).

Philosophy and human research frequently bog down in the confused bypaths of unbelief and partial knowledge, but faith cuts right through the clouds and the confusion and "understands" that God is the creator of all things.

II. Worship (v. 4).

The world abounds with cults and religions of almost unbelievable diversity, and of appalling insufficiency for the needs of man.

III. Fellowship (v. 5).

Here again faith triumphs. The societies and associations of man fumble around trying to establish "good will," "fellowship of faiths," and what not, only to fail.

IV. Assurance (v. 6).

When a man trusts God implicitly the uncertainties of life vanish. It is an easier thing to talk about than to do, but, thank God, it can be done.

V. Salvation (v. 7).

Saved by faith—that is the story of the Christian, even as it was the story of Noah. The ark is typical of Christ. Only in him is there salvation.

VI. Obedience (vv. 8, 9).

The world has a ribald saying, "I don't know where I'm going but I'm on my way," which represents a dangerous philosophy of life.

VII. Vision (v. 10).

Men of vision—that's what we need, we are told. Well, then we need men of faith who can see the unseen, who can see "a city which hath foundations" even in the midst of the wilderness.

VIII. Resurrection (vv. 17-19).

God gave a promise and the only means of fulfilling that promise was about to be taken away, but Abraham did not hesitate for he believed that God was able and ready to raise the dead if necessary to fulfill his promise.

IX. Hope (vv. 20-22).

The forward look—that is the look of faith. Isaac's blessing concerned "things to come." Jacob, too weak to stand alone, leaned on his staff and worshipped, and passed on the covenant blessing. Joseph gave commandment concerning his body, looking forward to God's fulfillment of the promise.

SYNOPSIS

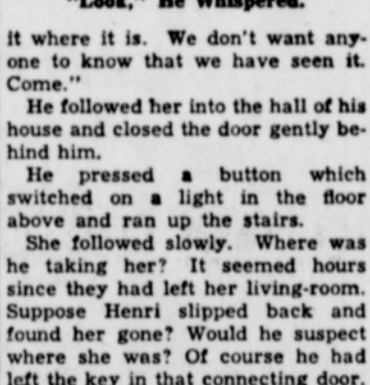

Brooke Reyburn visits the office of Jed Stewart, a lawyer, to discuss the terms of an estate she has inherited from Mrs. Mary Amanda Dane.

"Get Henri and Clotilde out of the house. Can you?" "It's movie night in the village. They'll go."

Brooke told him what Henri had told her. "Um, lost him, did he? The plot thickens."

"I'll look round before I go to bed, Miss, but I think in the morning we'll find him huddled in a corner near the house."

"Look," he whispered. "I tried this, had a hunch I might get through quickly this way. When it opened, that key was in your side."

Mark Trent felt the hard beating of the girl's heart as his arm tightened about her shoulders, the softness of her skin against his hand.

spying on his sister and accusing her of 'undue influence,' of hypnotizing an old woman into leaving her a fortune.

She jerked her wrist free and ran down the stairs. She stopped at the foot of them. A tirade like that she had just delivered took one's breath for a minute.

Mark Trent felt the hard beating of the girl's heart as his arm tightened about her shoulders, the softness of her skin against his hand.

"Make X on cover when—?" That was all. What cover? Much as he wanted to know, he couldn't let Brooke Reyburn get mixed up in the mess.

It seemed hours that he stood rigid, listening, with the only sound the underground roar of a great city, the faint wail of the distant siren, and the girl's steady breathing.

Whenever in after life he smelled the fragrance of a gardenia, he would remember this night, he told himself.

WHO'S NEWS THIS WEEK... By Lemuel F. Parton

Judicial 300 Hitter. NEW YORK.—Some may choose the role of a Judicial Coriolanus. Their retreat farmward after stout labors is honorable, too, for all that it is made under the shadow of a presidential frown.

He likes his work, and, reading between the lines, you gather that he has yet to know a president fitted to say whether he does it well or ill.

President Harding sent him into the Supreme court. According to some of Harding's cronies, he could have been Secretary of State if he had not been born in England.

Now he is seventy-five, and when the court is sitting he gets to work at half-past nine and eats his noon-day snack in his office in order to keep up with those Anti-New Deal decisions which have prompted a rolled administration to offer him a paid-up life membership in a three-hours-for-lunch club and tea some.

France's Big Bad Boy. JACQUES DORIOT has figured out a new salute for the members of his Parti Populaire Français. Picture a short man hanging onto a street-car strap, take away the strap, and you have it, just about.

Now he is bedded as the boss of St. Denis. That is a radical suburb of Paris. Jacques Doriot was its mayor until the government threw him out, alleging some questionable business touching upon municipal contracts. The title was taken away, but not much of the authority.

Head Man of Finland. JUSTUS MANNERHEIM'S Homberg hat rides his grizzled head at a Broadway slant. His barbered mustache lifts perkily at either end. The tops of his gloves are folded back.

SOCIAL SECURITY—

received between December 31, and the date of death. Some 4000 persons in Texas are now entitled to these lump-sum and death payments, but only about 200 claims have been filed. To file a claim for payment, one need only to write the Social Security at Austin and advise that the worker became 65 and wishes to claim his benefit, or that the worker died, and his widow, or his child, or his executor or administrator or the guardian or trustee of his estate wishes to file claim. Then, the representative said, his office will send the simple forms that are required to be filed in and returned to the Austin office of the Social Security Board, after which the claim will soon be on its way toward adjudication.

The minimum monthly benefit that will be paid is $10, which goes to the beneficiary who has been paid only $2,000 in total wages, while the maximum monthly benefit will be $85 per month. To qualify for a monthly benefit, one must have earned by the time he reaches age 65, a minimum of $2,000 in total wages, he must have received these wages in some part of 5 different calendar years and he must cease working for wages in covered employment. Benefits are based on wages received, and are figured on the basis of 1-12 per cent per month on the next $42,000 or $35, plus 1-24 per cent per month on the next $84,000 or $35, making a total of $85 per month maximum.

As an example, a man now 60 years of age who works for $50 a month for the next five years till he is 65 years old, will have received $600 a year for five years regarding the program.

or a total of $3,000. That man, when 65, and when he retires, will receive a check each month for the rest of his life in the amount of $15.

A man now 20 years old, who works till he is 65 at $50 a month will receive $500 a year for 45 years. He will have received a total of $27,000 in wages and his retirement benefits at the age of 65 will be 1-2 per cent of the first $3,000 or $15, plus 1-12 per cent on the next $24,000 or $20, making a total of $35 a month that he will get for the remainder of his life each month. If that 20-year-old fifty dollar a month man should save and invest enough money to yield himself a $35 a month retirement income, he would have to save and invest at 4 per cent the amount of $10,500. He therefore might consider that his social security account is worth $10,500. Some employees, von Rosenberg said, do not understand the value of their social security accounts. In fact, it is reported that some employees in Baird are refusing to apply for numbers. When they realize that these accounts are worth big money, they will not hesitate to get numbers. Also, the numbers are required by law, von Rosenberg said, and therefore one cannot choose to remain out of the program. Neither can a person who is not within the scope of the program voluntarily elect to participate. If a person works in any kind of manufacturing business establishment he is required to get a number and participate.

The Social Security Board office in the Old Federal Building at Austin, von Rosenberg said, is prepared to answer questions re-
