This valley, which true to its name, has dealt death to many a venturesome searcher for the precious metal, is located in the mountain fastnesses of the island and according to the theories of the scientists it is the crater of what was once a great and violent volcano. Volcanic gases of a most poisonous nature still rise from the depths of the valley and hang over it like a pall, never passing away, and many natives who have attempted to go down into the valley from the mountains say that never before has any man who ventured into its unknown depths returned to tell of its secrets. The distance across the valley is only a few miles, but the bottom of it is constantly concealed from view by the dense cloud of poisonous vapor overhanging

Brooklyn Men Even Take Their

... Bables to Bank. The other day a man entered Brooklyn bank carrying in one hand a deposit book and closely clasped in his other arm was a baby that was perhaps ten or twelve months old. The age may not be exact, but at any rate the young one was old enough to sit up and look around, as if it was consciously taking in the sights and sounds of a new world.

Going up to one of those projecting shelves which are placed against the walls in some banks for the convenience of patrons who prefer to stand up while writing, the man placed the baby on the sloping surface, and as a precaution against sliding off, which it showed every indication of doing, the man put a brake against the threatened movement of the mass of baby draperies by placing his arm in front of the baby.

Then he proceeded to fill out a deposit check, and when that was accomplished he again took the baby in his arm, and, going up to the teller's window, handed in his book, and when the entry had been made he received the book again, and, placing it in his pocket, walked out of the bank, the baby still staring everybody out of countenance with the utmost cool-
