LOCATION FOR OIL WELL TO BE MADE SOON

Mr. Cooke, the geologist for the Oklahoma Oil Co., who are to drill a test well near Portales in the near future, arrived last Friday and has been looking over the situation during the week. Mr. Cooke received a telegram today from his partner, Mr.La-Neve, stating that he would be the cattle tick and louse, contagihere on tomorrow's train and it ous abortion, scabbies, etc., and is expected that work will begin will give several lectures throughat once on the location of the out the county, the dates and hight. Gutches, attorney next week. for the company will be in Portales some time next week to complete arrangements and get ready for sure enough drilling. Mr. Cooke made a report to his company this week which was very flattering for this district in respect to oil prospects. One thing sure, it won't be long now until we will know whether we have oil or not, and the chances are very much in favor of a good

It is the Bureau's intention to have Dr. Johnson do just as much personal work as his time will possibly permit so parties wishing expert advice or herd inspection should arrange for dates at once. This can be done by seeing or writing County Agent Petersen who is now arranging Dr. Johnson's itinery.

Stewed Lettuce.—This is a dish not sufficiently used to become common. When one is tired of serving the fresh lettuce, steam it until tender, and serve as a greens, with butter, salt, pepper and a dash of vinegar, if liked. Cucumbers are good cooked. Peel and cook until tender in boiling water or over steam, then serve with a drawn butter sauce. Onion juice may be added for variety of flavor.

Canterbury Chicken.-Cook together three and one-half tablespoonfuls of butter with one tablespoonful of finely chopped onion (when the onion is yellow, add one tablespoonful of cornstarch) and pour over one and one-half cupfuls of chicken stock. Bring to the boiling point and simmer for ten minutes, add one-half tablespoonful of lemon fuice, three-fourths of a teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of paprika and one and one-half cupfuls of chopped cooked chicken. Serve very hot, garnished with toast points and persiey.

Thedford's Black-Draught, Says Kentucky Lady, Is Excellent For Breaking Up a

Elgin, Ky.-Mrs. Albert Albright, who has lived here many years, says: "I use Black-Draught as a laxative. It is splendid for breaking up colds. I have used it for a bad cold and tightness in the chest. One cup of good warm tea made from Black-Draught I found most helpful. It makes the liver act and gives almost instant relief.

This spring my little daughter began having chills, the hard, shaking kind. After the chills her fever would rise and her head would ache. We are a good ways from the doctor, so I just began giving her good doses of Black-Draught and it cured her. -She is in good health, has a good color, and her appetite is all right. So of course we consider Black-Draught as unsurpassed periences and how she was won over for a family medicine."

Don't wait until you have headache, sick stemach, indigestion, or other disagreeable symptoms, but take an occayour body in good health.

AN ALL-AROUND SAVING

One vital economy which has im pressed itself upon thousands of practical women is quick breads—the new and better way of supplying the staff of life, always recognized as more es sential than bullets.

While the pre-war methods which so frequently suggested the use of yeast were, far ahead of the pre-historic practices of soaking grain in water until softened, then making into a paste and baking into a hard, granitic cake, the necessity of using baking powder with substitute flours in the various war recipes has antiquated the old, slow, cumbersome methods which for centuries have handlcapped cooks, without sacrificing taste, texfure or technique.

Quick breads mean a saving of time and when made of high-grade ingre- the other day I hadn't time." dients are also of better quality and more economical.

The use of baking powder prevents age of flour from which there is no escape when yeast is used.

One of my friends writes of her exto the new way as follows:

"Through my desire to 'Save Food and Help Win the War,' I became interested in an unusual advertisement for Calumet Baking Powder in which sional dose of Black-Draught to help it was claimed that dough left over keep your system free from poison, from the evening meal could be placed and I partly don't. consider yeast as the only leavening a speech. You all said you liked food element worthy of my time and trouble in baking. I laid aside my prejudices and was delighted to find the problems which formerly worried me are now so easy, and today seem almost unreal. I am filled with a new zeal to cook since I gained the help of this time-saving product."

Even though the world is again following peaceful pursuits, the purchase power of a penny is much less than it was a few years ago. Housewives can only meet this unusual condition by heeding the lessons which the War has taught them, including the tests that have proven the folly of judging values by outward appearances, such as the size of the package or looking at quantity rather than quality, etc., for example—a 10-cent can of Calumet will furnish more leavening than the Big Can of double its size of some cheap mixture, manufactured by haphazard methods.—Adv.

Grain Seeds From Western Canada Do Well in Ohio.

Demand for Them is Bound to Add Value to the Land of Our Northern Neighbor, Now to Be Had Cheap.

A large area of the land in several counties in Ohio prepared for spring seeding will be seeded with Marquis wheat-a spring variety. This wheat is about three years ago that the first of this seed was imported into the States, and the result, watched each succeeding year, proved that Ohio soil and spring seeding was a success. The demand for the seed has now become so great that one of the largest seed houses in the state, that has been purchasing from Western Canada farmers and importing it, has decided to purchase a large block of land in that country for the purpose of growing the grain themselves. They will devote a considerable portion of their Western Canada holdings to growing oats, barley and rye. Their action is a strong !rdorsement of the product. For some time past a considerable quantity of seed oats has also been imported. The prolific yield reported was what probably gave an impetus to the introduction of wheat.

It was found, though, after a couple of years the quality of the oats, as well as the yield, began to deteriorate when grown seed was used, making it necessary for fresh importations every couple of years. It is possible that the same experience may follow the growing of Western Canada wheat. In fact it is quite probable, and the Ohio farmer will find it necessary to import

With the success that has followed the Ohio farmers' experiments with this imported seed it is possible other states now growing winter wheat will begin growing spring wheat. It may therefore be taken for granted that Western Canada, in addition to its ability to produce hundreds of millions of bushels of wheat possessing the greatest percentage of gluten of any wheat in the world, will shortly be called upon to provide the seed that will be grown on the additional acres in the United States that may be devoted to spring wheat.

It is a well-established fact that the further north any product of the farm can be brought to a state of maturity. the more vigorous it becomes. This has been proven in the grains that have been produced in Western Canada; it has been shown in the development of its horses, its cattle, its sheep and its hogs; also in its people. a splendid future before him, and many years will not have passed be value will bring prices more commen surate with their true worth than they do today. AN ADVOCATE OF DEMOCRACY CONCERNING A REPUBLICAN

THREAT

Business is turning quickly and prosperously from the conditions of war to the status of peace. All the signs are for a complete revival and a period of activity without precedent. Employment is increasing, wages are stable, new enterprises are arising in all parts of the country. Prospects for good harvests are encouraging. All this has come about without an extra session of Congress and in spite of the hurtful filibuster by which Republicans defeated important legislation at the very outset of "reconstruc-

If the Republican leaders of the next Congress attempt to hamper President Wilson, instead of going about the business of passing the measures which a Democratic Administration framed and would have enacted but for their obstruction, they will halt the recovery of industry and invite trouble. Not President Wilson, but the people at large will be the sufferers.

It begins to appear, however, that discord and factionalism will prevent the Republican majority from adopting and pursuing an affirmative, constructive course of legislation in the Sixty-sixth Congress. They were almost unanimous in their opposition to the Democratic program, but they give signs of being hopelessly lacking in unity as to any other policy. But there is something worse than Republican inability to agree on a plan of obstruction bad though that be. That is, up again.

Autry Mayes came in home they might combine to undo the Saturday from Oklahoma where good work which the Democrats have accomplished in the last six years of their ascendancy. And they have threatened to do that very thing.

To Build and Foster

COMMUNITY always welcomes the establishing of an institution that fills a recognized community need; unfortunately it doesn't always manifest a lively interest in the health of such an institution after it is established.

It is one thing to establish industries; it is quite another thing to build up, develop and maintain them.

An industry can be established by the investment of capital; its development and maintenance depend upon the attitude of the public toward the enterprise and toward the product.

Likewise, the permanency of an institution depends upon the willingness of its customers to pay a sufficient price for its product to enable it to continue strong and healthy financially.

The Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Company's system of wires, furnishing the means of communication over mountains, plains and desert, is a tremendous factor in the development of the West.

Telephone service is a "home product" of every community in the mountain states, and is woven into the very warp and woof of commercial and social life. The permanency and adequacy of telephone service depend upon the same factors as are involved in the security and permanency of every other established industry.

With very, very few exceptions the people of the West recognize these principles and pursue a "live and let live" policy toward all legitimate business institutions.

(Copyright, Bobbe-Merrill Company)

WITH HARDIN GONE, HIS AIDS DISORGANIZED, WHAT WILL RICKARD SAY? INNES ACTS TO SAVE HER BROTHER'S FACE.

Synopeia.-K. C. Rickard, an engineer of the Overland Pacific, is nt by President Marshall to stop the ravages of the Colorado river n the Imperial valley, a task at which Thomas Hardin, head of the Desert Reclamation company, has failed. Rickard foresees embarrassnent because he knows Hardin, who was a student under him in an eastern college, married Gerty Holmes, with whom Rickard once ught himself in love. At the company offices at Calexico Rickard ands the engineers loyal to Hardin and hostile to him. He meets Mr. and Mrs. Hardin and Innes Hardin, the former's half sister. Innes is bitter against Rickard for supplanting her brother. Hardin discovers that Rickard is planning a levee to protect Calexico and puts him down as incompetent. Gerty thinks her husband jealous. Gerty invites Rickard to dinner and there plans a "progressive ride" in his onor. Rickard pushes work on the levee and is ordered by Marshall to "take a fighting chance" on the completion of Hardin's pet project, a gate to shut the break in the river. In the midst of Gerty Hardin's progressive ride, which is begun despite a terrific wind and dust storm, word comes that the river is raging and every man is wanted on the

CHAPTER XV.

On the Levee. Hardin did not go home that night. He was feeling to the quick the irony of his position; his duty now to protect the levee he'd ridiculed; now the only hope of the towns! The integrity of the man never faltered, though his thoughts ran wild. Like the relentless ounds of Actaeon, they pursued him, barking at his vanity.

He started the anxious ranchers at sacking sand. Bodefeldt ran up to tell him that there was a hill of filled sacks over in Mexicall. "Rickard had a bunch of Indians working for a

The confusion of the shy fellow did not escape Hardin. Oh, he knew what Bodefeldt was thinking, what every one was saying! They were all laughing at him. The coincidence of this extraordinary flood had upheld Rickard's wild guess, haloed his judgment, It was all a piece of his infernal luck. Sickening, that's what it was! His orders scattered. He ran up and down the levee, giving orders; recalling them when he found he was repeating

This new humiliation, coming on the heels of the dredge flasco, put him in execrable temper. He shouted his or ders over the noises of the night. He. rated the men, bullled them. No one did anything right! Lord, what he had to put up with! The other men, the ranchers and engineers, saw in his excitement certainty of the valley's

The wind and the darkness contributed to the confusion. Eager hovels were tossing up earth before anyone could tell where the danger point would be. The water was not yet high enough to determine the place of battle. Sacked sand was being brought over from Mexicali, Fifty pair of hands made short work of Rickard's "hill." Lanterns were flashing through the darkness like restless fireflies. The wind and rushing water deadened the sound of the voices. It was a battle of giants against pygmies. In the darkness, the giants threatened to conquer.

At three in the morning, a horseman rode in from Fassett's, one of the big ranches to the north, cut by the New river.

"The river is cutting back," he called through the din, "cutting back toward the towns."

A turn in the gorge, a careless dump-pit had pulled the river like a mad horse back on its haunches. It was kicking back. "They are short-handed up there.

They need help." "Dynamite," cried Silent and Hardin antiphonally. They happened to be standing near. "We must have dynamite," bawled Hardin, "Are the wires down between here and Brawley? We must get a wire somehow to Los Angeles, to rush it down here this morning."

"It's here. There is a carload on the siding," yelled Silent.

Hardin did not need to ask by whose orders it was there. An angry scowl spoiled his face.

"Put some on the machine." He was turning away.

Silent called after him. Did Mr. Hardin think it was safe? There was no road between the towns and Fassett's. The night, the explosive—should they not wait till morning? The question threw his late chief into a rage.

"Did I ask you to take it?" It was the opening for his fury. "Safe! Will the towns be safe if the river cuts back here? The channel has got to be widened, and you talk of your own ious skin! Wait till I ask you to ake it. Get out the machine. I'll take it to Fassett's myself."

gineer. "Nonsense, there is no danger." Hardin saw personal affection in the plea. He put his hand affectionately on the man's shoulder.

"You go home and catch a nap: this is my job." He was standing on the step, "Crank her."

There was nothing for Silent to do but to get out. Hardin pointed the long nose of the car into the darkness. She was off like the greyhound she suggested, missing a telegraph pole by half an inch.

"Who is in charge here?" a woman's voice was piercing the racket of wind and wave.

The dawn was breaking. Down the New_river he could see the wind whip ping the water into whitecapped fury. 'Vicious," he muttered. "Those heavy waves play the Old Harry with the levee.'

"Where is my brother?" "Miss Hardin!" cried Silent.

"Where is he?" demanded Innes. Her hair streamed away from her face. Her cheeks were blanched. Her yellow eyes, peering into the dusk, looked owlish. Her wind-spanked skirts clung to her limbs. To Silent she looked boyish, as though clipped and trousered. "Where is my brother?" she re- day. The sensational aspect of the peated.

"I'd take more orders," suggested the engineer.

"Then send a third of them home, tell them to come back tonight at six. Send away the other third, tell them to come back at noon. Keep the other shift. Say you'll have coffee sent from the hotel, tell them Hardin says to stop wasting stuff. Tell them, oh, tell them anything you can think of, Silent, before he comes." Her breakdown was girlish.

She could hear the signal of the locomotive; coming closer. Then she could hear the pant of the engine as it worked up the grade. It was a steady gentle climb all the way from the junction, two hundred feet below sealevel, to the towns resting at the level of the sea. It quickened her thought of the power of the river. Nothing between it and the tracks at Salton. Nothing to stop its flow into that spectacular new sea whose basin did not need a drop of the precious misguided flow. She could hear the bells; now the train was coming into lingers had tolled, her mind had been the station; she would not wait for Silent. She did not want to meet Rickard.

No one saw her as she left the levee. She passed Silent, who was issuing orders. She heard him say, "The boss SAVS SO."

She took the road by the railroad sheds, to avoid the dismissed shifts, moving townward. At full speed, she collided with a man, rounding the sheds' corner. It was Rickard. Her veil had slipped to her shoulders and he saw her face.

"Miss Hardin!" he exclaimed. Whatever are you doing here?" "I was looking for my brother."

"You ought not to be out at night lone here." "It's morning!"

"With every Indian in the country coming in. I'll send Parrish with

She recognized Parrish behind him. She tried to tell him that she knew every Indian in Mexicali, every Mexican in the twin towns, but he would not listen to her. "I'm not going to let you go home alone."

She had an impulse to dismiss Parrish; every man was needed, but he would obey Rickard's orders. MacLean had told her that! "They don't like him, but they mind him!"

Rickard made his way down to the levee. "Where is Hardin?" he asked of every one he met. Silent came up to explain that Hardin had gone up to Fassett's just a few minutes ago to carry dynamite. The river was cutting back there. "Good," cried Rickard, "that's bully!"

"Not a minute too soon!" declared Rickard, going back to his inspection.

Opposition.

The second night of the flood, the women of the towns dragged brush and filled sacks for the men to carry. It was past midnight when Innes Hardin left the levee. While her feet and fretting over Tom. Two nights, and no rest! It was told by men who came down the river how Hardin was heroically laboring. She yearned to go to him; perhaps he would stop for a few bours to her entreaty. But an uncertain trail across country, with the dust-laden wind in her face? She decided to wait for the dawn. A snatched sleep first, but who would call her? She would sleep for hours, so weary every muscle. Her mind fixed on Sam as the only man in town who had time to saddle a horse for a woman.

She went in search of him. She found that the long adobe office building had already taken on the look of defeat, of ruin. The casements had been torn from the partitions; the doors and windows were out. The furniture had been hauled up to high ground farther away for safety. She went hunting through the ghoulish gloom for the darky, turning her lantern in every dark corner. She knew that she would find him sleeping. Then she heard steps on the veranda.

She ran toward them, expecting to see Sam. She swung her lantern full on two figures mounting the shallow with defiance. It was as though she had spoken: "Well, think what you a while. I'm going up after him." will of it, you Hardins! I don't care what you think of me!"

What indeed did she think of it? Why should she feel like the culprit before these two, her words deserting her? It was Gerty's look that made her feel guilty, as though she "He left me in charge," glibly lied had been spying. To meet them together, here at midnight, why should not they feel ashamed? She had done nothing wrong. And Tom down yonder fighting-and they make his absence a cover for their rendezvous.

Gerty had to supply the courtesy for two. She told Mr. Rickard in her appealing way that he had been very kind; that she "would have been frightened to death to go home alone." Innes had to say something! "Goodnight!" The words had an insulting ring. The wind covered a passionate si lence, as the two women, followed by Sam, yawning and stretching, made their way down the shricking street. "It was true," Innes was thinking. She offices of the company to report to had at last stumbled on the rout, but it was not a matter of personal, but moral untidiness; not a carelessness of pins or plates, of tapes or dishes. It was far worse; a slackness of ethics It meant more unhappiness for Tom.

Her aching muscles told her that she could not have slept four hours when the darky was back, knocking at her door.

Innes' horse loped through the silent streets.

"I'll run past the levee; perhaps Tom has come back." It occurred to her that there might be a message at the hotel. She pulled on her left rein, and swept past the deserted adobe. As she reined in her horse, Rickard stepped out on the sidewalk. He, too, was heavy-eyed from a snatched nap. "Were you looking for me?"

The scorn in the girl's face told him that his question was stupid. For

"Has my brother come back?" He said he .id not know. "You can see I have been dreaming!" She would not smile back at him, but rode off toward the levee.

Was this the river? West of the levee, a sea of muddy water spread over the land. There was yet a chance to save the towns, the town, she corrected herself, as her eye fell on the Mexican village across the ditch. For Mexicali was doomed. Some of the mud huts had already fallen; the water was running close to the station

She saw Wooster standing near, calculating the distance, the time, perhaps, before the new station would go. She hailed Wooster. Ruin was presaged in the lines of his forehead. "Pretty bad?" she cried.

He shook his head.

"Is Tom back?" fearlessness. Tom let her go where the liked. She had an impulse to discourse deringly. Of course Gerty would take all possessed. He'll work till he this! "He's over there, now. Fighting like before the situation got as bad as Wooster was proud of that method.

> "We all know Tom!" Her pride sprang up. "But he's got to stop for "Not if my name's Wooster. I'll go. He'll mind me."

She watched the flowing river, swollen with wreckage. She saw, with comprehension, a section of a fence; somebody's crop gone. There was a railway tie, another! The river was eating up Estrada's new roadbed? A cry broke from her as a mesquit on the coffee-colored tide caught on a buried snag. The current swirled dangerously around it. Instantly, the water rose toward the top of the levee. Men came running to pry away the tree. A minute later, it was dancing down the stream. They raised the bank against the pressing lapping waves. There, the tree had struck again.- They ran down the levee with their long poles. Each time that happened, unless the obstruction were swiftly dislodged, she knew it meant an artificial fall somewhere, a quick scouring out of the channel. The men were working like silent parts of a big machine; the confusion of the first night was gone. From their faces one would not guess that their fortunes. their homes, hung on the subduing of that indomitable force which had not vet known defeat, which had turned back explorer and conquistador. Ah, there was the lurking fear of it! Victory still lay to its credit; the other column was blank.

She saw Wooster coming toward her. His snapping black, eyes shot out sparks of anger.

"He won't let me go." "Who won't let you?" But she knew. "Casey, Says he'll send some one else. I said as nobody else'd make Hardin stop. He said as that was up "Orders me to bed." spat Wooster Wonder why he didn't order gruel, too. It's spite, antagonism to Hardin, that's what it is!" She believed that, too. Tom was right. Rickard did take advantage of his authority.

She did not see Rickard until he stood by her side.

"I'm sorry not to spare Wooster, Miss Hardin. But there's stiff work ahead. He's got to be ready for a call. If Hardin insists on spoiling one good soldier, that's his affair. I can't let him spoil two," Wooster shrugged, and left them. "Spoiling good soldiers!" "I've taken Bodefeldt off duty.

Why, the building was desert-Ogilvie's letters had prophesied ruin. It all looked wrong to him. Go-ing on to the levee, he met MacLean, Jr., who was coming away. The boy told him vaguely that he would find Rickard around there, somewhere, "I'll hunt him up for you."

"Why, they are letting itaget ahead of them!" Babcock's manner suggested that he was aggrieved that such carelessness to his revered company should go unpunished. Something, he told MacLean, might have been done

His excited stride carried him cross the dividing ditch, which now was carrying no water, into Mexicali, MacLean had to lengthen his step to keep pace with him. The havor done to the Mexican village excited Bab cock still more.

Estrada, just in from his submerged tracks, was lounging against an adobe wall. His pensive gaze was turned up-stream. The posture of exhaustion suggested laziness to Babcock, who was on the hunt for responsibility. He was more than ever convinced that the right thing was not being done.

"Estrada!" -Estrada took his eyes from the river. Babcock looked like a snapping terrier taking the ditch at a bound. Liac-Lean, Jr., a lithe greyhound, followed. "What the devil are you doing to stop this?" A nervous hand indicated the Mexican station gleaming in its fresh coat of paint; to the muddy water undermining its foundation.

The instant the drifting mass struck it, there was a shudder of falling earth, the car toppled toward the flood waters, the waves breaking into clouds of spray.

Human responsibility fell to a cipher. The river's might was magnificent. Even Babceck, come to carp, caught the excitement. "Come, MacLean." he cried. "Watch this! The station's going!" He joined Estrada by the adobe wall.

"Have a cigarette?" murmured Eduardo.

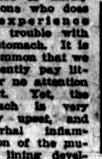

What will the valley do? Facing tremendous losses if it does not push the damage suits filed against the railroad, it faces utter ruin if the railroad abandons the fight against the river. Marshall puts the issue equarely up to the ranchers, but is ne bluffing? Go on with the story in the next issue of this paper.

FAITHFUL WIFE

Suffered Thirty Years With Stom-sch Trouble and Homorrhages of the Bowels.

The Story of a Wonderful Recovery

There is hardly not experience some trouble with the stomach. It is so common that we frequently pay lit-tle or ne attention to it. Yet, the stomach is very easily upset, and catarrhal inflammation of the mucous lining develops, grows worse—the pain and dis-tress is incessant and the truth dawns that we have chronic stomach trouble.

The case of Mr. Louis Young, 205 Merrimac St., Rochester, N. Y., is typical. He writes: "I suffered for thirty years with chronic bowel trouble, stomach trouble and hemorrhages of the bowels. We bought a bottle of Peruna and I took it faithfully. I began to feel better. My wife persuaded me to continue and I did for some time as directed. Now I am a well man." Mr. Young's experience is not unusual.

Council of Four Ready To Restore Blockade of German Coast If Peace Does Not Come Soon.

Paris.-Immediate measures tending to the further subjugation of Germany if its delegates refuse to sign the peace treaty were indicated by the announcement that Marshal Foch had been sent to the Rhine by the council of four to take such action as may become necessary in the event that the treaty is not signed.

The council of four, composed of President Wilson, David Lloyd George, M. Clemenceau, and Signor Orlando, considered the immediate reimposttion of the blockade against Germany in case that country declines to sign the peace treaty.

On the other hand, it is anticipated that the blockade will be entirely lifted immediately if the German delegates affix their signatures to the

Won't Admit Blame.

One of the notes on reparations presented by the Germans does not protest against the payment by Germany for the devastation wrought in Belgium and northern France which it says, Germany is ready to de willingly. It is added, however, that Germany will not pay reparation for this on the principle that she is not responsible for the war.

One of the later German notes dealing with economic clauses of the treaty declares that they mean the ruin of Germany if they are enofrced.

PRIMARY TOPIC-God's Willingness to JUNIOR TOPIC-The People of Nine-INTERMEDIATE TOPIC - Turning

From Sin to God.

SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—The Nature and Fruit of Repentance. 1. The Repentance of the People of Nineveh (3:1-10). The following steps are noted in their conversion: 1. Hearing the Word of the Lord (vv. 1-4).

The Lord commanded Jonah to go to Nineveh, a great and wicked city, and there "preach the preaching" that he bade him. Jonah's runaway experience (see chapters 1, 2) was such that he was willing to obey God. His chastisement was severe, but by God's grace he was now ready to execute the commission. "Jonah arose and went unto Nineveh according to the word of the Lord" (v. 3). So great was the city of Nineveh that it required three days to compass it; that is, to visit its very centers of activity. Jonah, coming from Palestine, doubtless entered the city from the south, and during an entire day going from center to center cried, "Yet forty days and Nineveh shall be overthrown" (v. 4). Since the king's palace seems to have been in the south part of the city Jonah's message soon found its way to him. If every preacher would preach what God bids him there would be more cities turning to God. 2. Believing God (v. 5). They not only believed God would visit judgment upon them, but believed in God, and put their trust in him for mercy and salvation.

3. Repented (vv. 5-9). Their penitence was shown in (1) proclaiming a fast and putting on sackcloth (vv. 5-7). These marks of humiliation were shown by all, from the king on his throne to the most humble man. (2) Cried mightily to God (v. 8). In the midst of their humiliation The final test of penitence is turn

His holy nature is unalterably opposed to sin. When men repent from their sins his wrath is turned aside. This is what is meant by God repenting.

II. The Necessity of Repentance (Luke 13:1-5).

Repentance is necessary on the part of all, since all are sinners, "The wages of sin is death" (Rom. 6:23). While God is unalterably opposed to sin he is infinitely gracious. His holy nature compels him to cause judgment to fall upon those who will not turn from their sins to serve him. Repentance is not merely a matter of privilege, but of absolute necessity if one would escape the wrath of God. Repentance is the only door of escape from perdition. It is not a question of how great a sinner one is that determines the need for repentance, since God cannot look upon evil: "For thou art of purer eyes than to behold evil, and canst not look upon iniquity" (Hab. 1-13). No one can ever see him in peace unless he turns from his sins. God commands men to repent (Acts

III. The Blessed Rest its of Repentance (Acts 2:37,38).

1. Remission of sins. Remit means to send away. The one who repents is rid forever of his sins, for he is a new man in Christ.

2. Gift of the Holy Spirit. When one is regenerated he not only is rid of his sins, but God, the Holy Spirit. takes up his abode in him. He is his teacher, gulde and defender. These blessed results ought to move one to repent. The goodness of God ought to provoke men to penitence, $700,000 A MONTH ON EDUCATION, A. E. F.

General Pershing has signed an order establishing an American army university in France to accommodate from 15,000 to 20,000 soldier students. according to a recent cable message Council. Col. Ira L. Reeves has been assigned to the post of military commander of the school, opened at Beaune. General Pershing states in his order that this university is to provide three months' courses for soldiers who cannot attend European univerties. Courses in engineering, liberal and fine arts, science, music and the like will be offered.

It is expected that one of the four agricultural exhibits which have been prepared by the department of agriculture in co-operation with the Y. M. C. A. will be a permanent feature of Beaune. These exhibits, all new material prepared at a cost of $60,000, are nearly ready for shipment overseas. Four agriculture department experts from Washington will accompany the exhibits to France.

The cost of the entire educational received by the Y. M. C. A. War Work program for the soldiers of the A. E. F. has now reached $700,000 a month, the work having been made possible by the generous oversubscrippaign fund in November. Athletic, religious and entertainment activities among overseas soldiers are also being carried on at full strength, these being considered of even greater imlonger periods of leisure.
