CHAPTER VII-Continued. -14-

But alas! they did not begin till some six feet above my head, and the way was sheer. How was I to reach the lowest rung? The rock was too sheer for me to cut steps in, as I had done farther back. I looked about me. Again the luck was with me. In one of the caves I had noticed some broken pieces of fallen rock. They were terribly heavy, but despair lent me strength, and after an hour or two's work, I had managed to roll several of them to the foot of the ladder, and with an effort of which I would not have believed myself capable—had been able to build them one on top of another against the wall. So, I found myself able to grasp the lowest rung with my hands. Then, fastening the lantern round my neck with my necktie. I prepared to mount.

The climb was not difficult, once had managed to get my feet on the first rung of the ladder, but there was always the chance that one of the rungs might have rusted loose with time, in which case, of course, it would have given way in my grasp, and I should have been precipitated backward to certain death below. However, the man who had mortised them had done an honest piece of work, and they proved as firm as on the day they were placed there. Up and up I went, till I must have been forty feet above the floor, and, then, as I neared the foot, instead of coming to a trap door, as I had conjectured. I found that the ladder came to an end at the edge of a narrow ledge, running along the ceiling much as a clerestory runs near the roof of some old churches. On to this I managed to climb. It was barely a yard wide, and the impending roof did not permit of one's standing erect. It was a dizzy situation, and it seemed safest to crawl along on all fours, holding the lanteen in front of me. Presently it brought me up sharp in a narrow recess. It had come to an end.

Yes! but imagine my joy! it had come to an end at a low archway rudely cut in the rock. Deep set in trapped again, but, to my infinite surprise and gratitude, it proved to be slightly ajar, and a vigorous push sent it grinding back on its hinges. What next? I wondered. At all events, I was no longer lost in the bowels of the earth; step by step, I was coming nearer to the frontiers of humanity.

But I was certainly not prepared for what next met my eyes, as I pushed through the low doorway with my lantern, and looked around. Yes! indeed, man had certainly been here, man, too, very purposeful and bustpesslike. I was in a sort of low narrow gallery, some forty feet long, to which the arching rock made a cryptlike ceiling. At my first glance, I saw that there was another door at the far end similar to the one I had entered by : and on the left side of the gallery, built of rough stones from the low ceiling to the floor, was a series of compartments, each with locked wooden door. They were strong and grim looking, and might have been taken for prison cells, or family vaults, or possibly wine bins. The massive locks were red with rust, and there was had it roaring and licking against the money?" plainly no possibility of opening them,

And, at that moment, I noticed that the place was darker than it had been. My lantern was going out. In a moment or two I should be in the pitch dark, and I had discovered that the door at the end of the gallery was as solid as the others.

I was to be trapped, after all; and pictured myself slowly dying there of hunger—the pangs of which I was aiready beginning to feel-and some would break open those doors, uncover those gleaming hoards, and moralize on the irony of my end; condemned to die there of starvation, with the treasure I had so long sought on the other side of those unyielding doors. Old Tom's words suddenly flashed over me, and I could feel my hair literally beginning to rise. "There never was a buried treasure yet that didn't claim its victim." Great God !- and I was to be the ghost, and keep guard in this terrible tomb till the next dead man came along to relieve me of my sentry

Frantically I turned up the wick of my lantern at the thought—but it was all events, I was a gibbering madman. no use; it was plainly going out. I Certainly, there was to be no sleep for examined my match box; I had still a dozen or so matches left. And then my eye fell on that shattered chest. There were those boards, too. At all events I could build a fire and make torches of slivers of wood, so long as the wood lasted.

And then I had an idea. Why not make the fire against the door at the light! God be praised! end of the gallery, and so burn my way through. Brave? My spirits rose at the thought, and I set to at once splitting some small kindling with my knife. In a few minutes I had quite a sprightly little fire going at the bottom of the door; but I saw that I should have to be extravagant with my wood if the fire was to be effective. short time, began to crackle and splut- guish returned a hundredfold. ter in a very cheering fashion.

Whatever lay beyond, it was eviand, indeed, so it proved; for, presenttering ram, and, to my inexpressible joy, it went crashing through, with a shower of sparks, and it was but the work of a few more minutes before the whole door fell flaming down, and I was able to leap through the doorway into the darkness on the other side.

As I stood there, peering ahead, and holding aloft a burning stick-which proved, however, a poor substitute for my lantern—a wonderful sound smote my ears. I could not believe it, and my knees shook beneath me. It was the sound of the sea.

Yes, it was no illusion. It was the sound that the sea makes singing and looking back, I sought for some way echoing through hollow caves—the by which I could descend. sound I heard that night as I stood at the moonlit door of Calypso's cavern, and saw that vision which my heart nearly broke to remember. Besides, I was beginning to feel light-headed and worn out, partly from lack of food, no doubt.

As there was no food to be had. I recalled the old French proverb, "He eats who sleeps"-or something to that effect-and I determined to husband my strength once more with a brief rest. Then suddenly I broke out into an Irish jig-never having had any notion of doing such a thing before. In fact I behaved as I have read of men doing, whom a sudden fortune has bereft of reason. For the time, at

In Which I Understand the Feelings of a Ghost.

So, I surmised, I had been under ground a whole day and two nights, and this was the morning of the second day after Calypso's disappearance. However, it was neck or nothing; so What had been happening to her all take hold of the door-which, after a sound and breath of the sea, my an-

BACK GIVEN OUT?

There's surely some reason for that lame, achy back. Likely it's your kidneys. A cold or strain offtimes congests the kidneys and slows them up. If World Is To Be Restored To_Ecenomic Balance and a Permanent and Stable Peace Established.

Oklahoma City.--Early acceptance of the peace treaty, as a means of bringing about a political and economic balance to the world, was the policy advocated by Former President Taft, when speaking of the league of nations and the peace treaty at his address given at the fair grounds to the Oklahoma Education Association. the last of a week's speeches in Oklahoma.

In commenting on the present status of the league of nations and the causes responsible for the long delay in the acceptance of the peace treaty. Mr. Taft pointed out that it was not a question of what the final league of nations shall ' to make it acceptable but it is a question of whose dress it shall wear. The difference between the opponents and the supporters of the league of nations is the same difference between "tweedledee and tweedledum," he said.

Question of Whose Reservation. "The question," he said, "is not what reservation it shall be, but whose reservation it shall be." Concerning the article involving the Monroe Doctrine, he said there had been three interpretative reservations offered. Each of these amount to the same thing. The only difference in them.

The fruits of delay in accepting the peace treaty he pointed out, are inassumed such a balance that foreign purchasers are unable to buy our goods at our prices. The result of this cannot be foretold, but the United States will reap the results when they do come. Foreign trade is to play a great role in the future of our nation fuss. and that trade cannot be gotten with markets as they are.

CAILLAUX TRIED FOR TREASON

FORMER PREMIER MIXED WITH GERMANS

Death Sentence is Possible in Case of Conviction by the French Senate.

Paris.-Joseph Caillaux, former premier of France, was placed on trial before the senate, sitting as a high court, charged with conspiracy against his country in time of war.

Caillaux faces trial on the specific charges of "having plotted against the external security of the state by maneuvers, machinations and intelligence with the enemy, tending to favor the latter's enterprises against France and her allies." Article 79 of the penal military code makes conviction of them being in the ways of saying such an offense punishable with death. The trial is expected to last between two and three months.

Theodor Lescouve, pro-curator of the evitable. Already our markets have French republic, will conduct the case for the state, assisted by M. Regnault and Captain Mornet, who prosecuted Bolo Pasha, M. WAR CRIMINALS TO BE TRIED IN LEIPSIC BY GERMAN COURT

KAISER INTERNED IN HOLLAND

Final Disposition on Perplexing Clause of the Treaty is a Compro> mise Agreement.

London.-The allied reply to the German note of January 25, proposing as an alternative to the extradition that persons accused by the allies be tried at Leipzic, states that Germany's proposal for such trial at Leipzic is compatible with Article 228 of the peace treaty. The allies, the note says, will abstain from intervention in the procedure of that court.

After stating that the allies considered the German note of January 25, the reply says:

"The powers reserve the right to decide whether proposed procedure by Germany does not, in effect, bring Pape's !- Adv. about their escape from punishment of their crimes. In this event the allies would exercise their rights to their full extent by submitting the cases to their own tribunals."

Trials of Germans under charges preferred by the powers will be under close surveillance by the allies, who will not waive their rights in case there is suspicion of unfairness or of a miscarriage of justice. The powers will not interfere physically in the conduct of the cases against the accused Germans, but will leave their disposition in the hands of the supreme court at Leipzic.

Lord Birkenhead and Jules Cambon will head the inter-allied commission which is to insure the strict and proper carrying out of the trials of German alleged war culprits by the German supreme court at Leipzic.

The German press, as quoted in a dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Copenhagen, declares that Field Marshal von Hindenburg's surrender is demanded by the allies, not only because he is alleged to have said the "most cruel war is the most, humane, because it leads to an end," but also because of his responsibility for the destruction of property during the German retreat.

The field marshal is also charged jointly with General Ludendorf, with girls are alleged to have been handed imprisoned if they refused to work.

To Intern the Kaiser

The latest allied note to Holland with regard to extradition of the former German emperor reverses the original demand for his surrender, and only asks his internment, with the suggestion that the former monarch be sent, perhaps to one of the Dutch islands in the East Indies.

The Dutch government has already determined to reply with an offer actually to intern Wilhelm at Doorn. Holland would accept the full responsibility of preventing him from endangering the peace of the world, establishing a guard over him and a strict censorship.

That the former ruler is undoubtedly willing to spend the rest of his life in Doorn is the belief in official circles, where it is also believerd that the allies will accept the proposal to place upon Holland responsibility for keeping him there. They point to Doorn as being a particularly advantageous place to intern him, as the village is not near any large city and the house which the former emperor has bought is so placed as to be easily guarded and it is further from the German frontier than Amerongen. where the former emperor is now liv-

Republican publicity is full of the name and fame of Abraham Lincoln these days. No one can blame the G. O. P. for diverting ties of Republicans in Congress as public attention from Lodge to Lincoln, but it is well to remember that it is the Pedant of Nahant and not the Great Emancipator that is directing Republican affairs in the Senate just now.

More than seven million words were spoken on the subject of the treaty and the League of Nations. But that is no vindication of free speech. The cost to the taxpayers was many thousands of dollars.

Senator Borah is right when he tells his Republican colleagues that it is by the present congress and not by the rhetoric of an unofficial committee that his party will be judged in the coming campaign.

With one or two exceptions Democratic Senators have been willing to accept the treaty as the Peace Conference framed it, but in the interests of the United States and all the world they have been agreeable to ratification with such reservations as, without requiring resubmission of the pact or impairing the potency of the League of Nations, would at the same time express this country's understanding of its obligations. The points of importance for the public's recollection are that the Democratic Senators preferred the treaty as it came to the senate, but were ready to forego this preference to hasten and insure ratification. Their attitude was always affirmative.

From the beginning—before the provisions of the treaty and the covenant of the League were reduced to formal verbiage-the Republicans showed their hostility and threatened obstruction. They have continued their opposition to this moment. They disagreed among themselves not as to whether the treaty should be adopted as it was written, but as to whether it should be crippled or destroyed outright. It was a division not between enemies and friends of the treaty, but a divergence of opinion between those who would paralyze it and a approval, and those who would trade for eattle. See G. L. # Carrying a Ton a Mile for less than a Cent

Freight rates have played a very small part in the rising cost of living.

Other causes the waste of war, under-production, credit inflation - have added collers to the cost of the necessities of life, while freight charges have added only cents.

The average charge for hauling a ton of freight a mile is less than a cent.

A suit of clothing that sold for $30 before the war was carried 2,265 miles by rail from Chicago to Los Angeles for 16½ cents.

Now the freight charge is 22 cents and the suit sells for $50.

The cost of the suit has increased 20 dollars. The freight on it has increased only 51 cents. Other transportation charges enter into the cost of the finished article—carrying the wool to the mills and the cloth to the tailors—but these other charges amount to but a few cents

The $10 pair of shoes that used to a sell for $5 goes from the New Eng. LATEO land factory to the Florida dealer for a freight charge of 573 cents only one cent more than the pre-war rate.

Beef pays only two-thirds of a cent pound freight from Chicago to New York.

Reports Finding Millions American Educator Evol of Shells Far Above the Present Sea Level.

Orlis I. Kennedy, an attorney of San Bernardino, Cal., has returned from an exploration trip on Painted hill, which is 40 miles east of San Bernardino. He brought with him samples of seashells from the great bed of a one-time ocean that is older the story forms no part of the real than Mount San Jacinto and a story of seeing an old Spanish musket and Indian water vessels in an inaccessible place on the hill.

Kennedy plans to organize a party to return and get the musket, which, he believes, is at least one hundred years old. To obtain the relic somebody will have to be lowered from a cliff on a rope and then swung into what probably is an old sea cavern.

Some of the shells, he said, were found 2,050 feet above sea level. He stated there probably were millions embedded in the rock formation.

Amber Beads Long Popular.

The superstition which clings to the meaning of beads is of ancient origin. The custom of wearing an amber. necklace was immensely common, and is not yet extinct among old women in England. The amber, when heated sends forth an agreeable perfume. In olden times it was the present made by a mother to her daughter on her wedding eve.

and the Whale

Dr. R. G. Moulton, professor of literature at the University of Chicago, addressing a gathering of Wesleyans at Bath, England, where he received his education, insists that Jonah was not swallowed by the whale and that

The Bible, mighty in itself, said Doctor Moulton, had passed through the hands of commentators who had no knowledge, no understanding of literature, and who reduced it to a form which had little or no likeness to the real Bible. One of these numerous commentators had written into that most spiritual and beautiful book of Jonah the narrative of the whale, the only effect being one of distortion and disfigurement.

In actual fact the story, asserted Doctor Moulton, had been originally in the form of a mere footnote comment in manuscript, but by some blunder, due to careless, supshod printing from which the Bible suffered more than any other book in the world, the fable of the whale had been included in the general text. And in this way had it come down through the ages to the modern world as pure comedy, or, what was worse, ribald satire,

LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 29

PETER WRITES ABOUT CHRIS-TIAN LIVING.

LESSON TEXT-1 Peter 2:1-15, 11-25.
GOLDEN TEXT-He that saith he abid eth in him ought himself also so to walk, even as he walked.—I John 2:6. PRIMARY TOPIC—Doing as Jesus did.
JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Treat Those Who Wrong Us.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC The Nobility of Patience.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC Ideals for Christian Living.

The purpose of Peter was to establish all who were passing through suffering and testing. See for example 1:7, 3:14, 4:12, 5:10-12.

I. Christian Growth (vv. 1-5).

The Christian obtains his life through the new birth, and the agent of its accomplishment is the Word of God (1:23). The same vitalizing and energizing power which makes the believer a child of God is essential to growth and development. In order to have spiritual growth there must be both renunciation and appropriation.

1. Renunciation (v. 1). Certain things injurious to spiritual life must be put away (1) malice-all wickedness, that is, the will to do injury to others without cause; (2) guile-deceit of all kinds; (3) hypocrisiesfeigning to be what one is not-assuming a false appearance; (4) envies hatred of others because they possess excellencies which we do not: (5) evil speaking—all kind of slanderous speaking against others.

2. Appropriation (vv. 2, 3). (1) Spiritual food must be taken (v. 2). The principle of the new life was conveyed through the Word (1:23), and the Word is the means by which that life is to be strengthened and developed. Just as a new born babe loves milk, so men who are born again love the Bible. (2) Spiritual food must be assimilated (v. 3). The Word of God must be received and assimflated by meditation.

3. The grand objective (vv. 4, 5). It is coming to Christ-to grow up and become a part of the glorious church, the spiritual house, which is designed to show forth the glory of

II. Seemly Behavior of Christians (vv. 11-25).

1. As pilgrims and sojourners (vv. 11. 12). Christians are merely sojourners on the earth; they are journeying through it on their way to the eternal home in the heavens. Our heavenly citizenship (Phil. 3:20) should constrain us to (1) abstain from fleshly lusts (v. 11). The term "lusts" includes the entire army of unclean forces springing from our carnal natures; they are enumerated Galatians 5:19-21. These war against the soul. (2) Behavior honest before the heathen (v. 12). . Christians should so live that it will be impossible for the world to speak against them as evildoers.

2. As citizens (vv. 13-17). While the Christian's true citizenship is in heaven, he has a responsibility as a citizen on the earth. A Christian man recognizes the necessity of social order, and will not only graciously submit to the authority of rulers regardless of the form of government, but will faithfully perform his obligations as a citizen. This he will not do through cringing fear, but as the Lord's free man. By this free submission as a servant of God he puts to silence the ignorance of foolish men (vv. 15, 16). (1) Honor all men (v. 17). He will see in every man the image of God and therefore give honor to him. (2) Love the brotherhood (v. 17). The Christian has a peculiar love for those who are of the same household. (3) Fear God (v 17). (4) Honor the king (v. 17) This has peculiar significance, for in all probability the wicked Nero was the king then reigning.

3. As servants (vv. 18-25). While doubtless slaves were meant here, the principle applies to all who have relation to employers. The Christian will be in subjection to his master. He will not only do this when his employer is gentle and reasonable, but even when it means wrongful suffering. It means not only submission. but loyalty. It is the duty of a Christian to consider and further the interests of his employer. Many times to do so means hardship and suffering. The grand example of suffering wrongfully is Jesus Christ. While his suffering is an example to us, it was much more, because he suffered in order to break forever the power of sin so as to do away forever with oppression.

Canadian Farmers Turn Winter Months to Good Account.

Large crops and good prices for the wheat, oats, barley and flax from Canadian farms have made the winter resorts in California at times resemble a meeting of a Canadian farmers' institute, but the practice among successful farmers of spending their winters holidaying seems to be on the wane. After all, nothing can be more tiresome than having nothing to do, and the farmers of Western Canada are now finding winter employment right on their farms which rivals the attractions of the sunny South. Live stock is the explanation, according to a six-foot Westerner who dropped into the Canadian Government Information Bureau at 311 Jackson street, St. Paul. He was on his way back to Western Canada with a carload of selected breeding stock which had carried off blue ribbons at several state fairs in 1919. "We have found," said he, "that there is just as much pleasure and a great deal more profit in developing a herd of prize stock as in listening to the murmur of the sad sea waves. Where we used to grow grain exclusively now we are raising stock as well. The fact that steers raised in Western Canada took the grand championship at the International Live Stock Show at Chicago two years in succession shows how well we are getting along. And instead of depleting our bank rolls we add a tidy sum to them."

"But don't you find the life monotonous?" "Not in the least. You see, we have a rural club which meets in our school house, where we thrash out all kinds of problems. Here we exchange ideas and also have occasional talks from government experts, and the man who goes abroad for the winter only realizes how much he has missed when at a summer picnic he hears an address by a neighbor that would do credit to a college graduate.

"It was at one of these meetings that we decided to import a prizewinning stallion, and today our district is raising some of the best draft horses in Canada. The carload of breeding stock which I am now shipping to my farm is indirectly the result of our club meetings. We are going to make that little corner of Saskatchewan one of the big stock centers of America. Why shouldn't we? Everything is in our favor-climate, fertility, cheap land, free grazing land adjoining lots of farms. creameries, government supervision. climate makes a man? Well, it's just like that with stock. They get to be great, husky fellows, hardy and bigframed—and that counts on market were his parting words as he left to catch his train. "Til show you some of the finest land and live stock out of doors, and treat you to a real farm meal-everything but the coffee and sugar grown right on my farm. That counts some in these days of high prices."-Advertisement.

U. S. SHIP AUCTION IS HELD

BOARD RECEIVES BIDS ON 30 SHIPS

Wilson Expected to Deny Agreement With Britain for Low Price on Vessels.

Washington.-Despite protests in the senate and elsewhere and court proceedings designed to stay the action, the shipping board received bids for the thirty former liners.

When the ships first were offered by groups in the services in which the board had planned originally to operate them no bids were received, but spirited bidding developed later for individual vessels or selected groups to run in specified service.

While the bidding was in progress these developments came:

Justice Bailey of the district supreme court took under advisement the application of William Randolph Hearst of New York for an injunction to stop the sale of the vessels.

It was expected President Wilson would inform the senate "there was no basis" for reports that there was agreement between the shipping board and British interests for the sale of the vessels. Information as to this report is asked in a resolution by Senator Brandegee, republican, Connecticut.

The first vessels offered were the Black Arrow, The Amphion, and the Philippines, composing the group of the Black Sea service. No bids were offered for them

The first group composing the South American service, the Aeolus, DeKalb, Princess Matolka and Pocahontas, was then offered.

P. A. S. Franklin, president of the the womanly constitution. International Mercantile Corporation, made a bid of $14,000,000 for nine vessels for service to the United Kingdom and northern European ports.

The vessels covered by the bid were the Leviathian, George Washington, America, President Grant, Nanzmond, ka and Callao.

Moore & McCormack offered $4,-American service, and the Munson S. present time. S. line, a conditional bid, approximately $3,880,350, for the same vessels, the Martha Washington, Aeolus, Hinton, George Goethals, American Ship & Use it and see. All grocers, 5c. Commerce Corporation, offered $10, $00,000 for six vessels for the Hamburg and Bremen service, the service being rapidly bid up to $10,500,000 by solete." President Franklin, of the International Mercantile Marine.

WILSON - ALLIES QUARREL

Over Settlement of the Fiume-Adriatic

Paris.—A summary of the many points in the allied reply to President Wilson's Adriatic note, discloses that President Wilson threatened to withdraw his signature from the British-French-American treaty establishing security for France, to which the allies' reply that such action would destroy absolutely the "new French polsy," for which President Wilson invited protection. The fundamental points of the reply to President Wilson according to the correspondent

First: The allies answer the accusation of having prepared a convention for the annexation of Fiume to taly, which presupposes bad faith on the part of Italy by saying that President Wilson is unable to demonstrate

Second. The Italian petition for the establishment of territorial contiguity with Fiume is a very small thing compared with the cession of Dalmatio, which the whole world is able to prove by merely examining the map

Third: The allies observe that the project of President Wilson which comprehends the creation of a buffer state, has been rejected by the Jugo-Slavs and the allied nations have been unable to insist upon it.

Fourth: The strip of territory necessary to establish the contiguity of Fiume with Italy has not sufficient value to justify procrastination in reestablishing the peace of Europe.

Fifth: Italy entered the war inspired by ideals at a moment at least as critical as that when the United in blood and money incomparably

Sixth: The president, in threatening to withdraw his signature from the treaty of Versailles, which established the security of France, gravely inwhich he invited protection. He not only destroys the value of his first and most important act, but annihilates it absolutely since he shows that engagements contracted in accord with his policy can be destroyed light-

Lady Suffered Terribly for Eight Weeks But Her Case Showed Wonderful Improvement After Taking Cardui.

Johnson City, Tenn.-Mrs. M. R. Scott, living near this town, states: 'About three years ago I was down in bed . . . terrible and so weak I couldn't bear the sight of food. This condition continued for about eight weeks . . . I thought I was going to die, and knew I must get something to do me some good. I had heard all my life of Cardui and the good results obtained from its use. So I decided to try it.

After bout a half bottle of Cardui my appetite improved, then I was less nervous. I kept it up until I had taken five bottles-and such an improvement! I gained flesh and now am the picture of health, due, I believe, solely to the use of Cardui. I am the mother of ten children and feel well and strong."

Cardui is a mild, medicinal tonic for women. It has stood the most severe of all tests—the test of time, having been in use for over forty years. It is composed of purely vegetable ingredients, which have been found to help build up the vitality, tone up the nerves, and strengthen

SALTS IF BACKACHY

Your Bladder Is Troubling

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three

Out of Chaos—

The Telephone Company's greatest asset is the co-operation of the public; it is a big enterprise, in the successful operation of which both the company and the people are vitally concerned. As a unit in the great Bell System it is universal in the scope of its service. It has the biggest, hardest work imaginable, for it has as many persons to please as has the President of the United States.

The past few years have been full of perplexing and disappointing problems and conditions. No business organization can be any more perfect than the combined intelligence, sincerity and industry of its human management. A corporation is subject to all the trials and tribulations of the individual, but in an increasing ratio to its magnitude and responsibilities.

There is no avenue of human activity that has not been paved with sacrifice during the past four years; there isn't an individual who has not contributed in some way to the winning of the world's greatest war at discomfort to himself and by voluntary self-denial, and every business organization has contributed its tithe of service. Out of the chaos of the world a new day dawns pregnant with promise of a happier condition of affairs. As you look forward to a more prosperous, brighter era, the Telephone Company looks forward to increased efficiency, better service, and, above all, to pleased and satisfied patrons.
