SALARIES OF COUNTY OFFICERS FIXED

TOTAL APPROACHES RECEIPTS TO OFFICERS SALARY FUNDS

With a few minor exceptions—for which estimates have been inserted—the Eastland county commissioners court this week fixed the salaries of Eastland county officers as provided for under the constitutional amendment and statutes abolishing the fee system in the state of Texas.

The total amount of these salaries about approximates the total paid last year, County Judge Clyde L. Garrett said. County Auditor Don Parker said that from best estimates and indications the receipts of the officers salary fund will range between $42,000 and $43,000, which is just about the total of the salaries and expense estimates fixed by the court and the auditor. In this fact Eastland county is fortunate, Auditor Don Parker said, because in many instances the total of county salaries is considerably in excess of the potential salary fund revenue.

The maximum salary for a county official in Eastland county, which is an "under" county because its population is less than 40,000, is $3,500. But the commissioners court could not, under the law, fix a less salary than the earnings of the officer last year if those were $3,500 or under. One exception to this is the salary of the district attorney which was fixed by state statute several years ago at $5,000. This was done by the legislature in 1931 when a special bill creating the office of criminal district attorney in Eastland county to replace a former county attorney status, was passed. The commissioners court could not fix a less amount for the salary of this office.

Another exception is the salary of the county treasurer, maximum of which is $2,000. Only about $900 of the county treasurer's salary is paid out of the officers salary fund. However, the remainder coming out of the road bond interest and sinking fund. Similarly, only a fourth of the salary of the county judge comes out of the salary fund, the remainder being paid out of World Wonder Car To Be Here Until 10 o'Clock P. M.

The World Wonder car of the U. S. Marine corps, parked in front of the Cisco chamber of commerce, today was drawing hundreds of youngsters and adults to view its 1001 wonders of nature, curios and relics of scientific progress or the savagery of uncivilized lands. The car will remain parked there until 10 o'clock this evening.

Its appearance in Cisco is sponsored by the chamber of commerce and the parent-teacher associations. A charge of 10 cents for adults and five cents for children is made for admission. Proceeds, above the cost of bringing the car to Cisco, go into the P-T-A fund.

HALT ASKED

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—An action on behalf of the "consumers of the United States" was instituted in federal court today by two New York attorneys to halt the repayment of $200,000,000 of processing taxes collected under the invalidated AAA.

Sold Polo Pony to King

Ascension of the Prince of Wales to the throne of the British empire as Edward VIII recalls that G. H. Coyle of Cisco sold the erstwhile prince a polo pony during Wales' visit to America about 1930. Coyle shipped the pony to Bayonne, N. J., for delivery to the new king.

Leases Sought In Vicinity of Wendé Well, Nearing Pay

That the G. E. Wendé well will develop into a nice producer is indicated by the soaring in lease prices of potential oil land in the vicinity of the Wendé farm. Paul Wendé, a brother of the man on whose farm the Wisdom and Parsons well is located, was in Cisco this morning and stated that a Fort Worth oil man was at his place early Wednesday morning and made him an offer of $20 per acre for any part of his acreage.

The offer was refused, Paul Wendé said, who stated that he was asked to name his price. However, no price was fixed, as he said he preferred to wait further developments, as he had decided to do a bit of gambling himself on the well developing into a good producer. So it seems it is not local optimism only that is father for the hope of the Wendé well making good, but the well has already attracted attention as far away as Fort Worth.

LOBOES BEAT GORMAN TEAM

The Cisco Loboes, flashing a much improved form, last night took the measure of the Gorman high school basket ball team 38 to 12 before a small crowd. Reuben Wendé, with 21 points, was high man for the evening. Wendé's shots were consistently accurate from almost every angle.

This afternoon the team goes to Rising Star where it was to meet the Pioneer quintet in a game in the Rising Star invitation cage tourney.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McGinnis, Mrs. A. D. McGinnis and Mrs. Margaret Chappell of Genefee, Pa., expect to spend Friday in Abilene as the guest of Mrs. C. N. Platt.

Republicans Decline to Serve on Sub-Committee

12 Quarantine Cases In Cisco During '35

During the year 1935 there were six homes quarantined for diphtheria in Cisco and six quarantined for scarlet fever, Dr. W. P. Lee, city health officer, reported to the city commission recently. No deaths were caused by either disease, he said.

The Reunion of the Aged

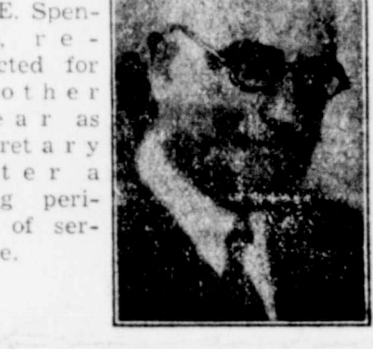

THERE is a certain musical comedy star who is not quite so young as she once was. She still has beauty and voice and she is just as clever and talented as ever; but it is not to be denied that a good many years have passed since she made her professional debut. During the past season she headed a road show. Business at times was not especially good and the tempers of the troupers suffered. Relations became somewhat strained between the prima donna and certain members of the chorus.

For the opening performance the house was no more than two-thirds filled and the audience, for some reason or other, seemed rather unresponsive. The leading lady was not in a particularly happy frame of mind as she sat in her so-called dressing-room after the final curtain, removing her make-up. Next door several members of the chorus were shifting to street dresses.

JOHNNY COX

Johnny Cox, president of the Boosters is trading the ur-life for that of the country. He and Mrs. Cox were here today for Merkel, Texas, where they will take charge of a farm homestead of Dr. M. Armstrong, father of Mrs. Cox, which is located two miles from Merkel. Dr. Armstrong, a practicing physician at Merkel for 35 years is still active in medicine. At 70 years finds it too much to take care of his patients and look after running the farm which he hired help. So he asked Johnny to quit playing around with refrigerators and washing machines and chambers of commerce jobs and go to work.

At the Moran Luncheon club yesterday noon where the Boosters put on a program of Moran's situation, the Boosters presented with a pair of long-sleeved sweater and a pair of overalls. Johnny's blouses formed an interesting part of the program. Mrs. Olin Pierce sang "Going Home" which all admitted was quite appropriate.

By way of digression, let me say the program was a good one. "Smoky" Tuttle, X-Ray Barber, Pop's Osburn, Maytag Wood, some Furniture Company's Starling, Doc Seale and Cox were the featured representatives. Mrs. Seale accompanied for Marion. Mrs. Seale in a number. The Moran club was told what the Cisco Boosters are trying to accomplish for the good of Cisco.

Goodbye and Good Luck, Johnny!

He's inclined to arguments, but on the whole is a pleasant fellow to get along with.

LOBOES PLAY GORMAN HERE AT 7 TONIGHT

The Cisco high school basket ball team will play the Gorman high school quintet at the Cisco high school this evening at 7 o'clock. The game will be the second between the two teams, the Lobos having won the first here January 7 by the score of 20 to 11.

An admission charge of 15 and 10 cents will be made.

The Cisco team lost a thriller to the Eastland Mavericks last night by a score of 19 and 17. Eastland won in the last few seconds of play.

Fast action and plenty of excitement has marked the play of the Lobo quintet this season. The starting lineup tonight will probably be Wagley at center; Barnes and Wallace at guards and Wende and Coker at forwards.

Go To The Cities For Your Health Says Physician

URBANA, Ill., Jan. 22. (AP)—It's healthier nowadays living in smoky cities than in the country where the air blows pure, says Dr. Frank J. Jirka, state director of public health.

The reason, says Dr. Jirka, is that rural areas are lagging behind urban centers in health standards and conditions because of backwardness in establishing efficient public health departments for country service.

"Death rates from typhoid fever, measles, whooping cough and malaria were twice as high among rural as among urban inhabitants in 1934," he says. "Losses from scarlet fever, diphtheria, tuberculosis and infantile diarrhea varied from 25 to 40 per cent greater among rural people than among city residents. Maternal and infant mortality were also higher in rural sections."

Rural sections still have the edge on cities in pneumonia fatalities, he says, the rate for urban deaths being about 20 per cent greater.

"The outlook, however," he says, "is that this difference may also change in the near future as scientific methods of controlling this disease are more perfectly developed and more extensively utilized."

In Illinois, says Dr. Jirka, there is not any local department organized for rural health service. Thirteen other states, he says, also have taken no definite steps to stamp out disease on the farm.

"Rural areas," he says, "are just as healthful now as they ever were, perhaps more so. The shift in comparative healthfulness has resulted from the fact that cities have been able to take advantage of preventive medicine more quickly and more extensively."

Sanctions Modify Italian Home Habits as Nation Takes Changes

ROME, Jan. 22. (AP)—Sanctions imposed by the League of Nations have modified conspicuously the home life of Italy.

There probably are few families which do not recognize every day some new change in their habits and customs which with varying degrees of bitterness they ascribe to "sanctions."

"Continuous hours" designed to save office light and fuel compel the breadwinners to appear at their work at 9 a. m., somewhat early for the average Italian. The two "hours" "siesta" has been replaced by one hour for lunch, but the day's work is ended at 4 p. m.

School Children Happy
The younger children may look upon sanctions with a less jaundiced eye than their elders. Elementary school hours were reduced to three daily and run from 10 o'clock to one.

Family entertainment has been restricted or rearranged. Theaters begin their performances early so as to close by 11 p. m. This means an earlier night meal which many an Italian dislikes, for he traditionally is a late diner.

After the theater the trip home is made through streets in semi-darkness. Public illumination is cut in half at 10:30 p. m.

Many of the cafes and bars which formerly provided Rome's somewhat conservative "night life" are closed and their lights extinguished before midnight.

Sunday Auto Rides Stopped
The Sunday automobile ride has been eliminated for most families by gasoline at $1.15 a gallon. A few motorists have installed charcoal burners in their autos, which, while expensive to purchase, are extraordinarily economical to operate.

Another diversion, the Sunday "popular trains," of which many a middle class family took advantage, has been banished. These low priced excursions which Mussolini introduced to familiarize Italians with their own country were abolished along with half-a-hundred other trains when schedules were curtailed to save fuel.

The newspaper the Italian reads today is smaller—reduced to six pages to conserve newsprint which Italy imports.

The wedding rings Italians wear, if they are loyal, are iron, replacing the gold ones they gave to the country.

Women Fight Sanctions
The women in particular are earnest in their insistence that only Italian or non-sanctionist products shall come into the home. Their fervor is reinforced constantly by flaming "buy Italian" and "destroy sanctions" posters displayed throughout the kingdom and by an unceasing propaganda campaign in the newspapers.

The stone-walled and stone-floored houses which Italians inhabit are colder than usual this winter.

"Sanctions" is the invariable excuse for chilly rooms. There is, however, sometimes occasion to believe that for many an apartment house owner or hotel proprietor "sanctions" is merely a handy euphemism for thriftiness.

Many Prominent Folk Have Died Recently

Perhaps more well known people have died in the past few weeks than has been known for a like period for all time, with the possible exception of an epidemic or war. Here is a list of those nationally and internationally known who have answered the last call in recent weeks, all of them having died during the present month.

Rudyard Kipling, 70, England's great virile bard and storyteller of India, died in a London hospital after an emergency operation.

Other deaths last week: Samuel L. Rothafel (Roxy), fathering genius of the motion picture palace, at his hotel suite home in New York City.

Theodore Metz, 87, New York, composer of "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight."

John F. Hylan, former New York mayor.

Maj. Allen Buell, 89, veteran San Antonio weather forecaster, Civil and Spanish-American War veteran.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee. For I the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, fear not; I will help thee.—Isaiah 26: 3, 4; 13.

"No star is ever lost we once have seen; We always may be what we might have been. Since good though only thought has life and breath, God's life, can always be redeemed from death. And evil, in its nature is decay. And any hour can blot it all away. The hope that lost in some distant scene, May be the true life, and this the dream."

"If every morning we opened our hearts to God, as we open our windows to the sun and air, God would fill it with that calm, sweet joy which elevates the soul, prevents its feeling the weight of trouble, and makes it overflow with benevolence. But joy does not mean levity, witty sayings, or repartee—it is habitual serenity."

Amend the Constitution?

FOLLOWING the invalidating of the AAA by the federal supreme court there was much talk—and still is—about amending the constitution.

POINTING out that congress has power to prescribe rules to govern the acts of the supreme court, as well as inferior federal tribunals, some congressmen have gone so far as to favor a statute that will prohibit the supreme court from declaring acts of congress unconstitutional.

SUCH an act, if congress really has the power to place it on the federal statute books, would be a sorry day for the nation. The supreme court is part of the federal machinery of government, and its functions are clearly defined.

DERISIVELY the supreme court is now being called the "nine old men," and from unthinking, or less informed people.

some of whom are in high places, are the recipients of anathemas for their decree that the AAA was unconstitutional. The fact was patent that the new deal, in many of its provisions, was strange to our governmental methods, and even laymen never doubted that some of it would be declared illegal when brought up for final decision.

BUT the country was in the throes of the greatest depression it had ever known, and but for the new deal program it would have gone to the bow wows ere this. There is no doubt that the new deal program has saved thousands from the blight of bankruptcy, and it is regrettable in several instances that President Roosevelt's program has been thus disrupted. The new deal has been the salvation of the farming interest of the nation, and it is to be hoped that some substitute that can run the gauntlet of the supreme court will be enacted to replace the AAA.

PROBABLY the decision that the government must restore the processing taxes held in escrow to the processors is questionable, as the processors have already passed this tax on to the consumers—as is always the case—and there is no just reason why both the government and the consumer should pay the processors.

OF the many suggestions that have been advanced for changes in the constitution only one is worthy of consideration. That suggestion, as the Daily Press recalls, was made by Senator Norris of Nebraska to enact a law requiring an unanimous court to declare a law unconstitutional. But even that suggestion, because of its improbability, would have the effect of preventing the court from passing upon the constitutionality of any measure. If the minds of "nine old men" were to run concurrently there would be need for only "one old man."

THE country should not be hasty to amend the constitution every time the court invalidates some popular law. We must learn to take it, if such laws are enacted purely as emergency measures, when they are killed by the highest tribunal of the land.

SURELY there is sufficient talent in congress to pass, even emergency measures, so that they will be within the bounds of our fundamental law.

ONE hundred years ago the Liberty Bell was cracked as it tolled while the funeral cortege of Chief Justice John Marshall passed down the streets of Philadelphia. Some have claimed that this was prophetic of the ultimate downfall of constitutional liberties. If these premises be correct might we expect the ancient emblem of American liberty to fall in pieces were congress to nullify the power of the court to invalidate the acts of the legislative department of government?

He Didn't Want It

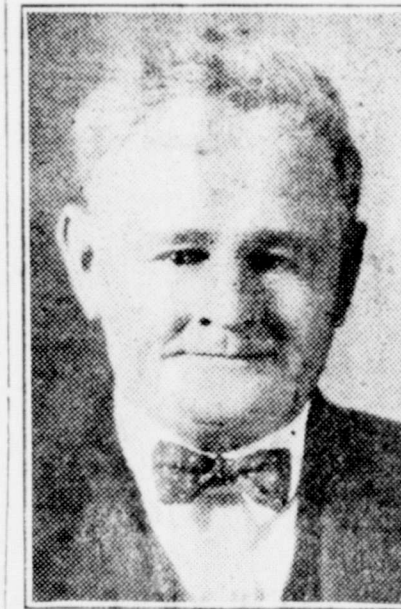

E. P. CRAWFORD E. P. Crawford didn't want the gold cup. He has the Cisco Country club on his hands, which is said to be enough on anybody's hands, and he has so much insurance selling and rent collecting to do besides trying to get Cisco a state park, that he declined appointment to the board of directors of the chamber of commerce. After all he has served several terms thereon, not to mention a period on the city commission, and he is virtually a member of the board anyway. So he was let off.

Going Up

Beside us here is Clyde Van Sickle, of whom I remarked some time ago that he resembled a club more than a sickle. He weighs around 225, which is quite enough to enforce his orders to a high school football team. After a year of service with the Cisco Lobes as assistant coach, Clyde zooms to the top of the Little Rock, Ark., coaching elite by appointment as head football coach of Little Rock high school, a job restricted to Arkansas university graduates. He won't go for a few months yet, so we shall have the Arkansas with us for quite a while.

Congratulations, Clyde!

Pioneer Eastland County Woman Celebrates 95th Birthday Today

Susan Elizabeth Steele, another of Deputy Sheriff Steele's children, a pioneer Eastland county woman, will celebrate her 95th birthday today. Her children and grandchildren, living in Eastland and at the home of her son, David Steele, with whom she lives, are celebrating her birthday at her home.

Mrs. Steele, a pioneer woman, despite advanced age, is still in the physical condition, and moves about her daily tasks and recreation without assistance. She is a reader, although she does not use glasses, and her favorite diversion, she says, is to read. I frequently play bridge, she says, and usually remain in bed at night, but I am usually up at noon.

In reply to the query as to what she has done about her health, she said, "hard work and plenty of rest." Steele Hill, her grandchild, accompanied the Daily Press representative to visit her that she had a splendid dinner and was a hearty eater.

I have done about as much work as any other woman in Texas. I formerly operated near where the Texaco station is now located. I finally gave up the business about 28 years ago to make my home with David. He is my only son, the others were born in Texas." Mrs. Steele has nine children.

Steele, of Ringland, Okla., all living. Three of her children are dead, but all lived to maturity. Besides these nine children Mrs. Steele reared another child, making ten that she cared for during her useful life.

Helped Build Church

Mrs. Steele took considerable interest in helping to raise funds to build the splendid First Methodist church of Eastland, which was erected a few years ago. Even at her advanced age, Mrs. Steele said she walked over Eastland and collected $1,045 of the building fund, and one of the Sunday school classes, the Susan Steele Bible class, is named for her.

It is planned for all of her children to be present at her birthday celebration today, which will be at the David Steele home, but some may not be able to reach Eastland on account of the distance.

BARN BURNED AT FEE HOME

Destruction of the barn at the home of George P. Fee, on the Breckenridge highway just north of Cisco, with a loss of feed and farm equipment of an estimated $1,900 value occurred Friday afternoon.

The building was set from a grass fire. Bundle feed, ear corn and harness formed the principal contents of the barn.

The Cisco fire department responded with a truck and wet down the embers of the barn to prevent the fire spreading. Several firemen spent an hour or more with the truck, pumping water from a tank.

Here's one cigarette that writes its own advertising..

It's like this—

You see I'm reading a Chesterfield advertisement and I'm smoking a Chesterfield cigarette, and all of you are smoking Chesterfields.

Now listen—Chesterfields are mild (not strong, not harsh). That's true isn't it?

Then you read "and yet they satisfy, please your taste, give you what you want in a cigarette." That says it, doesn't it?

Wait a minute—

It says now that Chesterfields have plenty of aroma and flavor. One of you go out of the room and come back. That will tell you how pleasing the aroma is.

NEVER MIND THE LADY

by David Garth

Chapter 42
BRIGHT VISION
"I can't do it," Corrigan repeated. "Terry would never forgive me."

"All right," said Allaire. "I'll pay somebody to take me up there and if you think I'm fooling, you're going to be one surprised Irishman."

She was determined, Corrigan regarded her intently.

"I guess you would at that," he said finally. "Well, all right, Allaire, let's go. Rosa will be pleased—the Chaiks are scared to death of that camp of ours."

"Don't worry about Rosa," said Allaire, "we're buddies." She held up two white fingers together. "Were just like that."

Above the desk in Terry's quarters there hung a calendar that hadn't been used for a long time. It had been there when he and his father had been up there before, and even then the date hadn't been changed for many days before the job blew up.

Terry had never noticed it particularly, but as he came in this wet night, lit the oil lamp, and sank wearily down, his eyes fell on the calendar.

"The Acme Copper Pipe company presents its compliments—"

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Cisco Daily and Weekly Rural Press are authorized to announce the following candidates for the offices under which their names appear, subject to the action of the democratic primaries, of 1934:

FOR COUNTY TAX ASSESSOR AND COLLECTOR:

C. H. O'Brien,
Clyde S. Karkalits.

FOR SHERIFF—
Steele Hill

He noticed how old it was, and it suddenly stood to him as the last remainder of a hope that had died long ago to his father, that had begun to die long before that date was reached. "The Acme Copper Pipe company presents its compliments—" Adv! Adv! A garish addition to an army of mockeries.

Lawrence Willett had probably stared at it many times before and laughed at the abrupt application to his situation of the queer "Thought for Today!" that commercial people throw in along with their "compliments" to finish a smug picture.

A thought for the day that had stopped the calendar long ago—a sardonic coincidence that made him laugh when he recognized the application. Cervantes had stopped the calendar!

For weeks now Cervantes had insisted from the walls of the hut:

"He who loses wealth, loses much;
He who loses a friend, loses more;
But he who loses his courage, loses all—"

Willett suddenly smashed his fist down on the desk. He yanked the calendar off the wall and shied it across the room.

"I don't need you to tell me, Cervantes," he muttered. "Especially when I can imagine you writing that after a hot dinner and a glass of old wine—"

He lifted his head. There were flares down at the wharf. Corrigan was coming back with the payroll and news of Allaire. Several minutes later Bucky stuck his head in at the door.

"Don't blame me," he said. "She would come."

He disappeared and Willett looked after him, puzzled. But he wasn't puzzled long, because before his astonished eyes he could have sworn that Allaire was standing in the door.

He wondered if he were delirious. He'd had a touch of the fever and also, when you think about somebody long enough, your mind is liable to play queer tricks. Allaire!—muffled in a heavy slicker with the rain dripping off the brim of her small felt hat.

The vision was real—he held it in his arms.

"And don't tell me I shouldn't have come," she ordered, "because you might have known I'd be in on a battle. I love 'em!"

He grinned tensely.

"Lord, I've missed you! Didn't know how much until now that I see you."

"Terry, you say the nicest things. All the long way up that river I've wondered what you were going to say. But it wouldn't have made any difference, because I was going to stay, come hell or high water."

"Well, they're both on the way," he held her away from him and looked into her eyes searchingly. "But, Allaire, it wasn't wise—"

"Lots of time, darling. Don't worry about me."

She pulled off her hat and looked about her. The hut wasn't very large and was one of those hastily-constructed things that served more as a shelter than a habitation.

There was a bed on each side of the room heavily draped with insect netting, and a couple of trunks in a corner that were piled high with clothing of all kinds.

The oil lamp cast queer flickering shadows in the corners of the room, illuminated the rough two-by-fours lining the walls, and on the corrugated tin roof came the sound of dripping rain.

Willett watched her, rubbing his rough unshaven chin, and thought of that stone mansion of gleaming chandeliers back in Washington, and the elegant town house in New York where this girl had lived. And here she was in the hut of a roughneck engineer up a tropical river.

He said so slowly, as if he couldn't understand it.

"You're not a roughneck," she said passionately. "And if you ever make another crack like that again I'll hit you with this pitcher."

"Don't," he begged. "That's our drinking water. It's been boiled, filtered, sterilized—in fact everything but blessed."

They laughed.

Willett sat down and took her hand. The lamp light danced on his clear-cut tanned face; it was deadly serious.

"Allaire, you've done something wonderful in coming up here. I'd send you back if I could, but it would be spoiling one of the finest things I've ever seen. And I'm going to take this job and tie it in knots until it screams for mercy."

Silly inane gestures—how they'd be junked—if only one knew how great a need can be serviced by the spontaneous courage that comes of love.

Willett and Corrigan put up cots in the office hut next door, and Rosa and Allaire moved into their quarters. Allaire heard them often nearby at any hour of the night walking up and down, their voices indistinguishable against the muffling sound of the rain.

The grey days lent a touch of drabness to surroundings that would have been drab enough already had not one realized the wonderful work already done by Man. Creation. Power. Ideas! They were all there in the slow steady progress toward a goal.

Swampland had been drained and filled in, underbrush and tangled creepers burned out, the partly finished system of locks on the river as conceived by Willett had been constructed in that wilderness over the resistance of unhealthy working conditions, strength-sapping sun, a shifty muddy river, and a soft oozy muck at the bottom that had long defied firm foundations.

Then there was the little colony of huts where the construction gang lived.

There was a tinge of madness in the air, the strain of the fight against time, and the long arduous battle. A man had been knifed shortly before she came here, and at night she often heard loud jabbering voices raised in vitriolic altercation.

Corrigan broke up a fight one day that might have ended with knives. He grabbed two Chaiks by the scruffs of the neck, hauled them apart, held them while they gesticulated and clawed, and then dismissed them both with a good hearty boot in the pants for each.

And Allaire was a great help too.

"Ever see such a girl, Bucky?" Willett said as they stood above the works and watched the progress on the job. There was a pipe stuck in the corner of his jaw and the rain dripped off his snap-brim hat.

"Yeah," said Corrigan. "But if you'll excuse me, son, I don't like the idea of her being up here right now."

"I know. In a couple of weeks I'm going to bring a medico up and he'll stay here in case we're delayed getting back."

He knocked out his pipe. A queer feeling was coiling around his heart as the time drew near. "If anything should happen to her, Bucky—"

He drew a long breath and went back to Allaire's dwelling.

Allaire was there with her faithful Rosa, but as Willett came in Rosa unobtrusively disappeared. Terry sat down beside the girl.

"Happy, honey?"

"Of course. Married to a famous and brilliant engineer, and a right nice-looking fellow in the bargain."

"If we get through this, Allaire, we're going back to the states so fast you won't see us for dust. I'll get a job with Tyndall. He's a big shot. We'll go places."

He put a hand on hers and it felt strangely hot. "I never thought much of those things, but I do now."

"I'm proud of you now, and always have been. But you have so many wonderful things to do yet." She seemed to shiver a little, suddenly, strangely.

"What's the matter?" he asked anxiously. "All right, Allaire?"

"Certainly I'm all right. Stop babbling me, you big tramp." (Copyright, 1935, by David Garth)
