CISCO TO HONOR ALLRED ON TUESDAY

Presbyterian Camp Due To Open Here Thursday

Through the Editor's Spectacles By GEORGE

The giant and stately poplar that graces the rear parkway at the city hall gives signs of recovering from the ravages of a worm which practically denuded its branches of leaves...

For more than thirty years its slender figure has stood there, swayed by the winds. It is left of a line of poplars planted on the rear of the lot long before the present city hall was built...

Senator Thomas Gore, the blind senator from Oklahoma, appears to have lost out in the Oklahoma senatorial nomination primaries of the democratic party.

The strength of the Townsend candidate will surprise some. It will not surprise the Townsends, who declare that their movement is quiet, but effective.

Cisco Teachers to Be Paid on Yearly Basis

Systemize Payroll, Provide Even Income In Summer Months Reasons for Change

Changing of the basis of pay of Cisco school teachers from a nine-month schedule of four-week months to the regular 12-month commercial schedule, was adopted by the Cisco school board to systemize the payroll, prevent heavy drafts on the treasury of the schools at irregular times, and provide the teachers with an even flow of pay through the summer months as well as the teaching months, it was explained.

12 installments instead of nine. The new system was adopted by the board at its regular meeting Monday evening. The Cisco schools are the only schools in this section to have adopted this system. It was believed, although it has been in satisfactory practice in numbers of schools in other parts of the country.

Governor Drops Campaigning To Attend Luncheon

Centennial Luncheon at Laguna Roof Garden Planned by Friends of Allred; Governor To Speak at Eastland and Ranger Also

To Speak Here

GOVERNOR ALLRED

Dropping for the moment his role as a candidate for reelection, Governor James V. Allred will come to Cisco Tuesday, July 14, to be honored at a Texas centennial luncheon on the roof garden of the Laguna hotel. Cisco Allred leaders will sponsor the luncheon, and there will be prominent citizens from Eastland county communities as well as Cisco men and women to greet him as governor. Attendance will be limited to 150 plates.

The governor will arrive in Cisco at 10:30 or 11 and will remain here until late in the afternoon when he goes to Ranger to speak at 5 o'clock. From Ranger he will retrace his route to Eastland to speak at a big Allred rally. At Ranger and at Eastland he will resume his role as a candidate, in a strong effort to swing Eastland county into the Allred column at the next primary election.

Women Invited The Cisco luncheon is planned as a pleasant interlude to the ordeal of campaigning, a social event during which Cisco people may meet Governor Allred as the governor. It will be entirely informal, however. Women as well as men are invited.

Tickets for the luncheon will be on sale shortly. The hope of the committee in charge of the preparations for the luncheon, which has the assistance of the chamber of commerce in promoting a gathering and program that will reflect credit upon this community, is that the event will be such that the governor will be favorably impressed with the Cisco community spirit, just as the Humble officials of Houston were impressed by that spirit at their luncheon on June 27.

Not Political Meet No political inferences or obligations will attach to attendance on the luncheon, it was made plain, the presence of a person to be simply in the normal role of the social relationship of a citizen to a high official of his state.

Preparations are being made to decorate the roof garden with Texas centennial bunting and the Texas flags to carry out the centennial theme. A program of music and other features is being planned.

BLUEBONNET BELLE SERENADED
AT OPENING OF WORLD'S FAIR

Miss Frances Nalle, center of attraction in Standard Brands' patio.

"The most beautiful Fair held in the United States in the last decade" is the verdict of visitors to the Texas Centennial Exposition in Dallas these days. It opened June 6, and since then a heavy stream of sight-seers from all parts of the world has been flooding the grounds, day and night. The night scene is more fascinating, because of the lighting effects. The Esplanade, just inside the main entrance, is a fairland of colored lights and fountains at night.

One of the main structures of the Exposition is the huge Foods Building, where all sorts of displays of things to eat and drink attract the hot and thirsty visitors. Here cool breezes and cold drinks are refreshing, and chairs are provided for the tired. The largest display is that of Standard Brands Incorporated, a Spanish structure with a wide patio, where a continuous floor show is going on while Joaquin Bernal's Mexico City Troubadors do some serenading. One of the features of opening day was their serenade of the Bluebonnet Belle, Miss Frances Nalle, in the patio, while she sipped iced dated coffee.

McDonald Vote Saved
By Error Discovery

EASTLAND, July 7.—A mistake which might mean the difference between election and defeat to William H. McDonald of Eastland in his candidacy for the commissionership of the general land office was corrected Monday on the July 25 ballot.

Sunday the printers had received the final o. k. on the ballot and "final" corrections had been made until Earl Conner Jr., aiding his successor, Oscar Lyerla, as chairman of the county democratic executive committee, noticed McDonald's name on the ballot, "W. H. (Bill) McDonald."

Nicknames are not allowed on names of state candidates and McDonald's vote in the county would probably have been invalidated by the state democratic committee if the change wasn't made.

MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

SYNOPSIS: Inspector Hylton, investigating the murder of old Arthur Burdett, has found only two unusual circumstances so far. One is Captain Reeves' admission that he quarreled with the old miser an hour or so before he was stabbed to death; the other is Dale Shipley's exceeding interest in the conversation Hylton had with Reeves. Shipley, waiter and relative of Burdett's, is annoyed that Hylton caught him in his eavesdropping. He sees a figure approaching him over the fields.

Chapter 13 TEA FOR TWO

"Hallo, Nancy—here, Ranger, here." Ranger bounded up and made ecstatic queting with his lovely nose of all the agreeable horse smells on Dale's luggings and boots; whatever difficulties might exist in the way of conversation for his divinity happily did not trouble him.

Nancy Featherstone felt embarrassed; there was only one reason why she should have chosen the path by Fielden Cottage for her afternoon walk, and she was certain that it was screaming itself aloud to high Heaven.

"It's going to freeze again," Nancy said. "If it goes on there won't be any hunting."

Dale cocked an eye round the black winter woods and the sombre sky.

"Won't be much frost tonight," he said optimistically.

"Are you going out on Friday, Dale, if they hunt?" "I expect so."

"I hear you've bought a new horse."

"Who the devil told you that? You can't do a thing in this place without everybody knowing it in five minutes."

Nancy flushed. "I heard Saunders talking about it, that was all," she said.

Dale laughed unpleasantly. "That groom of yours knows everything, doesn't he? As a matter of fact I haven't bought it yet. At least I haven't paid for it."

"Nobody ever does pay for anything nowadays, do they? At least not on the nail."

"Depends how much money you've got, I suppose," Dale said gloomily. "I know I don't."

"Ranger, Ranger."

"What's the matter with the dog?" "I'm afraid he's gone into your garden, Dale."

Ranger, impenitent but wary, duly came to heel.

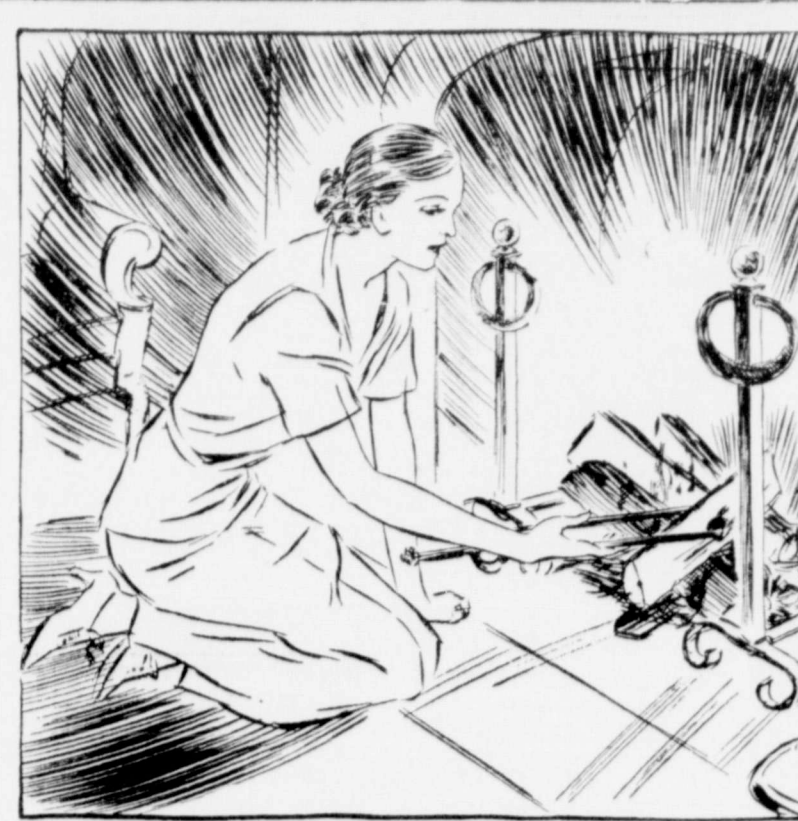

"My God, Nancy," Dale laughed, "you've got a voice on you just like a man."

A queer look crossed the woman's face for a moment as she bent over Ranger to snap his lead on. "I suppose you think that's a compliment," she said as she straightened up. "Well, it must be getting on for tea time for Ranger and me. Come on, Ranger."

"Why not come in and have a cup of tea with me?" Dale suggested. "I daresay Mrs. Somers will knock something together for us."

"It's very kind of you, Dale." Fielden Cottage was almost exactly twenty times as old as its owner and, many people would have said, just about twenty times as secure and dependable. It had been built by simple homely men of simple homely materials, with the result that it still stood firm after some five hundred years, and fitted with perfect appropriateness into its surroundings.

"Mind your head," he said as he opened the front door and stood to one side, and Nancy duly ducked.

Of all the trivial things Dale could have asked her to do . . .

ed her head and crossed the threshold.

She had been in Fielden Cottage before, of course, and the boyish untidiness of everything, the entire absence of flowers and a dozen other details always curiously teased her heart. A log fire was smouldering in the brick grate, and Dale, unearthing a pair of bellows from somewhere, said in his casual way: "Nancy, see if you can get a bit of life into the fire whilst I dig out old Mother Somers, will you?"

Nancy knelt on the hearth rug before the tantalizingly unwept hearth and, like a priestess at some strange rite, proceeded to induce the miracle of flame into the reluctant logs.

An odd business, she thought, the human heart. Of all trivial things Dale could have asked her to do this business of mending his fire was the one which hurt her most and the one which she would have first chosen.

"Hallo, how's the fire going?" "Reviving splendidly."

"Good. You're a marvel, Nancy. I told Mrs. Somers to dig out something special for tea as a lady had called on me and she said it was high time I had a lady to look after me all together. What do you think of that?"

Mrs. Somers, flurried by the unusual excitement of company, had risen nobly to the occasion, and as such food as six people could have comfortably eaten arrived in great style.

"Good afternoon, Miss."

"Good afternoon, Mrs. Somers."

"I hope you be keeping well, Miss."

"Yes, thank you. How are you, Mrs. Somers?"

Pigs Blinded If Vitamin A Denied To Their Mothers

COLLEGE STATION, July 8. (AP)—Fred Hale, young Texas scientist, has produced 51 blind pigs in a study to determine whether the diet of a mother affects the eyes of offspring.

The experiment, a study of maternal vitamin A deficiency designed to establish a new law of nutrition, has resulted in what workers here call "remarkable" conclusions in connection with swine and has led to discussions on the possibility of like results in humans.

Hale, swine husbandryman of the Texas experiment station, conducted the tests by withholding vitamin A ration from sows, in most instances 180 days before breeding and 30 days afterward. As a result, entire litters of pigs were born blind or eyeless in successive experiments over a four-year period.

"We are attempting to establish as a law of nutrition, that normal eye development and vitamin A are so closely associated that if vitamin A is not present during embryonic eye development, the eye will not develop normally," Hale said.

"We have exaggerated the case in our experiments with pigs, but we have evidence to show that there may be varying degrees of eye defect, depending upon whether vitamin A is present in certain amounts at the time of embryonic development."

"It may be possible that humans Pat Reeves weren't the last person to see the old miser alive." (Copyright, 1936, Laurence W. Meynell) may be born with apparently normal eyes, yet eyes that are actually weak due to maternal vitamin A deficiency, and such eyes may break down under strain quicker than would eyes developed under a condition where an abundance of vitamin A was available.

"If we can establish the new principle of nutrition, then it is logical to suppose it would hold good for humans."

Other Defects Observed

Hale said the eye anomaly was not the only one occurring in the experiments. He said he had obtained cleft palates, hare lips, misplaced kidneys and extra ear-like growths.

"It might be assumed that the eye anomalies were due to heredity and that the genetic factors responsible were existent in the herd and have appeared only when certain matings were made," Hale explained, "but the evidence against this transmission is almost overwhelming."

"There is no question but that the results were caused by malnutrition and we have eliminated any possible hereditary cause of blindness by specific genetic tests. By adding cod liver oil to our vitamin A deficient ration, we obtained only normal pigs."

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

And He shall say: where are their gods, their rock in whom they trusted; which did eat the fat of their sacrifices, and drink the wine of their drink offerings? Let them rise up and help you, and be your protection.—Deut. 32: 37, 38.

Why need I fear to go alone
To places strange and far away?
My Father still protects his own;
Will He not guard me day by day?
Why should I dread the busy mart,
That stream of active, moving thought?
Who knows but in its very heart
I'll find a friendship I have sought?
ETHEL M. FOUCH.

God is the God of all mankind, whether they acknowledge Him or no; but in time, sooner or later, they will come to acknowledge and worship Him. One assurance of this is that the nations of the world are learning that they must live together in peace or be destroyed.—Peter Hamilton.

The Governor Comes to Cisco

GOV. JAMES V. ALLRED will be the guest of Cisco next Tuesday noon, when the local Allred committee will sponsor a luncheon for him. This visit, while it will occur in the course of a campaign for re-election, will be non-political in character. It should form a pleasant interlude in the ordeal of political campaigning and speech-making. The governor has a splendid address on the subject of the Texas centennial, and it will be upon that theme that he is expected to speak during his visit here.

SINCE he comes to Cisco as governor, as chief executive of this great state, rather than in the role of a candidate, it is hoped that a reception befitting the high office will await him here.

Drouth There; Plenty Here

THE blighting hand of drouth, laid across the upper middlewest is wreaking a destruction of crops which threatens to prostrate the farmers of the area not yet fully recovered from the effects of two years ago when the dust storms and shifting dunes of dry sand blotted out what was once a picture of prosperity. Meanwhile, down in west Texas, the area referred to by Mr. Tugwell and some of the school books, as a desert with practically no agricultural possibilities, the farmers are rejoicing in timely rains and prospects of bumper crops. Truly, unless all signs fail and a providential displeasure is visited in some form of climatic chastisement, the growers of things in this country are in for a period of good times. And their good times will mean the good times for all of us.

EASTLAND county has received more than the average of rainfall for the period of the year so far. But even that statement is not fully explanatory, for the precipitation has come with such opportune regard for the need of it, that the crops have received the maximum of benefit.

IT is a mighty good time for Cisco to begin to reach out for a closer cooperation with the farmers, to the mutual advantage of all.

We'd Like to Keep His Kind

PROGRESS in one's profession entails changes, new associations, new acquaintances and the breaking of old ties and social relationships that have grown pleasant. The end of ambition might be to associate oneself in a harmonious and agreeable group at the top of a vocation. But such a condition would involve a loss of the driving power of aspiration and interest and the subsequent triumphs of overcoming obstacles. One would, in other words, cease to be a progressive individual and develop the characteristics and unenviable propensities of a moss-back. One would stagnate.

LIFE and the sustaining of life means a condition of constant flux. We move from place to place, continually are meeting new faces and new problems in personalities. Even the composition of our bodies change from day to day so that the cells which yesterday composed the human whole are not altogether the same as those which today make up that complexion. But this physical metabolism arrives at a harmony which justifies it.

THAT is a rather devious way to get around to the simple business of saying that although we take pleasure in seeing our friends go up the ladder to larger responsibilities we regret the separation it means. Many young men have come into Cisco, found a useful and agreeable place in this citizenship and then moved on to new and bigger jobs, leaving the pleasant memory of an association to remind us of their friendship. If it were possible to arrest the progression and keep all this talent in Cisco we should shortly build a community whose energy and spirit would know no obstacle. Unfortunately, this is not possible. But we should mighty well like to keep in Cisco such a motive force for getting things done in the interest of his town and his business as Dallas Wales, manager of the Laguna hotel who is being transferred from Cisco. We congratulate him upon his promotion and send before him to his new place a sincere recommendation to those people among whom he will associate for another phase of his professional advancement.

but a changed interpretation of the constitution.

He went squarely to bat against republicans by challenging their recommendations for greater state control as distinguished from New Deal centralization.

"Today the states mark no economic boundaries that make sense," he said, "and they provide only limited instruments for action to meet modern problems. Long ago the great corporations managed to break down states' rights when they interfered with corporate expansion."

"Today it is clear," he stated also, "that states' rights are being invoked not for the rights which they defend but for the privileges they protect."

Drought Area Relief

The secretary's activities were not limited to expression of opinions. Came the drought. In the forefront again was Mr. Wallace. Out in the field in person to inspect the damage, his activities fit the platform with the nicety of a milled tool.

"Quick to recognize and meet new problems and conditions," says the platform. Out in the field, the secretary orders a quick adjustment of the soil conservation crop control contracts so that drought-stricken farmers may get extended relief.

No one has been so brazen as to suspect the secretary of political motives in making farm relief adjustments in the stern political battlefield of the drought area. He could give logical and solid reasons for his activities there.

But vote-counters in Washington had an idea the unsupported Mr. Wallace was doing President Roosevelt's candidacy no harm in the midwest.

The new directory, for which everybody resident in the three communities was counted and the count triple-checked, shows Cisco with 500 more than Ranger and nearly 1,000 more than Eastland. That indicates a significant thing to my mind.

The Pride of a Creative Genius

By IRVIN S. COBB

A COLORED person of a formidable aspect was arraigned in a South Carolina court of justice on the charge of mayhem. As Exhibit A, for the case of the prosecution, the mutilated victim of his wrath was presented before the jurors' sympathetic eyes. The face of the victim was but a little more than a recent site—a place where a face had been, but was no longer.

When the jury very promptly and very properly had returned a verdict of guilty, his Honor, the presiding judge, pointing to the chief complaining witness and addressing the defendant said:

"This is the most lamentable example of brutality I have ever seen in a long experience on the criminal bench. Surely no human being, unless he were inspired by infernal influences and hellborn suggestions, could deliberately work such wreckage as you have worked upon the countenance of a defenseless and helpless fellow creature. Demons from below surely must have prompted you in what you did. It must have been the devil himself who urged you on and on and on."

"Well, Judge," said the prisoner, "come to think it over, I ain't shore but what you're right. As I look back on it now it do seem lak to me 'at when I wuz cuttin' his nose loose from his face wid a razor, the devil was right behind me sayin' 'Tha's right, separate him fum his nose.' An' I 'spects it must a been them demons you mentioned which suggested me stompin' out his front teeth."

"But Judge, bitin' off his ear was strictly my own idea!"

McCanlies, Donovan Branding Bunch of Fine Hereford Calves

By R. W. H. KENNON

A most impressive picture of the possibilities of the Cisco country for Hereford cattle production was that which I witnessed Tuesday evening when Brecheen jerked me out of the "Judge's Corner" and said: "Let's go to McCanlies and Donovan's round-up." Well, I am not such an enthusiast as Brecheen, though I have lived in the panhandle, and been intimately associated with cows and cowmen since 1900. I have never had the good fortune to go out on the ranges where the cow hands were branding and vaccinating and dehorning, as most of those cattle with which I have been on speaking terms were of the longhorn species, before the white face breed became so popular.

But I saw as fine a bunch of range cattle as I ever laid eyes upon. The herds on the McCanlies and Donovan ranch showed what can be done with the better grade of cattle in the Cisco country, and induces me to say that the potentialities for breeding the better grades of cattle are as promising here as any spot on the globe.

I have visited the Weddington ranch, the Ed Hayden ranch in the Moran area, where as fine Herefords as anywhere in the state. With the modern equipment of Bob Weddington's ranch, and the natural advantages and careful breeding on Hayden ranch, I was deeply impressed that from these sources come the foundation for the best bred range cattle that the market could wish. And so it is, and it is the sires on these ranches that are responsible for the splendid herds that may be found in this area, notably that of the McCanlies and Donovan ranch, located just north of Cisco. This ranch's premier sires are of the same strain as those bred by Bob Weddington and Ed Hayden.

But McCanlies and Donovan were branding and cutting their calves this week, a little late, perhaps, but owing to unfortunate circumstances these ranchmen were unable to cut and brand their herds any earlier.

This ranch is breeding and raising cattle for the beef market, and the baby heaves they now have ready to be disposed of just when the price is right are bound to be classed as prime stuff when they decide to sell.

Prime Baby Beeves
There is a bunch of prime stuff cut back into the market pasture, which will be shipped out when ready for sale.

I did not have the pleasure of being present at the commencement of the round-up, when the marketable baby beeves were segregated in a special pasture, nor was I present when they branded and cut the cattle from the calves yet to be branded, but Brecheen dragged me out there Tuesday evening when they had segregated the unbranded calves and the mother cows from those that had already had the branding iron traced on their hides.

These ranchmen and their neighbors had worked out the herds pretty well before Brick and I arrived on the scene. They had segregated all the young mother cows with suckling calves, into a special pasture, where the branding program is being carried out today. I was told that the process will be concluded by early this afternoon.

Brecheen and I arrived a bit late, after most of the work was complete for the day, and the unbranded calves and their mother cows had been transferred to a pasture on the Perkins ranch, and the cow hand neighbors gathered to assist in the round-up were taking their ease from a day of hard work, cutting the cattle while awaiting the return of Jonah Donovan and Lee Holland from another pasture where they had driven other cattle not to be included in those yet to be branded.

Brecheen had provided some liquid refreshments of Dr. Pepper and Coca Cola, and believe me, that thirsty bunch didn't do a thing to those bottled beverages.

Cattle Fat and Spleek

But while waiting we strolled among the cattle assembled in this pasture, whose calves are today feeling the scorch of the branding iron, we saw as fine a bunch of bovines as the eye ever saw. There were something like 100 of these calves and their mother cows, all as fat as butter, and sleek as a ribbon, due to the splendid grazing that had kept them in perfect condition all summer.

These calves that are being branded today will be ready for market next fall, or possibly may be held over for next spring market, owing to the prevailing price, McCanlies told me.

The fact is McCanlies and Donovan, who are among the largest cowmen of Cisco, don't have to sell their yearlings until they are so minded to, as they have ample pasture and feed to carry their stuff over indefinitely, and are in a position to sell when the market is right.

The young stuff that is ready for market, about 100 head, are in a pasture separated from the other cattle, and when the time comes to ship them to market their gathering and delivery will be a matter quickly disposed of.

McCanlies and Donovan have about six sections of land under lease and ownership that is as fine grazing land as there is in Texas. Most of which is well watered, on which there are some 500 head of grade Hereford cattle. These men are not breeding show stuff, but many of the calves we saw Tuesday would give a pretty good account of themselves in a show ring without any pampering.

Ten Registered Bulls

Most of those cows that were segregated in the Perkins pasture were young cows, with their first calves, 50 of which were purchased this spring as heifers, and bred to the registered Hereford bulls on the ranch. McCanlies said most of the cows were grade Herefords, but they kept ten registered Hereford bulls of the best strain, and the females from these matings are well bred stuff whose offspring will be practically as good as the pure bred cattle.

On the whole it seemed to me that Jess. McCanlies and Jonah Donovan were setting mighty pretty at Cisco cattlemen.

One thing I want to mention in this story is that neighborly spirit that prevails among those ranchmen. When ever the round-up or branding season rolls around, these neighboring ranchers come in and make a hand. This is a reciprocal custom, and most of the other having sustained a broken ankle at the Kerrville camp a few days ago. In her stead, Miss Lila Cunningham of Eliasville will have charge of the girls. She is a registered nurse. Meals will be supervised by Mrs. G. A. Nelson, dietitian for the encampment for five years.

Physical Education

Athletics and physical education classes will be in charge of Charles Brinkley of Throckmorton for the intermediate group, and Clifford Williams of Roscoe for the senior group. Both are outstanding athletes in college.

The boys will be quartered in 10 big army tents erected on the camp grounds across the zoo road from the country club building where the girls will be quartered. Today a large frame building secured from Ranger was being erected on the grounds to serve as an assembly hall. This will be made permanent and other buildings will be added in the near future, the Rev. Mr. Applewhite said.

The registration price for the encampment will be $6, which will pay for all meals and lodging, swimming tickets for the Lake Cisco Amusement company's big pools and other camp services. The conference is open to all children in Cisco, although restricted only to Presbyterian young people elsewhere.

Classes

The program calls for three classes each morning after devotions by groups. The afternoons will be devoted to supervised recreation such as baseball, horse-shoe pitching, swimming, track meets and so forth.

There will be a camp fire talk each evening. One visitor's night will be held, when the children will put into practice the knowledge acquired during the inspirational period, the Rev. Mr. Applewhite said. Announcement of the time for this will be made later, he said.

"The outlook for the growth of the encampment is most encouraging," he said. "We deeply appreciate the cooperation of the people of Cisco, which has been so effective in helping us to get ready for the conference. Their response and generosity have been wonderful."

POLITICAL RALLY

Candidates for county and state offices in Eastland county went to Scranton last night for a speaking program.

Ranchers have been assisted by McCanlies and Donovan. Of those who were out to help McCanlies and Donovan, and his James Floyd, Tuesday were Virgil Heysler, Bedford Mashburn, (both said to have been cradled in a saddle on the back of a cow pony) J. C. Car, Lee and John Holland, neighbor ranchmen. This reciprocity spirit expedites the branding work, and makes it easier for each of them.

Frankly Speaking

By FRANK LANGSTON

The luncheon for Governor Allred next Tuesday is not strictly speaking, a political affair. The governor will be honored at a centennial gathering, at which time Ciscoans will have an opportunity to meet the governor of Texas.

It has been a long time since a governor of Texas has been a guest in Cisco during his term of office.

Governor Allred will lay aside his campaign activities to attend the luncheon, which will be held at the Laguna hotel roof garden. Following the luncheon he will remain there and speak at Eastland.

The shiny new Sam Browns belts for the police force were not in evidence this morning, but Desk Sergeant Henry Stubblefield said nothing had happened in the police department and did not lay the blame on the belt. "Nothing has happened here since we got E. O. Hendricks on the day job," he said.

U. S., State Men Inspect Orchards In Peach Survey

(Special to The Daily Press)
EASTLAND, July 8. — The eradication of phony peach and mosaic peach diseases will be of much interest to the fruit growers of Eastland county, it has been announced by Hugh F. Barnhardt, assistant county agent.

The phony peach disease as many of the growers know was first noticed in Georgia, where it has done great damage to the peach growers of that state. In the last few years it has spread across the southern states reaching into Texas, and doing considerable damage in parts of the state.

The mosaic peach disease was first noticed in the state of Colorado. It has also found its way into Texas, first being discovered in Brown county. This disease has also ruined hundreds of acres of orchards in Colorado and is rapidly spreading in this state. These are both virus diseases and there is no known cure for either.

The effects of both diseases on the peach is very similar; in that, not only the fruit becomes smaller each year; but the yield is also less. The trees do not seem to be more subject to winter injuries or to other serious weakening diseases than the normal trees, and they may live many years after showing characters of the disease; thereby harbouring the disease and futhering the spread, more so than if the disease killed the tree outright.

This work is being done by D. E. Kelly and J. J. Rasor representatives of the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine of both the U. S. and state departments of agriculture.

Fruit growers are urged to cooperate to the fullest with this work to the extent that the appearance of the disease may be stamped out before serious damage is done.

Big Turkey Crop In Prospect at Crosby

CROSBYTON, July 8. (Spl.)—"The prospects for a bumper crop of prime turkeys from the Joe E. McDuff farm in Fairview community in Crosby county are extremely good, when the turkey feeding practices of this farm are considered," stated Ralph Howe, county agricultural agent, in a recent report.

Mrs. Joe E. McDuff, who has charge of the turkeys on this farm, has 231 fine quality poult that are already well feathered and making rapid growth.

"There are several reasons for this progress," the county agricultural agent commented, "namely, located in the brooder house are sanitary water fountains and hoppers for mash and cracked grain. In other hoppers there are oyster shell and grit. Also, the brooder house floor, which is well littered, is changed once a week."

Young Democrats Plan Coleman Rally

EASTLAND, July 8.—Regional rally of the young democrats—the region includes some 30 counties—will be the feature of the third day of Coleman centennial celebration. Plans for the day are being made by William O. Leach, secretary of the state organization, and Andy Isham, president of the local club. Efforts are being made to obtain speaking engagements for some of Texas' outstanding federal and state officials on that date.
