Senate Adopts Small's Plan To Restrict Old Age Pensions

Small Amendment For Paying Pension To Only Needy Passes

AUSTIN, Oct. 17. (AP)—The Texas senate Saturday adopted a proposal of Senator Clint Small of Amarillo to restrict old age assistance to persons strictly in need and to revise the pension setup. The vote was 15 to 14.

The proposition, in the form of an amendment to the omnibus tax bill passed by the house of representatives this week, authorizes assistance only in "necessitous circumstances."

Before voting on the Small amendment, the senate rejected, 20 to 8, an amendment by Senator Grady Westcott of Decatur to provide for equal payment to pensioners.

If the Small proposal is enacted into law it will cut pension costs to half. The old age pension administration would be placed under the state board of control and the present commission abolished.

After acting on the amendments, regarded as vital to legislative accomplishments of the special session, the senate went back to work on the omnibus bill.

Lieutenant Governor Walter Woodul Friday had overruled a point of order which allowed the Small plan to be considered.

The omnibus bill, considerably but not seriously altered, may undergo further changing before being returned to the house.

Outdoor advertising companies will be required to use more than 1,000 watts were added to the proposal with a 14 percent levy on gross income, while small telephone companies had their additional tax reduced from 1/2 to 1/4 percent.

The house was in adjournment until Monday.

CISCOAN HELD IN CAR THEFT

Theft Ring Broken Up As Cars Found

Rounding up of what was described as probably the largest theft ring in Texas in recent years and arrest of a Cisco man in connection with the gang's activities were described Saturday by Police Chief M. L. Perdue.

Perdue returned from Bowie Friday night, where he had been called to investigate reports that a car stolen from K. N. Cluck April 15 had been found. Upon his return, a Cisco man was arrested, charged with car theft, and turned over to county officers. The car belonging to Cluck was identified. It had been dismantled.

Perdue said that a number of men had been arrested at Bowie and that it was reported that $18,000 worth of automobiles and parts had been recovered. Eight cars not dismantled and seven truck loads of parts were found.

Mrs. Pettit appealed for "any useful, clean articles" as well as clothing.

She listed particularly cooking utensils, dishes, and bed clothes.

CLAIMS TEXAS REDS PRESENT

But Not Rampant On The Campus

AUSTIN, Oct. 17. (AP)—Joe Caldwell, chairman of the house committee investigating communism, said today that it was not widespread at the University of Texas but that he believed it existed in spots.

The committee, probing the rumored advocacy of communism, atheism, and other un-American "isms" in state colleges, this far has dealt primarily in the principles of the Texas Progressive Democrats and relations of the leaders with Dr. R. H. Montgomery, who recently resigned teaching at the university after a year with New Deal agencies in Washington.

Dr. Montgomery and two leaders of a political organization which they formed at the university, testified that they were progressives but said that they were not communists.

(By Associated Press) Spain, Russia declined knowledge of a mysterious arms shipment Saturday while Madrid troops backed up "strategically" on the main highway toward the west and fascist columns pushed toward the capital from three directions.

Despite an official Moscow disclaimer of information concerning the Norwegian steamer Bepingo, reported to have left a Russian Baltic port with ammunition for Madrid, carmen in the controlled Soviet zone made it plain that armed Soviet aid may be close at hand if not already a fact.

The Madrid high command announced that it required facilities west of the capital although it acknowledged that the main highway defenders had fallen back.

SAYS KING TO MARRY WALLY

Ready to Give Up His Throne, Claim

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17. (AP)—The Post said Saturday it had received "solid advice" that King Edward VIII is planning to marry Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson, who is suing her broker husband for divorce.

"He may not be able to make the ex-queen Baltimore belle his queen," the paper said in a copyrighted story, "but he is said to be determined to make her his wife even if it costs him his throne."

"Mrs. Simpson's suit for divorce coming at this particular time is considered significant. It indicates the 42-year-old British monarch plans to have a snowdrift before his coronation in May."

It was noted that the English law would not permit Mrs. Simpson's marriage until six months after the divorce decree. Her husband, Ernest Simpson, is not defending the suit.

Efforts to confirm the story through Mrs. Simpson's family here were met with no immediate success.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

We are His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them. In this place will I give peace.—Eph. ii, 10; Hag. ii, 0.

The world can neither give nor take, Nor can they comprehend The peace of God which Christ hath bought; That peace which knows no end. —COUNTESS OF HUNTINGDON.

Remember: Unless a tree has borne blossoms in Spring, you will vainly look for fruit on it in the Autumn.—Hare.

The Welfare Clothing Drive

THE UNITED CHARITY and Welfare Association, voicing its appeal for old clothing to aid Cisco's needy through the winter, has pointed out that clothing and other useful articles form the greater part of its service to the city's poor. For that reason, the association is urging that every person in Cisco who has some article which can be used but which is not now in use aid the organization and the needy at the same time by giving it for the charity cause.

WHILE shoes and clothing naturally are the most important single items, the Welfare Association also lists cooking utensils, dishes, canned goods, bed clothing, and other articles which it will be glad to receive—even to call for.

IT's no fun to be hungry and cold in the winter. The world does not look nearly so discouraging to the man with a coat as to the one shivering on a street corner. Boys and girls without proper protection against the chilly winds of the winter won't be nearly so happy and won't do as good work in school as those who are warm and comfortable.

NEARLY every citizen in Cisco can participate in this charity drive. It doesn't cost anything. All the welfare Association is asking for is the articles that you have discarded.

Getting Acquainted

THE Faculty-Lion-Rotary dinner Thursday night offers an excellent opportunity for three organizations keenly interested in the betterment of the community to come together, get acquainted, and talk over their common interests and aims.

AS service clubs, the Lions and Rotary organizations naturally are interested in helping to build the city and to aid in any way possible any other organizations working toward the same end. They realize that any community is nothing more than what its citizens make it.

A community is a growing thing. It never stands still. It is either progressing or retrogressing. Which it does depends largely upon the outlook of the people within it, whether they are going forward or backward.

THE public school of any community is the one common interest of its citizens. The faculty of that school has in its hands, largely, the moulding of the community's future.

BUT the faculty cannot carry on this task alone. The teachers reach the younger citizens, help them make adjustments that tend toward the betterment of their community. Yet too often they have been left to work at their task while other organizations—just as keenly interested in bettering the community, the state, and the nation—are working at their tasks and neither knows very clearly the interests, aims, and obstacles facing the other.

IN some places the work of service clubs, such as the Lions and Rotarians, and the school faculties overlap. In many others they are toward a common goal. By getting acquainted—at such a meeting as the one this week in which each of the three organizations will participate on the program—and exchanging ideas, the school faculty and the service clubs of the city can work toward their common interests and better serve their community.

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

One ought to help his wife, I suppose. He ought to do it willingly; if not then he ought to do it anyway. But a question that enters in this: If in his intention to help he only succeeds in causing a great deal more work than he saves, where is he? Or rather perhaps, where ought he to be? I help with the washing, generally, and such heavy chores as accompany the task. Recently one week the job was practically completed; the loadings had been gathered up; the litters and splashes had been mopped up. It wanted only the removal of the tubs and their contents of used water, and I was more willing to do that than any of the other steps because it was the last. I took hold of one side of a well-filled tub, and the boy took hold of the other. We lifted together and at once. A tub has the handles so arranged as to balance the weight of the tub either empty or filled. But we overlooked a wringer clamped tightly on one side (only, alas!). Gravity worked. The wringer tried to drop. It couldn't. But it could do a lot in that direction. It did.

I said right then—or rather there was much left unsaid. My

I almost knew. Nothing to do but to go on out with the tub and what was left of contents—nothing except to go back with the proper vessels and appliances and other necessary apparatus and go to work on a perfectly clean floor trying to gather the rest of the erstwhile contents of that tub from under the refrigerator, the low stove, the table pedestal, the hot water tank, the linoleum rugs and such as might have wandered into the adjacent rooms. Aggies Beat Frogs to Jump Into Limelight

8 to 7 Victory First Over TCU In Twelve Years

COLLEGE STATION, Oct. 17.—The Texas Christian University Aggies fell before the Texas Aggies yesterday afternoon by a score of 8 to 7 on historic Kyle field. This was the first Aggie victory over the Frogs since 1924, and established the Cadets as a very serious threat to the conference title.

An Aggie pass late in the second put the ball on the Frog 20 but the Purple defense stiffened and took the ball on downs.

The Aggies threatened once in the third. A series of line plays and pass put the ball on the TCU 16 where the Frogs recovered a fumble.

The last Cadet score came midway in the fourth quarter. With the ball on his own 16, Todd circled the TCU end for 79 yards to the Frog 6. A lateral, Vitek to Todd, made the last five yards.

The Frogs had possession of the ball three times after that but in a desperate attempt to score by passes had three of them intercepted.

Roach, Ellis, Aldrich, Baugh, and Walls stood out for the Purple while Todd, Vitek, and Stages showed well for the Aggies.

Bobcats Continue Their Drive For Title With 40 to 0 Win Over Loboes

The mighty San Angelo Bobcats continued their drive for the Oil Belt Pennant Friday night when they smashed the Cisco Loboes by a score of 40 to 0. At times the Cisco offense sparkled, as did its defense, but the powerful Bobcats could not be stopped. All the San Angelo gains were made by ground plays. They tried only one pass which was incomplete. The Loboes completed several short passes and Steyer and Rainbolt broke loose on several long gains during the second and third periods.

San Angelo scored three times the first quarter, and the entire Bobcat starters were pulled. The substitutes did not fare so well. The Loboes easily outplayed them all the second and most of the third quarters.

Loboes Threaten

The only Cisco scoring threat came late in the second frame when, after recovering a Bobcat fumble on the 30 they were held for downs on the 20, missing a first down by inches.

Late in the third period a San Angelo back broke loose and ran from midfield to the Cisco 13, and on the next play the Bobcats circled end for the fourth tally.

The fifth touchdown was a result of a blocked punt early in the fourth with the ball on the Loboes 15. A Bobcat broke through the Loboes and blocked the kick which rolled behind the Lobo goal line and was recovered by Baker.

The last touchdown came late in the game when Slicker, rushed hard, punted out on his 25 yard line. Then using straight power plays they drove to the six where a Jones drove over for the counter.

Midgets to Seek 16th Consecutive Win on Thursday

The Midgets, outweighed 20 pounds to the man, defeated the Eastland Junior high school team Thursday by a score of 28 to 0.

Chesley Tipton, quarterback, and Wayman Johnson, halfback, have been elected co-captains of the Midgets.

B Loboes Scrimmage Bobkittens to Draw

The Cisco Lobo B team played the San Angelo Junior high team to a 6-6 tie Friday afternoon in an unofficial scrimmage on the San Angelo high school gridiron.

The Cisco team outplayed the San Angelo 11 throughout the scrimmage and gained almost 500 yards from scrimmage.

The Lobo counter came late in the scrimmage on a pass from 0. Harrison to M. Harrison. The Bobcats scored their tally early.

Mustangs Fling Aerials to Beat Vandy by 16 to 0

DALLAS, Oct. 17.—Playing before 30,000 persons at the centennial cotton bowl, the SMU Mustangs Saturday defeated the Vanderbilt Commodores, coached by their former mentor, Ray Morrison, by a score of 16 to 0. All the Mustang points came in the first half.

The first SMU tally came from a pass and the next was made on a lateral. A field goal came between each of the touchdowns.

Finley, Sprague, and Stidger played outstanding for the Mustangs, who coached by Matty Bell, were playing against Ray Morrison's Commodores. Morrison is the former Mustang coach. A feature of the game was to be the playing of Jack Morrison, Mustang back against his father's team, but a leg injury kept him out of the contest.

Frontier Show, Races Offering Entertainment

FORT WORTH, Oct. 17 (Sp.)—Now that the Fort Worth Frontier Centennial has announced October 31 as its closing date, Texans will have nine days in October to witness both the Frontier Centennial and Arlington Downs races at the same time. The races start on October 22 and continue each day except Sunday through November 28.

New acts have been inserted in the fall edition of the Casa Manana Revue at the Fort Worth Frontier show and those who have seen the revised edition say this sensational show is even better now than the summer edition. With the recent closing of Jumbo and the Last Frontier wild west show, Casa Manana and the West Texas Building remain as the feature attractions of the Fort Worth Centennial. Over 600,000 people have visited the free Will Rogers Memorial Exhibit which is located in the West Texas Building at Fort Worth.

Paul Whiteman and his famous orchestra; Everett Marshall, Metropolitan opera singer; Sally Rand, dancer; Joe Venuti's band; Paul Remos and his wonder midgets; Jack Powell, comic black-face drummer; Cardini, magician; Faye Cotton, Texas Sweetheart number one; and hundreds of beautiful girls all continue to please large audiences twice each night.

More than $200,000.00 in purses will be distributed at Arlington Downs to owners of the nation's thoroughbreds. Eight races will be run each day except Sunday, with the $15,000.00 Waggoner Memorial Handicap scheduled for November 14. Located midway between Fort Worth and Dallas, Arlington Downs makes it possible for visitors to attend the races and see both the Fort Worth and Dallas Centennial exhibitions in one trip.

Cisco Flashes

After the early scoring spree by the Bobcats the Loboes showed a better brand of football and outplayed the San Angelo 11 until late in the third period.

Steyer, Lobo back, aided by good blocking, drove through the Bobcat line consistently for substantial gains, and Rainbolt broke loose twice for long gains and played a good defense game. There were no individual standouts in the Lobo line. Slicker got off several good punts and completed passes throughout the game.

The Loboes will not play a game next week, but will meet the Abilene Eagles Oct. 30 at Chesley field.

The starting lineups:
Cisco—Ends, Wallace and Bacon; tackles, Stewart and Shirley; guards, Flaherty and Yarbrough; center, Webster; quarterback, Slicker; half backs, Rainbolt and Donohoe; fullback, Steyer.

San Angelo—Ends, Fulghum and Billings, tackles, Drake and Pappas; guards, Patton and Cornelison; center, E. Brown; quarterback, B. Brown; halfbacks, Hay and Harrison; fullback, Hinde.

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVELY

SYNOPSIS: Lee-Ramsden, guardian of Ruth Fraser, had engaged Ambrose Lawson and his gang of kidnapers to make away with his ward. But Terence Mahony, near to everybody's acquaintance, rescues Ruth, who returns the favor by providing Terence a false alibi against a murder he did not commit. Terence is on his way home from telling Lee-Ramsden things he should not have told him when he meets a shabby individual who claims to have known him in China. Terence does not suspect Lee-Ramsden; he knows Lawson is a crook but can't prove it.

Chapter 20 TERENCE TRAPPED

"Have you still got the note?" asked Mahony of the shabby man.

"Yes, I think so."

The shabby man fumbled in a breast pocket and produced a crumpled envelope.

"Here it is. I'm supposed to deliver it at ten tonight if I want that job, but I'm not taking any. I'd rather pick pockets or try my hand at a cat burglary."

Mahony considered for a moment. He looked the shabby man up and down.

"I'll give you a fiver for that note," he said.

"What . . . ?" exclaimed Milson. "But . . . surely you're not thinking of trying for that job, are you?"

Mahony did not answer the question.

"Do you want that fiver?" he asked.

Milson shrugged his shoulders.

"Of course I want the fiver; I always want fivers," he remarked.

"And if you don't mind taking a job like that, I suppose that's your funeral. Here you are; deliver it to Mr. Brown, 137 Jamaica Road, Pennsylvania, at ten tonight. And good luck to you."

Mahony handed over the fiver and received the note. He declined Milson's urgent invitation to come somewhere and have a drink, and left him.

When Mahony was out of sight Milson entered the nearest telephone box. The man he telephoned was Ambrose Lawson.

"He fell for it all right," he stated. "That was all he said. Then he rang off."

Milson was not altogether right in saying that Mahony had fallen for it. At the beginning of their conversation Mahony had been ready to believe that he might have met Milson in the Shanghai Bar and forgotten meeting him.

Then there had come a little discrepancy in Milson's story—the mention of Kosoff. Mahony had never known Kosoff in Shanghai. But he had mentioned the name of Shultz as a dope trafficker at the Little's that morning. And the fact that he had been a newspaper correspondent in China might easily be known to Lawson; Billy Ross might have mentioned it.

It occurred to Mahony that Lawson had put together all he knew about Mahony's career in China to try to lure him into a trap.

Mahony intended to walk into that trap, not blind and unaware but with his eyes open, expecting trouble and ready for it. One precaution only he took; he wrote a note to Lee-Ramsden telling him what he proposed doing, and the address he was going to.

That note would reach Lee-Ramsden by the first post in the morning, and Mahony asked Lee-Ramsden to communicate with Inspector Kennedy if he should not ring him up before eleven the same morning.

Just before ten that night Mahony rapped at the door of 137 Jamaica Road, which was a tall, dingy, tumbledown house, in a row of dingy tumbledown houses. The door was opened by a bent, shriveled old man, who looked up at Mahony out of bleary eyes. Mahony handed him the note.

"I was told to bring this here at ten tonight," he said.

The old man took the note and looked at Mahony suspiciously.

"Wait here a minute," he said.

He closed the front door. Mahony waited. After about half a minute the front door opened again and the old man beckoned Mahony inside. His manner this time was more civil and conciliating.

"Mr. Brown says you're to come in and wait in his room," he said. "He won't keep you longer than he can help."

Mahony's hand was in his coat pocket; he was ready for anything that might happen. But though he strained his ears to hear the slightest sound near him he could hear nothing except his own footsteps and those of the old man; the house seemed surprisingly silent, almost deserted.

Cautiously, every sense on the alert, he followed the old man up a dark, tumbledown staircase to a landing. The old man opened the door of a room.

"Mr. Brown said you were to make yourself quite at home, and 'elp yourself to anything you want."

He ushered Mahony into a room that, by contrast with the rest of the house, was surprisingly well appointed and comfortable. The wallpaper was clean and fresh; there were a couple of comfortable arm-chairs, a solid-looking roll-top desk, a good thick carpet, and on a mahogany table were whisky, soda, glasses, and a box of cigars.

"Ave a drink or a smoke if you feel like it," said the old man, and he went out, closing the door after him. Mahony heard his slow footsteps going down the stairs.

Very puzzled, Mahony glanced round the room. So far as he could see, he appeared to be quite safe for the moment; the window was inaccessible from the road, the door was closed, there were no apertures or ventilators in the wall through which he could be shot at. He had no doubt that he had now walked into the trap prepared for him, but what was the nature of the trap? Was it in the drink or the cigars on the table?

Everything was very quiet except for the slow tick-tock, tick-tock of a clock on one of the walls of the room. Minutes drag by very slowly when a man's nerves are strained and alert, waiting for something to happen. Five minutes passed, ten minutes passed, and still the house remained quite quiet.

Mahony smoked; he walked up and down the room; he glanced cautiously at the articles on the desk. At last, very softly, he pulled at one of the drawers.

It opened, and inside were a number of thin paper packets. One of the packets had burst slightly at one end, and from it had spilled a little shiny, white powder. Mahony wetted one finger slightly, and tasted a tiny particle of the powder. The cold, numb sensation on the end of his tongue told him instantly what the powder was. It was cocaine.

The silence of the house was suddenly broken. From down below at the front door came a sound of banging, and then of men's rough voices in the hall. Mahony closed the drawer swiftly. He had no doubt that whatever was going to happen would happen now, and he was ready and waiting for it.

There was a sound of footsteps on the stairs leading up to the room. Mahony stood leaning back against the mantelpiece in an easy attitude, one hand in the pocket of his coat. The door of the room was flung violently open and a man stepped in.

He was a very large man, and very ugly. A shabby cap, pulled down at an angle over one eye, entirely failed to conceal his shock of untidy red hair. His brow was low, his eyes were small and deep-set, his lower jaw was underhung like that of a bulldog.

He closed the door deliberately behind him and stood in front of it scowling at Mahony, a huge, menacing figure.

"Good evenin' to ye, Mr. Brown," he said with a kind of savage politeness. "I just called in for me money."

"I'm not Mr. Brown," replied Mahony.

"Are ye not so?" said the man. He took a pace forward suddenly and brought his huge right fist down with a loud crack into the palm of his left hand.

"What in hell do I care what ye're after calling yourself to-night?" he roared ferociously. "Isn't it enough trouble ye're after causing me, with the cops looking for me and all, without standing in there arguing the toss about what name ye'd be passin' by? Give me me fifty quid and let me go—or have I got to squeeze the money out of you with me bare hands?"

It was obvious that he was in a real Irish temper; nothing would have pleased him better than a fight. The last thing Mahony wanted was a fight with a stranger at that moment.

"Don't be a damned fool," he said sharply. "I've told you I'm not Mr. Brown. I'm waiting for him myself."

The Irishman made a gesture of disgust.

"Do you think you'll wriggle out of paying me that way, ye twisting clericcaun?" he demanded angrily. "Didn't I have the tip that you'd be here at ten tonight? Wasn't you seen to come in at ten? Didn't the ould fellow below tell me you was here?"

But Terence has to fight, tomorrow.

First Districts Send 1000 Daily To Centennial

DALLAS, Oct. 17.—The first five state school districts to send children to the Texas centennial exposition in the general movement of students to the $25,000,000 World's fair registered an average daily attendance of more than 1,000 per district. Leaders from the respective districts were unlimted in their praise of the manner in which their groups were handled and the housing and feeding facilities which were provided.

Most of these districts were from the far corners of the state. The response was taken to indicate that the remaining districts, having lesser mileage, would respond to a far greater degree to the proclamation of Governor Allred, announcing holidays for them, and the statement of State Superintendent L. A. Woods that two days at the exposition are worth four weeks in the class room.

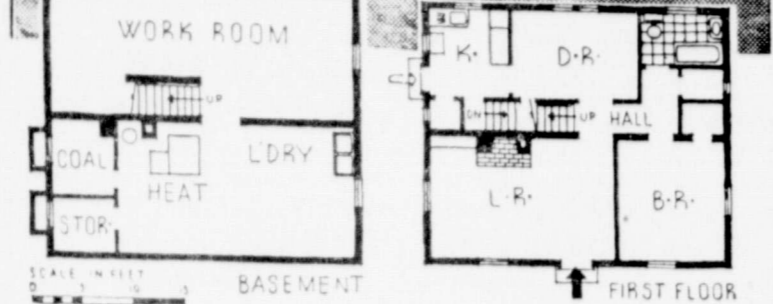

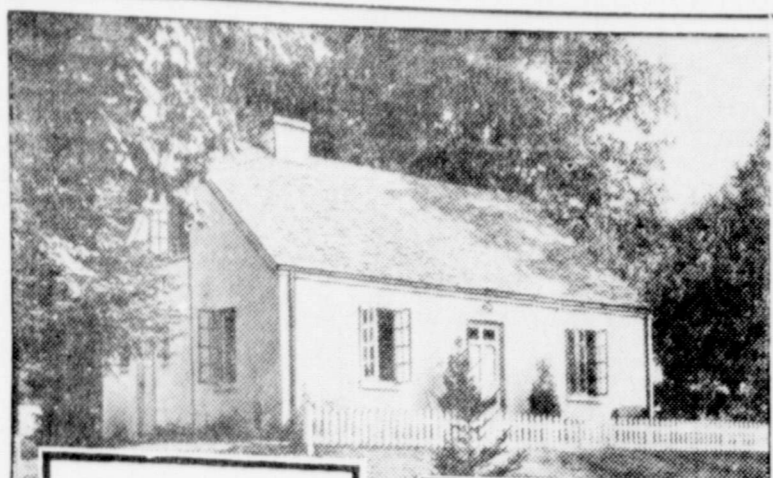

Students are being transported by the railroads at a half-cent a mile. They are given half-price to the centennial grounds and to the historic Cavalcade of Texas. Housing and feeding has been reduced to a nominal rate. School children are being given a chance to appear over radio under the sponsorship of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours company.

Districts which already have been represented are those centering at Amarillo, Kingsville, La. Grange, Alpine and Tyler. Others will come in order, full information being in the hands of school officials in the various counties.

Texas Is Urged To Conserve All Water Supplies

(Special to The Daily Press) AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 17.—Texas today was urged to conserve all underground and surface water supplies by the Texas planning board's water resources committee in a statement of policy made in connection with an exhaustive survey which is being made of the state's water supplies.

Agriculture was asked by the committee to conserve water through such methods as terracing, contour plowing, strip cropping, rotation of crops, destruction of weeds in pastures, control of livestock grazing, and the retirement to timber of such areas as are best adapted to the growing of timber crops.

The committee also advised the construction of storage dams on all tributaries as well as on the main streams of Texas for the purpose of storing water for every useful purpose, as well as for the prevention of floods and the regulation and control of stream flow.

Legislation which will enable the state board of water engineers to exert a positive control over the utilization of underground and surface water, including drainage water in artificially constructed channels, was proposed in the committee's statement of policy.

Enforce Pollution Laws

The state department of health was requested to strictly enforce existing regulations against pollution of Texas streams and the cooperation of the Texas state parks board and the state game, fish and Oyster commission was asked in the development of water recreational areas in the state.

Turning to the threat of future floods, the committee recommended the construction of a coordinated system of levees in connection with flood storage along the main streams for the purpose of protecting and reclaiming alluvial lands and protecting municipalities against flood damage.

The committee also recommended the encouragement of friendly cooperation between Texas and Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Arkansas, and between Mexico and the United States, for conservation of the waters of the Pecos, Canadian, Red and Sabine rivers, and the Rio Grande.

Chas. J. Kliner and J. A. Bearman of Cisco are members of the committee's advisory board.

Gridders Wearing Gold This Season

COLORADO SPRINGS, Oct. 17. (AP)—Maybe they still remember the comment of a New York sports writer: "The boys from the west, dressed in Hallowe'en uniforms."

That was after the Colorado college football team of the Rocky Mountain conference journeyed to West Point for a licking at Army's hands five years ago.

Anyway, there is neither orange nor yellow in the C. C. uniforms this year. They are gold—as nearly faithful to the color of the metal as fabric can be made.

The jerseys are gold with black numerals; the pants gold with black striping; the stockings solid gold; the helmets gold with black stripes. C. C. followers think they have the best-dressed team in the country.

Four Stars Are In 'Labeled Lady' Cast at Palace

Jean Harlow, William Powell, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy all in one picture. There's a collection of outstanding film names each of which is capable of ruling a motion picture cast in his and her own right. Only once in a movie moon is such a stellar aggregation of stars gathered together for one production. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has assembled them for its extravagant production of "Labeled Lady," the new season "special" which comes to the Palace Theatre today for a run of 2 days.

It is a well known fact that when a film company loads four of its greatest personalities into one picture, that picture has what it takes. "Grand Hotel" and "Dinner at Eight" are outstanding examples of star-studded hits of the past. Now comes "Labeled Lady," engrossing story of an heiress slandered by a metropolitan newspaper and suing for libel to the tune of five million dollars! The move involved four principals—the heirress, the newspaper's managing editor, the girl whom he is pledged to marry, and a very clever gentleman of the Lothario school who has achieved a unique reputation for his unrivaled ability to quash just such libel suits.
