

DUKE OF WINDSOR, WALLIS WED TODAY

Showers of Past Week Aid Drouth Situation

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

A graduation gift "par excellence" will be that given Joe Slicker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Slicker, this summer. Joe will leave Cisco June 21 to join his aunt, Miss Orpha Slicker of Pennsylvania, for a tour of Europe, leaving New York on the French liner Normandie June 30. They will be gone until September 6, visiting 12 European countries in the period of more than two months they will be away.

The gift is one that the aunt has promised Joe and Alice Louise and Betty, his sisters, when each completes high school. I can think of no more appropriate nor educational gift.

Joe and Cecil Edwards, who jointly won the Rotary club's award for the most valuable boy in high school senior class this year, were the guests of the Rotary club today noon, as is the custom. They were introduced by Supt. R. N. Cluck at the request of J. B. Cate, program chairman for the day, and each made an appropriate little speech of appreciation.

The campaign which, according to the Abilene Reporter-News, a Tennessee statesman is initiating in behalf of thicker bacon slices will have the enthusiastic spiritual support of Forrest Wright. Forrest for long has been of the opinion that the tendency in bacon slices is toward the effeminate. And when Forrest is of an opinion he is of an opinion. These tissue tidbits that curl up and vanish in the frying pan fill him with disgust. He likes to sink his teeth into something solid, something that gives him a gastronomic thrill of conquest.

The ultra modern machine age is approaching infinity in the matter of slicing this delectable portion of pork. Ere long, unless some manly protest is raised, the process of eating it will become a psychic manifestation. Give us some body along with the soul, say I.

COTTON CROPS AND PASTURES AIDED BY RAIN

1 1-4 Inches of Rainfall Is Registered For Four Days

A drouthy situation, which was becoming serious in this section, was relieved during the past week by four showers which fell Saturday, Sunday, Monday and Wednesday, totalling an inch and a quarter of rainfall.

The rains were slow, soaking in character and the soil received full benefit from the precipitation.

Although the rain arrived too late to help the small grain crops most of which is being cut or has been cut, cotton and pastures have been greatly aided.

Heaviest showers fell Saturday when half an inch was recorded. The following day, Sunday, two-tenths inches was added. Monday four-tenths of rain came and three-tenths more fell Wednesday.

Hard rains fell in the Palestine, Tyler and Corsicana areas. Rains Wednesday night dumped five to six and a half inches in the Abilene area.

Organization Has Aided Both Sides During Civil War

GENEVA, June 3 (AP)—There is one impartial hand in Spain's family quarrel—that of the international Red Cross which has helped salve the wounds of both sides ever since the war began.

It has done many more things than merely treat shell-torn soldiers although a large part of its budget goes for ambulances and medical supplies. From offices in Madrid and Barcelona, in loyalist territory; and Burgos, rebel headquarters, it has looked after destitute families, sending many children to vacation districts, giving orphans special care. It has eased the worries of prisoners and in many cases obtained their exchange.

It has done all these things with contributions solicited from all over the world.

The international Red Cross founded at Geneva in 1863, has been the go-between between the local Red Cross units in Spain. Dr. Marcel Junod of the Geneva office made agreements with them and with both governments as soon as war broke out.

U. S. Tourists Enjoy Action in Bull Ring

MEXICO CITY, June 3 (AP)—The little old lady in the fifth row of "tendidos" got up, shrugged her cloak about her head and took a final look at the bull-fighter bowing to the roaring crowd.

"It was all right," she told her neighbor, "but I would have liked it better if he'd killed the bull as soon as it came out."

She is typical of thousands of United States tourists flocking each Sunday to Mexico's huge "Toreo" arena; they like what they see, but they aren't sure but that they'd like something else better.

A handful of visitors will make their way out through crowded aisles at the first drop of shed blood; more will leave, having had enough, after the first or second, or third bull dies; but most stick it out to the last.

American, European Books Flood China

SHANGHAI, China, June 3 (AP)—Photostatic copies of American and European books are flooding Shanghai markets and doing holders of copyrights out of large sums.

Although sale of pirated editions is banned and they are not advertised to any extent, persons in the know can get foreign books at one-fourth the published prices. More than 1,000 titles are listed, most of them on technical subjects.

This form of pirating started in Tientsin when an engineering school printed photostatic copies of textbooks for its own students. Then the college began to supply schools all over the country. Bookstores, recognizing a good thing, soon followed suit.

The message was delivered as the senate prepared to begin its debate on repealing track betting law.

'I WILL', SAYS DUKE FIRMLY IN CEREMONY

Minister Gives Them Blessing of Church of England

CHATEAU DE CANDE, MONTS, France, June 3 (AP)—Radiant Duke of Windsor took Wallis Warfield for his bride and duchess today in two serene and dignified ceremonies.

Twenty-five weeks ago he relinquished the crown of England and the empire because she could not be his queen.

"I will," the Duke supremely happy, answered firmly to the Anglican poor man's parson, Reverend R. Anderson Jardine, who gave the unsanctioned blessing of the Church of England.

He raised his voice so high in eagerness to take "the woman I love," that it startled the 34 guests in the music room.

Wallis's voice was also firm but more hushed.

The religious service followed Doctor Mercier's civil service as mayor.

Windsor and Britain maintained official silence. The Duke and Duchess of Windsor voiced their hope for a "happy, useful private life" after "the trying time" of Edward's abdication.

At nightfall the couple departed for their honeymoon at the castle of Wasserleoburg, near Noetsch, Austria.

Protection of Nation's Water Supply Sought

WASHINGTON, June 3 (AP)—President Roosevelt asked congress today to set up seven "regional authorities" to administer the federal power projects and to plan safeguards against floods, drougths and dust storms.

The message said that the hydro-electric projects were part of plans to prevent occurrence of nature's calamities.

One of the regions covered the Red and Rio Grande drainage basin.

He said, "The water resources of the nation must be protected from private monopoly and must be used for the benefit of the people."

Roman Guides Must Pass Examination

ROME, June 3 (AP)—Only lips that are fascist may tell American tourists of the glories of Rome, it has been decreed. Guides not only must be of sound political faith, but they also have to pass a stiff examination to fix in their minds the order of the Caesars, who the naughty emperors were, what Caesar ran off with whose wife, and all the other interesting things that are poured into the ears of tourists.

The government insists on fascist-trained guides, so that a few paragraphs of propaganda on the glories of modern Rome will be mixed with the tourists' diet. Not infrequently tourists have heard from guides how dissatisfied they are, how hard conditions are, and the like. Sometimes the guides were sincere, sometimes they were pumping up the prospective tip.

NYA Helps 1,385 Pay Expenses at Texas University

AUSTIN, June 3.—V. I. Moore, dean of student life at the university of Texas, announced here this week that 1,385 individual students of the university have earned part of their expenses during the school year now closing through jobs provided by the National Youth Administration. This extensive student aid program was administered at the University of Texas by Dean Moore and his staff, thus all the federal funds apportioned to the university were used for employment of students without deduction for administrative cost.

Dean Moore asserted that the initial letters, "NYA," have come to be "a symbol of hope and help to young people whose desire for an education has been clouded by a lack of sufficient money to make their ambitious dreams of college a reality." He said that between 3,000 and 4,000 applicants wrote in seeking NYA employment at the university. "They know that the government has provided funds which will enable them to earn $15 a month for from 40 to 50 hours of work, and in many cases this help is enough to make all the difference between going ahead and giving up plans for college."

The quota of jobs for the university last year was 991, and the turnover of students made it possible to employ the largest number of 1,385 during the year, Dean Moore said.

A bag of mail stolen fifteen years ago in Edgewood, Tex., was found recently by workmen razing a bandstand. The bag had not been opened and most of its content was in perfect condition.

Summer Evening Wear Is Controversial

BALLERINA BUOYANCY

By JOAN DURHAM
AP Feature Service Writer
NEW YORK — News events have cast their shadows over evening fashions.

The coronation in London, the Degas Exhibition in Paris and the Pan-American Exposition in this country—each has left its imprint.

The evening gown, in fact, is the most controversial garment in the summer wardrobe.

Elegance par excellence is the result of the coronation. Luxurious fabrics, rich embroideries, encrustations of diamonds and brilliants—all appear in some of the most elaborate evening dresses of many seasons.

away on coronation gowns than skirt called "waltz frock length." stylists swarmed to the Paris exhibition of portraits done in the latter 1800's by Hilaire Germaine Edgard Degas.

Monsieur Degas' ballerinas and their gay dance frocks inspired much use of bright colors, bouffant skirts and slender waistlines.

Further complications arose when the Duchess of Windsor selected several gowns, including her wedding gown, in a shade called "Wallis Blue."

All Types For Summer

To fill the gap between gowns patterned after coronation styles and the short-skirted ballerina frock, Schiaparelli launched a new silhouette. It was ankle-length in back, shorter in front and had harem-draped lines suggestive of Oriental splendor. And it was introduced as something new for formal dining.

As a result all types of evening costumes will be seen this summer. Tailored pique dresses with cutout patterns—worn over contrasting slips—will appear on country club porches. Soft-colored organdy frocks (ballerina length) with bouffant skirts and grosgrain or velvet ribbon trimmings will float about over outdoor dance pavilions. Beaded silk chiffon gowns topped by elaborate wraps of summer velvet will be seen in metropolitan roof gardens.

No Bare Heads
Few summer belles will be caught bareheaded.

Bandeaux of pique and braided organdies will appear with dresses of the same materials.

Garlands of real or artificial flowers—with or without very flattering veils floating below them—will headline shining coiffures.

Evening shoes will be comfortable and flattering. Out at the heel and port-holed or criss-crossed at the toe, they will waltz through many moonlit evenings.

Injunction Preventing Canvassing of Beer Vote Is Dissolved by 91st District Court

EASTLAND, June 3. (Spc)—Holding it was without jurisdiction, the 91st district court Thursday dissolved an injunction which May 6 enjoined canvassing by commissioners court of returns in the May 1 local option election.

"It is the settled law of this state that elections are essentially the exercise of political power, and that the canvassing of the returns of the election is necessary to the determination of the result," Judge George L. Davenport said in rendering a decision.

Dissolution of the injunction, which had granted to beer retailers and wholesalers, was in recognition of a motion filed by commissioners court's attorney, Criminal District Attorney Earl Conner, Jr., after the testimony in the hearing had been completed asking the court to dissolve the injunction for the reason that it had no jurisdiction to interfere with the action of the county judge and commissioners court in canvassing the returns and declaring the result of the election.

Commissioners court, advised of the court's action dissolving the injunction, made immediate preparations to canvass the returns and declare the result. The members of the court were in session at the time the order was made.

At the same time the court when rendering its decision said the "holding only relates to the motion to dissolve the injunction and does not affect the trial of the case on its merits which will be heard during the June term of this court, but has the effect of leaving the county judge and commissioners court free to complete their work of canvassing the votes and declaring the result of the election."

Beyond Court Power

The court also stated, in part: "It is the settled law of this state that elections are essentially the exercise of political power, and that the canvassing of the returns of the election is an integral part of the election without which the election is a void proceeding, and the right to declare the result is as absolute as the right to vote or for the election to be held. Therefore the political power of the government to hold an election and declare the result is beyond judicial interference.

The courts of this state have no jurisdiction to interfere with the political right of the public to hold election and by 'hold election' is meant every step pertaining of the results. This rule obtains even though the election called and held is void. The right to call and hold void election is a political right that the courts have no judicial power to interfere with, but the right to enforce a void election in such a way as to violate the laws of this state would present a matter that the judicial power of the government would have the right to give relief from. This doctrine is abundantly sustained by the courts of other states.

Unofficial returns of the election show a victory for drys in the proposition all liquors shall be prohibited from sale in the county.

Wets in the hearing of the case upon its merits will protest that the issue submitted in the election was improper and that the proper issue should have been upon 14 per cent beer and wine which were legalized last year.

Bill Dill Was 78 Saturday, Family Reunion Enjoyed

Saturday was Bill Dill's birthday. He had passed his 78th milestone in life, and these anniversaries are always occasions for reunions of the family, and when their descendants gather at the parental home at 311 East 21st street there is a crowd on hand to honor their paternal ancestor.

A feature of the celebration Saturday was of course the birthday cakes, choice confections prepared by daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Dill, with the 78 wax tapers, and all accessories to make a perfect dinner.

There are nine living children of this couple, and these with their husbands and wives were present. A table was reserved for the family, and every child of this couple was seated at this table, with their father and mother at the head and foot of the table, this being the first time in 19 years that the entire family enjoyed a dinner at the same table. Another table was reserved for the in-laws.

Born In Arkansas

Frederick William Dill was born in Montecello, Ark., May 29, 1859, and came to Eastland county when a young man, settling near Rising Star where he was married to Miss Clara Belle Rae, daughter of a prominent pioneer family, where they lived until their removal to Cisco several years ago, and where they have resided continually since. Today the honoree of this celebration is one of the most widely known citizens of the county and is noted for his honesty and integrity. They are parents of one of the largest families in Eastland county, all natives of the county.

Besides the nine children present there was 32 grandchildren and eight great grandchildren. The children present were Mrs. W. T. Ingram, Cisco; Mrs. J. H. Redwine, Lubbock; H. C. Dill, Grandbury; John A. Dill, James F. Dill, Cisco; Mrs. F. M. Watts, Baird; M. F. Dill, Cross Plains; Terry Dill, Abilene, and Ray Dill, Childress.

Nephew of Mrs. J. E. Chesley Dies Sunday

Mrs. J. E. Chesley received a message Monday stating that her brother-in-law, Lieutenant Llewellyn Wentworth, had died Sunday evening at his home in Wolfeboro, N. H. Lieutenant and Mrs. Wentworth have visited here several times and Mrs. Wentworth spent last Christmas here with her sister, and other relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Yancey McCrea's youngest son, Llewellyn Wentworth McCrea was named for his uncle.

These were accompanied by their wives and husbands, except J. H. Redwine, who was detained at his home in Lubbock. Mrs. Watts is a widow. All the grandchildren were present except Howard Dill, Cisco; Forrest Watts, Moran; and Agnes Spears, Loving, N. M.

The ages of the nine children range from 54 down the scale of years to 35—the eldest being 54 and the youngest 35.

The family attempted to secure a photograph of the group but the day was rather cloudy and it was thought unlikely a good picture could be made.

Others present besides the family were J. M. Williamson, Judge Victor B. Gilbert, M. F. Watts' mother of Baird; Grandmother Nordike of Rising Star, Jack Allen. Other friends were invited but were not present.

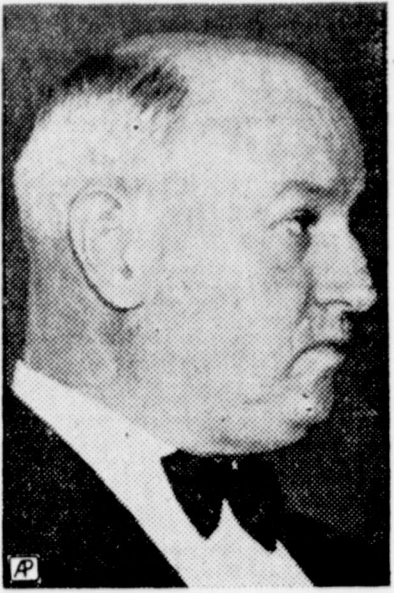

Mose Tarver, colored, prepared the barbecued meats.

The nonstop flight consumed a little over five hours.

Large Crowd of Ciscoans Greet James A. Farley

A large crowd of Ciscoans greeted Postmaster General James A. Farley and his party who arrived in Cisco Sunday morning at 11:45 aboard the Sunshine Special for a five-minute stop.

Genial Jim, as he is known, amply demonstrated the reason for this name as he met and passed words with as many of those present as the time would permit and he also posed for snapshots and autographed a number of cards. Will St. John, presidential elector at the last national election, rode with the party from Baird to Cisco.

Farley appeared to enjoy immensely seeing those present whom he had honored by his presence. He expressed his hope of paying a real visit to Cisco at some time in the future.

The postmaster's party had come from El Paso where he dedicated a federal building Saturday and was enroute to Baton Rouge, La., where Mr. Farley will address the graduating class tonight.

Cisco Postmaster Luther McCrea led the party of Ciscoans who greeted the head of the U. S. post office department. Among the remainder of the reception group were Judge J. E. Scott, J. E. Spencer, L. A. Harrison, S. H. Nance, Rev. Joe I. Patterson, W. J. Armstrong, G. B. Kelley, J. C. McAtee, Joe Donaway of Dothan, most of the employees of the post office, and Mrs. T. M. Quinn.

Farley's party was made up of Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Smith Purdom, Solicitor for the Post Office Department Karl A. Crowley, a former resident of Eastland; Secretary William J. Bray, who is known as the right hand man for Mr. Farley; Al Horton, secretary to Mr. Purdom, all of Washington; and Judge T. Whitfield Davidson and Judge D. Oldham, Jr., of Abilene who accompanied the party as far as Fort Worth.

April Government Expenditures for County are Given

The various governmental agencies in April spent $56,598.55 for "relief" in Eastland county, according to figures compiled and have been released by the Texas Relief commission.

The Works Progress Administration meant expenditure of the largest amount. A total of 1,031 workers, men and women, were paid $36,000. Seventy-five youths at work for the National Youth Administration meant expenditure of $636.70.

Pay of the Texas Relief commission employees amounted to $290. Seventy-five boys in Civilian Conservation Corps camps brought $1,875, each drawing $25 a month.

Food and clothing commodities were issued to 312 family groups, representing 1,297 persons. The food and clothing items amounted to $4,729.85. Included in the commodities were beef, 882 one and one-half pound cans, $205.50; 4,445 pounds of grapefruit, $117.80; 954 fourteen and one-half ounce cans of milk, $66.78; 1,858 cans of vegetables, $242.96; 3,972 garments, $3,892.56; and 817 household items, $204.25.

Grants were issued by the Texas Old Age Assistance commission to 889 persons, totaling $13,157.

Jewell Reeves, the Texas Relief commission worker announcing the figures, states: "The federal government demands that certain rules and regulations be strictly adhered to and that the supervision be done by the Texas Relief commission. The duties of your county workers are to keep accurate and up-to-date reports on all persons receiving assistance, to take applications from boys for CCC camps, to take applications from youths for their program, to accept applications where eligible for all ersons for WPA work.

"They should also keep in close touch with all government agencies to the end that all your citizens may derive the benefits of any and all programs."

Colonies, Tourists Spur Italy's Trade

ROME, June 3 (AP)—Italy's foreign trade is lifting its head above the receding flood waters of the sanctions which tried to drown it, according to figures of the Central Institute of Statistics.

Among other good signs, imports from the colonies to the motherland jumped from $1,040,000 to $1,770,000 in the first two months of this year, and exports to the colonies from $11,500,000 to $17,660,000.

Furthermore, the tourist trade is booming with steamships—especially those running to the United States—coming in filled to the gunwhales.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them! Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out. Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

NEW JONES COUNTY WILDCAT

ABILENE, June 3. (Sp.)—Texas Inland Oil & Gas company of San Antonio No. 1 R. G. Rowell, new Jones county wildcat about five miles southeast of Anson, is slated for spudding this week for a test of King sand and possibly deeper zones.

Location, about a mile and a half southeast of the Dan Whately No. 1 Brazelton and southwest of Texas Inland's first attempt to find production in that area, is 220 feet from the north and 220 feet from the east lines of the southwest quarter of section 37-OAL survey.

Texas Inland, headed by John Basom, drilled earlier in the year on the Knox Pittard land, obtaining a good showing of oil in lime breaks for a depth of more than 50 feet in the lower horizons.

North Offset acreage to the test is owned by Thornton Lomax, northeast offset by Lion Oil Refining company which recently opened offices in Abilene. The wildcat will drill to 2,350 feet.

Humble Oil & Refining company No. 4 George T. DeLafosse, fourth test for deep production 12 miles east of Albany in Shackelford county, is being rigged, operations to begin by this weekend.

The test will be rotary drilled, Ungren & Frazier of Abilene having been given contract. Same derrick and equipment will be used as on the Ungren & Frazier No. 1 Snyder, southern Shackelford Ordovician wildcat recently abandoned.

The Humble No. 4 DeLafosse is 827 feet southeast of the No. 3 DeLafosse. Exploration for Eilenberger lime production in that vicinity was started in 1934.

Pitzer & West of Breckenridge drilled the first well, which was estimated at 400 barrels daily of high gravity oil, but was later junked by a premature explosion of nitro. Two later tests drilled jointly by Pitzer & West and Humble were failures.

The new test will be drilled by Humble alone. It is 660 feet from the west and 330 feet from the south line of the north half of section 1550-TE&L survey.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

AUSTIN, June 3.—Preliminary maneuvers in house and senate at the first called session of the 45th legislature, considering nothing but repeal of race horse gambling, furnished no surprise, but ran true to prediction.

Meanwhile, in the senate, where the real fight is to develop, Frank Rawlings of Fort Worth began his parliamentary maneuvers by seeking to send a bill, identical with Bradbury's measure, to the state affairs committee instead of the criminal jurisprudence committee.

ANTI STRATEGY

Anti-repealists plan to fight the battle out along these lines: First, they will propose to postpone the effective date of repeal until 1939. Failing in this, they next will seek to substitute a local option measure permitting counties to vote on pari-mutual betting; then, as a last-ditch move, they plan to try to attach many amendments to the bill, including changes that would outlaw raffles, trades days, church auctions, bank nights and other technical "gambling" affairs.

GOVERNOR'S PLANS

Gov. Allred, if the senate acts in time on race betting, plans to submit a law making operation of "bookie" shops a felony, and another outlawing dog racing, which at present is not illegal under decisions of the highest Texas courts.

Assigned Oil May Be Deducted From Tax, Court Holds

WASHINGTON, June 3. (Sp.)—Right of an operator to assign specific oil to the lease holder and exclude the income from this oil from his income tax return was upheld by the United States supreme court Tuesday.

The decision, important to oil producers and lease owners of Texas, was handed down in the appeal of W. A. Thomas, internal revenue collector for the Dallas district, against J. J. Perkins, Wichita Falls oil man. The high tribunal upheld the decision of the fifth circuit court of appeals in which the bureau of internal revenue lost its fight to assess additional taxes against Perkins and his wife and from which the appeal was carried.

Perkins, with associates, acquired, in 1931, a group of oil and gas leases in East Texas for $155,000 from Mammie S. Hammonds and Fred P. Branson. He and associates further agreed to pay an additional $395,000 from one-fourth of the oil produced.

After production was obtained Perkins assigned sufficient oil to cover the lease contract to Hammonds and Branson and failed to include the $395,000 in his 1933 income tax return. Collector Thomas assessed a deficiency for the amount of the tax against him, and claimed, Perkins paid the tax and then sued to recover.

In its decision the supreme court held that Perkins was not required to include the income from the oil in his income tax return although the internal revenue bureau vigorously contended that such a decision would upset the present system of depletion allowances on oil production.

The decision was not unanimous, two justices dissenting. They were Justices Cardozo and Stone. They declared in a very brief dissent that they believed the income from the oil was part of Perkins' income although he would be entitled to take the usual depletion allowance before paying the tax.

The opinion of the majority was read by Associate Justice Butler.

W. S. Farish Becomes Standard President

W. S. Farish, former president and one of the organizers of the Humble Oil and Refining company, largest subsidiary of the Standard of New Jersey, will assume more active and direct direction of the affairs of the great Standard company when he becomes president of that corporation, exchanging places with Walter Teagle. Mr. Farish went to the New Jersey Standard several years ago to become chairman of the board a position in which he served continuously until now. Mr. Teagle, president of Standard since 1917, told the stockholders he wished to be relieved of present duties in order to have more time for special work. The new president of Standard erroneously was supposed to have spent some time in Cisco as superintendent of the Humble Oil and Refining company district. His brother, Steve Farish, was here in 1919, later resigning his connection with Humble to organize the Navarro Oil company of which he is still the head at Houston, it was understood.

British Rearmament Hits Italian Plants

MILAN, Italy, June 3. (AP)—Great Britain's rearmament program willingly or unwillingly is squeezing Italy industrially through producing a scarcity of heavy raw materials, business circles say. By buying up all the available steel and several other primary products on the world markets, Britain is throwing Italian manufacturers into some embarrassment and is causing Mussolini's government to take steps to alleviate the situation. A ministerial decree has just been issued to restrict building operations because of the "desirability of limiting the use of iron to quantities strictly necessary." Manufacturers are particularly uncertain over the situation because they know that the military needs of the nation have first call on raw materials. The fascist Grand Council declared on March 2, with regard to raw materials, the principle of "sacrifice, even total if necessary, of the civil requirements for the military requirements."

ARCHIBALD MacLEISH

Prize Poet Is Whiz at Holding Down a Job, Too

By CHARLES NORMAN
AP Feature Service Writer
NEW YORK.—In contrast to the long-haired bard of old who despised things of this world—like a little hard work, for example—Archibald MacLeish, Pulitzer prize poet, finds communing with the muses no bar to holding down a job. He can tackle a statistician's report and whittle it to its basic content of facts and human equations; write an exhaustive survey of technological unemployment; differentiate the soil structure of the southwest; and present, from first-hand study, the economic set-up of Japan.

Looks Like Business Man
He does these things for "Fortune," dollar-an-issue magazine of big business, for $15,000 a year. In other respects, too, MacLeish differs from the poet "with a lily in his hand," which Gilbert and Sullivan satirized. In brown tweed coat and gray flannel trousers, he looks like a young business man about town ready for a week-end jaunt into the country or a game of tennis after work. Light brown hair falls in a wisp over a sheer cliff of forehead. Hazel-colored eyes glow with an intellectual intensity as he talks. His jaw seems hewn out of granite.

Writes for 'New Masses'
He calls his job "a good box seat for seeing the world as it is." His view takes in a sizeable terrain, for occasionally his name appears in "The New Masses," communist weekly. "Actually," he explains, "except for format and price, there is no discrepancy in what I write for 'Fortune' and what I contribute to the 'Masses.' They're all fact-finding pieces which tell their own tale." His poetry also reflects the world his researches have disclosed, and deals with people against their political and economic background. Awed by Thomas Mann Awe and admiration fill his voice as he talks about Thomas Mann, exiled German novelist. "I believe," he says, "that what Mann declared here recently—the destiny of man presents itself to our time in a political guise—is true. 'The artist today cannot ignore the issues of his day. But what is

And if he can't ignore the issues, and is not going to take sides, he proceeds as an artist to project his views through his work. Thomas Mann is the supreme example of this. Rockefeller Gave $120,000 to H-SU Dr. Sandefer Says

ABILENE, June 3.—Rockefeller generosity has meant $120,000 to Hardin-Simmons university. Dr. J. D. Sandefer, president, announced last week at the death of the philanthropist. Revealing facts that few H-SU students know, Dr. Sandefer recalls that the Rockefeller foundation added $100,000 to the university endowment on September 18, 1922, and several years later gave $20,000 as a gift to be applied on teachers salaries. Dr. James B. Simmons, founder, was an intimate friend of John D. Rockefeller and received 92 letters written in longhand from the financier. The letters are on display in Hardin-Simmons museum cases. Contents of the letters concerns Dr. Simmons missionary work and Mr. Rockefeller's encouragement that accompanied his checks. The money given Dr. Simmons but rather for missionary work throughout the South and East, Dr. Sandefer explains.

Germany Says Big Family, Big Mind

BERLIN, June 3. (AP)—Big families produce big men. A nation populated with small families therefore has small chance of developing any great minds. So runs the "bigger and better family" arguments assiduously propagated in Nazi Germany. Charts have been prepared to show that the later children of a family seem to have a better chance of growing up into famous personages than do the first-born or second-born. For instance, it is pointed out, the artist Albrecht Durer was his mother's third child; Frederick the Great was the fourth child in his family; Bismarck also was a fourth child. Among the great German composers, Bach was last in a family of eight children; Wagner last of nine, and Mozart last of seven.

Rapid Progress Is Being Made on Athletic Stadium

Work on the WPA football stadium was coming along rapidly Wednesday with the steel framework for the north stands completed and excavation for the framework on the south side now under way. According to W. F. Wilson, director for the project. Each of the stands, when completed, will seat about 1000 spectators and it was the supervisor's belief that eventually they will be lengthened and stands constructed on the ends of the playing field. The field has already been plowed and it has been wetted down several times. Wilson said that dirt work on the field will begin Monday also. A fence will be erected behind the north stands separating the football park from the baseball diamond, the director reported. If present plans work out, according to Wilson, the entire project will be completed sometime in September, probably in time for the Lobos to play their first home game in the new park. He said, however, it is possible that the stadium's completion will be delayed some time. A running track for athletic contests will be fixed around the regular playing field and this will be used instead of the track in the baseball park, it was learned. Wilson is now working a split crew of 70 men with 35 on five days and then off five days while the remaining 35 work their five days.

The fatal accident occurred in the Tussey field, near the Stephens county line. Bray and Roy Smith, Chickasha banker, were visiting a well in which Bray was interested and Bray was opening the pressure valve at the time of the accident. Smith was knocked down by pressure from the broken connection but was not injured. He said Saturday that it happened so quickly he was not sure but believed the connection broke, hitting Bray who was killed instantly.

Bray, formerly a teacher in the Ardmore high school, owned the Coco Cola Bottling company at Chickasha. Summer school at Randolph began work Monday. Classes were organized at 3 o'clock according to demand. The work is accepted in full for teachers' certificates, according to word just received from W. A. Nelson, college examiner for the department of education at Austin. The same credit also applies to the work for the year 1937-8. MURDER ON THE BLUFF

SYNOPSIS: The mysterious shooting to death of attractive Jude Blinshop makes us all jittery on this wild, stormy weekend at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael's aunts. A series of strange attacks is apparently explained when we find below the bluff the body of Michael's insane father, supposedly long since dead. But our relief is brief: Aunt Martha is shot in the shoulder by an unseen hand. Who held the gun? Mike; the Skipper, his tall, tweedy younger aunt; Gay Palmer, his red-headed sweetheart; Higgins, the old butler; William, the chauffeur; Cook; Annie, the maid?

Chapter 29 The Sleeping Powders

And the murderer was a person of nerve. The murderer must have stood calmly in the hall, wiping off that gun, knowing that the report of it must have been heard all over the house. There was my one stumbling block. I could not conceive of Higgins as a person of that type. Staid and pompous, yes. But nerve? The man had been shaking practically continually since our arrival on Friday. In the light of the Skipper's story, it seemed quite probable that he had been shaking for some time before that, too.

Gay ended my speculations momentarily by rising from the table.

"I'm going to beg one of those powders from the Skipper and lie down," she said.

Michael and I rose, too, I with sudden misgivings.

"Don't do it!" I said sharply.

Her eyebrows rose. "For Heaven's sake, why not?"

Feeling more foolish by the minute I stuck to my guns.

"It isn't safe in this house. Take some more aspirin or something."

She stared at me blankly, and her voice took on an acid tinge.

"Why, Jimmie, you haven't poisoned the sleeping powders, have you?"

Her words startled more than they annoyed me. My mind had been dwelling on the foolhardiness of heavy slumber in that devil-ridden house. The possibility of poison had not occurred to me. Like the dull fool I was, I allowed my face to register my consternation.

"So you have?" said Michael softly.

I whirled on him. "Do you believe that?"

"My dear Jimmie," he was actually chuckling. "I'm beginning to think I could believe anything."

It was really happening. Mike was standing there, cold sober and without a trace of rage, calmly hinting that I was the murderer!

"I see!" I said heavily. To save myself I couldn't think of a thing to say to either one of them. I faced them for a brief second, turned on my heel, and strode into the library. If they already half believed the case against me, what would be the attitude of a disinterested jury?

I went through a pretty bad five minutes before Mike joined me. He was loading a pipe and he strolled to the window without even glancing at me. I was tempted to do two things. I was tempted to knock his block off, and I was tempted to stalk out of the room without speaking to him. I did neither. I stayed right there, waiting for him to speak.

"We were only kidding, Jim!"

I took plenty of time before I answered him. "Sorry, I can't pretend to be amused."

Experiment in Laughter

He worked at the pipe a while. Then, "I'm on an impossible spot! Counting out the servants, I'm obliged to suspect my family, my girl or my best friend. It's not so easy."

I could see that, but I still didn't care about being considered the worst bet in the crowd. I was silent.

Finally he turned around. "A couple of hours ago I was suspecting myself."

I couldn't restrain a sulky grin. Applying a match to his pipe, Mike grinned back at me.

"No hard feeling?"

"No hard feelings."

That was too much for me. We were suspecting each other of murder as we might have been suspecting each other of salting the rice pudding. The sound of my own laughter fascinated me. I experimented with it. Michael didn't join in.

"Don't do that, for God's sake!"

He was regarding me with a puzzled frown.

"Sorry," I wheezed. "It's so damn silly."

"Yes." His face was very grave.

"Jim—have you had anything to do with this?"

I would have laughed again, but I hadn't the energy.

"No," I said. "Word of honor, Mike. Not a damned thing!"

He looked me straight in the eye. "Neither have I—unless I'm out of my mind."

Until that weekend I would have accepted his word against a supreme court decision. I half believed him even then. But I had believed Gay and the Skipper and M. Farrington also. And they had all lied. The thought was disconcerting. Mike, reading it in my face, grinned.

"You see?" he said. I did see—all too clearly.

"Mike," I said after a slight pause, "did Gay tell you what the Skipper asked her to?"

His eyes turned toward the fire. "About my father?"

"Yes."

He nodded. "I saw him last night, Jim. When the Skipper fainted. He was standing in front of Jude's door. There was so much fuss that no one noticed, and I didn't sing out because—because I knew him. Funny, isn't it? Twenty-odd years I've thought that he was dead, but I knew him on the spot—even knew what was wrong with him."

So that explained Michael's sudden notion that he was insane. It also explained how the maniac had gained admission to Jude's locked room. He had been there, under the sheet, when I first locked the door. And Jude's body—it wasn't a pretty picture.

Well, at least we had a fairly good idea of Norman Farrington's activities. Escaping from Higgins' room, he had somehow managed to get out of the house on Friday night. The chances were that he had spent most of the night in the garage, except for the short time when the Skipper had scared him away. It was even probable that he had tried to escape from the Bluff in a car, only to find that the bridge was down.

He must have gained access to the house by the back door, mowing down Cook and Annie as he came. Then he had prowled the house, upsetting M. Farrington's room and killing the cat in just such a fit of insane frenzy as the Skipper had been fearing. He had probably scuttled for the nearest door when he heard us on the stairs, and his manner of concealment within that room was gruesomely evident. During our excitement over the Skipper he had crept down the hall to William's room where—

Lured to His Death?

My thoughts came to an abrupt halt. I had locked the door of Jude's room before William and I met our accident. It was still locked when we examined it later, and the lock had not been tampered with. Yet the madman must have entered that room at least once in the meantime.

When the Skipper and I had discovered Jude's body, we had also discovered a lock that had been tampered with. Why? If Norman Farrington could go through that door once without forcing its lock, why should he have forced it later? Had someone else lur-ed the poor bedeviled old chap to his death? I glanced at Mike. He was staring into the fire, his eyes heavy and brooding, his teeth clamped tightly on his pipe stem.

"Mike," I said, "are you sure he was standing in front of Jude's door?"

He looked up in surprise. "Positive. Why?"

"Just wondering. Did you see him go in there—Jude's room, I mean?"

"Why, no. He was still standing there when I helped you pick the Skipper up."

Well, it didn't matter. Whether Norman Farrington had been seen entering that room or not, there was nothing to indicate that he had stayed there—nothing but our inability to find him in the rest of the house to indicate that his hand had placed Jude Blinshop where we found her. The wading was getting deeper and deeper. I had a growing conviction that the death of Michael's father had been no accident. Unpleasant as it would be for all of us, I began to wish that the police would arrive.

My mind reverted suddenly to M. Farrington's assertion that she had seen a man's sleeve reflected in her mirror. It was possible that the old lady had been mistaken. It was also possible that she had been attempting either to shield or to incriminate someone. The last idea wasn't exactly cheering. The only person who had been in any way incriminated was myself.

And the idea of M. Farrington's intending such a state of affairs was preposterous.

I began to consider M. Farrington carefully. It occurred to me that I should like to examine her room again. I should like to know a thing or two about the angle of her mirror and the distance from the hall door to her dressing table. The would-be murderer had stood in that doorway, of that much I was sure. It would be the only logical place to stand in order to allow for a quick disposal of the weapon. And there were powder burns on the back of M. Farrington's robe. I very much wanted to see that room.

There were only two people in the house that M. Farrington would attempt to shield in such an instance—Mike and the Skipper. Gay, I felt sure, she would have betrayed without a second's hesitation. Since I knew that I had not been in that doorway, there was little point in trying to decide whether or not she would have shielded me. Would she protect Higgins? The question seemed very important.

Glorifying
THE AMERICAN KITCHEN

Thousands of women are basing their entire kitchen modernizing plans on the 1937 gas range. And it is little wonder, for designers and fashionists everywhere hail it as the most beautiful cooking appliance. Preferred, they say, not only because of its smooth-flowing lines and glistening beauty — but most of all, because of its superior performance in every division of modern cookery. • Outstanding are its simmer burners that make possible "waterless" cooking without special utensils... its insulated fresh-air oven with its live, circulating heat always steadily applied... its high-speed broiler that grills meats more tender and more savory in less time. And every smart homo-maker knows that gas is clean, fast and much cheaper • Isn't it worth visiting your gas company or dealer's store to discover how you, too, can glorify your kitchen for little money?

Japs Planning Shaft to Cap Empire State

TOPEKA, June 3. (AP)—Japan wants to build a shaft higher than the Empire State Building or the Eiffel Tower but—

Topeka's building ordinance limits the height of structures to 100 feet and besides, no building in Tokyo is permitted to rise higher than the Imperial Palace. (That would make it impossible for ordinary mortals to look down on the emperor.)

Promoters hope to get a dispensation to rear a 1,312-foot cylindrical shaft in the waters of Tokyo Bay for the Japanese International Exposition. It would be built of a light alloy, have a staircase and elevator inside its mural-decorated walls. Radio and a beacon light, planned to cap the edifice, would, it is pointed out, be important in connection with aviation and air defense.

IT'S ODD But It's Science
LONDONERS PLAY JOKE ON COWS
By HOWARD BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor
NEW YORK.—A joke on the cows is reported by William Clayton and James Frederick Morse, London scientists. They put a dash of saponin, a white powder used to make beverages foamy, into good butter cream. Thereafter hours of churning failed to make any butter. They were trying to settle an old scientific dispute—what is butter?
One theory said it was an emulsion, a mixture of fat and water.
The other said it wasn't. They think they have proved that butter is not an emulsion, but just a lot of fat, since their white powder prevented the fat and the protein in the milk from separating and no butter was formed. This, they say, demonstrates that churning separates the proteins and fats, and the fat globules mass together into butter.
