TOM GIRDLER SAYS PHILIP MURRAY 'LIAR'

Warships Patrol Spain On Own Initiative

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

The lunar philosophy of W. Frank Walker has been justified, at least in the realm of fishing. Frank went under protest, asserting to preacher and pedagogues alike that the fish would not bite because the moon was looking. To catch a fish, argued Walker, one must go when the moon is dark and the beams of the midnight goddess do not incline the finny tribes to those romantic dispositions which take attention from the more practical problems of getting something to eat.

Before he set out with James and Cluck and Duff for the summing Clear Fork, Walker left with me the solemn assurance that the gang wouldn't catch a thing. They did take a perch or two, but this result merely emphasized Walker's prediction.

"I don't know what the moon has to do with it," admitted Walker, "but it has something." He is a firm believer in the psychic influences of the satellite, and wouldn't plant a potato in the full of it with expectations of its producing at all.

Now there are others of a more pragmatic trend of mind who deny that the moon has anything to do with the case, but those have yet to explain the mysteries of the magnetic influence which the moon exerts upon the sea, and many other affinities that science ascribes to the attraction of this lovely orb which the ancients deified with the personality of Diana.

I have been told that the moon, whose womanish disposition is not incapable of some deceit, can give its worshippers a coat of tan as decided as that imposed by the sun. Possibly some peculiar qualities of selective reflection which relays some rays from the sun and refuses to transport others is responsible for this fact, if it is true. Rays which cause heat are invisible, I am told, and are known as infra-red rays. Some marvelous, if ghostly photography, is produced by utilizing these rays of light in preference to others. If this reflective property is real, some answer to the problem of producing cold light may be hidden in examination of the chemical composition of the moon.

Supt. Walton of the Ranger public schools paid admiring tribute to the genius of young James Haynie with a cornet last night. Walton, a member of the Ranger Rotary club and attending the intercity Rotary meet where young Haynie presented Cisco's number on the composite program, remarked that he had never before heard any musician so young do a "triple tool." (I didn't quite catch the term, but I did catch the enthusiasm) on a cornet. The youngster, who looked small enough in comparison with the rest of the entertainers, held the acute interest of the members of an Eastland orchestra, other entertainers and the Rotarians and their wives and guests, and got a real hand at the end.

A novel but effective temporary "cooling system" was installed in the Colonial ballroom of the Gholson hotel where the dinner took place. It consisted of great cakes of ice, set in zinc pans before large electric fans.

VESSELS TO 'RETALIATE' ANY ATTACK

Fear Italian, Nazi Attack on Spanish Government

(By Associated Press)
German and Italian warships patrolled the coasts on their own initiative today with commanders acting in apparent concert.
Italian vessels were ordered to retaliate immediately at any "attack" from the Spanish government and the German fleet was told to "protect German interests."

Grave fears were held that the joint Italian-German withdrawal from the non-intervention patrol was a forerunner of an attack against the government of Spain as a "punishment" of the alleged attempt to torpedo the German cruiser Leipzig.
Basques and Austrians joined forces under a single command to strengthen resistance against the insurgent threat to dominate the entire Basque and Asturian regions of Northern Spain.

Cattle Sales Are Netting Callahan Co. Large Profit

BAIRD, June 24.—Prosperity definitely has returned to ranchmen of Callahan county in the most abundant apportionment in possibly 20 years, particularly cattle men.

Beginning to slack now is a movement of cattle that netted ranchmen approximately a quarter million dollars, a conservative figure marked by Bob Norrell, cashier of the First National bank.
More than 250 cars of cattle have gone out of Baird via the T. & P. railroad alone during the past five weeks, according to J. A. Florence, agent, who says it is probably the largest shipment in 18 or 20 years. These cattle have gone to at least eight states and have demanded most satisfactory prices since pre-war days.

Whoever Wins In Spain, Kids Lose

1—WAR WAS FUN at first for many Spanish children. Babes in arms became babes with arms playing soldier for fun.

2—THEN WAR SHOWED ITS UGLY SIDE. In a nightmare of screaming shells, the tots dropped their wooden guns and fled with harried mothers to refuge. In Madrid, they huddled in the subway; elsewhere they clustered in open fields and caves.

3—PANIC - STRICKEN little boys who would ordinarily be in school suddenly found themselves orphaned.

4—NOBODY WANTED TO PLAY SOLDIER AFTER THAT. The big boys—only in their 'teens—have taken up their fathers' weapons. But the younger children's one thought has been—escape. Many, especially of the Basques, have been taken to England; others, like this group, found refuge in France.

5—SAFE AT LAST in a foreign land, they wolf down food, learn to laugh again, play peacetime games. But many will never see their parents. These tots have already lost the war.

DISAGREEMENT ABOUT ISSUES BRINGS WORDS

"Guffey Doesn't Know What He Is Talking About," Says

WASHINGTON, June 24 (AP)—Tom Girdler, chairman of the Republic Steel corporation, told the senate committee today that Philip Murray was a "liar" and that Senator Guffey, Pennsylvania democrat, "doesn't know what he is talking about," regarding the steel strike.

The answers came when Girdler was asked whether Murray's and Guffey's statements were true that the only issue was the question of reducing an oral agreement into writing.

Girdler said the basic strike issue is "the right of American citizens to work free from molestation."

Girdler denied Guffey's accusation that Girdler was asked to re-

Bill to Dispose of Stallions and Jacks Is Passed

AUSTIN, June 24 (AP)—The senate passed a bill to dispose of stallions and jacks purchased with proceeds of the repealed race betting act as the legislature worked quickly in an effort to pass bills before the session ends tomorrow.

The senate favored continuing state control of the animals with the agriculture commissioner locating them wherever he saw fit. The senate bill differed with the house bill, which asked that the animals be given to various counties, but confidence was generally expressed that it would agree in the committee.

The house spent much of the morning softening requirements that a persons must give 27 months notice before being allowed to take a bar examination.

BOY NARROWLY MISSES DEATH

Falls 25 Feet Into Well Wednesday

Death was narrowly averted yesterday afternoon for 15-year-old Otis McGough, son of Mrs. D. Pugh, when he fell 25 feet into a well on the Pugh farm five miles southwest of Cisco while he and his brother, Mark, were cleaning it. The two boys had finished cleaning the well and the older was drawing his brother to the surface, when, just as the boy on the ground reached to help the younger from the small bucket which served as an elevator, the chain broke, plunging the latter through a vertical tunnel of jagged rocks, 25 feet to the bottom.

Miraculously the plunging body of the youth missed the protruding and ragged stones with which the well is walled. He was lifted to the surface, sustaining no broken bones but serious cuts on both legs, a bruised back and two badly bruised feet which were wedged into the small bucket so tightly by the impact as to be almost crushed.

Attending physicians said the youth would recover.
The accident occurred between 1 and 2 o'clock yesterday.

McAfee of the Cisco club and presidents of the Breckenridge and Eastland clubs led their delegations to the dinner.

Cisco's portion of the program consisted of two cornet solos played by John James Haynie.

Farmers Should Raise More Goats in County, Says

"The average Eastland county farmer with 75 acres of pasture should run 35 to 40 goats," thinks Cecil Shults, livestock raiser and merchant of Rising Star. He also advocates that these goats be fair quality Angoras and that there be a goat-proof fence made of 36-inch goat wire with 12-inch staves and three barbed wires. Wire with closer staves will trap and starve goats that get their heads caught in the fence, he explained.

To kill brush, Shults advocates two goats per acre, browsed April through August, and for normal browsing one goat per two acres over a 12-month period. His estimates are made for average brush land.

In pastures where there is no liveoak, it is necessary to feed during four cold-weather months. To winter during these four months on roughage should cost not over 35 cents per head, he said.

An average Angora goat will hear four to six pounds of mohair per year which is clear profit since the animals earn their keep by killing out underbrush which prevents grass and weeds from growing, Mr. Shults explained.

After a brush pasture has been browsed for two years by goats sheep and then cattle can be maintained on the same pasture.

It is important to control lice on goats if they are to be profitable. Mr. Shults has just dipped his goats in wettable sulphur in cooperation with the county agent and invites those interested to inspect his goats for lice.

Shults is running 250 goats and 100 sheep on 725 acres of range land, 125 acres of which he is clearing off.

WPA School Project at Gorman Approved

SAN ANTONIO, June 24.—Approval of thirteen new WPA projects, designed to employ 782 workers recently released from completed projects, and anticipated expenditure of $84,737 in federal funds, was announced today by Robert J. Smith, deputy state administrator. Local agencies will spend $45,674 on the projects, Smith said.

Among new approvals were seven road projects, including repairs to sixteen miles of roadways and repair of 30 bridges. This road work will occupy 361 laborers and will be financed by $36,603 in WPA funds and $25,590 supplied by sponsors.

Included was a project for school building construction at Gorman; federal funds; $5,184; sponsor's funds, $4,622; workers, 52.

Only $264,902 Fire Loss For Texas In April

Cisco Fire Marshall O. Gustafson, is in recent receipt of a letter from Eugene Sanders, assistant state fire marshal stating that only $264,902 loss was reported to the Texas fire insurance department at Austin, Texas, for the month of April.

The letter also stated that this was a 40 per cent decrease from the loss of April 1936. For the first four months of this year as compared with the first four of 1936 the decrease in fire losses was 23 1/2 per cent.

One hundred twelve, or 33 per cent, of the fires reported for April were of unknown origin, with a loss of $135,289, or 51 per cent of the total April fire loss.

Two hundred and four, or 62 per cent of the 331 fires reported for April were dwelling fires, with a loss of $132,444.00, or 50 per cent of the total April fire loss.

"Too many dwelling fires occur in Texas and to reduce the total as to the number of fires and the amount, the home owners must be educated to the importance of 'home inspection.' Also a more rigid investigation of dwelling fires must be made in the future to determine the cause of each," said Sanders.

The report which Gustafson received was taken from one made by fire marshals all over the state. Cisco has a remarkable record with an unusually low fire loss, especially the last few years.

County Agent Cook Surveying for Tanks

After receiving instructions and suggestions from D. W. Porter, construction engineer, state department of agriculture, on planning dams for dirt tanks, County Agent Cook has announced that he can now assist any ranchers or farmers of Eastland county in selecting sites, running lines for prospective tanks, or checking completed or partially completed dirt tanks.

Last week the county agent ran tank lines for Ben A. Brown of Cisco, Cecil Shults of Rising Star and W. T. Duncan of Eastland. He also has requests on hand for surveys on several other tanks. Cook estimates that at least half the 100 ranchers who are participating in the range program will build surface dirt tanks as part of the program.

Grasshopper Poison May Be Available

Farmers in Eastland county whose crops are being attacked by grasshoppers should register their names with the county agent, Eastland, the Cisco chamber of commerce, or the Ranger chamber of commerce, giving their name, address, location of farm, and crops and acres affected as the county agent has announced that efforts are being made to secure an allotment of grasshopper poison from the U. S. government. It has been announced that those who have their names registered will be allotted the poison if any should become available.

T. G. Caudle, Cisco teacher of vocational agriculture, is in charge of registrations in the western part of the county, J. E. Meroney, secretary of Ranger chamber of commerce in the eastern part of the county, and any farmer who is nearer Eastland can register at the County Agents Office, Eastland.

Moran Will Ship 50 Carloads Of Wheat, Predicted

MORAN, June 24. (Sp) — Nineteen cars of wheat had been shipped from Moran up until Wednesday afternoon, with three other cars about ready to ship. These three cars will bring the total cars from Moran to 22, compared with 13 cars shipped last year.

All of the cars shipped this year have been large, containing approximately 1,500 bushels. These cars are all weighing between 80,000 and 90,000 pounds, except a few of No. 1 wheat.

Wheat this year is testing heavy, with much weighing 61 and 62 pounds to the bushel. The yield continues high, with the top yield per acre being 35 bushels, and a few patches of volunteer making 20 or a little below. The average will be around 25 bushels per acre.

C. B. Mauldin threshed some volunteer wheat this week that made 28 bushels to the acre, probably the best volunteer grain reported.

PRICE UP — The price of wheat has been fluctuating the past week, getting as low as 86c the first of the week. A gain in price was quoted Tuesday, and by Wednesday the price paid here for good wheat was 90c.

Speculation as to the number of cars to be loaded in Moran continues, with 50 cars as the average. It has been estimated that half of the standing grain has been combined, which means that there will be approximately 45 cars of combine wheat shipped. Threshers got started the first of the week, very little wheat from the threshers being put on the market thus far. We are informed that about one-third of the grain has been cut and shocked for the threshers. If this is true, the number of cars will approximate 60.

Rain Wednesday morning, although very light, stopped threshing probably for a day or two. With threshers getting under way and combines continuing to operate, the 1937 wheat and oat crop will soon be threshed.

No oats have been sold thus far, as farmers are storing them for feed.

Inoculated Peanuts Show Better Growth

Peanuts inoculated by Ben Weise of Cook community show 26 per cent more plant growth as compared with plants not inoculated in the same field and under the same conditions, according to a report to Elmo V. Cook, county agent. The same plants have 66 per cent more nuts than the uninoculated plants.

Although final yields of peanuts and hay at the thresher are what count and there may not be as great a difference at that time as is indicated by inspection of inoculated plants now, the county agent is urging all Eastland county farmers who inoculated to run thresher tests on inoculated fields as compared with uninoculated ones. Two hundred or more Eastland county farmers inoculated their peanut seed this year.

The county agent has pointed

Workmen Discover Many Indian Relics

STANTON, Neb., June 24. (AP) —Hundreds of Indian relics have been unearthed here in excavations 7 to 14 feet deep, leading to the belief an ancient buried village exists beneath this city. PWA workmen, digging ditches for a sewer extension, found a layer of dry white river sand under seven feet of clay, with hundreds of pieces of decorated pottery, ashes from fires, Indian needles and bones of animals imbedded in the lower part of the clay layer.

Two Community Fair Dates Are Announced

Community agricultural fairs will be held at Kokomo on Saturday, September 11th and at Shady Grove on Wednesday, September 15th, according to information received by the county agent and home demonstration agent. L. R. Higginbotham and Mrs. G. F. Bennett of Kokomo and Kent Word and Miss Dora Wende of Shady Grove are in charge of community Agricultural exhibits at the county fair their respective communities.

Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The art of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure.

When the kidneys fail to function as nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out.

Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance.

The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

Funeral Is Held for Doyle Gunn Sunday at 2:30

Funeral services for Doyle Gunn, about 40, who was killed Friday on his farm 1 1/2 miles southwest of Pueblo, were held at 2:30 Sunday afternoon at his home. Burial was at Dennis cemetery.

Mr. Gunn died in a Cisco hospital Friday night about 11 o'clock following the accident.

Members of his family said he left his home about 9 Friday morning and when he did not return for lunch the family became alarmed and began a search for him. They found him near his tank about 3 p. m. with a gash in his throat. He told his family that he sustained the cut when he stumbled on a wire fence. He was immediately rushed to Cisco for treatment where he died that night. Attendants said he did not lose consciousness until his death. The accident victim is survived by his wife and three children and three brothers and four sisters. He had spent practically all his life in the section around Pueblo and he and the rest of the Gunn family were well-known in the Moran-Pueblo territory.

His wife, the former Montie Graves, is a Cisco girl.

Ranger PO Vault Door Is Blown for Second Time

For the second time in two months burglars blew the door of the fireproof vault in the Ranger post office Friday night or Saturday morning, seeking access to the safe inside the vault which again balked their efforts to loot it.

A cursory survey of the damage failed to reveal any loss, the stamp drawers inside the vault not having been tampered with as formerly, officials said. However, no check was being made Saturday, pending arrival of a post office inspector.

Entrance was gained by picking the door lock and crawling through an iron grill to the room where the vault is located. The knob was knocked off and a quantity of "soup" poured into the opening for the blast. Meanwhile first work had been gun on the new federal building which will house the post office at Ranger. Excavation was started with prospect the structure would be completed next January.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Blessed is the people that know the joyful sound! They shall walk, O Lord, in the light of Thy countenance.—Ps. LXXXIX. 15.

The silent joy, that sinks so deep Of confidence and rest, Who but a Christian, through all life, That blessing may prolong.

Remember: The Christian life is like a path up a mountain, a continual ascent, and the ascent is ever marked by freshened power and joy, and the blessing is that we are called to ascend from height to height.—Anon.

Attend the Lone Star Luncheon

EMPLOYEES and officials of the Lone Star Gas system to the number of 1,500 or more are to be Cisco's guests in their annual picnic at Lake Cisco Saturday. Cisco was selected as the site for this outing not only because of its district advantages from the standpoint of recreational facilities, but because of the urgency of the invitations extended by the Cisco chamber of commerce and by other spokesmen for the Cisco hospitality. Of special interest on the day's program is the luncheon to be given at noon on the roof garden of the Laguna hotel honoring officials of the system. This luncheon offers the best medium of expressing the hospitality with which Cisco desires to greet these visitors who are prominent in the industrial and business picture of Texas. The chamber of commerce is eager that this sentiment be expressed in the most appropriate, perhaps the only appropriate manner, through the

U. of T. Library Adds Several Old Books to Its List

AUSTIN, June 24.—Augmenting the various rare book collections, a number of purchases of valuable items have been made possible for the university of Texas library during the last few months, according to Donald Coney, librarian. These additions have been effected largely through a grant from the general education board, which is a Rockefeller foundation. One of the most satisfactory of these acquisitions is a file of Leigh Hunt's weekly newspaper, "The Examiner," for the first 14 years of its publication, 1808-1821, it was stated, while another valuable addition is what the library authorities term a "superb run" of "Lloyd's Evening Post," dated from 1758 to 1775. Two notable additions were made to the Dryden collection, Mr. Coney said. These were "A Defence of the Papers Written by the Late King," published in 1686, which was purchased bound in a volume with other controversial tracts relating to the publication of these letters of Charles II, and "An Ode, on the Death of Mr. Henry Purcell," dated 1696. The latter item was presented to the library as a gift by Dr. R. H. Griffith, professor of English and a Dryden authority, and Tom M. Granfill of Dallas, university graduate of the class of 1934. "Three fine examples of emblem books, important additions to the collection illustrating the history of dictionaries, and a fortunate purchase of a series of tracts in the period of English history from 1879 to 1885 are also noteworthy," Mr. Coney said. "Three novels by Disraeli add to an already interesting shelf of volumes by this author." These additions to the university library offer significant opportunity for advanced research and study in various fields of literature, it was explained. For this material the university is largely indebted to the general education board, Mr. Coney declared. "It was in 1902 that the late John D. Rockefeller endowed the general education board, a foundation specially incorporated to promote education within the United States of America, without distinction of race, sex, or creed," Mr. Coney explained. "Subsequent additions by Mr. Rockefeller to the original gift have given the board a princely endowment and have made it a potent factor in American education quite independent of the Rockefeller foundation which directs its attention more especially to the research aspects of the advancement of knowledge. "At the outset of their activities, the board, probably following a cherished idea of Mr. Rockefeller, announced the intention of paying special attention to the educational needs of the south. Early in his philanthropic activities, Mr. Rockefeller applied the idea expressed in the popular adage, 'The Lord helps him who helps himself,' he saw little use in postponing the death of an organization which had the seeds of destruction within itself. This attitude also the board took over, and most of its grants have been made as contributions to schools or colleges initiating their own plans for self-improvement or expansion. "The vitality and health of proposals for assistance made to it have always been a dominant factor in the making or refusing of a grant of financial assistance. Rarely has a project initiated with that of a bank cashier to whom educational organizations in the United States could state their needs, having only to prove the worth of their proposals and their own ability to assist in the plan as 'credit' necessary for the 'bank' to give assistance. Several times in the past the board has helped the university of Texas—notably a grant to the department of zoology for the development of graduate instruction in 1928-29, and one in 1934-35 for the State curriculum revision project. "Late in October, 1935, the university placed before the board a proposal for assistance in strengthening certain outstanding sections in the library. Though basing the proposal on the general fact that the university has the largest and most important library in the south, that, consequently, the university was the logical center for the growth of research in the southern states, and that the normal annual general book funds allowed by the budget were insufficient to keep the special collections in a flourishing state, the university's request for financial aid was stated in a fairly definite plan for development. "The proposal consisted of a request for financial aid to the extent of $66,000, subdivided as follows: For bibliography and general reference books, $18,000; for Latin-American and Spanish history and literature, $28,000; for English language and literature, $10,000; for history and social science, $10,000. "The request was granted, with certain conditions to be agreed to by the university before acceptance. Half of the requested sum, that is $33,000, was set down as an outright gift, to be paid in quarterly installments over the five year period, with the provision that the university's normal book budget—$54,000 in 1935-36—should not in any way be diminished. The board made the further suggestion that at the end of the five year period the university, insofar as legislative conditions permitted should try to raise that normal book budget by an additional $13,333 annually, in order to maintain the library's standing among institutions of its own size and class. "The board, following the idea of insisting on self-aid, in addition to their grant set aside an additional credit of $33,000 for the university, provided it could be matched by extra-normal book funds specially raised by the university for that particular purpose. "The regents of the university duly accepted these conditions, and, to effect the wisest possible expenditure of these special funds, chairman and small committees of the faculty were selected for the four topical subdivisions. During the past year, these committees have studied the library's resources and have drawn up plans for spending their allotments. Already much important material has been acquired. "In bibliography, the funds are largely being used in the formation of a union catalog, by the purchase and filing of cards from other great libraries of the world which publish them. Many important additions in English, French and German have been made to the collection of general reference books, including Darlow and Moule's 'Catalogue of the British and Foreign Bible Society's Collection of Bibles.' "Newly acquired printed catalogs of other libraries include that of the Palmer Collection at Wellesley College of Scott's library at Abbotsford, printed books in the John Rylands library, the British museum's catalogues of Spanish books before 1601, of English books before 1640, and of parts of their catalog of additional manuscripts. "Individual bibliographies of Mark Twain, Dryden, Increase Mather, Burns, E. A. Robinson, Swift, Hazlitt, Samuel Richardson, Whittier, William Blake, and many others have been added. An important file of the 'North British Review' extending to 53 volumes was also acquired. Through this fund the university joined the Oxford bibliographical society and purchased its publications back to 1922. "The Latin-American and Spanish committee have selected many purchases, including the Austrian parliamentary debates from 1861-1934, and a fine collection of more than 5,000 Spanish plays. Especially important have been their additions to the collection of South American periodicals, including 'La Revista de Buenos Aires,' 1863-71, 'Nueva Revista de Buenos Aires,' 1881-85, 'Nosotros,' 'Revista Mensual,' 1907-25, 'La Abeja Argentina,' 1822-23, and many others. "The English committee have as a background for their acquisition the Wrenn, Stark, and Aiken collections, and the general richness of the library in this field. In periodicals noteworthy additions from this fund have been the 'Loyal Protestant and True Domestic Intelligencer,' 1631-53, a long file of 53 volumes of the 'London Chronicle,' probably the most important of the Eighteenth Century newspapers, the 'London Magazine,' 1820-24, containing the first appearances of Lamb's 'Elia' essays, and Leigh Hunt's 'Examiner' from its beginning in 1808 down to 1821. "Many volumes illustrating the history of dictionaries have been acquired, and to collections already of outstanding importance, such as those of works by Dryden and Shelley, many fine items have been added. To mention a few individual books of high merit, we may add Coryat's 'Crudities,' Fielding's 'Amelia,' and Gilbert White's 'Natural History of Selbourne'—all first editions of important books. Through this allotment also have been purchased many works on folk lore and the settling of the western United States. "The committee for selecting purchases in history and the social sciences have selected works

They are located in Crane, Ector, Andrews, Upton, Crockett and Pecos counties. The public sale will be the fourth of its kind to be held, the previous sales having been made by the sealed bid method. One of the newspapermen aboard had never before been in this part of the Union. As he stood on the rear platform of the observation car, observing the scenery, he saw, on the farther side of the vast ravine, a succession of curious-looking orifices in the face of the gaunt mountain. Distance diminished these apertures to minute dimension but it was evident, to his inexperienced eyes, that they were artificial and not natural. Ya, about them was no sign of human life. Seemingly they had been abandoned for a long time, as the piles of debris at their mouths were grown up with young bushes. The newspaper man turned to U. S. Senator Carter, of Montana, now deceased but then a power in his own state and in national politics. "Oh, Senator," asked the curious one, "would you mind telling me what those funny-looking openings in that cliff yonder are?" Carter cocked his eye in the direction indicated by the reporter, and his eye twinkled. "My son," he said, "those are what are known in the West as holes in the ground and in the East as permanent mining investments."

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE. I was looking at a sandstone nest-like depression on its surface, inclosed by circular ridges of different texture—all of it reminding one of the whirling formation of this rock in water. One might imagine that was settling fine sand and afterwards hardened. Means a small eddy was whirling in sand into this circular form that hardened into the surface of larger rock. But how could conditions prevail long enough to permit the hardening? Then I come a scientific skeptic. The scientist, especially the geologist, would explain many of the not most of the present phenomena of nature as the result of almost imperceptible, age-long processes that involve changes and finally permanent fixations like rocks and shells. But one asks as a shell or a leaf could remain bedded in the mud unaffected by its shape and texture by the process of decay until ages had hardened it into a fossil; or how thousands of generations of a certain species could remain under the same influences so long that it was finally become altered into a different species. Things must happen very slowly at other times. During the ages of the past we must have experienced cataclysms as well as evolutions.

Washington Daybook

Monopoly is discussed in last of a series of columns of "planned nation." By PRESTON GROVER WASHINGTON, June 24.—of the neat tricks the wage-bill could perform would help establish a monopoly in one industry or in several industries. Since the bill is intended to pit labor instead of injuring a wise administrator of the measure likely would attempt to get such an outcome—but the pressure would be there, both on owners and employees. For instance, take spinning. Thirty years ago there were comparatively few cotton mills in South Carolina or other southern states. New England did the country's spinning. But there was a supply of cheap labor in the south and cotton was grown by, so mills began opening there. Now suppose the present wage-hour bill had been law at the time the southern drift started. Doubtless the New England millers, fully supported by their employees, would have asked the minimum wage levels be established to retard, if not prevent, opening of new mills in the south. New England likely would argue that such a course was wise, a good case can be made, even permitting indiscriminate establishment of new competitive enterprises. Yet when an industry is protected from competition it becomes a monopoly—and the country has long been on record against operation of monopolies. Old Fight But regardless of whether a new wage-hour bill should become an instrument of further monopolistic practices, the country still faces the problem. It deals with it with little success in 50 years. The old-time Sherman and Clayton acts sought to break up monopoly. Some contend they merely drove it under ground, beyond the reach of regulation. NRA is a step in the opposite direction, inviting it to come into the open subject to a combination of regulation and public regulation. NRA bogged down for many reasons. Modified Monopoly There are persons both within and outside the government who predict that, in spite of such antagonists as Senator Borah, the future will see the operation of a system of modified monopolies rather than open competition. Growth in that direction, they predict, will necessitate increasing government intervention to prevent price fixing, excess production and the practice of curtailing production to maintain price levels all of which spell wider fluctuations in employment. But that is a long time view. It serves primarily to put a spotlight on the road ahead. Baptists Hold Exercises For Bible Students

One hundred thirty seven were enrolled at the close of the Daily Vacation Bible school which ended at the Baptist church Friday. This announcement was made by Rev. E. S. James at the commencement exercises held for the pupils Friday night at the First Baptist church. The attendance increased from slightly over 100 on the opening day to 137 at the end.

The program Friday night was divided into three parts. The first was the worship period which was carried off like the regular morning classes at the Bible school had been done. During this period Rev. James spoke to the large crowd that turned out to see the program.

The second division consisted of each department showing the audience what they had done in the classes during the two weeks the school lasted.

In the last part of the program those present were taken into the intermediate department where they were shown the notebooks, sewing, woodwork, and other things that had been built by the pupils during the course of the school.

The services Friday evening climaxed two weeks of classes. The school was divided into three parts, beginners, primary, and intermediate departments. The attendance was well over 100.

Callahan Reaps One of Best Wheat Crops

BAIRD, June 24 (Sp)—Callahan county farmers are busy harvesting one of the best grain crops made in the county in a number of years.

Cutting and combining the grain crop will be completed this weekend and thrashing crews will be in the field next week. Some ten or twelve thrashing crews being ready to begin work.

B. L. Boydston, local grain dealer says the grain is of good grade, most all wheat testing around 60 pounds to the bushel. Mr. Boydston, who is buying grain at Baird, Clyde, Cross Plains, Putnam and Lawn estimates that 150 car loads of grain will be shipped from Callahan county.

Mr. Boydston has shipped 7 car loads of wheat from Baird, 5 car loads from Cross Plains and 9 car loads from Lawn, paying 86 to 90 cents per bushel. Very little oats and barley is being sold.

Good rains the past week have been of great benefit to feed and cotton crops, garden and grass and did not materially damage the grain. Wheat has averaged 15 to 20 bushels per acre.

HARVESTS FINE CROP

BAIRD, June 24. (Sp)—Walter Finch who divides his time between his farm at Admiral and his home in California, has just finished harvesting one of the finest wheat crops made in Callahan county, gathering three thousand bushels from 194 acres.

Mr. Finch, a native Callahanian is a graduate of A and M college, taught school and later went to California where he spends most of the year, coming back to the farm down in the Spring Gap country each fall to plant his grain crop.

Mr. Finch has had minor parts in several pictures, one "Seventh Heaven," a World War picture, which was shown at the Plaza theatre some two weeks ago.

More than 32,000 distinctive cattle brands have been registered with the California state department of agriculture.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

SYNOPSIS: A mysterious shot kills Jude Blinshop, my old flame, at the start of our stormy weekend at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael's aunts. After a series of strange attacks, we find the body of Michael's mad father below the bluff. Then stout, Victorian Aunt Martha is shot in the shoulder and nearly finished with sleeping powders. Evidence piles up against Higgins, the old butler, and I reluctantly look him in his room. The Skipper, Mike's tall, tweedy younger aunt, disappears; we find her six hours later, bound in a chest in the dusty old loft.

Chapter 47 A Shot in Higgins' Room

"Get William," I wheezed. "Yell for him!"
Michael yelled, his voice ringing wildly through that empty loft. An answering roar came immediately from below, and the next instant William's head appeared through the trap.
"Get down a few rungs!" I wanted. "I'll—hand—her—down."
William was quick and efficient. Slowly we lowered our limp bundle into his waiting arms. I followed him with Michael clattering behind me. I could hear M. Farrington's excited voice in William's room, interrupted by Gay's soothing one. I saw Annie, white and trembling, in Cook's doorway. But William was halfway down the corridor. I caught up with him as he strode into my room and laid his burden on my bed. His large hand went immediately to the Skipper's heart and stayed there for at least 10 seconds.

"Get a mirror," he said at length in a hushed voice.
I leapt to obey him. Without a word he held the thing over the Skipper's nose and mouth. I was obliged to hold on to Michael to prevent interference. And then William turned the mirror up. It was covered with a fine mist.

His voice barked at us, "Open the windows! Quick!"

I did—and a great many other things in the next half hour, until I became violently ill myself—and had to be taken out.

William was just lowering the Skipper's head to the pillow as I reentered the room shakily a long time later. The glass he had handed Gay was empty, but the patient's face was still ghastly, her eyes closed, and her breathing now painfully audible from across the room. I caught sight of Michael. Beads of perspiration were standing out on his forehead. His hands were clenched, his eyes shut.

I went out into the hall, groping for a cigarette and trying to deafen my ears to the sounds from the other room. I had had enough. Even the thought of the approaching hour of reckoning failed to move me. The Skipper would tell her story. The police would come. And for my part at that moment, I didn't care what she might tell them or what they might do about it. I was through. Or so I thought.

It must have been a good 10 minutes before I realized that Michael had joined me.

"Got a cigarette?" he said.
The gloomy vigil had just begun. After a long time I became conscious of the scene outside the window. The trees along the drive were standing out in sharp relief. I could even see the outline of the drive itself in the misty gray light. My watch said five minutes of six. We were within a few hours of the end.

"It's getting light, Mike," I said pointlessly.

A Hollow Feeling

Michael, staring fixedly out of the window, didn't stir. I put an impulsive hand on his shoulder, half expecting it to be shaken off. It wasn't. And so we stood there. A hollow feeling in my middle and a lightness in my head spelled breakfast, but I had a feeling that once confronted with food I would not be able to eat it. Suddenly I wanted to get back into that sick-room to find out—whatever there was to find out. But I didn't like to propose that to Michael and I didn't like to leave him alone.

A hand falling on my arm made me jump. Gay was standing there. "She's going to be all right. She's asleep finally."

Michael spun around. "Are you sure? It may be hours before we can get a doctor."

"Of course I'm sure. Her breathing is all right now and her pulse is good. I took it myself. Mickie—"

Her voice was doing things that could mean only a sentimental interlude. I interrupted peevishly.

"Did she say anything?"

Gay glanced at me briefly. "She said she was sorry to be such a damned nuisance. If anyone should happen to ask me, I'd say we got out of this pretty darned lucky."

I tiptoed into the Skipper's room. She did look better. There was a slight tinge of color in her face. But God! How haggard she was! Her cheek bones stood out sharply; her eyes were great black hollows; and her hair in the dim light of the bed lamp showed almost entirely iron-gray. And only a few months before—it was unthinkable!

I found myself reverting to one all-important question. Jude's family. Who was to tell them? It would be sheer cruelty to leave the job to any one of the three Farringtons. Gay had never met the Blinshops. And that left me.

Right then and there I began to lay plans. We would say absolutely nothing to the natives who arrived from the village. I would go back with them and straight to George Foster, the coroner. I knew Foster, a fat old boy who loved above all things to troll for bass. I would tell him the whole story and leave it up to him. He had spent a lifetime in such messes, and he had been a lifetime friend of the Farringtons. If anyone knew what to do, he would.

Then I would either hire a car in the village or borrow Foster's, and head straight for Blinshop—Screaming through that silent house came the unmistakable sound of a pistol shot, fired at no great distance from where I sat.

He's Done It!

My eyes darted to the Skipper's face. She hadn't stirred. Reaching over, I found her pulse to be strong and steady. Without hesitating I dashed into the hall in the direction from which the sound had come—the other side of the house, near my room. It must be in the servants' quarters. As I crashed through the swinging door I saw the door of Higgins' room standing open, and two more steps brought me within range of all I wanted to see.

Higgins lay sprawled grotesquely over the bed. In one hand was the much discussed revolver. A small, blue hole showed in one of his temples. There was a great deal of blood on the coverlet. The house was ringing with pounding feet.

"He's done it!" shouted William. "He's done himself in!"

I tried to answer, but I couldn't get out a single word. So it was Higgins after all. Higgins, the dignified, pompous old codger, to die like this! There were screams in the hall, screams and babbling voices. M. Farrington was resisting Michael's attempts to turn her away from the ghastly sight, and Gay on the other side of the old lady was doing her best to help. Beyond them in the hall, Annie was standing in her nightdress, wide-eyed and shaking. I took Gay's arm roughly.

"Go back to the Skipper," I said. "Don't leave her for any reason." Gay seemed to be the only person there with even a mid trace of sanity. She went without a word.

"Please, Aunt Martha!" Michael was saying. "Come away. Please"

M. Farrington's voice went zooming up the scale wildly. "I will look! I must! I don't believe it! He was here before I was born! He—"

I tried my hand. "Aunt Martha," I said, shaking her none too gently. "Mike can't stand any more of this. He's all in. Take him out of here."

For an instant it was touch and go, whether the ruse would work or whether she would go off in hysterics. I could see them rising in her spasmodically working throat. And then, "Of course. Of course"

The look of relief on Michael's face was enough for me. I turned back into the room, hearing William's voice in the distance ordering Annie to go back and watch Cook. Once more William and I faced each other over the body.

"I suppose," I said through stiff lips, "we could do something to stop this bleeding. It's—messy."

William's voice wasn't steady. "I wouldn't touch nothing, sir. The police will want to see it just like it is."

"It seems beastly to—leave it—alone like this."

"Well, wait a minute, sir."

Before I could stop him, William was out of the room. It was all I could do to keep from shouting after him. I turned away from the sickening sight and leaned heavily upon the dresser. Something bulky under the scarf attracted my attention and I lifted the thing automatically. Lying face upward on the dark oak surface were the two letters that had so mysteriously disappeared from William's room. I was still glaring at the things when William reappeared with a dark blanket which he drew carefully over the bed.

"Look here, William."

There was more curiosity than surprise on his face as he took the things. "So that's it. He wasn't a bad sort until something got under his skin—whatever it was."

Funeral Rites For P. P. Shepard Held Wednesday

"Surely, said Agag, the bitterness of death is past."
This statement in resignation to death by the conquered king of the Amaleks, reported in the 15th chapter of I Samuel, was the text for a reassuring funeral oration by the Rev. E. S. James at the First Baptist church Wednesday morning where services were held for P. P. Shepard, veteran utilities official, who died Tuesday. The minister paid a moving tribute to the staunch character of Mr. Shepard as a citizen, a Christian gentleman and a business man, and spoke feelingly of frequent association with him in his home during the months of his illness.

The funeral sermon was preceded by reading of passages from the 14th chapter of St. John and the fifth chapter of I. Corinthians. There were two songs by a special choir, and a prayer by the minister.

Following the simple service, the casket, resting against an altar burdened with floral offerings, was opened while those who wished passed by it for a final glimpse of the body, which was then removed to a waiting hearse to be carried overland to San Antonio for burial in Confederate cemetery. Green Funeral home was in charge of arrangements.

Death Sudden
Mr. Shepard died suddenly about 9:30 Tuesday morning, presumably from an apoplectic attack sustained shortly after he had finished breakfast. It was his second attack, the first occurring more than eight months ago and causing his confinement to his home almost constantly since.

Born November 19, 1874, at Byars Station, Ohio, Mr. Shepard, after a brief period of teaching school, was associated with public utility services since young manhood, as an operator and building of street transportation systems and later as a power and light official. He was one of the original employees of the West Texas Utilities company, going with the parent company of that great West Texas system, the American Public Service company, as manager of the Baird unit of that company, June 24, 1918. He was then transferred to Stamford as superintendent of the Stamford district, spent a year as superintendent of the Hamlin district, returned to Stamford as superintendent and in 1928 came to Cisco as Cisco district superintendent succeeding P. W. Campbell.

To Texas In 1898
He came to Texas in 1898, establishing himself at San Antonio with the street railway system of that city. From that time until he joined the West Texas Utilities parent company, he was interested in traction enterprises in Texas, Oklahoma and Indiana. It was at LaPorte, Ind., that he spent two or three years in the construction of such a system as an interlude to his Texas experiences.

He was first married to Miss Daisy Larrimore in Ohio in 1894. She died in 1903. One child, Mrs. F. N. Rushing of Groveton, Texas, survives of this marriage. Mrs. Rushing has two daughters, only grandchildren of Mr. Shepard. In 1905 Mr. Shepard married Miss Janie Ripley, who survives him. They have one son, Charles, who is married and makes his home in Cisco.

Pall bearers for the services Wednesday were:
Active: Dick Giles, Cisco; O. J. Russell, Cisco; Arthur Mitchell, Cross Plains; E. L. Jackson, Cisco; L. F. Foster, Albany, and Jess Proctor, Cisco.

Honorary: H. L. Dyer, Cisco; Doc Cabaness, Cisco; W. H. LaRoque, Cisco; H. Schwartz, Baird; George Spann, Abilene; C. F. Elliott, Baird; A. D. Everett, Throckmorton; L. L. Walker, Moran; O. L. Dixon, Putnam; E. L. Gaines, Rising Star; A. M. Reynolds, Cisco; J. E. Spencer, Cisco; J. C. McAfee, Cisco; B. A. Butler, Cisco; George Clark, Breckenridge; F. W. Schroeder, Abilene; Price Campbell, Abilene; Dan A. Gallagher, Abilene; R. M. Wolfe, Abilene.

The local offices of the West Texas Utilities company were closed all day Wednesday.

8,124 Scholastics In Eastland County

EASTLAND, June 24. (Sp.)—The recently completed 1937-38 school census for Eastland county shows a total of 8,124 children of attendance age, it was disclosed Saturday from the office of Superintendent C. S. Eldridge.

The independent school district rolls showed a total of 6,018 and the common school districts 2,196.

The census is what the scholastic apportionment is based upon. A break-down for each school district had not been compiled.

Cut in Number of WPA Employees in County Protested

EASTLAND, June 24. (Sp.)—Representatives of three city governments and members of commissioner's court viewed with alarm Monday in session at Eastland the reduction of county Works Progress administration employees from approximately 1,200 to 960 and discussed possible ways for their reemployment.

The meeting, held in commissioner's court, was called after receipt by the commissioners of a letter from George L. Dickey, Fort Worth, district 7 WPA director, who advised of the 20 per cent reduction of WPA workers in this and other counties.

Plans of the group developed at the session call for a trip by city and county citizens to San Antonio at the state WPA office for a plea that the reduction be stopped and that sponsors' total on project be reduced. On the trip also the group will visit the state highway department to ask that Eastland county be given projects to furnish employment for discharged employees.

Burden To County
That the burden is expected to go to the county was indicated in a paragraph of Dickey's letter: "We are giving you this information (on the reduction of employees) in order that you may know the conditions and in the hope that some provision may be made for taking care of these unfortunate people."

Supervisors of projects have been instructed to discharge 5 per cent of the workers on jobs each week for four weeks with the reduction to be completed July 15. Being cut off, it was brought out at the meeting, are old and inefficient workers and those of a type who will experience difficulty in finding work in other channels.

Also discussed at the meeting was the impossibility of cities and counties, with finances low, sponsoring projects when the WPA requires 30 per cent of the total furnished by them. The sponsor total formerly was 20 per cent. It has been reported the sponsor percentage will be increased to 40 per cent of the total cost.

A delegation to be organized through the county and cities is expected to make the trip to Austin and San Antonio this week.

Those attending included members of the commissioner's court; J. L. Wren, Fred Sickman, Frank Roberson, Colquitt Williams, Rising Star, T. H. Key, T. L. Acree, Charles Gentry, Bill Hooper, Joe Gibson, Desdemona; Hall Walker, J. J. Kelly and Calvin Brown, Ranger.

Farley Writes of Hospitality Given Him During Trip

Truly the mind of the practical politician operates with uncanny accuracy as to names of persons contacted in their political pilgrimages. During his brief stops in Eastland county a representative of the Cisco Press, in company with others, met the postmaster general at Eastland, as did others at Cisco and Ranger, but the contact was a brief handshaking, and introduction, that required about 15 seconds. Monday the Daily Press was in receipt of an acknowledgement of the counties extended him, giving names and initials accurately. In his letter Postmaster General Farley says:

"I was glad to meet you in Eastland on the occasion of my recent trip through your state. You, and everyone, were more than kind and I shall always be grateful for the cordial welcome and gracious hospitality which were extended to me.

"I also want to thank you for the generous manner in which you covered my activities during my brief stay.

"Wishing you every success, I am
Sincerely yours,
"JAMES A. FARLEY,
"Postmaster General."

Prospects For Park CCC Camp Here Brighter

Prospects that Cisco would secure a CCC camp for the development of its beautiful 500-acre state site this fall were brightened by the report of a junior chamber of commerce committee which interviewed State Park Board Chairman Wendell Mayes at Brownwood Friday afternoon.

Mr. Mayes told the committee the board is much interested in the development of the Cisco tract, because of its scenic and recreational advantages, its accessibility to main routes of interstate and intrastate travel, and its revenue possibilities. He assured the committee that he would recommend that the site be allotted a CCC camp if such a camp is available at the October 1 allocation period and if the national parks service recommends development of the site. He agreed to write the national parks service director in this area requesting an immediate survey of the Cisco site to determine the federal attitude toward it.

In view of assurances received from federal representatives earlier, local "Jaycees" were confident that national parks service approval would be forthcoming. The most serious possible obstacle lies in the possibility that the number of CCC units will be reduced at the reallocation period so that no camp will be available for local development.

Contact is being established with Rep. Clyde L. Garrett at Washington, urging his efforts in behalf of the Cisco enterprise.

Interviewing Mr. Mayes Friday were Jaycee President Edward Lee, Dr. Hubert Seale, O. L. Stamey, H. A. Bible and B. A. Butler.

Over 8,000 Acres of Terracing In Eastland County

Eighty thousand one hundred eighty-seven acres of field and pasture land have been surveyed for terracing and other forms of soil and water conservation in Eastland County by workers from the county agents' office since October 1, 1936, according to figures just released by Elmo V. Cook, county agent.

Terrace lines were run on 7887 acres of field land and pasture ridge and contour lines were run on 300 acres of pasture land.

In addition, four pasture demonstration plots were completed, totaling 28 acres and distributed at cost for use in sub-irrigating home gardens. The pasture demonstration plots are as follows:

On the George P. Fee ranch, 1 mile North of Cisco on the Breckenridge highway, eight acres were cleared of timber, fenced for modified grazing, ditched to keep off hillside water, terrace ridged, and contour furrowed. A sign was placed calling attention to the demonstration.

On Dr. M. L. Stubblefield's place, 4 miles north-west of Gorman on the Carbon highway nine acres were cleared, ditched to keep off hillside water, terraced with wide terraces, terraced with narrow pasture ridges and contour furrowed. A tank was drained and the terraces were sodded with buffalo grass. A sign has been placed calling attention to the demonstration.

On Dr. W. S. Carter's place, 1 mile north of Rising Star on the Cisco highway, 6 acres were cleared of timber, contour furrowed, and re-fenced for deferred grazing. A sign has been placed calling attention to the demonstration.

A 5-acre plot on Dr. R. H. Hodges ranch 2 miles north of Olden, has been cleared and is awaiting suitable weather for contour furrowing.

All soil and water conservation work done by the county agent has been in cooperation with the National Youth administration under the supervision of W. F. Shaffer, district 13 NYA supervisor and County Supervisor D. L. Childress, T. E. Castleberry, and R. R. Bradshaw, The Texas A. and M. College extension service supplied funds for part of the supervision.
