"Flooded With Workers," Say Steel Officials

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

Without a doubt, the pastor of the First Methodist church in Cisco has a practical and objective faith in the keepings of Providence. Otherwise he should never have written the card that now lies upon my desk and which, by the grace of a power far higher than my feeble intelligence, I have at length been able to interpret—decipher, rather. The information which the scribbled screech attempts to convey is that there will be services at the First Methodist church Sunday. These will be in the nature of a special laymen's program, addressed by Bert McGlamery, of Eastland, district lay leader, and presided over by Steve Nance, local lay leader.

The pastor, Joe Patterson, was attending a pastor's school at Southern Methodist university, which is the reason for having to write. Ordinarily he buttonholes us over the telephone with a detailed description of every sermon or program he wants to publicize. Thus we go to church as often down here in the Cisco Daily Press building as does Lee Owen or William Reagan.

But we like it. Church news constitutes one of the most important components of a newspaper and when ministers and others charged with this work neglect to turn in this news it puts us at disadvantage and robs many readers of the news which they want and which we are obliged to give. The more the merrier.

Out at Lake Cisco week-end the Fourth of July is going to be celebrated in the good old-fashioned way with a Ferris wheel, a merry-go-round, hurdy-gurdy and everything, even including pink lemonade.

The Valley Shows, with rides for grown-ups and kids, and 14 other concessions, will be on the ground from July 1 to 5, inclusive. These amusement devices will round out the appeal that Lake Cisco has for July Fourth crowds. The big pools, the parks, the skating rink and other attractions will complete the cycle of amusement and recreation opportunity. Those who like crowds and activity and carnival tunes will find them nowhere in this country better than at home this year.

Instructor's Death Is Termed 'Accident'

SAN FRANCISCO, June 26. (AP)—The strange death of Frank Reeder, 51, WPA instructor, was termed an "accident" by police and the coroner's office today. Reeder was found impaled on an iron bed post in his apartment last night. Before dying he murmured "tortured" and "held for ransom."

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Caudle are spending the week-end in Wichita Falls.

2 COMPANIES' MILLS ACTIVE ON SATURDAY

Plants Reopen Friday Night with Guardsmen's Protection

YOUNGSTOWN, June 26 (AP)—Claims that their plants were "flooded with workers," were made today by officials of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company and the Republic Steel corporation. The mills, closed for a month in the strike called by the steel workers organizing committee, were active.

National guardsmen and city police guarded workers in and out of the plants, reopened last night. The Cambria workers of Bethlehem at Johnstown resumed operations. There was no interference from pickets. SWOC, in advertisements today declared that the first 48 hours (of the return movement) strikers were holding to a man.

BELIEVES STRIKE WILL BE WON

PITTSBURGH, June 26 (AP)—Philip Murray, chairman of the steel workers organizing committee, said today: "I have every reason to believe the strike in four of the nation's big independent steel mills will be won."

Better Dressers Victorious Over Prune Peddlers

For the second consecutive time the high shooting Better Dressers—Nick Miller's business men's team—won a hard fought and well earned victory over the Prune Peddlers from Norvel and Miller's store Friday night 21-18.

The game was a real battle with many highlights. The losers scored 9 of their 18 markers in the fifth round. Another was Hal Dyer's spectacular performance. He made five hits at five trips to the plate.

LaRoque made four out of four for the losers. The contest opened with Norvell and Miller scoring one lone tally. Nick Miller came in with his team in his half of the first and scored four runs. The Prune Peddlers retaliated with two more and in their half of the second the Haberdashers made five more runs to lead 9 to 3. The Prune Peddlers were held scoreless in the third by the tight Nick Miller defense which allowed only 18 runs during the entire game. The Norvell and Miller defense which gave up only 21 runs during the game held the Better Dressers to one marker in the third.

Playing hard the Prune Peddlers pushed across a run in the fourth and

Composer of "Sweet Adeline" Gives His Admiration for Rose's Fiesta

The composer of "Sweet Adeline," grown portly and fatherish in the 30 years since the provocative tune was written, looked over his bi-focals at the Frontier Fiesta fairground that Billy Rose was exhibiting in rehearsal to one thousand or more newspapermen Friday night at Ft. Worth, and assured us positively that neither New York nor London nor any other great amusement center could produce anything like it. Only a short time before, Harry Armstrong and seven-brother

MADRID FALL IS NEAR, SAYS DUCE'S PAPER

Editorial States Entire Rebel Forces Will Be Thrown on City

ROME, June 26 (AP)—The promise that Madrid would fall soon, thereby ending the European crisis, was published editorially in Premier Mussolini's newspaper, Il Popolo D' Italia today. Diplomatic sources attributed the authorship to Mussolini himself.

The article said Madrid would fall as soon as Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco finished cleaning out the Basque provinces along the northern frontier. When the drive is complete, the editorial said, Franco will throw his entire forces against Madrid.

Meanwhile government officials said that Italy and Germany will not welcome action of France and Britain to fill the gap in the naval patrol off Spain created by withdrawal of Italo-German warships from the non-intervention committee blockade.

3 Cisco Students on Tarleton Honor List

STEPHENVILLE, June 26—Among scholastic honors for John Tarleton college students by Acting Registrar Morton P. Brooks this week, three went to students from Cisco.

Harlan Dunn was named to the second semester honor roll because he earned at least 30 grade points during the period. Dena Carroll and Louise Statham received places on the third preliminary honor roll of the second semester because neither of them made a grade below 80.

Second Batch of Democrats Go to Political 'Picnic'

ANNAPOLIS, Maryland, June 26 (AP)—The second batch of the hundred democratic congressmen went to Jefferson Island, Chesapeake Bay, today for an "old-fashioned political picnic" with President Roosevelt.

That description by guests returning from the first day's outing yesterday removed much of the political significance of the three-day affair.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas arrived early at the naval dock with a group of senators, including Connally of Texas. The latter refused to talk seriously, insisting he was "just going on a delightful trip."

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Surlis and children have returned to their home in Houston after a visit with relatives here.

To Vernon Pastorate

Rev. E. S. James who will preach his farewell sermon today at the First Baptist church. He has been pastor of that church for the past seven years pastorate of which he resigned to accept a call to Vernon. He will assume his duties of pastor of the First Baptist church of that city soon.

E. S. JAMES TO BID FAREWELL

Preaches Last Sermon Here Today

The First Baptist church congregation will hear Rev. E. S. James, one of Cisco's best loved and leading pastors for the past seven years, preach his farewell sermon tonight.

The Rev. James' departure will be a blow to the large number of members and friends. He has a fine record for his almost seven years as pastor of Cisco First Baptist. When he came to Cisco July 24, 1937 the First Baptist church had a membership of about 600. Today it has grown to a membership of approximately 950 with 830 of the members on the residence roll.

The church, under his careful supervision, has raised $65,000, paid $7,000 to missions, and the debt of the church has been materially reduced.

James came here from Liberal, Kansas. This was his third pastorate.

Besides being an outstanding pastor, the Rev. James is a great thinker. He is noted for his unusually inspirational sermons.

One instance of his excellent speaking and thinking ability came at the commencement address which he was honored to deliver

Man Believed to Be Murderer Flees Hotel

CLEVELAND, June 26 (AP)—A man who Detective Lieutenant Stephen Tozer said was "definitely" was Robert Irwin, fled from his room, leaving a slender trail today for authorities seeking him for New York's famous Gedeon murders.

A kitchen girl, a clerk, and several other employes of a leading hotel here identified a bar boy as the sculptor-divinity student charged with the slaying last March 28 of Vernice Gedeon, her mother, and two men roomers in their home.

Group Working Hard on Details of Encampment

Annual Presbyterian Summer Camp to Open Monday Evening at Meal Time; At Least 100 Are Expected to Attend

Director M. H. Applewhite and his group of workmen have been laboring diligently the past several days in an effort to get every detail in readiness for the annual Fort Worth Presbytery encampment held at Lake Cisco.

Saturday the mess hall was ready for the first meal—to be served Monday about 6 p. m.—with the exception of completing the work of arranging the kitchen, so that meals for the 100 or more expected for the camp can be prepared.

Carpenters were working fast Saturday afternoon on the girls' dormitory with much to do before Monday night. It will accommodate about 40 girls when completed. The boys dorm is complete and ready for the 50 or 60 boys to sleep in it during the encampment.

Mrs. G. A. Nelson, Fort Worth, dietitian, and her staff arrived Saturday morning and began arranging the mess hall for the meals. Mrs. Stella Hovey, director of religious education for the Fort Worth presbytery, arrived Friday night and will be a guest of Mrs. C. H. Fee until opening time arrives.

About 15 members of the Cisco First Presbyterian church are expected to attend the first session—the Pioneer encampment for boys and girls from 12 to 14 years of age. It will open Monday evening with the serving of supper and will continue through breakfast Saturday morning.

The courses to be offered at the first period of camp are: "Bible, The Guide Book Shows the Way"; "Pioneers on Kingdom Trails"; "Singing Along the Trail"; "Trails of My Own Choosing"; and "The End of Day."

This is the first year that a separate camp for seniors will be offered. It will begin July 13 and will continue through July 17. Officials believe that in this way they can better meet the needs of both ages.

The first period campers will arrive all during the day Monday with practically all who are to attend getting there by meal time that evening.

The Pioneers will be divided into Indian tribes, each led by an older person for the purpose of carrying out their activities.

LARGE BASKET SUPPER HELD IN LAKE PARK

Welcome Address Is Delivered by J. E. Spencer

The annual Lone Star employees picnic, held each year at Lake Cisco, was given Saturday with a full day of events. Over 1,000 were in Cisco and at the lake for the busy day which the large group enjoyed.

Probably the highlight of the entire day was the basket supper given at the Lake Cisco park, beginning about 7:30 last night. Preceding the lunch the formal ceremonies with Hal Hunter of Ranger presiding were held. Hunter introduced J. E. Spencer, secretary of the Cisco chamber of commerce, who delivered the welcome address.

"We are glad to have you with us," he said. He then praised the system for its fine work in developing the resources of the state. He also complimented the way in which the employees were treated and the way the company worked. He concluded by extending an invitation for the group to hold their picnic here next year—to return and enjoy all of Lake Cisco's facilities.

Gives Response

J. R. Jarvis, superintendent of the Lone Star Gasoline company's plants, gave the response. "We are happy to be here," he said. He thanked the Cisco chamber of commerce, the lake and the town for their hospitality.

W. T. Walton, superintendent of the Ranger public schools and president of Ranger Junior college, delivered the invocation and the crowd proceeded to eat the basket supper.

Simultaneously the band began

Trying to Save the President

GEN. HUGH JOHNSON, one-time dictator of the NRA and handy man for Roosevelt, has developed a remarkable proficiency for discovering the mark of the beast among the legislation advanced under the banners of the New Deal. The beast, in Gen. Johnson's estimation, is the presence of a subterranean ring of something like Marxist tendencies whose members have captured the confidence of the president and are progressively betraying this confidence in the production of legislation aimed at a gradual and complete revolution in this country.

THE truth of the matter seems to be that Gen. Johnson has lost all faith in the methods of the new deal, methods with which he himself has had unsuccessful experience, and is setting out with admirable boldness

ELEVENTH APPEALS COURT PROCEEDINGS

EASTLAND, June 26--The following proceedings were had in the court of civil appeals, eleventh supreme judicial district as announced Friday, June 25:

Affirmed: Mrs. Mattie A. Melvin vs. Rex C. Outlaw, et al. Eastland. Joe Lee Ferguson, et al. vs. H. C. Hartsfield, Haskell. Texas Coca-Cola Bottling Co. vs. Wimberley, Taylor.

upon an attempt to save the president from it. Perhaps he thinks that by holding up Mr. Roosevelt as a champion of human rights betrayed he can arouse the public against these deceivers and induce the president to adopt policies more in line with what the General is certain the national mind increasingly thinks ought to be adopted. In that effort the General is undertaking what we are inclined to believe persons of more powerful political influence and more respected advice endeavored to do without success. And as for the admirable effort which he is making to convince himself that Mr. Roosevelt is not responsible for what his administration is doing but is the victim of a stupendous, organized deception, Gen. Johnson is lodging a grave charge of imbecility not only against President Roosevelt but against every congressman, senator, jurist and administrative officer in Washington.

Menace Multiplied

BECAUSE of the fact that July 4th falls on Sunday this year, the ratio of accident probability is magnified. For most people who observe the Fourth with a holiday this means a two-day, instead of one-day, outing, and for many of them a three-day vacation. Highways and pleasure resorts are crowded, and the traditionally dangerous season has its accident potentiality multiplied. Every year the casualty list of the Glorious Fourth is a featured news story on the front pages of the papers following the holiday.

THE makers of fireworks and public-spirited citizens have through means of a constant and earnest campaign put an effective curb upon the toll of fireworks accidents. There are still too many tragedies from this cause. But the results accomplished in this cause have produced an encouraging demonstration of the effectiveness of proper education and appeal to public common sense.

THE same sort of campaign can and should be employed with respect to the more deadly peril of the highway. Upon the consciousness of every person who plans an outing over the week-end of the Fourth, should be impressed the need for caution, and a determination to so conduct himself that no accident shall occur to himself or his own or to any other person through that person's carelessness or lack of regard for the practical rules of commonsense and safe conduct. It is very essential that this attitude become general if any effective curb to the horribly increasing toll of life and limb is realized, and it is particularly important that it be adopted and its counsel heeded during such a period of general and happy release from routine as the Fourth of July represents.

World's Cotton Million Bales in 1936-1937

CIN, June 26.—According to estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture, cotton production during the year 1936-1937 was 80,400,000 bales of 478 pounds net it was pointed out by B. Cox, director of the bureau of business research at the University of Texas and international agricultural economist and unofficial reports a substantial increase in world's acreage planted to this year," he said. "World production of synthetics during the past year was equivalent of over 500,000 bales of cotton, and a considerable amount of this is displacing cotton in Germany and some European countries. Prior to 1936 the average annual production in the world's consumption of cotton for a period of 25 years was about 250,000 bales. In 1936 and other equally important facts which confirm the implication, does it not seem to do so should make a thorough analysis of the world situation and trends as they apply to it? Does not consideration for the welfare of the two million cotton growers deserve some consideration? Shall we wait until another emergency is upon us before we make a serious effort to get world data upon which to build a policy?

"Until some definite policy is adopted for restoring lost foreign markets, the wise thing for the south, and especially the southwest, to do is proceed to revalue their resources to rebuild their agriculture in view of domestic markets.

"In spite of the unprecedented high consumption of all cotton in the world this year of over 30,000,000 bales it is possible that world carry-over of all cotton may be slightly increased due to an all-time high world record production. World carry-over of American cotton bids fair to be reduced by about 1,000,000 bales, but in spite of this the buying power price of American cotton is now less than it was at this time last year due to a strong rise in the price of other things. Last year at this time the actual price of New Orleans spots was 11.89 cents and the relative buying power was 15.17 cents. This year the price of New Orleans spots is 12.26 cents but the buying power is only 14.03 cents.

"Total supplies of cotton in the United States, June 1, were 5,959,000 bales, compared with 6,978,000 last year, 8,568,000 two years ago and an all-time high of 10,905,000, June 1, 1933. It is interesting to note that the buying power price of cotton is now less than it was in June, 1933, (14.72 cents) the date of the all-time high June supply of American cotton.

"Reductions in the supplies of cotton in the United States and of American cotton in European ports and afloat to Europe from June 1 last year to June this year amounts to 1,037,000 bales.

"During the past seven years a change of 100,000 bales in these items of supply has caused an average change in the index price of cotton of 19.68 points. If that same ratio should hold good now the index price should be 17.14 cents and the unadjusted price of middling 7-8-inch New Orleans spots should be 14.98 cents. When calculated on the basis of average percentage changes the price is 15.30 cents.

"The spinners ratio margin increased during May to 204 from 194 in April. During May, 1936, the index averaged 163. The pence margin reached another all-time high 7.46d compared with 7.11d during April and 4.16d for May last year."

May Postal Receipts For Texas Lower

AUSTIN, June 26.—Postal receipts in Texas during May were slightly below those of the preceding month but substantially greater than during May, 1936, according to the bureau of business research of the university of Texas.

Reports from 35 representative Texas cities show total May receipts of $1,206,518, a decline of 3.4 per cent from the preceding month but an increase of 10 per cent over the corresponding month last year, the report said. Cities in which postal receipts in May were greater than in both comparable months were: Amarillo, Corpus Christi, Fort Worth, Galveston, Jacksonville, Palestine and Paris.

Sales Tokens Are Problem to Pastor

DODGE CITY, Kas., June 26.—Sales tax tokens are proving a problem to the Rev. V. J. Smith. Finishing lunch in a cafe, he stopped at the cashier's desk to pay his check.

"Yes, sir," replied the pastor with emphasis. "The collection plate yesterday was full of them."

WPA Area Offices to Be at Wichita Falls, Eastland

Plans for establishment of Eastland as one of two area offices in District 7 of the Works Progress Administration were disclosed Friday by Major K. E. Wallace.

Wallace, assistant director of District 7 with headquarters for 21 counties at Fort Worth, stated the other area office would be located at Wichita Falls.

Although the personnel and counties of the area offices, to be on the second floor of the Eastland National Bank, had not been completely determined, at least six will be employed.

G. C. Looney, who for some time has been at Eastland with WPA as an area engineer while the district headquarters were at Abilene, will continue in the same capacity. Four counties will likely be in his charge.

James F. Henderson will be supervisor of time keepers for several nearby counties.

Mrs. Medora S. Pitcock, formerly Eastland county supervisor of women's projects, will be in charge of sewing and canning projects for women in six counties.

Mrs. Beaty will be the area social worker.

To be named later will be a supervisor of education for six counties and a secretary for all the officials.

Mayor C. W. Hoffmann, aiding in the arrangements, expressed gratification for the choice of officials in establishing Eastland as the area office.

Accompanying Wallace, who is major for the First Battalion, 142nd Infantry, was J. C. Douglas, district 7 chief of operations, also of Fort Worth.

Friday afternoon Douglas and Major Wallace were to inspect several road projects with County Engineer A. F. Taylor.

The officials are to conclude their visit in Eastland county, Saturday.

Building Permits In Texas Decrease

AUSTIN, June 26.—Building permits issued in Texas during May were moderately lower in value than in April but sharply above those of May, 1936, according to the bureau of business research of the university of Texas.

Reports from 35 representative Texas cities show total permits of $6,188,285, a decrease of 8.8 per cent from the preceding month but an increase of 24.1 per cent over the corresponding month last year, the report said. Cities in which May permits exceeded those of both comparable periods were Corpus Christi, Denison, Harlingen, Houston, Lubbock, San Angelo, San Antonio and Sherman.

First use of wireless telegraphy to report a major steamship disaster was when the liners Republic and Florida collided in 1909.

Grasshopper Poison Available Thursday

Beginning Thursday, July 1, grasshopper poison will be available to those farmers in Eastland county who have listed their names at the county agents' office, Eastland, Cisco chamber of commerce, or Ranger chamber of commerce, according to County Agent Cook. Farmers who are having or who expect to have grasshopper infestations are urged to register at one of these three places at once. T. G. Caudle, teacher Voc. Ag. is handling the grasshopper listings at Cisco and J. E. Meroney, Sec. C. of C. at Ranger.

Bran and sodium arsenite will be supplied free by the government but each person who receives an allotment will be required to furnish an equal amount of bran or similar material to mix with the free allotment. All bran and poison will be mixed before releasing to the farmer. Those who wish to make a slightly more effective poison may add syrup and banana oil at their own expense but this is not required.

HERE'S WHY FIRESTONE ALWAYS GIVES YOU SO MUCH More for your Money

Higher Quality Raw Materials! More Efficient Manufacturing! Lower Distribution Cost!

These All Combine to Give You Extra Values at No Extra Cost

FROM the day of its introduction, the Firestone Standard Tire has more than lived up to its name by setting a new high standard of tire values. Hundreds of thousands of car owners have already bought it because they saw in it more value for their money.

"How does Firestone do it? How can they build so many extra value features into Firestone Standard Tires and yet sell them at such low prices?" The answer is simple—Firestone controls better-quality rubber and cotton supplies at their source, keeps manufacturing costs low by efficient factory methods and sells in such huge volume that distribution costs are held to a minimum. That is why Firestone has been able to give you such extra value features as Gum-Dipping, two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread and eight extra pounds of rubber to every 100 pounds of cord, at no extra cost to you.

Make no mistake about this! The Firestone Standard Tire gives you the blowout protection of Firestone's patented Gum-Dipping process. Its scientifically designed tread gives greater non-skid protection and longer wear. And those two extra layers of Gum-Dipped cords under the tread guard against punctures.

Before you buy ANY tire at ANY price, see today's top tire value—the Firestone Standard Tire. Don't risk your life with thin, worn tires on your Fourth of July trip. Join the Firestone SAVE A LIFE Campaign today by equipping your car with a set of new Firestone Standard Tires.

TODAY, from the jungles of Liberia, there has arisen a great rubber plantation on which the world's finest rubber is being produced.

From the Firestone-owned and Firestone-developed rubber plantations in Liberia there comes an ever-increasing supply of rubber, bringing greater savings to car owners in the form of extra values at no extra cost.

MURDER ON THE BLUFF

SYNOPSIS: A mysterious shot kills Jude Hineshop, my old flame, at the start of our stormy weekend at Farrington Bluff, home of Michael's aunts. Strange attacks follow; then we find the body of Michael's mad father below the bluff. Stout, Victorian Aunt Martha is shot in the shoulder and nearly finished with sleeping powders. The Skipper, Mike's tall, tweedy younger aunt, disappears; we find her six hours later, bound in the left, all but dead. Higgins, the old butler, is shot to death, apparently a suicide. Then I notice the gun is in his right hand. And Higgins was left-handed.

Chapter 49 I Set My Trap

I checked them off on my fingers. Gay, Michael, M. Farrington, William, Annie and—yes, and Cook. Ill as she was, Cook could have crossed that hall, fired, pushed the old man over on the bed, placed the gun in his hand and beat a hasty retreat. Any one of them could. And all my efforts at cross-examination only led to lies and defiance. They were shielding either themselves or someone else—every one of them.

I wanted a trap—a trap that no alibi could spring. And I wanted it before they all collected for breakfast and the murderer had a chance to suspect that his plan had not worked.

There was only one question on which any trap could hinge—the reason for the presence of the revolver in Higgins' right hand. It could have been put there because the murderer was ignorant of the fact that it should have been in the left hand, because the murderer forgot in his excitement, or because the murderer desired to throw suspicion on someone else. They all seemed good possibilities. The choice depended entirely upon the identity of the culprit.

Of all the people in the house, Gay was the only person who could have done it out of ignorance. She was also the one person in the house against whom there had been not one shred of evidence at any time. She was impulsive and hot-headed. The murderer might or might not be either.

The murderer certainly was cold, logical and capable of swift action. In a crisis Gay was all of those things. It was possible that her rows with Michael had been a safety valve for more nerve strain than we had realized. Yes, Gay was capable of those murders, but I could not even remotely guess at a reason behind them.

Michael, on the other hand, certainly knew all of Higgins' characteristics. If Michael had placed that gun in the butler's right hand, he had done it because he lost his head. And Michael in such a situation would be quite apt to lose his head.

His aunt, on the contrary, would be very cool. And M. Farrington did not like Gay. I could not help feeling that if M. Farrington were ever aroused to the point of committing a murder, she would not hesitate to cast suspicion on any luckless soul who had incurred her dislike.

It seemed as though both Cook and Annie would have lost their heads in such a situation. But William would be cool as ice. But, without exception, every one of them knew that Higgins was left-handed.

I sought a trap that would hinge around those characteristics as I saw them and around the peculiar circumstances in which the body was found. The sight of the body was not much help. I covered it.

Then I started methodically and worked my way from the bed around the room, under the rug, under the bed, through the pitifully few possessions in the dresser and wardrobe. Not many spoils to show for 70-odd years of hard work. For my purpose, nothing to show at all.

It was a quarter of seven. At any time now the round-up for breakfast was apt to start and something told me that I must question the suspects individually or give up the whole attempt. Hopelessly I stared at that room, trying to wring its secret from it. A trap! I must spring a trap—now. And my mind was a blank.

I stared down at the figure on the bed and the idea came. Three strides took me into the hall. Conclusive proof or otherwise, I knew what I was going to do.

Panic Seizes Gay

All the way to Gay's door I was thinking of only one possibility. What if she wasn't there? But she must be!

"Come in!" called a cheerful voice. "Oh—hello, Jim, I was just going to start down. Why—what's the matter?"

I put a finger to my lips. "Shh!" I said hoarsely. "Don't let the others hear you. Come quickly."

She gave me one awful look and the brush in her hand fell clattering to the floor. "Jimmie, what is it? Oh—"

But I clapped a hand over her mouth before the scream was fairly started.

"Quiet!" I hissed. "I've just discovered something they'll all have to see. You'll have to—show me how to break it to them."

I had not underestimated Gay Palmer. She was suddenly as calm as if I had merely come to escort her to breakfast. When the panic was completely gone from her eyes I removed my hand.

"Is it Mike?" she demanded levelly. "Don't fool with me, Jim. Is he all right?"

"He's all right," I said, leading her into the hall. That short silent walk to Higgins' room was ghastly. I was obliged to concentrate on all the worst features of the crimes before I could force myself to push open his door. Gay walked in without a sign of alarm, and I followed her, closing the door and putting my back against it. Swiftly her eyes swept the room from the bed to the far wall and back to my face.

"Why—what is it?" she said blankly.

There was a dead, heavy weight in my chest. Whatever she had done, this was the girl that Michael wanted to marry. Violently I wished that my slow wits had been able to devise something quick and conclusive in place of my slow, questionable scheme.

I was banking desperately on the Skipper's evidence. Briefly, I had reasoned that if one of the servants was the culprit, the Skipper's evidence added to the circumstantial chain which I had built up against them, would be all that was necessary. However, if a member of the Skipper's family or a person who might shortly become a member of it was guilty, the Skipper would lie, and it would be necessary for someone else to prove their guilt.

Going back over the scene of the finding of Higgins' body, I had realized that not Michael, Gay or M. Farrington could possibly have seen the body as it lay on the bed. Annie and William had been standing in the doorway, completely blocking off their view. Consequently, if any one of them knew in what position both the body and the gun had been found, that person was the murderer.

I intended to ask each one in turn to help me prove that Higgins was a suicide. The murderer had had plenty of time to ponder over his or her blunders. Therefore, if any one of the three could reconstruct the scene of the crime, satisfying in full all of its peculiar circumstances, that person was the person I wanted. If not, we had simply to wait until the Skipper was well enough to tell her story.

We Hunt the Bullet

"Jimmie! What ails you? Are you sick?"

I shook my head to clear it. "No," I said, "just tired. Listen. We'll have to send for the police as soon as someone gets here from shore. And there's something wrong with this. If Higgins killed himself in here, the bullet ought to be here. It's the first thing the police will look for. And I can't find it anywhere."

"Hmmm," said Gay slowly. "That's so." She paused a moment and then her face brightened. "Well, look! He must have been either standing by the bed or sitting on it. If he was standing, the bullet ought to be in the floor. If he was sitting, it must be in the wall above or behind the bed. The darned thing could have gone right between those iron bars."

She was assuming that Higgins had used his right hand, and that there was nothing peculiar about the wounds in his head. Hedging for time, I examined the door carefully, felt along the wall above the bed, and even moved the bed to look at the dusty surface behind it.

"That's funny," said Gay. "I had some thinking to do. Wait," I grunted, moving the bed back into place. "Let me think. Yes, of course! The door was open!"

If there was anything in her face but an unflattering opinion of my intelligence, I couldn't see it.

"Then the thing must be in the hall, you say?" she said scornfully. I followed her into the hall and examined the wall solemnly. My head wouldn't seem to clear.

I had the impression that my bright little scheme was flopping. Gay's face was worried. "This is ridiculous, Jim. It must be here!"

Was she acting? I played my last card. "Good Lord! Am I a lunkhead! The old boy was left-handed." Sincere or feigned, there was plenty of disgust in the look she levelled at me. Proud, glib, but at that moment sure that my information was nothing to Gay Palmer. (Copyright, 1934, by Gene Byrnes)

The Reverend E. S. James and Mrs. James who are leaving soon to make their home in Vernon, were the honored guests at a picnic Friday night at Lake Cisco given by members of the First Baptist church and other friends. The members met at the church and went from there to the lake where the table committee had arranged the tables in long rows and where a delicious picnic lunch was spread and iced lemonade was served. This committee was composed of Messrs. E. J. Poe, John Smith, Beavers, W. W. Fell and Davis Fields.

Following the supper, Rev. M. H. Applewhite, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, spoke for the Pastors association, W. F. Walker spoke for the church, complimenting Rev. James as a leader, and of his having increased the membership of this church from 600 to 900 members, conducting baptismal rites for 300 during his pastorate here.

F. E. Shepard, in behalf of the men of the church, presented a Hamilton watch to Rev. James with this inscription, "First Baptist Church, Cisco, Texas, 1937." In reply, Rev. James said he hoped to wear this watch as long as he lived, that he and his family had enjoyed every minute of his work in Cisco, that he hated to leave but felt God was leading him to a new field. Meeting closed with group standing and singing, "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

Mmes. Leon McPherson, W. D. Brecheen and M. V. Gardenhire, the entertainment committee, presented Daskom Stephens, in a barooka number, followed by a rhythm band with W. F. Walker as leader and all members playing miniature instruments in the final number, "The Old Rugged Cross." About 400 were present. Mrs. Leonard Surlis of Wink, Mrs. C. S.
