PEIPING'S GATES CLOSED BY JAPANESE

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

R. E. Short, who has retired after many years service with the army and now lives in Cisco, is anxious to learn the name of the author of a Mother's Day poem with which he is particularly impressed. He has had several thousand copies of the verse printed on leaflets which he distributes, particularly to children. But his efforts to learn the name of the author have been futile.

It is a beautiful bit of verse, a tribute to motherhood that is rare and true. I have read it a number of times before, but do not remember who wrote it. If you can answer the question to Mr. Short's satisfaction, a year's subscription by mail to the Cisco Daily Press is yours.

Here is the poem:

"THE BRAVEST BATTLE THAT EVER WAS FOUGHT"

"The bravest battle that was ever fought,
Shall I tell you where and when?
On the maps of the world you'll find it not;
'Twas fought by the mothers of men.

Nay, not with cannon or battle shot,
With sword or nobler pen;
Nay not with eloquent word or throat
From mouths of wonderful men.

But deep in a wall-up woman's heart—
Of woman that would not yield,
But bravely, silently bore her part—
Lo! there is the battlefield!

No marshaling troops, no bivouac song;
No banner to gleam and wave!
But oh! these battles, they last so long—
From babyhood to the grave!

Yet faithful still as a bridge of stars
She fights in her walled-up town—
Fights on and on in the endless wars,
Then silent, unseen goes down!

Oh, ye with banners and battle shot,
And soldiers to shout and praise,
I tell you the kingliest victories fought
Are fought in these silent ways!

Oh! spotless woman in a world of shame,
With splendid and silent scorn,
Go back to God as white as you came,
The Kingliest warrior born."

San Antonio School Seeks to Insure Higher Sums

AUSTIN, August 2 (AP)—Ghent Sanderford, president of the state board of education, received notice today that a San Antonio court had issued a temporary injunction restraining the board from changing its recent order fixing per capita scholastic apportionment at $22.

The injunction was granted by District Judge McCrory, on application of the San Antonio independent school district. Some of the board members have been holding the condition of school finances justify $22; others, the minority of the last meeting, think the amount is too high.

Third Infantile Paralysis Victim Dies At Scranton

Funeral services for L. B. Cozart, the third victim of infantile paralysis in Scranton within the past two weeks, will be held at the home at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, it was reported today.

Young Cozart, who was 19 and a member of the Scranton soft ball team, died at his home this morning about 2 o'clock.

L. B. Cozart, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cozart, prominent Scranton people, is survived by three sisters and two brothers and his parents.

The victims would have been 20 Christmas day. Over a period of less than two weeks the dreaded disease has taken two others of the same community, a girl about five and a boy about 12 years old, both cousins of L. B. Cozart.

Flying Conditions Blamed For Crash That Killed Four

LUBBOCK, August 2 (AP)—Clement C. Breedlove, manager of the Lubbock Municipal airport, today blamed poor flying conditions for the plane crash Sunday at Littlefield in which four were killed.

He said the "air was gusty and hot, causing strong vertical currents; reports indicated the plane stalled or the motor cut out."

O. V. Simms, Jr. of Slaton, pilot; R. A. Baxter of Wellington; and Verne Hawkins and Orville Taber of Littlefield were killed.

The party had taken off from the Littlefield airport shortly before 10 o'clock.

Two highway patrolmen from Lubbock were investigating the accident, which happened about 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

The plane struck nose down in a cotton field but did not burn. The pilot apparently had cut off the ignition before the red and silver Stinson plane fell from 200 feet.

Accounts of the tragedy varied. The plane fell on the farm of R. W. Curry, who said the motor appeared to stop before the plane nose dived. C. E. Phillips, who was 200 yards from the crash, was the first to reach the plane. Herman Kelm, who was a half mile away, said the motor sputtered until it struck the ground.

Bodies of the victims were literally buried with the wreckage. A farm tractor and a garage service car were used to pull the wreckage apart to extract the bodies.

Americans in Peiping Pin Faith on Two Vets

Marines Colonel Guards Yankees Marooned in City

AP Feature Service Writer

The protection of some 802 American citizens in bullet-peppered Peiping lies in the large, capable hands of cool-headed Col. John Marston, veteran officer of the United States Marine corps.

Officers at marine headquarters in Washington say that Marston, commander of the detachment of 490 "devil dogs" at the American embassy in the ancient Chinese capital, can be counted on to exercise alertness and good judgment in looking after the safety of the strife-beleagued Americans.

Long Service Abroad

Colonel Marston is a six-foot, 200 pounder, of jovial disposition who has been in "nasty situations" before and has a way of winning the good will of foreign soldiers and citizens. He has had considerable service in foreign countries at periods when the anti-American spirit was running among the natives.

In 1914 he participated in the occupation of Vera Cruz, Mexico, and the engagement in connection with that expedition. From 1915 to 1918 he served in troubled

Commander of Fleet Follows Dispute by Radio

Highest ranking American military officer in the war-clouded Far East is Admiral Harry Yarnell, commander of the Asiatic fleet of the United States navy.

Yarnell is a 62-year-old, Iowa-born "salt" who has sailed the seven seas and loves the life of a sailor. As a cadet engineer he was aboard the battleship Oregon when it made its famous voyage around the Horn at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war.

Student of Foreign Affairs

His flagship, the heavy cruiser Augusta, has sailed north, but Admiral Yarnell can get in immediate touch by radio with the American embassy in Peiping where Col. John Marston and his small detachment of marines are protecting 800 marooned American citizens. Yarnell also maintains radio contact with naval headquarters in Washington.

Fellow officers say he is an ideal combination of the sea-dog and student of international affairs which have a bearing on naval problems. He was a naval adviser at the London treaty conference in 1930 where he became acquainted with several Japanese.

SPECIAL GROUP TO STUDY BILL RECOMMENDED

Cummings Rules FDR May Fill Vacancy When He Desires

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—The senate judiciary committee recommended today that a special committee be created to study the judicial reform during the forthcoming recess of congress.

The committee made known its action shortly after the White House announced that Attorney General Cummings had ruled the president could fill Justice Van Devanter's vacancy in the supreme court whenever he desired; whether congress was in session or not.

Senator Vandenberg of Michigan immediately introduced a resolution asserting the senate believed the supreme court appointments should be made only when the senate could act before the nominees began service.

As the debate on the housing bill began leaders predicted quick passage.

DELAY EXPECTED IN WAGE-HOUR DEBATE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—Despite the rush toward adjournment the house probably will delay debating the senate approved wage-hour bill until next week.

The house labor committee is drafting the measure permitting the labor standards board fixing minimum wages at 70 cents and work week at 35 hours, which is broader than the senate provisions of 40 cents and 40 hours.

Large Crowd at Lawn Service Sunday Night

In the absence of Rev. Applewhite, the Presbyterian congregation attended services of the First Methodist church Sunday night to hear Rev. Joe Patterson preach on "The Power to Recover." This was the largest crowd so far to hear the pastor deliver his series of Sunday night messages on the lawn of the Methodist church.

The pastor's text was "They That Wait Upon the Lord Shall Renew Their Strength." Billy Kilborn and Durwood Boyd gave a vocal duet.

Beginning next Sunday night the pastor will begin a new series of four talks on "Pictures That Preach." This series will be sponsored by the Philathea class of the church of which Mrs. Rufus Merket is president and Miss Lela Latch is teacher.

These talks on pictures will be opened with the first one being "Millet's De Angelesus," Rev. Patterson said today.

Director Cooper Sends Batting Averages Today

A letter to the Cisco Daily Press this morning from Cisco Soft Ball Director Bill Cooper, sent from Temple where he visited prior to going on to Waco to attend the coaching school, gave the batting averages, and as it always is, there are lots of changes in the standings.

Dave Perry who played only one city league game is leading but this is unofficial because he has batted only four times, getting three hits. Most of those around the top last week dropped several notches in the standings and some of those nearer the bottom came through with a flock of hits to raise their averages considerably.

The averages listed here include through last Wednesday night's battles, the last night Cooper was

The Lewis "Third Party"

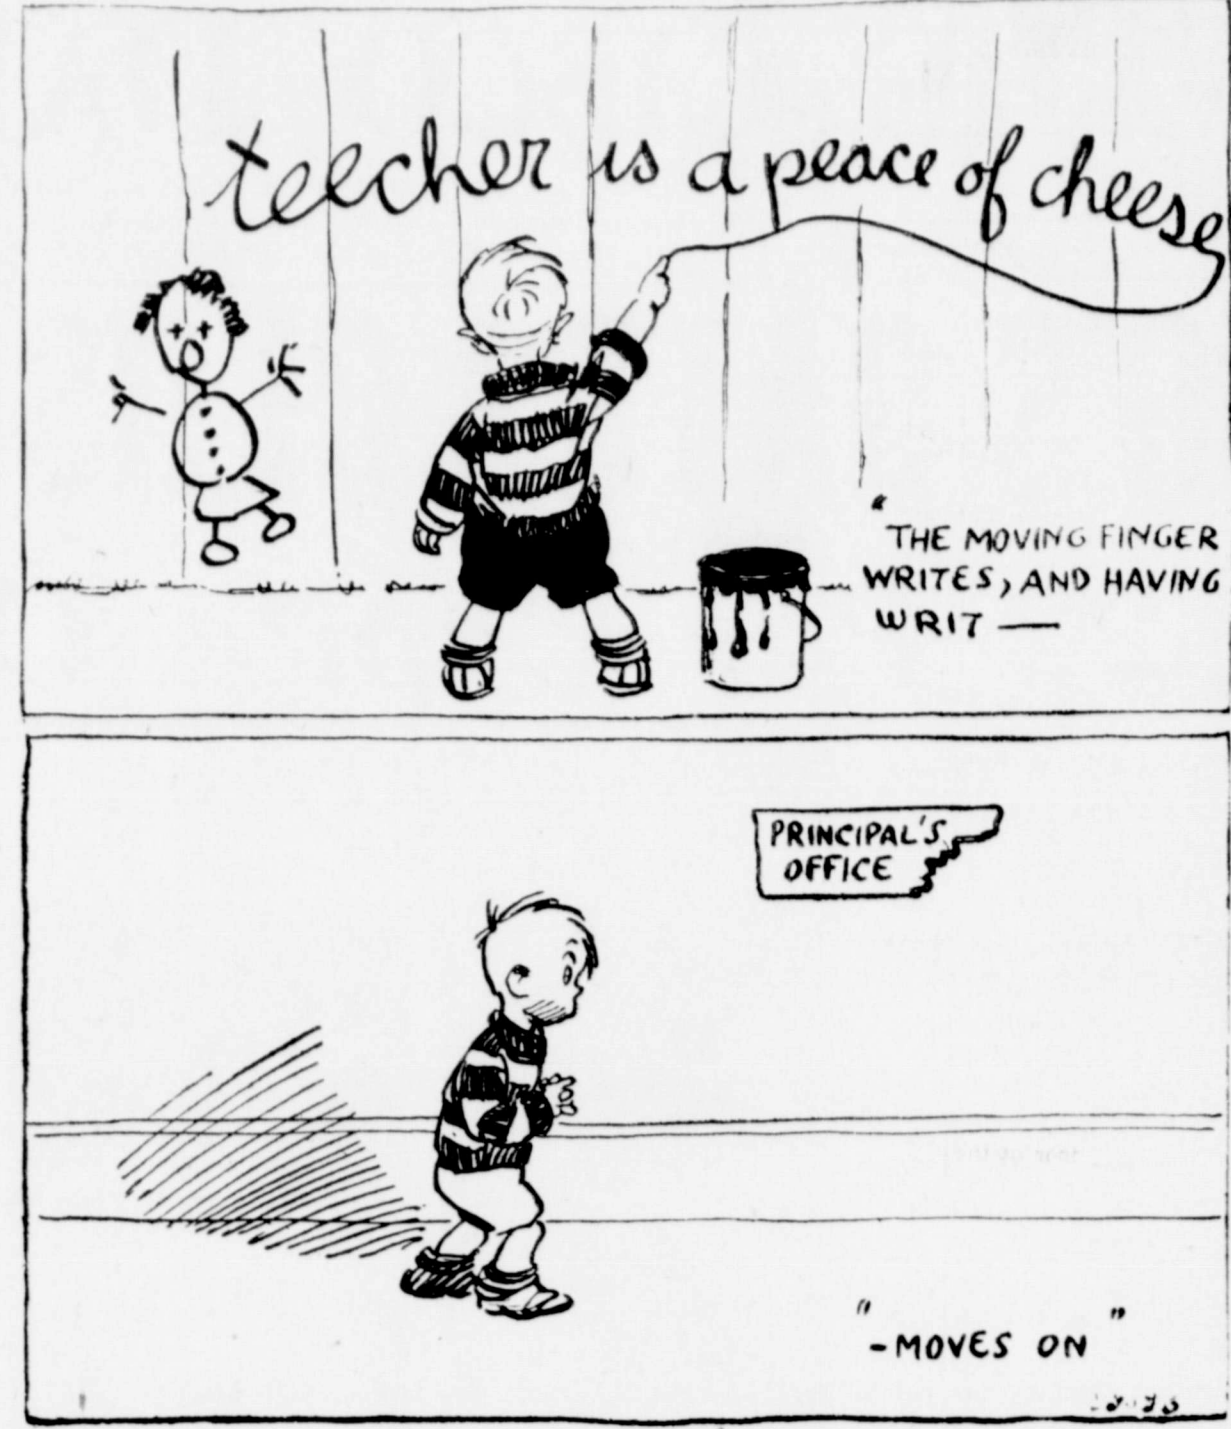

JOHN L. LEWIS, credited by some observers with third party ambitions, obviously is much too astute a leader to resort to the organization of an outright labor party opposing the two major political groups in this country. On the contrary, Mr. Lewis is shrewd enough to see in the two-party political system a much more sanguine opportunity to promote the objects of labor. Provided with an insoluble body of labor sentiment which he may shift from one party to the other, the militant organizer of the CIO would be in a much more effective trading position. He could command concessions that no district and separate third party organization could hope to achieve, merely by the process of shifting the balance of voting strength to the major party with which at the time he happened to have an understanding. In reality, his organization would be a third party, dedicated to the cause of the CIO and having no political sympathy with the objects and principles of its major ally except to such an extent as that ally proposed to serve the interests of the Lewis faction. This mobile margin of strength conceivably could become the most potent influence in national politics. If Lewis is successful and if no schism occurs in labor ranks, the threat of a Lewis domination of the White House is not gone with the wind of public disapproval which contributed so much to the defeat of the CIO in its thrust at Little Steel. Lewis dissatisfaction with the manner in which President Roosevelt, a strong friend of labor and a president who obviously did all that he rightfully could to discharge his political obligation to labor, shows clearly enough that the Lewis appreciation of services rendered is not great enough to concede a necessary compromise. The CIO generalissimo could wish as much grace as effect lead his political cohorts to an alliance with the republican party in the next election.

IN this fact exists cause for concern on the part of southern democrats who detect in the wage and hour measure and other legislation of this character a strong threat against southern industry. It is not unlikely that organized pressure from a minority group, such as the Lewis faction would be, could command concessions from another administration which would require continuation of policies considered unhealthy and obstructive to southern industrial economy.

A Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—That 70 to 20 vote by which the president's court bill was sent back to the committee to be pared down to shavings has brought real discouragement to some sincerely liberal members of congress.

Whether or not there is reason to agree with them, it should be known that even some of those who voted for recommitment were almost physically sick with despair at the defeat. They had fought through weeks to escape it, and voted for recommitment only because continued fighting was futile.

"The president won in November but the Liberty League won in July," was the comment of one liberal senator. They may not be fair to the Liberty League, for as an organization it did not stand out in the battle against the measure.

Issue Found This same senator outlined his view of the matter in about this fashion: Before the last presidential campaign and in its early weeks, an effort was made by the foes of President Roosevelt to raise an issue by which he might be defeated. Failing in that, the attack was directed at him personally.

But even the personal phase of the campaign failed, as was disclosed in November. A waiting process began while an issue should present itself upon which a patriotic emotional campaign could be waged. Then the president advanced his court reform measure and the horses of indignation were whipped to a lather. These are the sentiments of the several senators (their number is fairly limited) who sincerely believed there was need of reform in the supreme court and that the president's plan was the best way

Huge Three-Year Inflow of Gold To U. S. Slowing

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2 (AP)—The huge, three-year inflow of foreign gold is slowing down. With the world's biggest hoard resting securely in Government vaults, Treasury reports showed today that net imports have averaged only $4,100,000 a day since July 1, compared with $6,400,000 daily during the first half of this year.

Since the dollar was revalued early in 1934, the nation's gold stocks have mounted more than $5,000,000,000 to $12,433,190,000.

On July 29, the treasury recorded a $42,000,000 net reduction in its gold holdings. This represented the first decline since last October and was the largest drop for a single day since dollar revaluation.

The slower, inflow in recent weeks, officials said, has resulted in part from increasing confidence in France since inauguration of new French financial measures.

Some authorities said reviving confidence in France, plus operation of monetary agreements providing for the sale of gold to China and Brazil, may cause gold outflows in the next few months.

FLAME TRAIL

BY MARIE DE NERVAUD

SYNOPSIS: When Kay Cranion of the Lazy Nine loses her ranch house and barn in a fire, Josh Hastings, owner of the Flying Six, tries to buy her ranch. She distrusts him and is determined to keep her ranch and rebuild. Ted Gaylor, a puncher she impulsively hired, fights Scrap Johnson, a cowhand who molested Kay. They shot it out, wounding each other. Hastings finds them and murders Scrap, using Ted's gun. Ted crawls to an unknown shack where a girl named Marion nurses him through a week of delirious fever. The gun is found and Sheriff Farley trails Ted to the shack, but passes it by.

Chapter 28 Best to Stay Hidden

It was late afternoon before Ted came out of the heavy sleep into which he had slipped after his aspe into unconsciousness.

In the long day that had passed, Marion had had plenty of time to think over the surprising events of the morning.

It was clear that, if Scrap Johnson had been murdered, Ted would be the one to whom suspicion would inevitably point. There were two possibilities—either Ted's shot had not gone wild, as he had supposed, or someone else had come along and murdered the man, framing Ted as the killer.

In any case, the longer Ted could stay hidden away, until he regained strength to fight for himself, the better. No matter how much his mother and sister and the mysterious "Kay" might need him, everyone was better off for the moment if he stayed right where he was.

As for herself, she couldn't leave her hiding place for another 10 days anyway, and she would infinitely rather put in the time nursing Ted back to health and strength, than to be alone with her anxious thoughts of her father.

Resolving to make the position clear to Ted as soon as she could, Marion came and sat beside him, as he roused himself.

Outlining to him his side of the situation, as she saw it, Marion went on to tell him of her own predicament.

"My father is in desperate straits of some sort," she ended, "and under the circumstances I have no choice but to let him work things out in his own way. The one thing I must do, is to wait here for the full time he set. Then, if he hasn't come, I must go back to find him."

"How about the man you're engaged to?" Ted asked.

"He is off on a prospecting trip," Marion answered, "and he won't be back for another month. I hope to Heaven's sake, that my father and I will be safely back in Missoula before that time."

Someone Outside?

Ted slowly pondered this information. "What you say about me is true all right," he answered at last. "I wouldn't be any good to anybody right now, I reckon. I can squash this murder talk easy enough as soon as I'm strong enough to go back and tell them where they get off. With me missing, some of the neighbors will give my mother and sister a helping hand for a while, anyway. And Kay—" He paused, and a slow color crept into his face.

"Why is Kay?" Marion asked gently. "Are you engaged to her?"

"I wish to God I were," Ted burst out. "But there's no chance of that! All I ask is to be near her and help her rebuild her ranch house, and . . . look here, I want to tell you about her!" He eagerly described Kay, and the problem she was up against. "I don't know what she'll be thinking about my not turning up. I wonder if she's heard this murder talk?"

"She won't believe it any more than I do," Marion snorted. She felt his forehead and added with decision. "You've talked enough, now. Lie back and rest while I get your supper. If you want to get back to her as soon as possible, you must do just as I tell you!"

"Gosh, I hope you two will meet some time," Ted murmured, as he gratefully obeyed. "You sure would take to each other!"

"I hope we will meet," Marion turned away, then stopped suddenly, listening. "What's that?"

"What?" Ted asked sleepily. "I didn't hear anything."

"I thought I heard someone moving outside," Marion crossed to the window and tried to see out the narrow crack between the boards, but only the empty clearing with the late afternoon sunlight, shining on the top branches of the pines was in sight.

She went to the door and cautiously opened it, stepping out a minute on the steps. Then, as she still saw no signs of life, she came in again, pulling the door shut.

"It must have been some animal prowling about," she observed.

There was no answer from Ted, and she smiled as she looked over at him, deeply sunk again into health-giving sleep. Stepping over beside him, she lightly put her hand on his forehead and, still smiling, gazed down at him a moment. Then, she quietly went about getting supper ready for him, when he should wake.

Passionate Outburst

As Kay stood at the door of the mess shack and watched the sheriff ride away with his posse she felt stunned with the sick reaction to the news she had just heard.

One possible solution after another flashed through her mind, only to be discarded. It was all a terrifying mystery, and her thoughts kept coming back to the dread certainty that Ted was dead or desperately wounded somewhere.

Dozens of questions that she had asked the sheriff came to her. Why hadn't she found out whether Scrap Johnson's gun had been discharged? Why—a long shuddering breath escaped her.

"There now, honey, don't you take it so hard!" Seth came up behind her, and put a comforting hand on her shoulder. "Looks kind of black for this Gaylor fellow, but after all, he's nothing to us. We can go along on our own, rebuilding, just as well as though he was here."

"I think you are all perfectly heartless!" Kay blazed, whirling about and facing Seth with flashing eyes. "All you think about is how it is going to affect us! You're ready to use his brains and his plan, and then just let him die like a dog somewhere!"

"Why, Kay!" Seth regarded her with open-mouthed amazement. "What's got into you? The sheriff is off this minute searching for him, and—"

"Yes—so that he can accuse him of murder!" Kay broke in passionately. "You're all waiting like a pack of blood hounds to tear him to pieces on no evidence at all! He's not a murderer, I tell you! If he killed Scrap Johnson it was a fair fight, or more like-

Fort Worth Man, Prison Board Member, Quits

FORT WORTH, Aug. 2.—J. B. H. Holderby will end his services as a member of the state prison board today because he did not seek reappointment he said yesterday.

He laughed heartily at reports Governor Allred had not reappointed him because Holderby was sympathetic toward Lee Simmons, former manager of the prison system.

Declaring that he had led a fight against some of Simmons' policies, Holderby said the reports, which originated in Austin, were incorrect.

"I have a high regard for Simmons," Holderby said. "No one is better qualified than he to manage the system, but he wanted to play politics and the position would not mix with politics. He resigned of his own accord after he and I parted as the best of friends."

Opposed Plan to Reduce.

"I am not going back on the board because I did not want to be reappointed. I told Governor Allred when my term expired in February that if he had some other man he wanted to name it would be all right with me."

Holderby said he also advised the Governor that if he were reappointed it would be on his past record, and that he would not ask anyone to intercede for him. He had planned to resign from the board anyway, at the September meeting, Holderby said.

"The truth is that the Governor had a political debt to pay," the Fort Worth man declared.

Member Over Eight Years

Holderby, a railroad engineer, has been a member of the board for eight and a half years. First named by Governor Moody to fill out an unexpired term, he was reappointed by Governor Sterling for a six-year term that expired in February.

At the meeting today—Holderby, with the odds against Ted. He's not a murderer!"

Kay ran down the steps and over to her cabin. Seth let out a long low whistle as he watched her flying figure. Then he slowly shook his head and made his way over to the bunk house.

Kay finds Josh knows a good bit about the shooting, tomorrow.

by's last on the board—civil service examination rules for prison system employees will be adopted. In advocating civil service, Holderby said that prison guards, now paid from $90 to $95 a month, should receive $150 a month.

"The people don't understand," he said, "that the guards are the most important part of the prison. The guard is the last line of defense and when a prisoner gets away the lives of citizens are endangered."

Can Get Better Guards

By paying higher salaries the prison system can get guards with better education and reputation, the retiring board member said. Men comparable to those on police forces can be obtained with higher salaries, he believes.

Holderby, who is chairman of the construction committee of the board, pointed out that if the present program is carried out the prison system will be in fine shape from the standpoint of physical equipment within a few years.

The system now manufactures its own building bricks as a result of an appropriation obtained from the state through Holderby's efforts. The board is now in the midst of a construction program, replacing worn-out frame barracks with modern brick buildings. Cost of the buildings, including the material, will be small because the work is being done by the prisoners.

Governor Allred Saturday appointed two new members to the board—Dr. C. W. Butler Jr. of Crockett, and F. D. Chesnut of Kenedy to succeed Holderby and W. A. Paddock, chairman. Dr. S. M. Lister of Houston was reappointed.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Aug. 2.—A radio race track has been set up between here and Columbia, S. C., by R. C. Colwell and A. W. Friend of West Virginia university.

They send a radio signal to the station of J. R. Bouknight, in Columbia. He shoots it back. The round trip speed of the signal can be timed with an accuracy of five per cent.

First returns indicate that the ether waves don't know the meaning of punctuality. The results are announced in the Physical Review. On March 18 the radio waves rode the airline at a speed of 102,000 miles a second. Two days later they did 146,000 miles. Then they dropped to 94,000 miles, a comedown of 50,000 miles a second only three days afterward.

53 Cities Regulate Trailer Travelers

CHICAGO, Aug. 2 (AP)—The nomad of the highways in his trailer has become the subject of special legislation in 53 cities, a survey by the American Municipal association showed today.

The trailer traveler in his home on wheels is regarded as a possible permanent resident whose activities must be regulated, larger cities have decided.

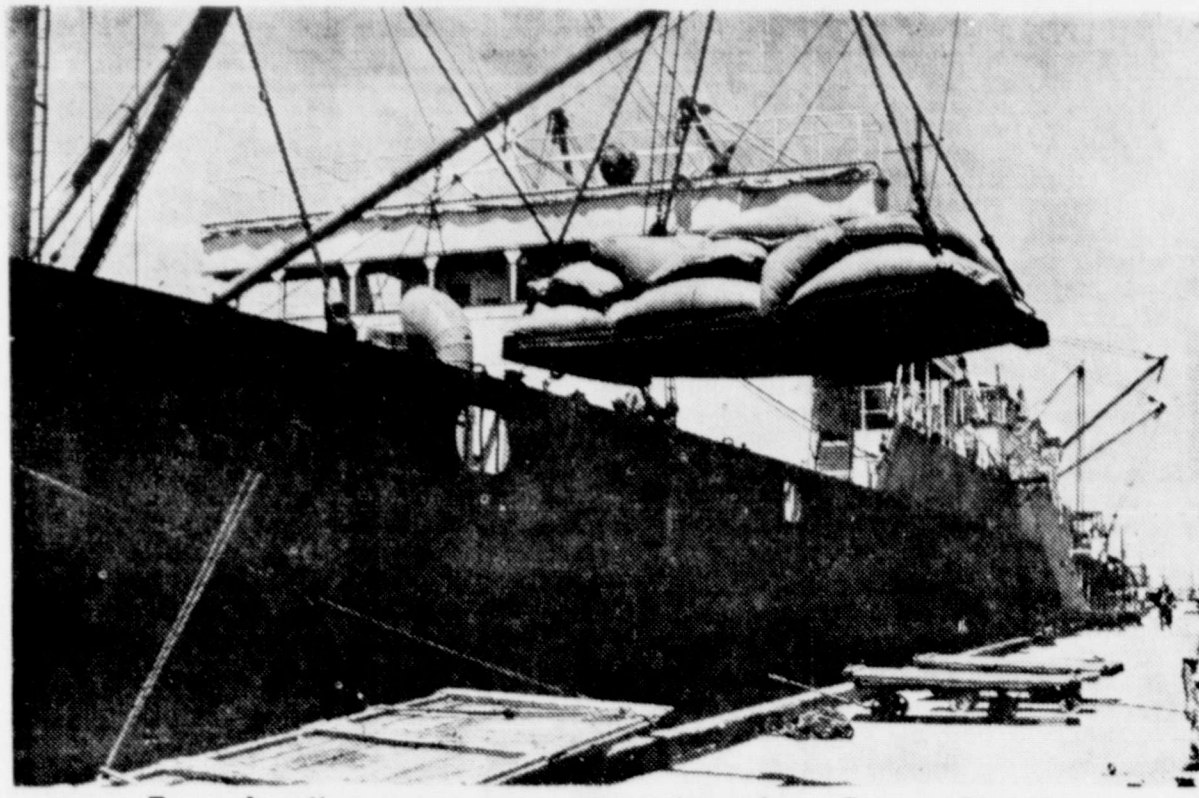

Six of the 10 cities of more than 100,000 population surveyed by the association have set time limits for trailer camps. Sixteen cities prohibit the removal of wheels or blocking up of trailers.

They contend such an alteration removes the trailer from the city ordinance classification and places it under state and municipal housing code provisions.
