Kleiner Funerals Will Be Held Sunday at 3

SHANGHAI SCENE OF HEAVY FIGHTING

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Rich and poor, young and old, of all stations and standings in life, the tribute of a community and of people from far and near was being paid to Charles Kleiner and the surviving members of his family today. In grief this is one of the most heartening supports.

And the tributes of those least able to express them in worldly symbols of respect and sympathy are just as much appreciated as are those of the more fortunate. In such times it is a man to man proposition. In such times station in life and possessions mean nothing. In such times character counts, and people are recognized for what they are and not for what they have.

The simple, wordless sympathy of the colored man who tends the yard, the tear of the child, the rugged grasp of a hand horny with earnest toil have a supporting quality that is often far more strengthening than the floral tributes of others. I watched numbers of those associated with Charlie in humbler stations of endeavor as they greeted him today, and I was impressed with the nourishment of their sympathy, and with the manner in which he appreciated it as much as he appreciated the equally sincere tributes of the others.

Of itself it is the greatest tribute to be able to command that sort of affection. To my mind this tragic experience has its beautiful shades among the sad. For another analogy, it is similar to the auditor's experience of making up a profit and loss sheet at the end of the year. Past due promissory notes do not count on the profit side of the ledger. It is the real cash on the barrelhead, as we say, that determines the actual result of one's activities. One learns in solid figures whether he has gained or lost.

And the solid figures, at such a time as this, are the virtues that are recognized in the regard that others have for the man himself. It is quite possible, quite natural, in the overplus of grief, to forget these things, to fail to note the hopeful gleam that leads out of the smothering darkness into the brighter prospect. But it is there.

Life can be beautiful in darkness. It is not always realized, for the darkness has a way of hiding things. But it is also a medium for developing hidden things into beautiful objects, just as the photographer uses darkness to reveal the artistry of his films. When they are developed they become permanent and may be taken into the light to be kept and to give pleasure.

I hope somebody can tell Charlie today that he is in a sort of darkness now, but that there is being developed in that darkness a picture as beautiful as he has ever seen, one to be placed in his gallery of treasured souvenirs among the most enduring and precious that he owns.

Critics Praise It

Maximilian Vanka's 30-foot Madonna and Child in St. Nicholas' Roman Catholic church in smoky Millvale, industrial suburb of Pittsburgh, is part of a set called by critics one of the few distinguished examples of church murals in the United States.

Murals in Modest Suburban Church Attract Throngs

By JOHN SELBY

MILLVALE, Pa., Aug. 12 (AP)—One of the few great sets of church murals in the United States is drawing hundreds of people to a smoke-grimed hillside church in this Pittsburgh suburb.

The church is St. Nicholas', outwardly an undistinguished Romanesque building of bluff brick, squatting peacefully on steep Maryland avenue, looking stolidly out over a carban, lines of railroad hiding the Allegheny river, a brewery—the usual mill town smoke over all.

The murals are by Maximilian Vanka, a Croat like the parishioners of Father Albert Zagara, whose idea the murals were. Friend of Louis Adamic and husband of Margaret Stetten of New York, Vanka spent only two months on the job. But he worked up to 18 hours a day.

Magnificent Colors

The nine panels in the set are modern in the sense that they are painted simply, literally and without much concession to the minor conventions of church paintings.

The colors are magnificent and typical of the Balkans—the blues are frank, outspoken blues, and when Vanka has used red it is an honest red. This brightness is combined with a curiously immaculate quality which is partly the result of color choices, and partly of eliminating superfluous detail.

Father Zagara, proud of his share in a notable undertaking, readily leaves his littered desk in the frame rectory next door to explain things.

Eyes Follow Visitors

He is especially fond of the Madonna and Child over the big altar. The Virgin in her almost barbaric red gown and vivid blue robe, both wearing blue crowns. He walks rapidly about the church, scrupulously making his obeisances at each opportunity.

"See," says he, "the little Jesus and She—they follow you wherever you go. Father Zagara is short and thin and his rather bushy hair grows back on his head. He smokes a good many cigarettes, which break and scatter tobacco over his Franciscan garb.

He thought his people needed

Committee Okehs Black Nomination

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The senate judiciary subcommittee swiftly approved today nomination of Senator Black of Alabama to the supreme court, acting only a few minutes after President Roosevelt told the press conference Attorney General Cummings had informed him it was legal and constitutional to appoint Black.

The subcommittee voted after rejecting a move by Senator Austin, Vermont republican, to hold up action pending study of legal questions involved.

Chairman of the group, Neely of West Virginia, immediately tried to arrange a meeting of the full committee either this afternoon or tomorrow and act on Black's nomination. Neely held it was not the duty of the committee to "construe the constitution," but to pass on qualifications.

Immediately after the committee acted two senators, Burke of Nebraska and White of Maine came out as open opponents to confirmation of Black's nomination.

DOTHAN MAN BRINGS FIRST BALE COTTON

Ginned Here Thursday, Bought by Norvell, Miller at 11c

The first bale of cotton was ginned Thursday afternoon by the Cisco gin at about 3:45. The bale belonged to Charles McFadden, farmer who raised it on his farm near Dothan.

The bale, ginned free, was purchased by Norvell and Miller at a price of 11 cents per pound, a premium of one cent per pound.

Although it is not confirmed, it was reported that this is also the first bale of cotton ginned in Eastland county this year.

The Cisco junior chamber of commerce was to start a drive this afternoon to raise a prize for the owner of the bale. The prize will be made up of merchandise donated by Cisco merchants.

Mr. McFadden will be given a slip from each merchant for the amount of goods to be given and he will be required to go to the place of business to get the prize. This serves two purposes. First, the owner will get a prize, second, he will have to go into these business houses to get his merchandise, thus coming in contact with the Cisco business men and having a chance to meet them.

Ciscoans Attend District Meeting Thursday Evening

Two members of the young people's department of the First Methodist church were elected to district offices at the meeting held in Eastland last night.

The meeting, attended by about 55, was for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year. Mildred Curry daughter of Rev. J. B. Curry, presiding elder, and Lotta Proctor were chosen worship chairman and secretary of the union, respectively. Miss Proctor will also serve temporarily as treasurer.

The session Thursday night was attended by Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Curry, Edwin Curry, Dennis King, Ralph McCanlies, Richard Shafer, Cecil Edwards, Lotta and Mary Ruth Proctor, and Annie Lee Crawford from Cisco.

Carbon, who sent the largest delegation, 19, invited the group to come there for the next meeting, to be held the second Thursday in September, and those present accepted the invitation.

Directors Will Not Meet Tonight

The meeting of the directors of the Cisco Country club which had been called for this evening to plan the Eastland County Golf tournament scheduled for September 4, 5 and 6, has been postponed out of respect to Charles J. Kleiner, whose wife and son, Charles, Jr., were killed in an automobile accident near Tucson, Ariz., Tuesday, it was announced by Club President J. E. Caffrey. The meeting will be held next week, he said.

GIVEN DEATH PENALTY
LOCKHART, Aug. 13 (AP)—Vince Boos, found guilty of the slaying of R. W. Albert, Brenham Cheese salesman in March last year, was given the death penalty by a district court jury here today.

High Court Nominee

Senator Hugo L. Black of Alabama, 51-year-old staunch new deal democrat, who is President Roosevelt's nomination for the supreme court seat made vacant by the resignation of Justice Willis Van Devanter.

RED FRONT IS HANDED SCORE

Scranton Nosed Out By 5-4 Score

The seemingly invincible Red Fronters were almost slipped up on last night when an inspired team from Scranton, trailing in the fourth inning by the score of 5-2, turned on the power in the remaining frames to come up within one run of the drug store boys and hold them hitless. Red Front recuperated in the seventh however but only after Scranton had scored one run and battered out two hits. Although the Scranton boys lost, they had the satisfaction of throwing a scare into the loop leaders.

Davis, pitcher for Scranton, held the winners to six hits while Boyett for the winners gave up six. Both teams committed numerous errors.

Good pitching was the outstanding feature of the game with no one player monopolizing on hits. The heavy bats of Red Front, which usually spell doom for all opponents, failed to produce more than one hit apiece.

The game last night proved that Scranton was capable of playing good ball when aroused and should prove to be a signal of

They were formerly 60 watt bulbs.

BUILDINGS IN CITY FIRED AS NATIONS WAR

U. S. Asiatic Squadron Steams to Protect 4,000 Americans

SHANGHAI, Aug. 13 (AP)—Japanese naval guns and Chinese and Japanese land batteries hurled hundreds of shells in open Shanghai warfare tonight setting fire to scores of buildings along the northern fringe of the city. A strong wind threatened a holocaust like that in 1932.

The United States Asiatic Squadron steamed to protect 4,000 Americans in the Shanghai area. British rushed additional troops from Hongkong to supplement the regular garrison.

An estimated 7,000 Japanese bluejackets and "thousands" of the Chinese regular army skirmished in Chinese areas north of the Shanghai international zone. Troops were entrenched and skirmishing started early today after a peace conference failed.

Foreign officials feared their nationals might be in even greater danger than in 1932, for Chinese leaders indicated they were unwilling to respect the neutrality of the foreign-controlled sections of Shanghai—the international settlement and the French concession—as they did in 1932.

The present Shanghai phase of the undeclared Chinese-Japanese war, full of tension since the killing of two Japanese naval men and a Chinese gendarme Monday

FLAME TRAIL

BY MARIE DE SERVAUD

SYNOPSIS: Kay Crandon decides to rebuild her burned ranch house and barn, though Neighbor Josh Hastings, whom she hates, wants to buy her ranch and marry Kay. Ted Gaynor, a publisher she impulsively hired, fights Scrap Johnson, a cowhand who molested Kay. They shoot it out, wounding each other. Hastings sneaks up and kills Scrap with Ted's gun. Ted crawls to a cabin where a girl (Marion) nurses him a week before the sheriff arrests him due to a tip unconsciously given by Kay. The sheriff and his posse start off with Ted for Clear Water Basin jail.

Chapter 38
The Cards Are Stacked
"Wait a minute!" Ted reined in by the stream where he had so nearly breathed his last. "Where was Scrap Johnson found?"

"Exactly where you dropped him. Ain't that a surprise, now!" Sam Cutter winked at one of his men, who guffawed in appreciation of his chief's sarcasm. "Come on! The state ain't asking you to do any investigating."

Biting his lips to cut off the retort that sprang to them, Ted obeyed the order. But there was one more question he had to know. He turned to the man following him.

"How did you find me? And how did it happen that both of us got there at the same time?"

The other one grinned. "Tipped off by a girl," he answered with relish. "You're sure one hell of a fellow with the ladies!"

"A girl!" Ted echoed, his grip on himself shaken for a moment with the surprise and shock of this news. "What girl?"

Ted's mind reeled before the thought that Marion might have crept away while he was sleeping, and have betrayed him. She certainly was the only girl that knew his whereabouts! But the next instant he cursed himself for even harboring such a thought.

Marion would have been utterly incapable of such a sneaking act! She could no more have done a think like that than Kay could.

"Search me!" It was evident that the man he was questioning was greatly enjoying Ted's stupefaction. "It was some Jane over in the Red River section. You seem to have girls all over the place!" he ended with mock admiration.

"Red River!" Ted had a gone feeling at the pit of his stomach, and for a moment he swayed dizzily in the saddle. "The Red River section?" he repeated incredulously. "There must be some mistake there! No one in those parts had any idea where I was!"

"Pears she was prowling around doing a bit of investigating on her own. Hi, there Sam!" he called ahead to the sheriff. "What was the name of that girl that tipped Zeke Farley off about this bird's whereabouts?"

"Crandon," the sheriff called back. "Old Man Crandon's daughter, who's been running the Lazy Nine since he kicked off, about a year ago."

Ted gripped the saddle horn to keep himself from toppling over as a rushing blackness closed in on him. Fighting with all his power against the faintness that assailed him, he gradually felt the roaring in his ears give way, and the reeling landscape steadied itself.

"It must all be a mistake," he kept telling himself, but a terrible conviction persisted that Sam Cutter knew what he was talking about. As though in a nightmare, Ted listened to the conversation of the two men, who were still talking back and forth, over his head to each other.

"I didn't stop to ask Zeke any more about it," Sam Cutter was saying. "The Crandon girl was staying at Josh Hastings' ranch, and she telephoned in from there. Said she saw him up there, with the black haired filly." He turned around in his saddle and leered at Ted. "Take it from me, it don't pay to have too many of 'em on the string at one time! Get 'em jealous and they raise hell!"

Ted was too dazed even to attempt a retort. Kay! Kay Crandon had betrayed him! He felt like shouting aloud that it was all a wild lie, but the shout died in his throat.

Pride to His Aid
They said that Kay had seen him with Marion! How . . . a sudden groan escaped Ted. He remembered now that Marion had thought she had heard something the afternoon before, when they had been talking. But if Kay had happened on them, why hadn't she made her presence known? Why . . . Suddenly, the significance of Sam Cutter's jeering advice flashed over him. Jealous! Could it be possible that Kay had been jealous?

Ted's heart quickened at this thought and what it implied, but the next minute he was in the depths again. Fool that he was, he told himself savagely, to think for a moment that Kay cared enough about him to be jealous!

"For a long time, Ted rode on in silence, his mind turning this way and that in an effort to find a way out of the labyrinth of despair that this act of Kay's had thrown him into.

Any way you looked at it, the conclusion was forced upon him that he had been mistaken in Kay. There was no excuse, after what had passed between them, for her to have given him up to the sheriff without allowing him a chance to explain his side of the story to her. He could forgive anything but treachery. And that was what Kay's act had been.

A reckless despair closed over Ted, but pride finally came to his aid. If Kay had done that, there was all the more reason to prove his innocence! If he was convicted, she would feel justified in her treacherous act. But when he was proved innocent, she would know that a despicable thing she had done.

Not that he ever wanted to see her again, Ted told himself fiercely. This time, he was finished with women, now and forever.

A vision of his mother and sister flashed before him, and he reproached himself bitterly for having concentrated so on Kay, to the exclusion of them. For their sake, he must fight himself clear of this web that he had become enmeshed in! For their sake, and for no one else!

It was nearly dark before the lights of Clear Water Basin showed up in the distance, and Ted was hanging on to his ebbing strength by sheer force of will.

When they at last reached the county jail, he heaved a great sigh of relief. Anything was better than that endless ride, with the desperate fight against physical weakness and those torturing thoughts.

He swayed as he dismounted, and reeled like a drunken man into the jail. The only thing of importance at the moment was sleep!

Like a man in a trance, he answered the questions put to him, and at last, after what seemed an eternity, he was led to a cell at the end of a corridor, and the key grated in the barred door behind him.

Dropping down on the iron cot, he fell into a deep sleep of exhaustion.

Wheels Within Wheels
It was dawn of the second day of the trial. Ted Gaynor sat on the edge of his bunk, and watched the gray light steal through the bars of the high window opposite him.

For seven days, now, he had watched that light change from drab gray to a sunny radiance.

and back to gray again; then had come the long period of black void, through which he snatched fitful hours of sleep.

As he sat now, with his chin in his hands, he was forced to admit that things were going badly. There was no doubt that feeling was being stirred up to run fiercely against him, and it was not hard to recognize who was behind it.

Josh Hastings was out to get him convicted, and Ted knew that from that source he could expect no quarter. He held a damning knowledge of Josh Hastings' past that would utterly ruin him, if Ted could ever bolster it up with tangible proof.

Knowing this, Josh Hastings naturally was out to make the most of this chance to get him out of the way once and for all.

As Ted had sat in the courtroom the day before, watching the forces arrayed against him, he had realized that far more than the murder of Scrap Johnson was involved. There were many wheels within wheels, and he was being made the victim of varying passions and desires.

Sam Cutter was determined to have a conviction to his credit before election. Josh Hastings wanted Ted out of his path. And Tom Runyon, Ted suspected, wanted to gain credit in Kay's eyes by helping to convict him.

Ted writhed inwardly as he remembered Tom Runyon's testimony yesterday. He had described finding Kay on the trail, and how she had told him about Ted and Marion. He had carefully left out any word of her real condition, and her delirium. Ted had heard only the damning confirmation of the account of his capture that had been given him on the trial by Sam Cutter.

The gun Kay had given him had been exhibited, and the bullet that had killed Scrap Johnson had been indisputably proved to have come from that gun.

They had also produced as witnesses the men who had been in Kelly's place the time Ted had fought with Scrap Johnson, and they testified, one after the other, that Ted had threatened to kill Scrap if he ever heard him mention a certain girl again.

Emperor Kang-Teh bought them as the nucleus of a greater family of sheep to roam the broad plains of Manchoukuo and add to the empire's growing prosperity.

Morse Code Helps Judge Decide Case

TOLEDO O., Aug. 13. (P)—Police Judge Homer A. Ramey learned the Morse code in his youth before he became familiar with the Ohio criminal code as attorney and judge. He used it to advantage when a defendant charged with drunkenness told the court he was a telegrapher. The judge tapped pensively on the bench with a pencil. The defendant immediately translated the tappings, and won dismissal. Judge Ramey decided he really was a telegrapher and was not drunk.

The Unaccommodating Kansan

By IRVIN S. COBB

OUR COUNTRY was enjoying one of its regular Japanese war-scares. I forget now, whether it was the fifteenth or the sixteenth Japanese war-scare. But anyhow, it was the one of the series we had here about five years ago. A congressman, representing a Kansas district, felt that a crisis impended—in fact, that a couple of crises impended. One crisis was the imminence, as he saw it, of hostilities with the little brown brother from across the Pacific; the other was the prospect that he might have strong opposition in his impending race for re-election. However, upon his arrival home, he was pained to note that the voters seemed strangely apathetic as regards the prospect of an invasion by the Mikado's armed forces. By a personal campaign the Representative undertook to arouse his people to the seriousness of the situation.

The first prospective convert he encountered was an elderly farmer, who listened as the statesman expounded his views and then slowly shook his head, in seeming dissent.

"But look here, John," protested the Congressman, "if this war comes it may be necessary to call every able-bodied man in America to arms. You even may be called. Wouldn't you fight the Japs if they set foot on the soil of this country?"

"I reckon I wouldn't do that," said the farmer. "From what I kin understand, most every Japanese is what they call a fatalist."

"What have their fatalistic inclinations got to do with your duty as a patriot?" asked the Congressman.

"Well," said the honest Kansan, "it looks to me like I couldn't derive much nourishment from fightin' with a lot of fellows that think you're doin' 'em a personal favor every time you kill one of 'em."

Electrified Wire Fences For Stock Found Practical

With growing interest in this area in electrified fences, a survey of the one being tried out at John Tarleton was made recently for the United States department of agriculture and it was found that these fences are practical.

The fences, barbed wire ones are best because the barbs penetrate the hair or fur of the animals and make the effect quicker, may have either one, two or three wires, as many as the owner prefers.

A small charge of electricity is sent through the fence with a high-line, storage batteries or one attached to a hot-shot, and predatory animals and dogs are kept out of pastures with livestock, mainly sheep, goats and cattle, and so far there has been no known fatality, either to animals or humans from contact with the fence.

According to those interested in the new type of fence, it has great possibilities. The wires in the fence may be run at any distance from the ground that may be desired by the owner to keep in or keep out the particular livestock, dogs, or wolves or whatever his need might be.

This is not an untried experiment. Many farmers have begun to use this device recently and report that it is saving them money in that the loss of their stock has been greatly reduced.

Attention of farmers and ranchers of this section is called to a petition being circulated by County Agent W. T. McGee. The petition is a formal request to the commissioners court of Shackelford county, asking that it obtain state and county funds to finance a predatory animal trapping program in this county. It is intended that a government trapper be obtained for this district, the petition read.

With the growing popularity of sheep raising in this section, ranchers are in need of protection from wolves and coyotes. Sheep-killing dogs, not as cautious as their wild kin, the wolf, have been well taken care of in the past by the rancher.

The comet, discovered July 4, by an eastern observer named Fensler, has been in view between the second and third stars of the handle of the Great Dipper, a constellation of the northern sky. The wandering fireball, larger than the earth, has started its trip back into space and, astrologists say, will

51-Year Drouth Ended Tuesday In Rising Star

RISING STAR, Aug. 13.—Beer on legal sale in Rising Star for the first time in 51 years due to a technicality in the calling of the Eastland county prohibition election last May.

City Tax Collector John Joyce issued a beer permit to Dew Drop on Monday upon presentation of county and state permits. In the May election the county went dry by some 200 votes, but before the votes could be canvassed an injunction was granted by Judge Davenport upon request of a group of citizens, who contended that the election was improperly advertised and that the ticket was incorrectly worded. When the injunction came up for a hearing Judge Davenport disqualified himself on account of blood relationship to one of the county commissioners and the case was heard before the Breckenridge district judge who sustained the injunction.

Appeal Made
An appeal was taken by the commissioners court but the case cannot be heard until the latter part of September when the Court of Civil Appeals re-opens after the summer vacation.

The attorney general and the district attorney gave out an opinion that the entire county was open to the sale of intoxicating liquor not to exceed 14 per cent until the disposition of the case. Beer was placed on sale in Gorman some ten days ago at which time a petition asking for a precinct election was circulated but was not presented to the commissioners court. Commissioner Sneathly stated yesterday that he did not believe that the court would order any precinct elections until the Court of Civil Appeals had acted on the case.

The Rising Star precinct has always voted more than three to one dry in previous elections regarding the sale of beer and wines.

Rising Star Schools Open September 6

RISING STAR, Aug. 13.—Rising Star schools will open Monday morning, September 6, Superintendent H. B. Self announced yesterday. Plans for the opening day include a program for the entire school system at the elementary school auditorium, beginning at 9 a. m. and featuring talks by Rising Star pastors.

Self said that he expected enrollment for the Rising Star schools to be one of the highest in history. He estimated that 675 students would attend the schools here this year, with the eighth grade having 70 students, the largest freshman class in the history of the Rising Star schools.

Four Buses

Four buses will be operated this year by the Rising Star school system, and a ward school will be taught in the Crocker community, about five miles northwest of town.

The high school has received affiliation for a half credit in Texas history, Self says, and new courses will probably be taught this year in third year vocational agriculture, commercial law, general mathematics, and commercial geography.

Fred Miller of Hasse was elected by the school board last Thursday night to the principal's post in the elementary school. Other teachers and their assignments are as follows:

Seals Thrive Off Coast of Mexico

LOS ANGELES, Aug. (AP)—Rapid increase of elephant seals off the coast of Lower California was reported by scientists who visited rookeries in Capt. G. Allen Hancock's scientific research cruiser Veleria III. Dr. Harry M. Wegeforth of the San Diego Zoological society said he counted 100 males in a single herd.

Once believed headed for extinction, the seals are now protected by the Mexican government.

Rich Builder Likes Living in Rail Car

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 13. (AP)—George Vang, wealthy Pittsburgh contractor, lives down by the railroad tracks in summer—and likes it.

His home is a one-time army hospital car which he purchased in 1914 as his roving headquarters on construction jobs.

Vang liked the seclusion of the railroad car so well that he decided to make it his summer home. The "house," luxuriously furnished, is flanked by a rocky hill on one side and a small lake on the other.

OIL ENRICHES SCHOOLS

AUSTIN, Aug. 13. (AP)—Texas public schools are believed to be the wealthiest in the nation. They own between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 acres of land, and much of it is either producing oil or is considered potentially productive.

Rotan Producer Ranks as Largest In Abilene Area

ROTAN, Aug. 13.—Potential rating Thursday of the Rotan field's third well, the Lewis Production company No. 1 Preston Morrow was placed at 6,600 barrels by the state railroad commission. This exceeded by 3900 barrels production next best well, and is the largest producer in this section.

The rating was made after the well, 330 feet from the north and 330 feet from the west line of section 172, block 2, H&TC survey and quarter of a mile south of the field's discovery well, Southern Oil No. 1 Robinson, flowed 1,651 barrels through six and five-eighths casing and two and a half inch tubing in six hours and 55 minutes, filling all available storage. The test produced 17 more barrels the last hour than any other with exception of first.

Pay was topped at 3544 feet and the hole was bottomed at 3549. Gas was encountered from 3544-46 and the well headed 80 feet over the derrick last Friday in deepening.

Six-inch casing had been set at 2518. The well is 16 feet lower on structure than the pool opener and is 18 feet higher on elevation. The Southern's elevation is 1,947.

The well previously had made an unofficial rating of 388 barrels per hour. Production for 24 hours in the discovery well was rated at 2100 barrels and the Tidewater No. 1 Smith made a potential rating of 2700 barrels.

With announcement of the rating, the Lewis No. 2 Morrow, 660 feet to the east, was spudded.

Those Complying With Program to Be Given Loans

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13. (AP)—A senate delegation reported today after a conference with President Roosevelt that they agreed that immediate loans would be made to farmers who pledged to comply with the surplus control program if it is enacted in the next session.

Senator Bilbo of Mississippi said loan amounts had not yet been determined, but if they were 10 cents on cotton the government would grant a subsidy of two cents, in effect pegging the price at 12 cents a pound.

He said growers of wheat, corn and hogs would be given the same consideration as the cotton farmer.

two weeks visit with Mr. Kleiner here. After driving from Cisco to El Paso Monday, Mrs. Kleiner checked out of the Hilton hotel at El Paso at 7:37, driving the little more than 300 miles in nine hours.

A governor which had been placed on the car preventing it from travelling more than 60 miles an hour was still on the wrecked machine, while evidence gathered at the scene of the crash tended to show that the Kleiner's big sedan in attempting to get around a huge truck was side-swiped by the truck and forced off the highway, a tire being blown out. Mrs. Kleiner, who was driving held the machine to the road for a hundred feet, according to a Tucson newspaper account, but when she attempted to turn back to the pavement, the rim of the wheel, stripped of its tire, bit into the soft asphalt, throwing the car over.

Adjoining Lots

Adjoining lots near the entrance to Oakwood cemetery have been selected for the burials. Mrs. Barnes will be interred near the bodies of Mrs. Kleiner and of Charles, Jr., for whose improvement from a serious bronchial trouble her care was largely responsible. The close relationship of the burial plots will symbolize the attachment that existed between Mrs. Barnes and the family, with whom she was regarded as a second mother.

The three bodies were taken from the train and carried directly to Green's Funeral home where the final preparations for burial will be made.

A special nurse accompanied the surviving children from Tucson and they are in her care at the Kleiner home at 1400 L avenue.

Mr. Kleiner and his three surviving children arrived from Tuc-son by American Airlines plane at the Abilene airport yesterday. Cars from Cisco, Abilene and from many other places, some as far east as Gladewater, brought hundreds of friends and relatives and close business associates to meet them. It was estimated that fully 50 cars went from Cisco to accompany them to their home here.

The bodies of Mrs. Kleiner, Mrs. Barnes and Charles, Jr., arrived on the Texas and Pacific Sunshine Special at noon today, accompanied by Harvey Lee Hays, cousin of Mrs. Kleiner, and Mr. Barnes and N. P. "Pete" Barnes, 19-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Barnes. Both Mr. Barnes and his son were in Tucson, where they were employed, when the accident occurred.

Mrs. Kleiner was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Wagoner of Abilene. She was born January 22, 1911. She and Mr. Kleiner were married at Abilene on October 24, 1926.

In addition to her parents, she is survived by her husband and three children who escaped serious injury in the accident, Mary Louise, 5; Elizabeth Ann, 3, and James, 18 months; a brother, Everett Wagoner of the Abilene post office; an uncle, J. G. Hancock, of Oklahoma City, and the following aunts: Mrs. S. B. Estes of Clyde, Mrs. John Morrisett of Clyde, Mrs. John McKee of Baird, Mrs. M. L. Hays of Abilene, and Mrs. Rolly Jones of Abilene.
