Japanese Planes Bomb Chinese Positions

Robin Hood

Bow-And-Arrow Hunter Bags Mexico's Child-Killing Jaguar

TEX STONE & EL TIGRE: He did it with his bow and arrow.

By The AP Feature Service
DALLAS, Texas.—"Tex Stone," a modern Robin Hood, has added to his hunting trophies the pelt of El Tigre, 265-pound jaguar blamed by border stockmen for the deaths of two Mexican children and untold depredations on their herds.

As proof that he really did it with his not-so-little bow and arrow, Stone brought back from Los Robles plateau in Mexico a movie film of the kill. His rewards: a $250 bounty from the Border Stockmen's association, and a three-month vacation.

Charles Stone, who now lives in St. Louis, got started hunting with bow and arrows several years ago when he was a cowboy in the Big Bend country of Texas. Since then he has perfected his archery in Africa, Asia, Australia and South America.

Hunting with a high-powered rifle, he says, doesn't give the game a sporting chance. He chooses, instead, a 4 1/2-foot bow of 72-pound pull and, for arrows, cedar shafts tipped with bandsaw steel. Just for safety's sake, though, he also carries a pistol—but for use only in an emergency.

FLEETS PUT INTO AID OF LAND FORCES

Six Japanese Steamers Seized by Chinese Troops in Raid

SHANGHAI, Aug. 18 (AP)—Japanese warplanes bombed Chinese positions tonight in a moonlight attack against Chinese hordes pushing Japanese land forces toward the sea.

The bombing climaxed a day in which Japan's combined first and third fleets were thrown into action to prevent land forces from being hemmed in.

Chinese troops in a daring raid under Japanese guns, seized six moored Japanese steamers, and scuttled them into the upper channel of the Whangpoo, blocking Japanese warships.

Fire of Chinese snipers twice endangered Americans on tenders evacuating refugees to the liner McKinley, where once those on deck were forced to lie flat because of the dangerous nearness of Japanese airplanes.

Evacuation was speeded as mobs of homeless, infuriated Chinese roamed the streets looting, killing and taxing efforts of international police to maintain order. Within the city precautions were taken to safeguard dwindling food supplies.

Cisco Tennis Tourney Begun This Morning

The city tennis tournament, dedicating the new municipal court, the erection of which was a result of an enterprise sponsored by the young people of the First Methodist church, got under way this morning when two young ladies, Paulette Ruppert and Betty-rue Logan began competition. The result of this and other morning matches was not reported at press time today.

All arrangements have been made and practically every tennis player in town, past and present, is entered with high hopes of victory and a chance to win prizes which have not as yet been announced but which will be appropriate for such an award.

Gordon Sherman, assisted by Billy Hanson, has charge of the tournament and by the efforts of these two the job of pairing players and of scheduling games has been completed.

This tournament has created a great deal of interest on the part of the older citizens as well as the younger set and the entry list discloses the names of many of the Cisco business men.

Due to a large entry list and the

BOARD TAKES NO ACTION ON GRID MENTOR

Holiday Schedule for Coming Year Adopted at Meeting

Winding up details of the high school organization for the forthcoming term, the Cisco school board met last night and fixed Monday, September 13, as the date for the opening of the term.

No action was taken on the high school football coach vacancy which occurred with the resignation of Walter Roach, who was elected head coach last spring. The board indicated, however, that election of a new coach would be done speedily in order not to hamper the beginning of football training activity next month.

It was explained that the Cisco schools have been customarily opened on the second Monday in September and that the weather is cooler.

The board employed three building custodians and three drivers of school buses. All were employed on the customary month to month basis.

Ben A. Brown was employed as custodian for the high school building, M. H. Spoon for the east ward and Jess Taylor for the west ward and the grammar school. Calvin Jacobs was retained as grounds caretaker.

C. M. Brittain, E. F. Alsbrook and W. A. Moon will drive the three large school buses.

The holiday schedule was adopted as follows: Thanksgiving holidays will be November 25 and 26, making, with the usual Saturday and Sunday week-end holidays, four days. Teachers will be given opportunity to attend the Texas State Teachers association convention at this time.

Christmas and New Year's vacations begin on December 22 and school will resume on January 3.

The Easter holidays will be the Thursday and Friday before Easter Sunday.

The latter season of relief from school activities comes in the middle of the longer term after Christmas and its purpose is to break the monotony in the interests of better work, Supt. R. N. Cluck explained. No time is lost from the term, however, which will end about May 20.

With prospects for the largest enrollment in many years and with the system in excellent financial condition the board is anticipating a year of extraordinary success in the operation of the schools.

Abilene Girls Commit 15 Errors, Fall Before A. G. Motor Team by 11-7 Score

Cashing in on 15 errors by the Abilene team and smashing out ten hits, the A-G Motor company girls team last night handed the Abilene girls a 11 to 7 shellacking to gain their second win over that team.

The two teams, playing at the local park before a large crowd, fought a close game with the many Abilene errors accounting strongly in the defeat.

Everitt, Abilene pitcher, given little support, pitched gamely, fanning 9 Cisco batters while Brown whiffed 5 Abilene Batsmen.

The Abilene team, in losing made only 7 hits and Cisco led all the way.

The scoring opened in the second inning when the local girls marked up three runs. The invaders scored once the same inning and added another the next frame after Cisco had failed to tally.

The winners scored three more in the fourth and one each in the fifth and sixth and two in the seventh, with the final run coming in the eighth.

Meanwhile the losers failed to tally again until the seventh when they scored three and added a

PRICE-CUTTING BILL IS SIGNED

'Fair Trade' Acts to Be Effected

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—President Roosevelt signed with expressed reluctance today a bill designed to eliminate price-cutting of nationally advertised products. The measure, attached as a rider to a District of Columbia tax bill, effectuates "fair trade" acts in force in 42 states.

The president said there was some belief by government officials the bill would raise the price of many articles and several departments had favored a veto, but he was signing the bill "in the hope it was not as harmful as most people predict."

Plans Complete for Merchants Motor Picnic

Plans were practically complete today for the Merchants Fast Motor lines picnic to be held at Lake Cisco next Sunday, preceded by a dance at the Cisco Country club sponsored by the employees.

W. E. Dean, Cisco agent for the company, is chairman of arrangements. The program calls for assembly at the lake Sunday morning at 9 for swimming, boating, fishing, golfing and hiking; a brief welcome at noon followed by a chicken barbecue at 12:30; speaking by visiting officials and local speakers, including City Attorney R. E. Cranham, at 2:30, and a watermelon slicing at 5 o'clock.

Between 400 and 800 officials, employees and guests from a wide area of west Texas are expected to be here.

Life Saving Classes Are Resumed Today

Life saving instruction was resumed this morning at Lake Cisco under the direction of Blair Clark and Jim Berry, both of whom recently passed the Red Cross examiners examination.

Nine juniors and two seniors are signed for the course. They are Billy Butts Wright, Glenn Tableman, Glenn Boyd, John D. Ward, J. B. Duff, Mary Frances Keough, Gail Jones, Ellis Lee and Edwin Wheeler of Winters. Crandall Jones and Evatt Horne are the seniors.

4 Cisco Boys Receive John Tarleton Merits

STEPHENVILLE, Aug. 18 (Sp)—A. J. Spangler, director of the department of agriculture at John Tarleton college, announced today that certificates of merit for agricultural achievements have been awarded from Texas Area IV headquarters to four Cisco boys.

Bennie Black received an award for farm shop, Almus Fannin for farm shop, Ernest Reich, for farm shop, and P. M. Munn for pruning stone fruits.

Since last June, almost 2000 certificates of merit have been issued from Area IV headquarters at John Tarleton college to Future Farmers of America in the area, according to Director Spangler, who is supervisor of Area IV.

M. E. Young People To Picnic Tonight

Kalma and Mary Jack Rice of DeLeon, nieces of Rev. Joe Patterson, will be honored at a picnic to be given today at Lake Cisco by the young people of the First Methodist church.

The group will leave the church at 6:30 each with a picnic lunch, and ways will be provided for all, it was said.

Following the picnic the time will be spent in skating and swimming, it was said.

Chamber of Commerce Seeks Peanut Warehouse for Cisco

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

California is taking steps to abate the menace to highway safety presented by the rapid growth of trailer transportation. Under a recent law no trailer may park within 20 feet of a travelled highway, except within incorporated city limits. Provision is also made for the issuance of permits by the state division of immigration and housing after an inspection, and there are regulations governing sanitary conditions. It has become recognized that the field of trailer transportation presents a problem in safety and sanitation with which states must deal as they are dealing with trucks. Presence upon the highways of any and every kind of trailer develops a menace that traffic cannot long endure without consequences in disaster and public inconvenience of serious character.

So popular has the method become that these travelling houses are being constructed of almost any kind of material that will

Votes Last Night to Name Committee to Work With Starr

The chamber of commerce board of directors last night voted appointment of a committee from the board to work with the secretary and with W. B. Starr, president of the Southwest Peanut Growers association on a program for assisting the cooperatives in the establishment of a peanut warehouse and promoting the success of the newly formed organization.

Personnel of the committee is to be named by the president of the chamber.

The board declined to undertake to finance a proposed trip of the Lobo band to the Frontier Fiesta at Fort Worth, explaining that the value of the trip to the city for advertising purposes would be negligible and that the cost would be out of proportion to the benefits.

The board directed that suitable resolutions of sympathy be prepared and presented to Charles J. Kleiner, member of the organization, on the deaths of Mrs. Kleiner and their son, Charles, Jr., in an automobile wreck near Tucson, Ariz.

A report on highway construction activity was made by Secretary J. E. Spencer, who said that work on the new Highway No. 1 overpass over the M. K. and T. tracks on Eighth street was due

FLAME TRAIL

BY MARIE DE NERVAUD

SYNOPSIS: Kay Crandon of the Lazy Nine impulsively hires Ted Gaynor, a jobless puncher. He helps her fight Josh Hastings, a "friendly" neighbor who wants to buy her ranch and marry Kay. Ted punnels Scrap Johnson, a cowhand who molested Kay. They shoot it out, wounding each other. Hastings sneaks up and kills Scrap with Ted's gun. A girl named Marion finds Ted and her nursing saves his life. He is arrested and about to be convicted of Scrap's murder when Kay stops the trial by a technical protest. Hastings kidnaps Kay, locks her in a cellar and tries to force her to agree to marriage.

Chapter 42 Kay's In Trouble!

Ted's first reaction, when Joe had taken him back to his cell and left him, was an immense relief and thankfulness for the detour that, for the moment, crowded out thoughts of anything else. There was no doubt in Ted's mind that if the case had gone to the jury then, the verdict would have been guilty. But for Kay, all hope would be gone.

For a few minutes, thoughts of Kay filled his mind. How sweet she had looked! And how hurt and mist his her eyes had been as they met his hard, scornful glance that passed her by. Yet, how could she expect him to look or feel any other way? In spite of his deep resentment against Kay, he felt a glow of pride as he remembered how straight and defiant she had stood, as she challenged Sam Cutter.

She hadn't stopped to measure what people might think after that remark of Sam Cutter's about Ted having fought Scrap Johnson for something he had said about a "red-headed filly!" Naturally, everyone would know she was the girl involved, after that. But, in being, despite of it, she had proudly ignored the possibility of gossip, and she had gained him this respect.

Ted clenched his hand and struck it fiercely against his cot as though sealing a sudden decision. Just sitting passively wasn't going to get him out of this mess! He'd had proof at this trial that the knowledge of his own innocence wasn't enough; and while he stayed in jail, how was he ever going to find new evidence to convince anyone else of it?

For the thousandth time, he prowled around his cell, trying to find some loophole of escape. He could hear the crowds that had come out of the court room tramping past outside. Through the small grated window, high up in one side, he could catch bits of conversation and comments about the trial, but there was no chance there of making a break. Even if he could have succeeded in wrenching the grating out of place, the opening was too small for him to squeeze himself through.

Some way or other, he must find his chance while they were transporting him from Idaho over into Montana. He must play the role of being passively acquiescent, and then watch his chance to make a break.

For a long time he thought out the possible openings there might be. When Joe brought him his lunch, he tried to find out whether they were going to take him around by train, or over the trail.

on horseback. But if Joe knew, he refused to tell.

Two Voices

It was along some time in the afternoon that Ted's attention was attracted by two voices, in angry altercation outside his window. The crowds had ceased to pass by, and the small alley way that ran along the side of the jail had long since been deserted and quiet.

Impelled by a sudden curiosity, Ted dragged his cot over under the window, and stood up on it to listen to what the two men below were saying. The window was too high for him to see out, but he could distinctly hear their hoarse whispers.

"Shut up, I tell yuh!" one of them growled. "I won't go divies with yuh at all, if yuh're goin' to be a fool!"

"The read head was a dead game little sport," the other voice protested, and at his words, Ted's idle curiosity changed to tense attention. "I'm for getting her out of a mess like that."

"Yuh do, and everything's over between us!" The first voice growled. "And when I say 'over,' I mean 'over!' Get me?"

Ted heard a "huffing" movement, then the second voice gave sudden assent.

"All right. Have it your own way! Where'd you say she was?"

"I ain't just rightly sure. Here's the story. I was upstairs in Red's joint, looking out the window and I seen the kid that upset the trial running down the street. All of a sudden, she falls flat, and this Hastings guy, who's been running after her, picks her up, and pitches her into his car and heads for the north end of town. Being kind of curious, I gets down in record time and on my cuss, that's waiting there, and points after him. He's got too much head start, though, and I loses track of him."

"I'm just about decidin' that there's no business in it for me, when I sees his car headed for the station. The Overland's just about due, and I gives chase. He leaves his car this side of the track and runs over to the platform where there's quite a crowd millin' about, that's come from the trial. The train comes in, before I gets across the track, and while I'm waitin' for it to pass, I have a look at the car. It's empty."

"I hang around until the train has started, and he comes back talking with a guy. He says, 'I've just got Kay Crandon off on a train.' That's where I smells a rat in earnest, because I know darn well he hasn't got her off on the train. So, I high-tails it back to the north end of town, and do a bit of investigating on my own. And I'm satisfied he's got her hid in Ran Simpkin's deserted blacksmith shop there. That information's worth money, boy. And he's got enough dough to pay through the nose."

Standing at rigid attention through this recital, Ted felt a surge of rage through him that sent the blood pounding into his head, so that for a moment the sound of the voices outside was drowned out. When he heard 'henn' again, they were moving off, and had changed the subject.

"Yeah. The fire's been burning five days, now. Creepin' up toward the Bitter Root, they say. They sent out a call for Runyon to—" the voices died off in the distance. Ted, after listening to the retreating footsteps, stepped heavily down from the cot.

'He'll Go Easy Enough'

The astonishing information that he had overheard filled Ted with desperate resolve. If he had determined to make a break before, it was a thousand times more necessary now.

All memory of Kay's treacherous betrayal of his hiding place was wiped out of his mind, as Ted thought of her present predicament. The fact that she was at Josh Hastings' mercy made it all the more devastating. Somehow, somehow, he had to get free to save her!

He dragged his cot back to its original position, and paced back and forth, listening with strained nerves for any sound in the corridor. At last a door opened at the far end, and he heard Sam Cutter's voice, then the tramp of footsteps.

"He'll go easy enough," Sam Cutter was saying. "Too bad you missed taking him on the Overland, but you'll make better time now, cutting across the mountains. You can take the same horse that brought him over."

"O.K.," Zeke Farley answered. "Which cell is he in?"

Ted dropped down on his cot and looked up with an expression of stupid apathy as the two sheriffs appeared at the door.

"Why in hell couldn't you have finished up the trial here?" he demanded irritably. "For Pete's sake get a move on and get me over to Montana where I can get this business cleared up once and for all!"

Sam Cutter threw a significant look toward Zeke Farley as though saying, "You see! I told you, you wouldn't have any trouble."

"Believe me, we're not wasting any time," Zeke Farley stepped

Ass'n Mourns Death of Birt Britain

The board of directors of the Cisco National Farm Loan association meeting Saturday at Eastland, passed the following resolutions on the death of Birt Britain:

Whereas the Ruler of the destiny of men has called from the walks of this life, to take his place in the home prepared for the children of God, our co-worker, fellow director, and dear friend, Birt Britain; be it resolved: that the board of directors of the Cisco National Farm Loan association has sustained the loss of a valued and most noble leader. That we will miss his sound judgment in the handling of the problems we meet, and feel the added load to carry on without him.

We shall ever remember his noble stand for the right, and at all times his efforts to be of help to those that he could, to the limit of good business judgment. His life, and our association with him, will be an inspiration to us to carry on for the sound management of the affairs of the Cisco National Farm Loan association, and to be better friends to our fellow man. It can truly be said of Birt Britain, "He was a friend of man." He met every call on his time, talent, or his finances, to his full ability, and as a true and noble gentleman at all times. His life has set a worthy example and inspiration for his sons over to Ted. "How about my putting you on parole?"

"I got here all right, didn't I?" Ted snapped. "Ask the sheriff there."

"Sure he did," Sam Cutter answered, adding with thinly veiled sarcasm, "I'm not afraid of a prisoner giving me the slip, when I've got my gun on me!"

"Neither am I," Zeke Farley countered grimly. "Come on."

and daughter, and left a sacred memory to cheer his noble wife along the way of her journey in this life, to be completed without the aid of his tender care and devotion.

Birt, has gone home to his God, and our God, where we have that hope to join with him again in the life eternal. There, we are sure, he will be found doing the will of his Master, with the same nobleness of purpose as directed his life here, and with a better understanding of the ways of God.

Resolved, that this resolution be sent to the family of Birt Britain, that it be spread on the minutes of this association, and that copies be furnished local papers for publication.

The Emperor Domitian of Rome is known as "the last of the 12 Caesars."

Can They Do It Again?

DUTCH MEYER MATTY BELL

That's the question Southwestern football fans are asking concerning these two famous head grid coaches, Meyer of Texas Christian University and Bell of Southern Methodist, who last year gained distinction as the only men in history to pilot a group of college all-stars to a football victory over a recognized professional team. Directing a band of stellar stars, all seniors of the previous season's college campaign, they defeated the mighty professional Chicago Bears, 7 to 6, in the south's first dream game. Because of their outstanding success in 1936, the Greater Texas and Pan American Exposition athletic committee unanimously elected Meyer and Bell to coach a similar group of college all-stars this year and accepted a challenge by George Halas, president-coach of the Chicago Bears, for a return meeting with Matty and Dutch. All indications are that this year's all-star team, headed by Slinging Sammy Baugh, will be even greater than the 1936 eleven. Can they upset the powerful Bears again? Bell and Meyer are hopeful. The answer will be given the night of September 6 in the big Cotton Bowl at the Greater Texas and Pan American Exposition, where a near capacity crowd is expected to see the greatest assembly of gridiron talent in action that has ever been brought together in the south.

stay together and often equipped with the most inadequate of brakes and other essential mechanical features. Some of them are as flimsy as matchwood. Many of them are ineffectively attached to the towing cars and so poorly controlled that they weave from side to side, in imminent danger of swaying into the path of a passing car or coming loose altogether. These are dangers that demand the strictest regulation. Texas will might take this problem into consideration.

Lightning Does Strike Twice in Same Place

BROADUS, Mont., Aug. 18. (AP)—Lightning never strikes twice in the same place? "Well, it did me," said William Davis, shepherd.
A bolt struck him and knocked off his hat. Two minutes later, recovered with his daze, he was struck again as he stood in the same spot. His socks and shoes were torn away, and he was deaf for days.
