WPA PROJECTS SPONSORS WILL MEET

SITUATION IN THIS SECTION 'DEPLORABLE'

Brought on By Regulations, Financial Requirements, Says

A meeting of sponsors of WPA projects in Eastland county and surrounding counties with representatives of the regional WPA office at Eastland Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock has been arranged at the request of Cong. Clyde L. Garrett, acting on behalf of the Eastland county commissioners court, it was announced here this morning by Comm'r Arch Birt, Garrett, returning to Eastland Sunday, Monday wired State Administrator H. P. Drought at San Antonio that revised regulations and added financial requirements from sponsors had created a situation that was deplorable and in many instances impossible, and urged that something be done to alleviate the situation.

This morning Drought talked with Garrett over telephone and asked the meeting to which he will send his personal representative, Alton Bell, and Major Karl E. Wallace of the Fort Worth office of the WPA.

Reduced Truck Allowance The chief obstacle with which the Eastland commissioners court has to contend in financing its share of WPA projects is the reduction in truck hire allowances. This, Mr. Birt said, makes it practically impossible for the county, in its present financial state, to prosecute the work projects it is sponsoring, particularly the construction of lateral roads. The court is asking that the regulations applying on January 1, under which $5 per man per month was allowed for truck hire, be reestablished.

Sponsors of projects in Eastland county and surrounding counties are now being notified by the Eastland court to send representatives to the meeting Monday.

Garrett's telegram to Drought Monday read:

"Upon arriving in district I find situation confronting WPA sponsors due to recent regulations alarming. The added financial requirements made on sponsor's render it absolutely impossible for them to participate in program. In event local agencies can not continue to participate in this work the situation among unemployed will fast become more and more deplorable. Due to severe drought in much of the district makes it impossible for but very few unemployed to find farm labor.

WAR SCARE INCREASING

Attacks Upon Shipping Draw Fire

LONDON, Sept. 9 (AP)—France and Great Britain answered the German-Italian refusal to take part in the Mediterranean "anti-piracy" conference today with a new determination to use their warships to prevent attacks upon shipping.

Both also insisted the conference at Switzerland tomorrow would achieve definite results despite the refusal of fascist powers to take part.

Germany's reply was drafted in complete collaboration with Mussolini.

Italy, at first inclined to accept the invitation, contended Soviet accusations that Italian submarines torpedoed two Soviet ships had introduced at the last moment a grave element into the situation.

Italy and Germany contended the question should be one for the inactive "hands off Spain" committee.

Former Ciscoan Dies Tuesday

Death of H. L. LaRue, former Ciscoan, occurred at his Paris home Tuesday night, it was learned here today. Mr. LaRue, employed here by Humble until about three years ago, is the father of Mrs. Satch Henson, Mr. and Mrs. Henson both are in Paris.

Details of his illness and funeral arrangements were not learned. It was understood, however, that death followed a surgical operation.

Town Appears to Be Back of Team

Cisco's prospects for the coming season may not look so encouraging but there is one thing that will no doubt prove very helpful to the Cisco Lobos and their coaches this year.

Indications are that this year the town is showing much more interest in the team than it has for the past several seasons.

Whether it is the coaches, the boys, or other reasons, every afternoon and sometimes in the mornings crowds of Cisco people interested in another winning football team like those of a decade ago, go to the field to watch the boys working. And they nearly always come back pleased with the attitude of the boys.

The Lobos are small and things look dark for the season's grid wars but they have shown spectators in practice that they mean to make things as rough as possible for any team they meet.

One of the biggest drawbacks for the tough seasons opener—Lubbock—will be the lack of practice by the Cisco boys. They are willing to work and have been given several plays that they have learned, but it takes many long hours to build a team and the Cisco coaches appear to be doing a fine job of it considering the material and time they have for the curtain raiser.

The time is now being spent mainly with putting the boys in shape and practicing on the plays. The coach Wednesday afternoon commended the boys for better spirit and a seemingly strong desire to mold into a victory-grabbing football eleven.

55 JUNIORS REGISTERED

Over Thirty More Are Expected

High school registration continued today as 55 juniors registered before 11 o'clock this morning. At least 33 more were expected to register before the day was over said O. L. Stamey high school principal.

If Mr. Stamey's predictions are correct the junior class will be the second largest in high school with only the freshmen class making higher in numbers. The freshmen class will exceed 100.

At the close of the period of senior registration yesterday, the records disclosed that around 70 had enrolled.

The last day of registration will be in progress tomorrow when the sophomores are due to sign up. Attendance will probably be about the same as that of last year Mr. Stamey remarked after the third day of registering.

Monday was the time set for the issuance of books and Tuesday morning will probably start off class work, it was said.

Brother of Cisco Man Is Buried at Baird

M. H. Ray of Cisco was called to Baird Wednesday by a message announcing the death of a brother, W. J. Ray, veteran Chevrolet dealer of that place. A native of Georgia, Mr. Ray, age 69, moved to Callahan county soon after his marriage and settled in Cottonwood. Four years later the family moved to Baird where he established a Chevrolet agency, which was said to have been the oldest agency for that motor company in Texas.

His death was due to a paralytic stroke suffered five weeks ago.

Besides M. H. Ray of this city, and M. F. Ray of Cross Plains, several sisters and brothers survive. The immediate survivors are his widow, three sons, who were associated with him in business, Lonnie, Ralph and Harold Ray; another son, Woodfin, of El Paso; two daughters, Mrs. C. J. Mann of Pampa; nine grandchildren, and three brothers and five sisters.

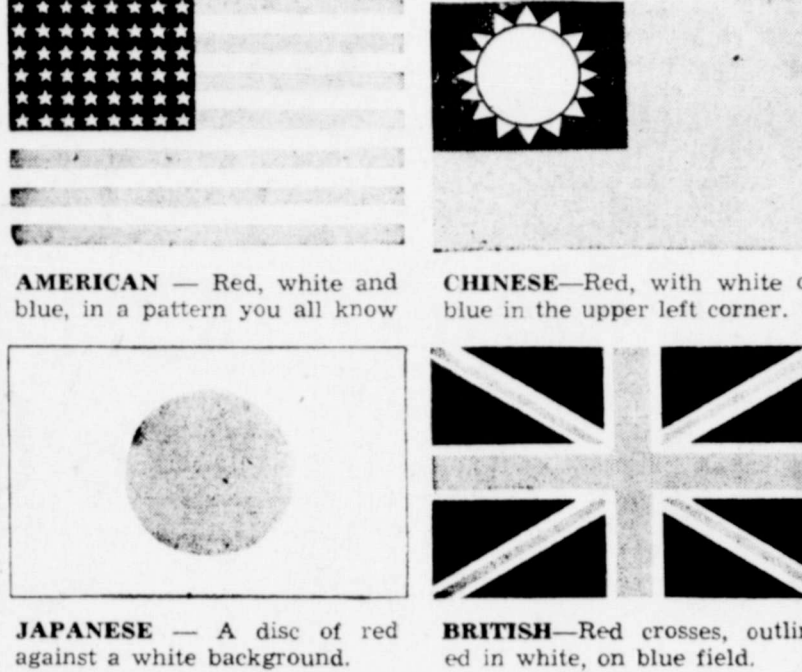

Jimmie Fields of Eastland is visiting his brother, Davis Fields, and Mrs. Fields.

Bob Black of Moran was a business visitor here Thursday.

Fish Hatchery Work To Begin on Friday

Estimated $25,000 Improvement and Repair Project to Employ 60, Last 8 Months

Work on the estimated $25,000 repair improvement project at the Cisco fish hatchery will be begun Friday with W. F. Wilson, who supervised the football stadium work, to be in charge.

The work will mainly be changing of the creek channel at the fish hatchery where it has begun to cut into the hatchery. A stone retaining wall will be built along the creek to prevent its cutting any more into the hatchery, D. C. Harper of the hatchery, has reported.

The hatchery, one of the leading ones of the state, will be greatly improved as far as efficiency in operation is concerned, it was said.

Of the estimated $25,000 cost of the project, about 80 per cent will go for labor reports Mr. Harper, thus bringing much of the money into circulation in Cisco. The laborers will mainly be taken from the football stadium project that has just been completed.

About 60 men, two shifts of 30 each, will be worked. These men will have employment for approximately eight months, it was said.

At Amoy Americans scurried into bombproof dugouts as Japanese launched an attack.

Near Peiping 4,000 Japanese troops were reported wiped out by Chinese ambush.

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Three philosophies of life involved in the parable of the Good Samaritan were discussed before the Cisco Rotary club at its noon luncheon today by the Rev. W. M. Mix, Albany minister, in an address almost as good as his wife's beautiful singing. Mrs. Mix sang three numbers, the third an encore in response to club insistence which followed her singing of a Spanish waltz song and "Sweetheart" from Victor Herbert's charming "Maytime" light opera. Like "Sweetheart," the encore was another of Herbert's lovely melodies, an old favorite from Naughty Marietta, "Sweet Mystery of Life." Mrs. Biggs accompanied.

The three philosophies so well discussed by the Albany minister were: "What you have is mine, and I'll get it, if I can"; "What I have is mine and I'll keep it," and "What I have is mine, but I'll share it." It was one of the most applications of the parable to the facts of human nature that the club has ever heard, made without preaching, and directed in a practical way toward everyday life.

Before beginning his address, the Albany minister paid his respects to Phil Pettit, whom he accused of having gone to Albany, gotten up before a chamber of commerce luncheon and "betrayed" him by repeating certain remarks the minister had made in the course of an address before the Cisco club last year. He had been under the impression, Mix said, that Rotary clubs were composed of honorable men, who wouldn't tell things told them in confidence, but that he had learned there was one renegade in the Cisco bunch.

What he said about Phil, I shall leave to Phil to repeat, but he did have the Cisco telephone manager grinning like a mule eating briars, his characteristic cigar angling up ten more degrees toward the roof.

But Phil was sport enough to take it. "I'm coming back and get some more of that," he said.

Cisco's Fire Department of 1891

Caps, Mustaches Old-Time Fire Dept. Uniforms

The above cut is a reproduction of a photograph of the personnel of Cisco's fire department taken 46 years ago, and is from a photograph preserved by Fred Grist, member of the present department and loaned to the chamber of commerce from which it was secured for this publication. They are:

Martin, Will Werneburg, Ben James, Arthur Boyd, Joe Lovelady.

The equipment of the department consisted of a hook and ladder truck and hose reel, and when an alarm was sounded the boys would rush to the fire house, grab the ropes and race to the scene of the fire like mad. Some of the fleshy members would fall by the wayside, and struggle in later, one of the members said. As indicated by the picture, the uniforms of the members consisted of caps and mustaches.

Recalls Many Incidents

A companion picture has also been preserved by J. A. Karkalits, who was a member of the department when this picture was made. Naming the members of the group for the Cisco Press, Mr. Karkalits recalled some of the incidents that occurred about that time, which was about two years before the memorable cyclone which resulted in the almost complete destruction of Cisco, and in which a number of its citizens were killed.

"I do not recall any disastrous fires that occurred about that time," Mr. Karkalits said, "except that which resulted from the cyclone, and fired the Holcomb building at the corner D avenue and Sixth street. R. F. Davis, who was chief of the department at that time, was doing business in the building next door, now occupied by the New Boston Store. The Holcomb building was a two-story structure, and the cyclone cut the second story away as though it was the work of mechanics, and the blaze broke out in that building. The flames cut through the archway into the Davis store, and for some time it was thought the walls would cave-in. Chief Davis would not consent for the firemen to go into the building to extinguish the blaze for fear they would be killed. Finally he left and the boys took the hose inside and extinguished the blaze, but not until the stock of merchandise was practically destroyed.

"Davis carried insurance on the merchandise, but the company denied liability, and he only collected on his policy after an expensive and long-drawn lawsuit. Premonitions of Disaster

"But referring to the cyclone, I recall two incidents of premonitions of impending disaster. Geo. Daniels was in business here at that time. During the day the cyclone struck he visited an insurance agent and requested he be written a policy on his building and merchandise. The agent told he was out of application blanks, but to call the next day. Daniels insisted getting a policy right then, and requested the agent to make a search for a blank, saying he would stay until he found one. The agent finally located just one blank application, and wrote Daniels a policy. That was the day of the cyclone. Daniels' building and stock were completely destroyed.

"But in this case the insurance company again denied liability. Suit was instituted on the policy, and after appealing through several courts, he finally was awarded judgment on his policy with interest, which he collected.

"The other incident was that in which John Knight had a premonition that some disaster was impending. The Baptists of the Cisco district were holding a workers conference at a church over in Stephens county, 20 miles from Cisco. There were many attending from here, and these were seated outside in the shade conversing, when Knight drove up in his two-wheeled cart and joined the group. After about 20 minutes he remarked that he was going back to Cisco. He was deaf to the persuasion of his friends to remain, and returned home. Shortly after reaching Cisco the cyclone struck with all its fury. When the dead and damage were determined it was ascertained that his sister-in-law, Mrs. William Knight, was killed, a two by four scantling having passed through her body.

"I don't pretend to understand these premonitions. Whether it was a freak of the imagination, a 'hunch,' or a divine warning, I know not, but just mention these facts, so 'believe it or not!'"

Two Neighboring Counties Included In Road Projects

AUSTIN, Sept. 9.—The highway commission has made public its list of secondary projects for 1938-39 as submitted to the United States bureau of public roads for approval. It carries a total of $6,400,000 for 147 projects, only 27 of which are for the improvement of regularly designated highways. All the others contemplate the improvement of county roads serving farms and ranches and bringing the latter much closer to markets.

This is in addition to the state-federal program for regular cardinal highway improvements, a three-year plan for which calls for the closing of gaps. A larger sum will be expended in the latter improvements.

There has been a general demand for the improvement of county roads to lift the farmers and ranchers out of the mud so they might move their products to market at all seasons with speed.

Included in the list of projects is Callahan—end of present improved road south of Baird south 8.5 miles toward Coleman, grading, drainage structures and surfacings; Shackelford—from four miles south of Albany south five miles, grading, drainage structures and surfacing.

At the conference, he said, all phases of the marketing feature of the peanut industry will be discussed.

BY HULBERT FOOTNER

SYNOPSIS: Neill, a young federal agent, comes to Baltimore to spend a week with Janet. She won't break a dinner date with Preston Fanning. So they quarrel and part. Neill, distrusting Fanning, decides to check on him. He gets acquainted with him at the hotel bar. Fanning gives him knock-out drops, searches his papers and keeps a snapshot of Janet. Next day Neill awakens to find Janet, Fanning and Fanning's yacht gone. A mysterious phone call tells him Janet is aboard the yacht in Absalom's Harbor and in trouble. Neill hurries to Absalom's by bus.

Chapter Eight

Murder On the Nadji
Returning to the porch of the sprawling store, Neill sat down at the end of the line of men taking their ease and enjoying their after-supper pipes. Sunburned fishermen mostly, in gumboots and faded drill shirts. Neill learned that fishing was good and that pound nets were being set out in the bay. The trout had come earlier than was customary.

None of this was to his purpose, and he studied the yacht. Very smart and modern with her high sides and stubby funnel. Something under a hundred feet over all. She carried two boats on davits amidships, and he noted that one of them was gone. As darkness gathered it seemed odd to him that no lights showed in the cabins. The riding lights were up.

The man next to Neill was a tall fisherman with white hair and a complexion the color of beet juice. "That's a tidy little yacht yonder," Neill remarked to him. "So you might say. She's the latest caper all right. But ugly as hell, if you're asking me."

"Is she owner hereabouts?" "Nah! We got no toys like that down here. We're working people. New York man." He told Neill of the accident to the yacht's engine.

"Is the owner aboard?" "Sure, he's aboard." "I see their dinghy is ashore." "The crew just come in to go to the movies." Neill grinned in hard satisfaction. Owner aboard; crew ashore. The situation was working out to his advantage.

Another man hearing them talking about the yacht, took up the tale. "The owner was in the store telephoning awhile ago. Fine-looking, big slicker; fresh-completed. But surly. Didn't have a word to throw to a dog." Neill took heart from this. If things were going badly with Fanning, so much the better.

"You're right he's a surly brute," said another. This was a lanky fellow with an innocent blue eye. Neill noticed that the others were inclined to make a butt of him. "I rowed out there with a mess of trout, thinking they'd be glad to buy some fresh fish," he said. "But when I come alongside the owner, he ordered me off. 'Get the hell away from here,' he says. 'I don't want any damned fish!'"

"That was manners," said another. "What did you say, Jake?"

"I says, 'Go to hell yourself you long-legged so-and-so! I'm as good a man as you, if you do own a yacht. And if you'll come ashore, I'll prove it!'"

There was a general laugh. "All right," the speaker went on. "I told you before and I tell you again there is some funny business aboard that yacht, and we ought to investigate it!"

'As If She Wanted Help'
"What do you mean, funny business?" asked Neill.

"I'll tell you, stranger. When I come alongside the yacht I was standing up in my skiff and I could look right into one of the portholes. All closed they was, warm as it is. And on the other side of the glass I seen a beautiful young girl with bare arms and neck. Only seen her a second, but she nodded her head, and beckoned pitiful as if she wanted help real bad."

Neill's breast was suddenly lightened. Janet was aboard the yacht, then; he had come to the right place. And she was not a willing passenger, either. That relieved his worst fear. He felt a gush of friendliness towards the speaker.

But he, it seemed, enjoyed no reputation for veracity among his mates. They laughed him down. "You're seeing things, Jake. You're wasted fishing. You ought to be one of these here, now, storywriters in the papers."

"All right! All right!" said Jake. "Some day you men will learn that I'm not as big a fool as you like to make out!"

When it became really dark and the vessels in the harbor were no longer sharply silhouetted against the water, Neill got up and strolled away. Each house along the harbor front had its little pier sticking out from the shore with one or more small boats moored to it, and he had it in mind to borrow one of these without asking.

He turned to the right because in that direction the shore rose somewhat. Here the little piers were under the bank, and screened from observation. Climbing down the bank, he walked out on a pier and found a skiff with oars in her. He got in and, untying the rope, rowed quietly toward the yacht.

The water was as smooth as a mirror, and voices came from the shore with startling distinctness. On the porch of Longcope's they were still talking about fish. Every star in heaven was shining. No moon. This moon was near its end, Neill remembered, wouldn't rise until near dawn.

When he drew alongside the yacht, he hailed her, not loud. There was no answer. Tying his skiff to the ladder, he climbed on deck and spoke again. No answer. There was something about the stillness of the little craft that chilled his blood. Where was Janet? He walked forward along the deck and aft again, sticking his head in the different doors and speaking. There was no movement, no sound in reply. Everything aboard was neat and shipshape. The silence was not absolute, for somewhere below he could hear the hum of a generator.

There were two deckhouses on the yacht. The forward house contained a luxurious little dining saloon, while the after house was merely the entrance to a companionway leading to the quarters below. Having satisfied himself that there was nobody forward, Neill switched on lights in the after house and went down the stairs with his heart rising in his throat. His instinct told him there was something very wrong aboard.

He found himself in a miniature saloon with doors forward and aft. The forward door admitted him to a comfortable sleeping cabin, empty. A man's belongings were scattered about. Fanning's? The after door was locked. It was a light door and, putting his shoulder against it, he burst it in.

A Dark Wet Stain

Switching on lights, he saw Prescott Fanning lying on the floor at his feet, dead. There was a bullet hole in his forehead and a dark wet stain was slowly spreading through the rug under his head. Janet in her pretty evening dress was lying limply in an easy chair nearby. There was a crude smear of blood across her cheek. A gun lay on the floor beneath her hand, and a stale smell of gunpowder hung on the air.

Neill's heart stood still. He ran to the girl and flung his arms around her. Her body was warm; she breathed; there was no wound on her. Upon wiping her face, he saw that the blood was not hers. He crushed her to his breast, trembling in the reaction from his first terrible fear.

Leaving her for a moment, he dropped to his knees beside the body on the floor. Fanning was dead all right, but to Neill's astonishment there was still warmth in his body. If only he had come a few minutes sooner! He saw that the hole in his forehead was a wound of egress. He had been shot in the back of his head and the gun had been held so close that his hair was singed.

Neill glanced towards the door that he had burst in. Its key was on the inside. All the portholes were closed and fastened. To his mind there was only one possible explanation. Fanning had attacked Janet and she had shot him. Neill had no thought of blame for her; he approved her courage. Lucky that she had the gun. Where had she got it?

He carried her out into the saloon and laid her on a couch. There was a vacuum jug on a stand. He sprinkled water in her face and bathed her temples.

Meanwhile he had to make the greatest decision of his life. The trained sleuth in him said: She shot this man and we'll have to face it out together. She'll be acquitted of course. But the man in him thought of how she would be dragged through the mud—Janet whom he had always laughed at and loved for her delicate ways! And how after acquittal, fingers would forever point her out as a murderess. I don't care what the evidence is, the man in him said, she couldn't have done it. And I'm going to keep her under cover until I can prove it!

She opened her eyes and looked around so wildly and senselessly that Neill feared for her reason.

"Janet!" he murmured. "This is Neill. Don't you know me, dear?" Recognition came into her eyes, and like a frightened child she flung her arms around his neck. "Neill! Neill!"

"It's me, all right." "You've come!" she murmured in a passion of relief. "I knew you'd come!"

He soothed her silently.

"Let's not talk about it now, dear. I have you safe!" "Oh, take me away from this horrible place!" she moaned. "Take me away! Take me away!" (Copyright, 1937, by Hulbert Footner)

Neill and Janet row away into the darkness, tomorrow.

WOMEN WHO HOLD THEIR MEN NEVER LET THEM KNOW

No matter how much your back aches and your nerves scream, your husband, because he is only a man, can never understand why you are so hard to live with one week in every month. Too often the honeymoon expression is wrecked by the nagging tongue of a three-quarter wife. The wise woman never lets her husband know by outward sign that she is a victim of periodic pain. For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age." Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

Soil Conservation Convention to Be Held September 13

TEMPLE, Sept. 9. (Sp)—The first state convention of the Texas soil conservation, an organization of farmers and farm-operators of Texas, will be held in Temple Monday, September 13, with V. C. Marshall of Heidenheimer, Bell county state chairman, presiding.

Every section of the state will be represented at the meeting which will effect a permanent organization of the present temporary set-up.

The meeting was called at Temple because of the central location, but also because Temple is the headquarters for the first and largest soil conservation project in the country.

The association's program will be to effect a practical cooperation between the federal and state government and the farmer and to see that the most effective soil and water conservation program possible is put into effect in this state.

Joseph C. Peacock, formerly of Palestine, is executive secretary of the association which was organized early this summer in Austin. Temporary offices are in the Professional building, Temple.

The convention will be held in the Temple municipal auditorium with important state leaders in conservation work on the program.

Headquarters For Geophysical Unit Will Be in Cisco

A unit of the geophysical service has arranged for headquarters in Cisco where the unit will remain for an indefinite time, anywhere from two weeks to six months, it was announced Wednesday.

Offices have been secured in the Cisco Banking company building and a garage for six trucks has been rented from the A-G Motor company.

J. W. Thomas was here making the arrangements and the offices were being prepared by J. D. Ward, in charge of the banking company building, for occupancy today. Drivers for the trucks and a mechanic as well as an engineering and clerical force will be located here while Eastland county and adjoining territory is mapped for the service.

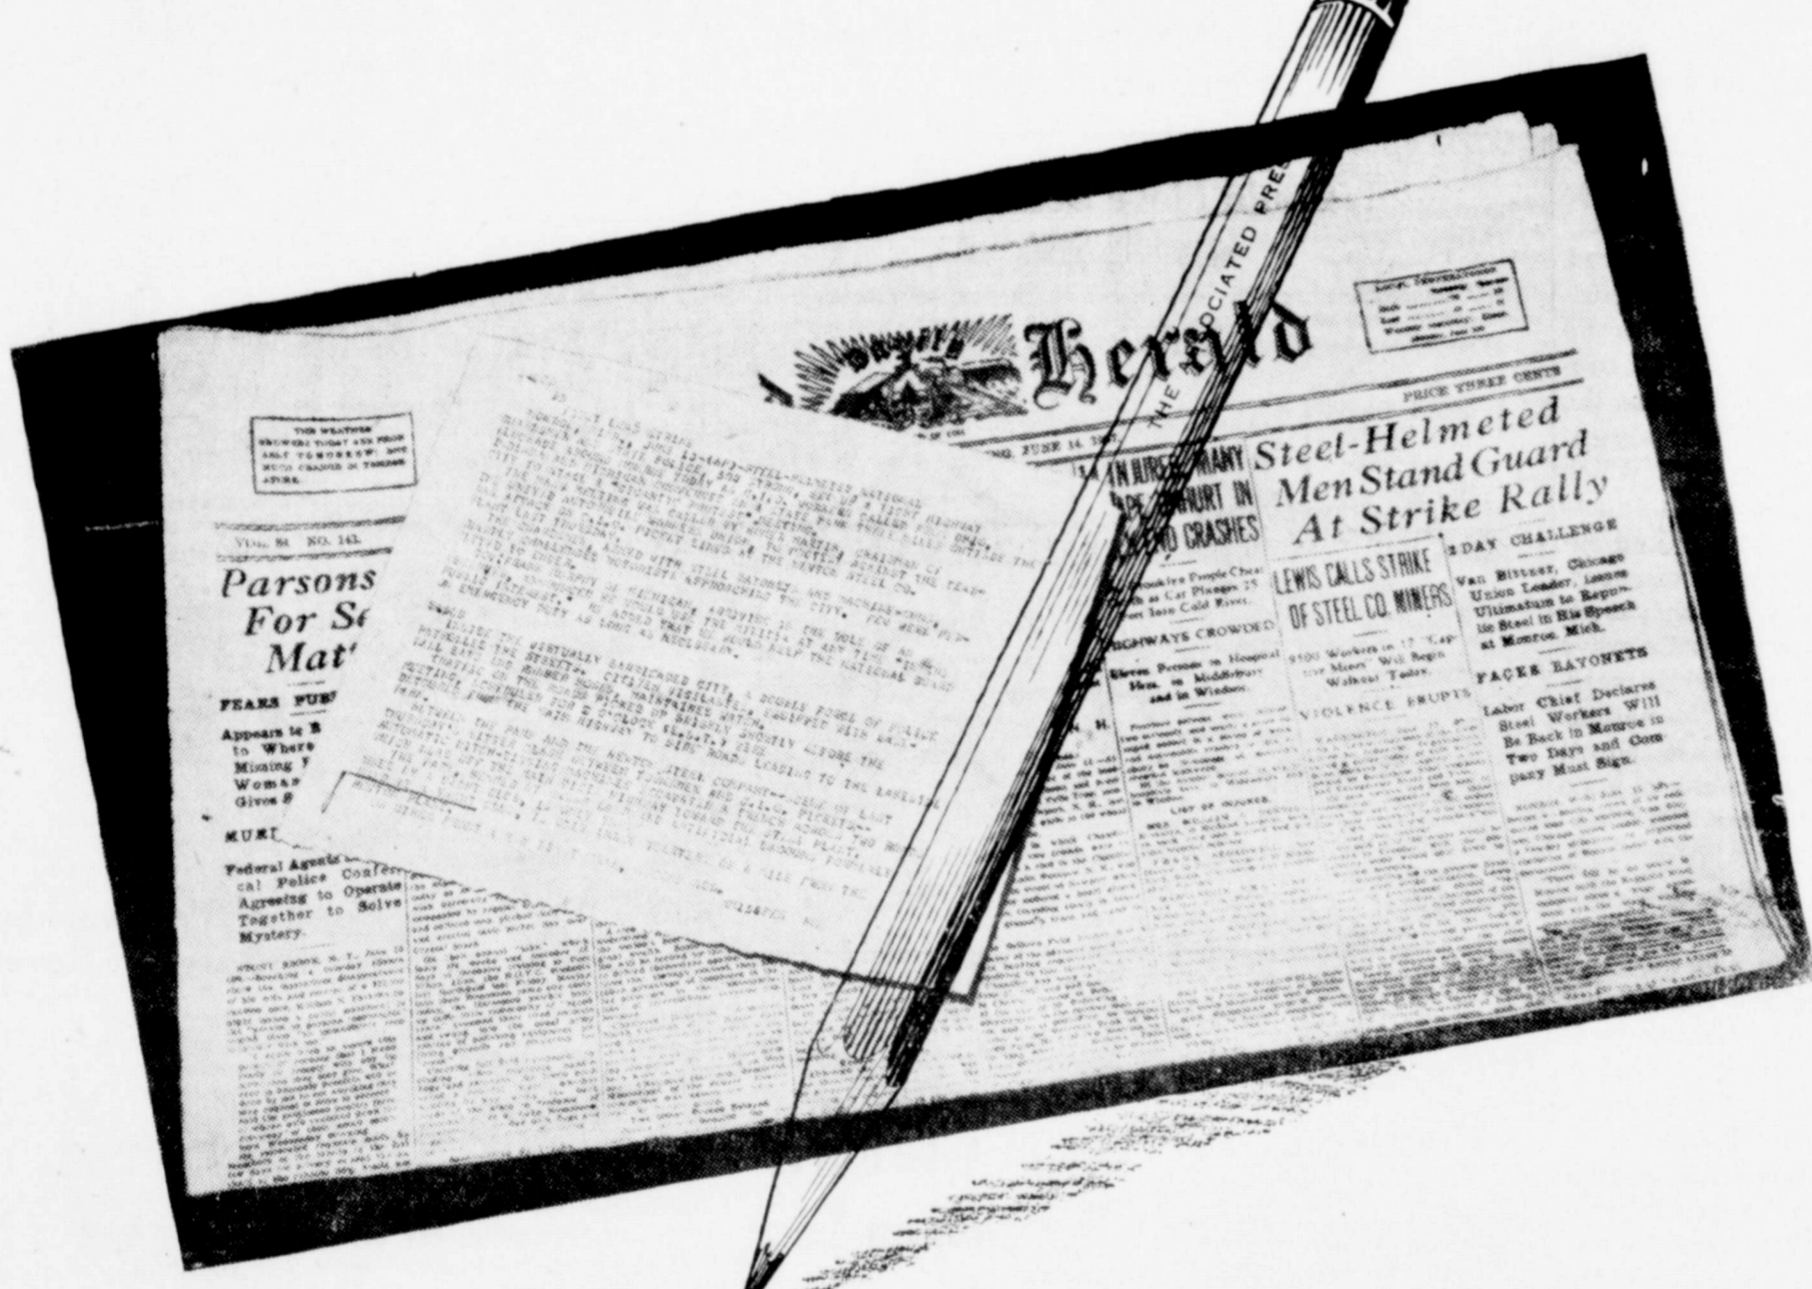

Independence hall in Philadelphia is open daily to the public without charge.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Lord, Thou wilt ordain peace for us; for Thou also hast wrought all our works in us.—Isa. xxvi. 12.

Workman of God! Oh, lose not heart, But learn what God is like; And in the darkest battle-field Thou shalt know when to strike.

Thrice blessed is he to whom is given The instinct that can tell That God is in the field when He Is most invisible. —FABER.

The Noncombatant In Modern War

POINTING out that respect for international law, if such law does actually exist, is no greater than the immorality of military strategists and that wars are no longer the pitting of soldier against soldier, the Pathfinder aptly calls the attention of civilians to what lies in store for them in the event of a future outbreak.

THE invention of the airplane has made obsolete all such customary military designations as "front" and "rear" and has broadened warfare into a widespread campaign of terrorism involving, not the comparatively small aggregations of troops, but the whole national scene.

which can destroy a whole block, incendiary projectiles which generate a heat of 3,000 degrees and start fires that cannot be extinguished, lethal gas with which a fleet of planes, striking swiftly, could blanket a great city and annihilate it, and many other devices of equally destructive or terrifying nature.

CONCLUDES the Pathfinder:

"Despite such laudable notes as that sent by Great Britain to Japan, the lay public of the world has little or no reason to place faith in a police-less international law. The hard reality is that the military branches of all governments are taking it for granted that wars in the future will give no thought to noncombatant rights.

The Stock Market Barometer

NOTHING is taken as more portentous of the extremely explosive state of affairs which exist internationally than the decline of the stock market. While some domestic factors enter into the analysis of this decline, it is more practical to conclude that business and finance are looking apprehensively ahead to the consequences of a general war and are moving cautiously in view of these eventualities.

THERE is a very evident tension, aggravated by the recent incidents of submarine "piracy" in the Mediterranean and the Sino-Japanese situation, and the real significance of stock market reaction is beginning now to be generally accepted.

A Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Folks in these parts are convinced the president will renew the fight to remodel the supreme court, but there is some recent history to indicate the contrary.

President Roosevelt has had two previous defeats on important issues. In 1934 he submitted the St. Lawrence power and navigation treaty with Canada to the senate for ratification.

Waterway A Dead Letter In each instance there were intimations the president would again submit the proposals for ratification.

He has repeatedly brought up the St. Lawrence questions in speeches, in letters and in replies to questions at press conferences. But five sessions of congress have slipped by without his again submitting the treaty for ratification. It rests quietly in the hands of the senate foreign relations committee, listed for the present as a dead letter. The president himself has publicity recognized that, in its present form, it likely would not be acceptable.

World Court Dropped.

While the margin of defeat was narrower in the world court vote, the effect was almost to blot out the issue. The president made no comment at a press conference following defeat of the proposal, other than to say he would thank the late Majority Leader Robinson for his valiant fight in its behalf.

World court adherence, pledged in the 1932 democratic platform, was not mentioned in the 1936 platform.

Now the president has suffered another defeat, on the supreme court bill, in the message given

Larger Crops Bring Food Cost Decline

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9. (P)—Secretary Wallace said today that food costs are already beginning to decline because of the larger crops that farmers are harvesting this year.

He said the trend should continue "if we have a series of normal crop yields." He said the wholesale prices turned downward in August and large crops of corn and other livestock feeds indicated that meat prices would follow next year.

out at the time he signed the limited court revision bill passed by congress, he implied he would fight for the balance of his original proposal. But he did not say so in such certain words that retreat would be later impossible.

With the supreme court bill he is in the same position as with the world court protocol and the St. Lawrence treaty. He is not pledged to a renewal of the effort. Sincere predictions can be heard here on either side—that it will be revived, or that it is dead forever.

Obviously the answer lies in the amount of brimstone put under members of congress by opposing forces.

CCC Eligibility Rules Change Is Received

Recent changes in regulations covering eligibility for selection into the Civilian Conservation Corps have been received from the Department of Labor by Adam R. Johnson, director of Texas relief commission.

"As youth may now be selected who has been out only six months, if other rules covering eligibility are met," stated Mr. Johnson. Heretofore, a boy had to remain out a year before becoming eligible. This will give hundreds of boys an opportunity to enroll in October who otherwise would have had to wait until January.

State Asks Early Decision on Tax Claim Precedence

AUSTIN, Sept. 9. (P)—The state would like an early decision on whether its claim for taxes against oil refineries is superior to chattel mortgages on such properties.

Assistant Attorney General Pat M. Neff, Jr., has requested an advance setting on a case pending in the Eastland court of civil appeals and styled the state against Elizabeth A. Lowman and others.

Another suit involving the issue is on the docket of the Dallas court of civil appeals while there are others hanging fire in Travis county. It is hoped a decision in one case may settle the chief question in all.

The Eastland district court and the trial court at Canton where the case, which was moved to Dallas, originated ruled against the state's claim but the Travis county court, with somewhat dissimilar angles involved, sustained it.

A ruling also may be had this fall in the supreme court on whether oil distillate is motor fuel and therefore subject to the gasoline tax or crude oil. This case is styled W. S. Rogers and others against the Daniel Oil and Royalty company.

The district court at Palestine overruled the state's contention distillate was motor fuel and the supreme court granted a writ of error, which meant it would review the matter.

Try greasing them and maybe they will release as fast as needed. If that d'esn't w'rt see if the thing is bent.

Now it works as well as ever and as well as any other type-bar. But I don't know the least iota of what I did to remedy the ailment. And I wouldn't know what to do if the same trouble would come again. Anyway I feel like specializing on o's; it is such a feeling of relief to have it release.

It shows so solemnly how sonantly our sounds sort o' south our souls on song, and so solace society. No o's would be too bad; at least, n-ne t-- g--d. There may be a lot of other little odds and ends that we do not notice as we use them day in day out. But we'd miss them mightily if they should rebel or resign or otherwise decide to become unusable.

The Literary Guidepost--- By JOHN SELBY

Four light novels for the Labor Day week end—

For mother there is a nice new chromium plated fiction job by Sylvia Thompson, the story of a group of young moderns who have been robbed by circumstance of their idealism, and who recapture it as they mature. The setting is England and France, the sophisticated side of those lands, that is. There are two or three people of real charm in the book—Peter, for example, and Catherine. There are some others who are put in so that Miss Thompson can make them whirl like Catherine wheels; she usually has a few like that.

The title is "Recapture the Moon" (Little, Brown; $2.50). Please do not read the dedication, which is too utterly clever.

For Sister there is a short novel by a new writer, Catherine Macadam, called "They Never Get Tired" (Stokes; $2). Miss Macadam is said to be only 20, and her novel proves it is a few places, and some day will probably prove that too. Meanwhile this piece about a family which has convinced itself of its artistic ability, and uses this as a cloak for anything, has its excellent moments. And Miss Macadam has a sense of humor.

For Brother we have picked a novel by Rion Berovici called "For Immediate Release" (Sheridan; $2.50). If Brother ever has "had newspaper experience" he will recognize that line; it comes at the head of most of the copy from the publicity men, and is the brisk expression of a hope that somebody will be fool enough to use the story.

Mr. Berovici tells with gusto and due appreciation of his own cleverness how a press agent feeds his clients and others his slick nonsense so efficiently that eventually he believes it himself. Then a "big man," he becomes the eater, not the feeder, and absorbs large quantities of his own tripe.

We have assumed that Father is both a business man and weary. For him there will be Ernest Haycox's "Deep West" (Little, Brown; $2) which is a Western that is a good deal beyond the usual run of them. This will do for reading on a quite nice beach.

New Director for Eastland Band

EASTLAND, Sept. 9. (Sp)—Election of James H. Gain of Dublin, a Howard Payne college graduate, as bandmaster at Eastland to succeed G. W. Collum, resigned for a Shepherville job, was announced Wednesday by members of the Eastland school board.

Gain, unmarried, is to arrive this week for his new work.

He is a former first assistant director of the Howard Payne college band.

Kilday Appointed to Board of Regents

AUSTIN, Sept. 9. (P)—Governor Allred Wednesday appointed James Kilday of Houston to succeed Claude Pollard of Austin as member of the board of regents at the college of arts and industries at Kingsville.

Dr. Loraine Spoons of Corpus Christi and R. C. Eckhardt of Kingsville were reappointed. Dr. William Dickens of Greenville was named as a board of health member succeeding Dr. S. A. Woodward of Fort Worth, deceased.

Over 700 U. S. Soldiers Stop Here Overnight

Men and officers of the Third Battalion, 29th Infantry began leaving Lake Cisco this morning at 7 a. m. following an overnight stay in the Lake Cisco area.

The Infantry made up of 740 men including five companies, each with 15 transport trucks loaded with soldiers, left each company 10 minutes after the other.

The soldiers, on their way from Fort Sill, Okla., to Fort Sam Houston, stopped overnight at Lake Cisco where they swam, skated and visited in town.

The group, one of the largest single ones to ever camp at Lake Cisco, if not the largest, arrived Tuesday afternoon and by dark there were several Ciscons at the lake to look over the men.

Later in the night the crowd increased, the people from Cisco

"We did not find a match, cigarette stub, or a bit of paper in the park area of the lake," Joe Clements, Cisco street superintendent, reported today following an inspection of the grounds where the 740 men spent the night.

Mr. Clements was filled with praises for the large group.

"This is the cleanest I have seen the park since I have been working here," he said.

curious to learn of soldier life.

"We enjoyed our stay very, very much. This is a wonderful place for a camp. The rain did not hinder us any," said Colonel M. G. Farris.

The seemingly numberless amount of tents, trucks and other equipment, a common sight in the life of a soldier, made a curious spectacle of the territory around the swimming pool.

Although the soldiers were allowed the freedom of the lake, an air of discipline was still prevalent among the group as the convoy trucks and the pup tents were placed in well arranged order and patrolled by sentries who were changed every two hours.

A trio through the camp showed each tent in the best of order despite the muddy weather. The tents of the soldiers are small affairs called pup tents and each tent was occupied by two soldiers who are held responsible for their upkeep.

These tents are so colored that at night they are almost invisible and in the daytime are easily camouflaged.

The orderliness and completeness with which the camp was made and abandoned was due to the responsibility each officer had to the officer just above him.

One of the interesting things about the group was that there were so many young men in the ranks and so many young officers. The soldiers kidded each other a great deal about the rattlesnakes they would have to sleep with that night and this soon became the theme of all jokes of the group.

These five companies of soldiers are a few of many who are to participate in the wartime drills and training which is a periodic occurrence for the soldiers of Uncle Sam. They are to participate in the infantry division of the war games, it was said: The group is to stay at Fort Sam Houston until November 19 after which they will return to Fort Sill, probably stopping off at the lake again.

Motorized Cavalry
The United States, in keeping with other nations, has practically abandoned the use of horses in the army except in some cases and have adopted a motorized cavalry. This along with the fact that the motorcade was so equipped that meals were served while en route, were two more interesting features of the encampment.

There were around 90 trucks with this group, 15 to each company, for transport and around 15 additional trucks for use in carrying equipment.

The officers in charge were Colonel M. G. Farris, the commanding officer, and Captains Louis V. Jones, R. B. McClure, D. D. McClesky, Forrest Cookson, Oscar Johnson, A. J. MacKenzie.

Pioneer of Cisco Country, Adolph Reich, Succumbs

A long and useful life was closed last Sunday, Sept. 5, 1937, when death culminating an illness of several months, ended the life of Adolph Reich, one of the pioneers of the Cisco country, and one of the first of the colony of German emigrants to locate in what is now termed the Lutheran community, so named from the Christ Lutheran church.

Adolph Reich was born in Baranovo, Germany, June 13, 1857, confirmed in the Lutheran church April 2, 1875, and was married June 15, 1882, to Miss Matilda Reich, a cousin. This marriage was consummated in the same church and by the same minister who officiated at the baptism and confirmation services of this couple.

His death was not unexpected, as he had begun to decline early last fall, and continued to grow weaker as the days passed by. His one expressed wish was that he would live to see his 80th anniversary, and this wish was granted by his Maker, who extended his days two months and 23 days beyond his cherished wish for longevity.

Funeral services were held at the home, which was followed by a brief service at the grave, where his body was placed to rest in the cemetery of Christ's Lutheran church, in the community bearing that name. There were two services, one in German and the other in English, both conducted by Rev. E. Steyer, pastor of Christ's Lutheran church, at 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, of which Mr. Reich was a charter member. The text of the German service was selected from Philippians 1:21: "For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain." The text of the English service was from John 14:6: "Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, and the truth, and the life; no one cometh unto the Father, but by me."

Gus Mood, J. E. Bowen, Billie Grace and Benton Price, and Lieutenants Oscar Straus, Dannie Quinn, Harlan Statham, Dexter Lowery, Thomas Staughton, Chester B. Degone, William Cunningham, Raymond Duke and Clarence Head.

OFFICER CISCO MAN'S BROTHER
One of the soldiers with the group encamped at the lake was a young officer, Corporal Charles Worley, a brother to A. M. Worley, an employee of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company here. Charles Worley was entertained at the home of his brother during his stay here.

During the services the choir sang one of his favorite hymns, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," a hymn he often sang alone, especially during his last illness. The services were attended by a large concourse of relatives, friends and neighbors, whose floral offerings were profuse and of rarest foliage.

Those chosen as pall bearers were some of his closest friends, and were John Hilscher, Herman Stephen, Carl Weiser, Willie Ziehr, Henry Stroebel and Lee Lieske.

Mr. and Mrs. Reich and their eldest son, Charles, who died in 1936, came to America Nov. 4, 1884, locating near where the last 53 years of his life was spent. A few months after his arrival he purchased the land which constituted his home, embracing several hundred acres of the most fertile area in the entire Cisco country. There he builded his home, a most idea location, consisting of large acres of fertile valleys, surrounded by prominent elevations, ideally formed for building sites. It was on one of these promontories that he builded the home for his family, and it was on this spot 12 of the 13 children were born, 11 of whom are living, and all were with their father when the end came. His eldest child, Charles, now deceased, was born in Germany, and another son, Adolph, passed away in 1925. A remarkable incident of this large family was that the 13 children lived to reach their majority. Though the parents were born in the Fatherland, this family were loyal American citizens, one of the sons, Ewald, served overseas with Pershing's American expeditionary forces.

Two other families accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Reich from Germany, and settled in the community where he died—Mr. and Mrs. Dan Wende, and another family, who only remained a few years and moved away, whose name could not be learned. Mrs. Wende, a half sister, who is still living, is the mother of several children now living in and near Cisco, including Dan, Otto, Charley, Emil J., and others.

These were the first of the emigrants from Germany who formed the nucleus of that splendid citizenry that now constitutes what is known as the German-American settlement south and southwest of Cisco.

Besides his half-sister, Mrs. Wende, who resides about two miles from the Reich homestead, the widow, born November, 1862, is now nearing her 75th year, after having lived a wedded life of 55 years with the man whom she married in Germany June 15, two years before they came to America.

Besides the widow and sister, the surviving children are Miss Anna Reich, Oscar Reich, Ewald Reich, of the Reich community; Mrs. Emma Herzog, Mrs. Alma Jost, Coperas Cove; Herman Reich, Rudolph Reich, Theodore Reich, Miss Alvine Reich and Emil Reich, all of the Reich community. There are 40 grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

The life of this venerable pioneer was fraught with many vicissitudes and frugality, for it was by the hard work and the strictest economy that he and his family paid for one of the best farms in Eastland county, and thus carved a home from what was then a veritable wilderness. Mr. Reich has related some of his trials to achieve this end to the writer, telling how he labored on the construction of the Texas & Pacific road when that railway was building its continental line, walking from his home five miles south of Cisco, receiving $1 per day and boarding himself. Later, he said, when the line was graded to as far west as Dothan, he went to his job astride one of the two mules that he had purchased.

But the results of his labor and privations have been richly rewarded in the accumulation of a splendid home, and sufficient lands for each of his children, who are numbered among the most honorable and industrious citizens of Eastland county.

Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out. Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. ## Farmers Visit Co-Operatives in West Texas Towns

By R. H. W. KENNON

The motorcade, headed by W. B. Starr, president of the Southwestern Peanut Growers association, returned last week from their tour of west Texas towns, where they visited cooperative projects in Quanah, Childress, Amarillo, Plainview and Lubbock. The party also visited the experiment station at Spur, where they were taken over the grounds and instructed regarding the benefits of conserving the water supply.

"We were most cordially received by the managers of the cooperative projects at each stop, who entertained the party royally. They gave us every information we desired, and were most courteous in doing so. Just laid all their cards on the table by opening their books for inspection, and seemed proud of the records they have made. I thought what a different attitude they demonstrated from that of private corporations.

"But everywhere we went, and every cooperative visited we found the projects prospering.

"We found an unusual condition at Quanah where the cooperatives own and operate an elevator. When it was first suggested the building of an elevator it was thought it would be a losing proposition, and the members hesitated, but some of the leaders secured notes and decided to build, but found funds available, and the notes were never sold. They were not only fortunate in securing funds to build and equip the elevator, but bought the wheat on a rising market which enabled them to pay the plant out of debt in 21 days and four hours after the first load of wheat went into the elevator, they said. Of course, they explained to us, this was unusual, as they stated it requires two or three years, ordinarily for the profits of an elevator to pay for its installing.

"We ran into a nice little cooperative oil mill at Lubbock which was operating at a profit.

This mill has a daily capacity of 75 tons, and we were told that their profits averaged around four dollars per ton. They said that operators of oil mills sought to discourage the building of this plant by showing the federal authorities that their average profit was only 75 cents per ton.

Three Cooperative Oil Mills

"There are three cooperative oil mills in Texas," Mr. Starr said. "El Paso, Lubbock and one in the Rio Grande valley. The average price paid for seed by privately owned mills in the south last year, we were told, was $37, while the El Paso mill paid $40 per ton. The profits which were distributed to the member stockholders in dividend checks amounted to $7.75 per share.

"At Childress we visited the three cooperative mills, all one management, which are operated very satisfactorily and all the cooperatives are doing well."

Of the 20 in the mill leaving here Monday from Eastland county except or three, Mr. Starr said, from this vicinity included Starr and son, R. C. Starr, Spencer, T. G. Caudle, W. J. Bush, vocational teacher Seranton, Herman Wendling, Stroebe and several others. Starr, Gorman and Caudle.

bor. No other means of relief for these people other than WPA work program. In Eastland county alone six hundred twenty-two men employed. Only two of these jobs working approximately one hundred ninety-eight men will carry on for more than thirty days. Other four hundred twenty-four will be laid off within ten to twenty days. An additional two hundred fifty men awaiting assignment and additional one hundred men who have recently been laid off for lack of projects. Impossible for sponsors to submit new projects on account new truck ruling cutting the amount set up for other than labor practically one-half and requiring additional engineering and technical data on all new as well as projects already submitted and approved this greatly increasing contributions to be made by sponsors. I firmly believe that these rules and regulations should be so changed as to make it possible for the local agencies to continue to provide projects for employment of these people as they so much desire to do. In view of these facts I most earnestly and respectfully urge that you do everything possible to the end that this condition may be immediately remedied."
