DEMAND NONCOMBATANTS BE SPARED

Medical Convention Is Held Here on Tuesday

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

Man's quest for the secret of life is being carried on in a scientific and methodical way about Cisco nowadays. Little, or just as little as possible, is being said about the work. But crews of men are proceeding progressively over the surface in areas adjacent to this community setting off miniature earthquakes and watching the seismographic record of the subterranean ripples as they are registered upon delicate instruments.

Two large oil companies are said to be carrying on this work. Their purpose is to make maps of the geological structures of the country upon which to base their judgment of its oil bearing possibilities. The seismograph is an instrument to record the vibrations of the earth in moments of disturbance, such as those caused by earthquakes. For long scientists have used the instrument to measure earthquake intensity and distances. It has been possible to approximate the extent and the distance of these tremors by reading the charts upon which the needle, set in vibration by the disturbance, has written.

The principle has now been applied to determining depth of strata by recording the reflected vibrations from these strata set in motion by the discharge of a small amount of explosive buried at a certain level.

Thus "high" and "low" can be determined as the scientific advance over the terrain. Undoubtedly, the current activities are designed to sound out possibilities for deep oil against the future exploitation of these resources. These activities are not new. Nor is the presence of the groups in this area of any greater significance compared to their presence elsewhere. From time to time reports have come that the same explorations have been carried out elsewhere and the probability is that the work that is being done here is only part of a broad program designed by members of well-financed concerns to develop a peculiar knowledge of the surface structure of large sections of the country.

The Phillips Petroleum company for long carried on an exploration of deep oil possibilities in the southwestern part of the county and the eastern part of Callahan by a different method, it is understood. In this case re-drilling was used. The result of this study may be seen in the fact that this company now engaged in the drilling a deep well just over the line in Callahan from Eastland.

Officers for Coming Year Are Elected

Fifty-Two Physicians, Surgeons Register at Meeting

The annual fall conference of the Thirteenth District Northwest Texas District Medical Association, held in Cisco Tuesday was brought to a close yesterday afternoon with the election of officers for the coming year and with the selection of the next meeting place.

Dr. O. T. Kimbrough of Wichita Falls was elected president, Dr. W. L. Howell of Fort Worth, vice president, and Dr. T. P. Frizzell of Knox City secretary-treasurer. Vernon was chosen as the city of the next convention.

With a smaller attendance than was expected, the physicians and surgeons met here with 52 registrars.

Talk on Heart Disease

The morning was spent in a talk on heart disease—Dr. W. L. Howell; treatment of urinary infections with maledic acid—Dr. Craig Munter of Fort Worth; prostaticitis—Dr. J. A. Heyman, Wichita Falls; and Poliomyelitis—Dr. A. M. Clarkson, state epidemiologist, Austin.

At noon a luncheon was served on the Laguna hotel garden through the courtesy of the Eastland-Callahan Counties Medical Society.

During the day the district auxiliary society of which Mrs. W. G. Phillips of Fort Worth is president, composed of wives of the physicians, met at the Laguna hotel.

In the afternoon the doctors returned to the Texas Theater, site of their morning discussions, and resumed their conference. A symposium was held.

Cisco Girl in Tie for Vocal Scholarship

STEPHENVILLE, Sept. 15.—Music scholarships were awarded yesterday to a pianist, a clarinetist, a tenor, and a soprano after auditions held at John Tarleton college. Each scholarship carries with it nine months tuition in music.

To Ollivette Killough, daughter of Mrs. I. J. Killough of Eastland, went the Charles W. Froh scholarship in piano. A freshman at Tarleton, Miss Killough has studied under Wilda Drago of Eastland.

James E. Powell, clarinetist from Howe, won the band instrument scholarship offered by Dr. G. Hunewell, professor of brass-woodwinds and director of the Tarleton Military band. Powell is a former student of Bandmaster Roy Hester of Sherman. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Powell.

Tenor Alfred Jones of Stephenville and Soprano Dorothy Jean Walker of Cisco tied for the R. Berton Coffin vocal scholarship. Neither of them has had vocal training.

This is the second year that members of the John Tarleton faculty of music have offered scholarships. Last year awards were made purely on the basis of musical performance. This year,

11th County Fair to Start Thursday Night

Cisco, Fort Worth To Be Honored Opening Night; Lobo Band To Play

One of the oldest county fairs in this section, the eleventh annual event beginning Thursday for three days at Eastland, is destined to be the most successful in years, according to members of the fair committee who Tuesday declared advance interest warrants that prediction.

Members of the fair committee who have visited several community fairs in the county stated the quality of agricultural products this year will be among the best.

The Great Yellowstone Shows, carnival unit, Tuesday was unpacked and ready for first crowds tonight even though the opening of its affair was in advance of the fair inauguration.

The Yellowstone firm carries six rides, six shows and about 25 concessions. The fair association will receive a percentage of receipts.

H. J. Tanner, secretary of the Eastland chamber of commerce, announced also Tuesday that Thursday, the opening day, has been designated Ft. Worth and Cisco Day.

Business Men

Charles G. Cotten, manager of the trade extension committee of the Fort Worth chamber of commerce, advised Tanner that a bus load of Fort Worth business men will leave the city at 3:30 Thursday afternoon and arrive in Eastland before 6 o'clock.

Sam Bennett, manager of radio station KTAT, will be chairman of the Fort Worth trip. Bess

Lobo Players Go Through Tough Workout Tuesday

In an effort to be prepared to make things tough for the Lubbock Westerners when they meet Friday night, Coach Petty's Loboes Tuesday afternoon with a larger squad because of the opening of school, went through a long stiff workout.

Several of the new boys are looking fairly good in practice and likely will make good men when they get in shape.

The Cisco team was jolted severely Monday when it was learned that Cullen Harrison has a fractured leg received in practice and will probably be lost to the team for the rest of the season.

Go in Private Cars

The Lobos will leave in private cars Friday morning at 7:30 for Lubbock, Petty has announced. The boys will make the long trip, arriving about noon, play the giant Lubbock squad that night and return home the following morning.

The Cisco mentors have made it known that they intend to take at least 25 boys with them, two managers, and the three coaches.

The starting lineup is still indefinite and it is probably that the showings made by the boys this week will determine to a large extent the starting group against the Westerners.

Because of the large squad being taken to the Western town, it is believed that the Cisco coaches expect to use a number of substitutes and find how the boys work "under fire."

IMPROVING

Leon McPherson, 1300 L. avenue, who has been ill, was reported this morning to be rapidly improving. Mr. McPherson is with the West Texas Produce company.

Family Claims Wheeler When Senate Adjourns

SON LIKES FATHER
Nothing so pleases John Wheeler (right) as to be told he looks like his dad (left), Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana.

By LYDIA GRAY SHAW

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—The Wheeler family is always pleased pink when congress closes shop and gives their father, Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, back to them. He's the best playmate they know.

Right now as many Wheelers as find it possible are planning to meet their father at the family log cabin in Glacier national park. They all helped build it under the senator's direction.

There are six young Wheelers and Mrs. Wheeler. And from the sidelines it looks as though every last one of them, even the girls, wants to be as much like Dad as possible.

The Wheeler Family

John Wheeler, who studied law (like Dad) and is now with the securities exchange commission. He grins broadly and says "Thank you" when anyone says he looks like his father.

Elizabeth Wheeler, now Mrs. Edwin Colman. She's a member of the Washington league of women shoppers, which is fighting for better working conditions (like Dad).

Edward Wheeler, at Harvard studying law (like Dad).

Frances Wheeler, just graduated from Connecticut college for women where she majored in political science (Dad's business).

Band Inaugurates School Programs

High school assembly programs for the 1937-38 school year were inaugurated this morning with a concert by the Cisco Lobo band—"the best band in west Texas"—given in the auditorium at 10:30.

While the students applauded loudly after each number the band played "Queen City"—march; followed with "Pocahontas"—characteristic; "I'll See You in my Dreams"—popular, "Copenhagen"—popular, and played E Pluribus as the students marched out of the auditorium.

Preceding the chapel program Principal O. L. Stamey made several announcements to the students, most important of which was that the tardy bell at high school would ring at 8:40 a. m. and that the first bell would sound at 8:20.

One of the principal highlights of the program was the presentation of the plaque won at Oklahoma City in the regional contest for third division rating, to the high school, June Morehart, vice president of the band, made the presentation and Principal Stamey received the award.

Because there will be no more assembly programs before the

VFW Will Meet Tonight at 7:30

The regular meeting of the Veterans of Foreign Wars will be held tonight at 7:30 at the odd-fellows building, it was said. All new members as well as old are urged to attend.

MOVE TODAY MADE AT SINO, JAP GUNNERS

Request Is Given By Harry Yarnell, U. S. Admiral, Others

SHANGHAI, Sept. 15 (AP)—Naval commanders of the United States, Britain, France, Italy, and the Netherlands today demanded that Chinese and Japanese anti-aircraft gunners take immediate steps to spare "innocent non-combatants."

The request was made by the American admiral, Harry Yarnell, and others while the Chinese stood fast on the new 20 mile line, and machine gunners mowed down waves of Japanese attackers.

American marines guarded foreigners as the battle surged on the border of the international settlement.

To the north the Japanese attacked along a 100 mile front. The campaign aimed at the rich provinces of the north yellow river and holds real military importance in the war.

New fear was felt as cholera spread.

The Chinese said the American arms embargo favors Japan as she has less need for import.

JAPAN TO IGNORE MEDIATION BY LEAGUE

GENEVA, Sept. 15. (AP)—Japan will ignore and even refuse friendly mediation by the league of nations in the Sino-Japanese conflict, Eija Amai, minister to Switzerland, told the Associated Press today.

The statement came as the league pondered if any action should be taken after Dr. Wellington Koo, Chinese statesman, warned the United States and Europe that Japanese guns may menace them some day if China was not supported by them now.

Evatt Horne to Get Scholarship at Texas Tech

Evatt Horne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Shaeffer Horne, 1937 Cisco high school graduate who finished with the second highest scholastic average in the class, will be rewarded for his high scholastic record with a La Verne Noyes scholarship, it was learned today.

The scholarship is granted from Chicago to sons and daughters of veterans of the world war who make a high scholastic record in high school, it was said.

Evatt left Tuesday morning for Texas Tech where he will receive the scholarship soon. Tech is the only school in Texas that grants the La Verne Noyes award, it was understood.

Evatt's father, Shaeffer Horne, served as a sergeant in the world war.

Work Moving Along On Hatchery Project

D. C. Harper of the Cisco fish hatchery said today that work, under the direction of W. F. Wilson was coming along rapidly on the $25,000 improvement and repair project.

He stated that so far only preliminary work has been done with clearing of the area and cutting of stone the principal tasks.

About 35 men were at work today.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called. Endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.—Eph. iv. 1.

Sweet Master! Give me to do for Thee each day Some simple, lowly, blessed task.

Give heart, hand, life to Christ, never forgetting the object of life. And remember this: true love, peaceful, joyous, blessed on earth, leads directly to that river of pleasure, which is at God's right hand forevermore.—W. Adams.

Let's Get Going!

THE fault does not lie with any individual more than another. It does not lie with any firm more than it does with the Cisco Daily Press. But there is one duty in which the business interests of this community has been of late woefully negligent. And that duty is the duty of cultivating their trade territory. The farmer who permits his fields to remain fallow has no one but himself to blame when he reaps no harvest. He must first plow and plant and tend. Yesterday afternoon the Dan Horn community, in a good farming area southwest of Cisco, held a community fair. Except for the presence of a representative of the Cisco chamber of commerce, county extension service, and representatives of the Cisco Daily Press those people might as well have held their fair in the middle of the Sahara desert for all the attention it attracted from the outside. One could not help but wonder what attitude they took toward Cisco for this neglect of their community activities. That fair was important to them. It represented a review of their year's agricultural work, a stimulus equal in proportion to that which a larger center gains from the annual exhibitions which they hold. It would have been a good and profitable instance of "plowing and planting" for Cisco business men to have been enthusiastically represented at this gathering.

If we do not draw trade from our trade territory where do we expect to get it? If we do not develop the opportunity for mutual benefit through giving the service that the people of our trade territory demand, how can we expect them to come to Cisco as the center of their trading activities. We cannot "kid" ourselves on this point. As a community we are dependent. Watch the activities of the most successful men. They are alert to every opportunity for the service they supply, no matter how small. They are eager to attract and to please. Today's sale may result in a very small profit, or it may result in none at all. But the evident eagerness in which the service is given, the positive wish to please is an investment in goodwill that pays and pays.

PEOPLE, all people, like to be made to feel important. And they are important. Every community that surrounds Cisco is very important to Cisco. We fear that this fact is sometimes overlooked, that we unfortunately rate our community as superior to its trade territory, smug in the opinion that those about us are compelled to come to Cisco.

FOR Heaven's sake, let's get out of that attitude. Let us come out of the doors of complacency and recognize the duty we have. Only when that is done can we expect to build our community economy on a sound and enduring basis. "That's gold in them thar hills," but the trek is long and hard and the digging is mighty tough. But the reward is greater than the effect. Fie, on these complaints that there is no trade here. Even if that were true, our territory is all that we have and we are obligated to develop it. But the facts are that hundreds of thousands of dollars are going out of Cisco every year to other markets. Surely, some of this can be kept here."

THE time is opportune for candid stock-taking. Opening of school, the marketing of fall crops, the rising prices for cattle and other livestock, and the beginning of work on the overpass project are stimulating factors. Their influence prepares a good time for revitalized initiative. Let's get going!

WHAT IT MEANS:

Labor's Family Fight

By MORGAN M. BEATY, Staff Feature Service Writer. WASHINGTON, Sept. 15.—If you're interested in every-day economics, you can disregard most of the pretty Labor Day messages and orations, and concentrate on this fact:

Just so long as John L. Lewis' CIO and William Green's A.F. of L. continue their struggle for supremacy, there will exist pressure for the federal government to step in and regulate the new-found strength of organized labor.

Proof of that is already in the record.

Last spring congress made gestures toward passing a law to penalize reckless labor acts after the sit-down strike had stretched public patience almost to the breaking point. The senate went so far as to denounce the sit-down technique. It was even suggested that labor organizations be incorporated—an idea detestable to every true union man. Senator Vandenberg of Michigan proposed to punish irresponsible labor groups by prohibiting their collection of union dues.

Nobody Does Anything

The laws proposed last spring are merely sleeping until public opinion again presses them into the legislative hopper. Next time they may not die, particularly if labor's private war puts both employers and the public "in the middle."

And nobody in organized labor is doing much, publicly at least.

Just Call 216

to stop the flames of dissension spreading through organized labor's private estates. On the contrary, leaders in labor's rival households seem to be pouring fuel on the fire with all the enthusiasm of a small boy trying to burn down the schoolhouse. The Labor Day speeches of John L. Lewis and William Green certainly didn't go very far toward stopping the conflagration.

President's Warning

President Roosevelt himself has warned federal employes they have no right to strike.

No federal employe has made the slightest move to strike. Then why did the president warn them? Because the rival labor camps are organizing unions among federal workers.

The president has gone out of his way to express his apprehension. He has attempted to choke off the growth of a power that one day could challenge the dignity of government itself.

That can reflect nothing less than a presidential temper to head off and prevent excesses in labor activity—a disposition to regulate, if that should be necessary.

A Case In Court

Simultaneously, a clear-cut test case between the Green federation and the Lewis CIO is heading toward the supreme court from Ambridge, Pa., home of the National Electric Products corporation. That corporation signed up with the A. F. of L. unions, only to come face to face with a CIO contest before the national labor relations board. The CIO electrical union charged the company with coercing employes to join the A. F. of L. rival.

Green's faction promptly appealed to a federal district court, which just as promptly wrote its okay on the federation contract. But the labor relations board ordered the employes to the ballot box to determine whether CIO or A.F. of L. had a majority. Another federal court has declined to interfere with the board.

Regulation Begins

Now where does that leave the warring groups within labor's ranks?

Just here: One faction of labor (CIO) is testing in the courts a closed shop contract under the national labor relations law, for such was the contract signed by the electrical corporation and A.F. of L. In other words, CIO has brought in to question the principle of the closed shop—the principle for which it long has fought—in order to protect its rights in Ambridge, Pa.

The courts may not have to pass directly on the point, but one side will win the case somewhere along the court line, and the public will form its own opinions accordingly.

Thus the regulation of labor through interpretation of its own magna charta—the national labor relations act—has already begun. All these things reflect a mounting pressure to impose unwelcome responsibilities on organized labor; and as long as labor's intestine war continues, that pressure will remain to plague labor's hard won advances.

Tax Exemptions to Be Lowered, Says

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15. (AP)—Senator King (D-Utah) said today that congress will find it necessary to lower the income tax exemption to reach more taxpayers.

Tax revision is one of the administration's proposals for the next session. King said he would propose legislation to "modify and simplify" tax laws.

Laughing Around the World With IRVIN S. COBB

A Bare Statement By IRVIN S. COBB

THE EMINENT Dr. Blank, specialist in bone and muscular diseases, was a busy man. The routine in his office was devised with a view to facilitating the handling of cases. He had a full staff of nurses, clerks and attendants.

On a certain morning a neatly dressed and diffident-looking youth entered the outer room and told the nurse in charge that he wished to see Dr. Blank. "Have you an appointment?" she asked. "No, ma'am," he said. "Then this must be your first visit?" "Yes, ma'am."

"Very well, then. Go to that dressing-room down the hall, second door on the left, and remove all your clothing, including your shoes. Presently a bell will ring and you may then enter the adjoining room where Dr. Blank will be waiting to see you."

Blushing, the young man started to say that he didn't think all this was necessary. With an authoritative gesture the nurse checked him.

"If you really desire to see Dr. Blank you must do exactly as I tell you," she stated. "This is the invariable rule for all who call upon him for the first time."

Still protesting, the stranger repaired to the disrobing chamber. Sure enough, within a few minutes a bell tinkled, and, wearing nothing at all except his embarrassment, the youth stepped timorously across a threshold into an inner room where the distinguished specialist sat at a desk.

"Well, sir," snapped the expert with professional brusqueness, "what seems to be the matter with you?" "There ain't nothin' the matter with me," said the newcomer. "Well, then, what do you want? What did you come here for?" "I came," said the youth, "to see if you didn't want to renew your subscription to your local newspaper."

IN AND ABOUT MORAN (By Bob Taylor)

Back From Colorado Eugene Oyster, local grain buyer, has recently returned from a two months stay at Manitou, Colo. He has been resting from a strenuous season of outguessing the grain market, and boasts that his weight has increased 20 pounds since the time of his departure from Moran in July.

The luncheon honored Wendell Mayer, chairman of the Texas State Park board, who was asked to investigate the possibilities of the Shackelford County park. A group, consisting in part of Floyd C. Pool and Fred C. Smith of Moran accompanied Mayer to the park site to inspect

After a 30-minute business discussion, the group listened to the day's program, the first in a series of lessons on the subject, "Civilized Indians Before the Discovery of America." Mrs. Fred Wylie, leader for the day, conducted the program, consisting of talks by Mrs. B. A. Elliott, R. A. Elliott, B. Hubbard and Carroll Louder. A piano duet, played by Mrs. R. E. "OLEANDER RIVER," by G. B. Stern; (Macmillan, $2.50) We have the feeling of quality of G. B. Stern's "Oleander River" cannot be expressed by "telling what it's about," which, for once in a while, is the most important thing to say about a novel by Miss Stern.

Miss Stern, for this purpose, is the current novelist who writes the best of the new generation. She understands the human condition in the life of the individual rather a drab life, since she has decided it's more for something for money than to throw it to the dogs.

She understands also all this cloisonne hardness exists a life as simple and intelligent as the life of the people and that the people in this circle are much better study than the dull crowd. Phillips Oppenheim writes and rewrites.

This "Oleander River" is about the right piece of Riviera. It has a cunning in it as well, one that will sense at the very end of the novel, and perhaps understand fully until the mystery of a man's soul.

The "Oleander River" and the rocks are frequent contrast. Here Gill with her author father, Piers comes. Piers has a sense at Cambridge that him that his feeling is not one of companionship of love. The difficulty of a man is not in love with a woman with a great deal of the man with the mystic soul.

The novel is an eight minds and the end of these three, with fascinating journeys into the mind of others. It is possible that most of these situations are the setting are stuck to be had on any stage, true, but there is a delicate puppeteer, you know.

the dark ships

BY HULBERT FOOTNER

SYNOPSIS: A lovers' tiff parts Neill, a young federal agent, and Janet in Baltimore. She won't break a date with wealthy, flashy Prescott Fanning whom Neill distrusts. Next day a mysterious phone call tells Neill Janet's in trouble on Fanning's yacht at Absalom's Harbor. Rushing there, he finds, in a locked cabin, Fanning shot dead and Janet in a faint, a gun beside her. Neill rows her to the disused lighthouse kept up the river. They climb aboard, lodge a watchman and find the best suite. Neill makes a rope ladder, then leaves Janet hidden on the ship and gets back to the village hotel before dawn.

Chapter 13

Two Campers Arrive

Neill slept for an hour. His anxieties would not permit him to rest any longer, and he was up and sitting on the porch of the store next door before any other person in the village was stirring.

The Nadji lay out in the harbor, clean-cut in the pure light of morning. White paint, mahogany and brass all spic and span. Nothing to suggest that a dead man lay aboard. Her dinghy was tied to a boom amidships, so the crew must have returned. Neill waited for developments.

At 7 o'clock Virgil Longscope came down the little hill back of the store, whistling out of tune and swinging a big key. He was a leathery, middle-sized man wearing a wrinkled store suit of no particular color and a derby placed just so. This outfit made him stand out among the boots and jumpers of the other villagers. Virgil had a cracked voice, a bright eye and an expression of sly, good humor.

"Hello, Stranger! You're up early."

"Well, I came down here to get a little sea air," said Neill, "and this is the best time of day to smell it."

"I reckon," said Virgil, "though I don't notice it myself no more. You ought to be here when the fish-fertilizer factory across the harbor was working. Gemmen! we had strong air then!"

Neill laughed to humor him. He thought: The killing is not yet known or he would speak of it. Having opened up his store, Virgil sat down beside Neill and chewed his cigar.

The principal wharf of the place extended out in front of the store, and the whole panorama of village life unrolled before them—men on their way to work in the shipyard; professional fishermen chugging in from the bay with the night's catch and amateurs starting out with lunch baskets and tackle. No sign of movement aboard the yacht Nadji as yet. One of Virgil's first customers was a mild old man who drove up in a faded sedan.

"Morning, Captain Bickel!" sang Virgil. They went into the store together.

Neill remembered that this was the name of the caretaker of the big ships, and kept his eye on the door so that he could put himself in Captain Bickel's way when he came out. He wanted information.

Quizzing the Caretaker

Meanwhile the lanky fisherman named Jake had taken a seat on Neill's bench.

"Mr. Longscope is quite a character," Neill said.

"Deed I doggone swear is he," said Jake. "He's a character, Virgil is. He loves a dicker. He'll take half a day to overreach you a dollar's worth, and hand you five. Everybody cusses Virgil out."

When Captain Bickel came out of the store, found Neill standing beside his car.

"Morning, Captain. I saw your ships when I came down the road yesterday. Is a person allowed to go aboard?"

"You have to get a permit from the department of commerce, young man. I ain't authorized to let anybody aboard."

"Do you have many visitors?"

"No, sir. Them ships has been forgotten. Nobody asks to go aboard and the department ain't over-anxious to issue permits."

"Why is that?"

"We're afraid of fire. Don't want folks moseying around on board and dropping cigarette butts."

"I suppose they send down inspectors from time to time."

"Sure, the first of every month."

Two weeks! thought Neill. He said: "The cabins must be fixed up pretty fine."

"Sure. But we don't trouble the cabins. We keep 'em locked. Our job is to keep the hulls free of rust and the engines greased."

"How many men have you?"

"Four of us sleep aboard. Me, my foreman and a couple watchmen. I hire what painters and oilers I need by the day."

"We sticks pretty close together." The old man smiled.

He drove back up the road.

impediment. Of the two passengers, one was middle-aged, spare of frame, with lanky blonde hair hanging over his forehead, a long nose and a hearty, voluble manner. The other was as different a type as could be—Young, husky, dark-skinned and silent—yet they were stamped as father and son.

The older man got out. "Good morning, gentlemen! Good morning! Which of you is the storekeeper?"

"Me," said Virgil, turning over his well-chewed cigar.

The other thrust out his hand. "Delighted to meet you, Mr. Longcope. The name is Morace Kettering, lawyer of Baltimore. Yonder is my son Horace, junior."

Neill took sharp notice of the speaker. Strange that this man whom he had looked for in vain should turn up now! It was too late to ask him questions about Fanning, but as a friend of Janet's family, he might be of help.

"What can I do for you?" asked Virgil.

"Me and my son have come down for a few days' fishing," said Kettering. "We like to camp out, get close to nature and all that, you know, and I wanted to ask you if there was any place nearby where we could pitch our tent?"

"Sure. Just keep on around the harbor road, and on the other side of the point you will come to a little open field. The campers pitch there."

"Much obliged," said Kettering. "How's fishing?"

"Not bad," said Longcope. "No rock yet, but plenty of hard-head. And the trout are biting."

"Bait?"

"Oh, any God's amount of soft-crabs."

Here Is Some Dope on T. C. U. Football Team

FORT WORTH, Sept. 15—Sam Baugh's graduation is not going to hurt the gate at Texas Christian. Something like 25 per cent more season tickets have been sold this year than last, and the sale still has a couple of weeks or so to run. Four of the best games on the schedule at home is the reason back of the popularity of the pasteboards. The Frogs play Tulsa, Texas A. & M., Rice and S. M. U. in Fort Worth.

Exactly 10,507 pounds of football brawn has reported to Coach Dutch Meyer at T. C. U. There are 54 men out, which gives an average of about 195 pounds.

A modern electric scoreboard is being erected at the T. C. U. stadium, the gift of the Fort Worth Lions club. The new board is located at the south end of the playing field and its cost is estimated at around $3,000.

The 1937 Horned Frogs are a genuine Texas product. Only two of the boys come from out of state. Fourteen of them call Fort Worth home.

This year's T. C. U. team will travel approximately 7,000 miles in playing six games away from home in four states besides Texas.

The Horned Frogs have not lost an opening game since they were admitted to the Southwest Conference. But that precedent can't be depended upon too much this season for they have never before taken on as tough an initial opponent as the Ohio State Buckeyes.

In 14 years of Southwest play there is only one conference opponent with which the Frogs have a poorer percentage mark than .500. That opponent is S. M. U., with whom the Frogs have played 13 games, winning four, dropping six, and tying three. The conference teams, in the order of difficulty from the Horned Frog viewpoint are: S. M. U., Texas, Arkansas, Baylor, A. & M. and Rice, the Frogs having won 10 out of 11 contests from the latter.

Cull Apples, Hay Make Good Silage

PULLMAN, Wash., Sept. 15 (AP)—Washington State college dairy experiments have shown that "an apple a day goes well with hay."

The college experiment station reported that a combination of 80 per cent cull apples and 20 per cent alfalfa hay proved to be "unusually palatable" silage. The cows increased their production and the butterfat gained in carotene content.

This state produces between 150,000 and 300,000 tons of cull apples annually. Disposal has been a major problem.

Oil Man Operates Free Bus Service

NEW LONDON, Tex., Sept. 15. (AP)—John Lumpkin has started paying the obligations of a vow taken when his only son was killed in the school explosion here last March.

Lumpkin, an oil company executive, said then he would devote part of his time to serving mankind, particularly children.

Carrying out the vow, he bought a 50-passenger bus. Driving it himself, he travels through the countryside on Sunday mornings, taking scores of children and their parents to Sunday school and church. The service is free, and he will take them to any church they wish to attend.

and maturing stages, yet most every product in that sandy land area were among the exhibits. Some splendid corn was shown, yet there were a variety of other products, such as all varieties of grain sorghums, peanuts, peas, and beans, both fresh and dried, sweet potatoes, popcorn, and specimens of as fine water melons as one could see at any display.

Canned Goods

The canned goods exhibit was where the women and girls of the home economics and 4-H clubs excelled. Every variety of fruits grown in the community were in this exhibit in canned products and preserves, peaches, okra, apples, plums, berries, jams, marmalades, pears, persimmons, peppers, and all varieties of vegetables and meats.

Needlework, Relics, Etc.

There was an unusually large and well-selected exhibit of needlework, relics, curios, etc. Some handsome quilts, spreads were shown in patchwork and tufted work, dollies, rugs, scarfs. One coverlid was exhibited, 70 years old, but owner's name not listed.

Curios Shown

Among the relics were many curios, of various vintage, some dating anterior to the revolutionary war. One of these was a hand-made rolling pin, whose age could be traced back 135 years, the property of Mrs. N. J. Tarver, which was made by one of her ancestors. There was a common blowing horn, which was over 60 years old, and was used by John Henry Livingston before he left Alabama for Texas; an ancient pewter cup and teapot, which has been in use 100 years, used by the grandmother of W. B. Starr, who lived to reach the age of 85 years, now the property of Mrs. Starr. Symbolic of the gold and silver campaign of Bryan and McKinley were two metal bugs, one gold the other silver, which were used in that memorable political campaign. These were manufactured in the name and chain factory of William Starr, in Cleveland, Ohio.

Mechanical Chickens

One of the most ingenious curios was a set of mechanical chickens, carved out with a pocket knife by Glenn Reiley, a youth who makes his home with the Starr family. There were four chickens set on a wood disk, to each was attached a sewing thread, and this attached to a smaller disk. When the whole was lifted the vibrations of the thread caused each of the chickens to peck the large disk as though they were feeding. Neither of the four chickens would peck at the same time. The motion was entirely automatic, and a slight vibration would put the chicks in motion. This curio attracted much attention from the visitors.

The fair was only a one-day event, and came to a close after the judges, Elmo V. Cook, Hugh Barnhart, T. G. Caudie, who judged the farm exhibits, and Miss Ruth Ramey, Miss Cornelia Faye Stewart and Mrs. W. B. Starr, judging the women's department, had concluded their work.

At the noon hour the ladies of the community served a most palatable dinner, to which all present were cordially bade to come and dine.

The Dan Horn people said they had allowed their community fair to be interrupted during the past year or two, but all had determined to make the fair an annual event in the future.

11th County--

Coughlin of Melody Lane and radio station fame will possibly be among the Fort Worth residents to attend the fair. The Hi-Flyers, a KTAT entertaining unit, will definitely attend the fair and furnish music.

The motorcade will be met at the Point Service east of Eastland by fair boosters and chamber of commerce officials.

Cisco to Entertain

For several years it has been the custom for Cisco to furnish outstanding entertainment on the first day of the fair. Reports indicate such will be the case again this year.

The Cisco Lobo band under the direction of Robert L. Maddox, who has directed bands in the county more than any other high school instructor, will be one of the feature attractions for the opening night. The program will be at the fire department field, where many entertainments will be presented.

Community programs will be a feature Friday night. Square dancing and an old fiddlers' contest is to be directed by Claude Maynard the same night. Friday afternoon a rodeo will begin at 1:30 on North Seaman street. Spectators will be able to see the rodeo and a football game between the Brownwood Lions and Eastland Mavericks without missing any portion of either attraction.

Boxing contests will be held on Saturday night, the evening which Ranger is to present talent as is its usual custom.

Fair officials Tuesday asserted the premium lists this year are by far greater than those in recent years. The livestock department of the fair is to be more complete than ever, it is stated.

Exhibits—livestock and agricultural—are to be at the former Pickering Lumber company on North Lamar street. In close range are the carnival and the ball park, where programs will be given.
