Martial Law Declared in Oklahoma Strike

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

A near tragedy this morning illustrates how easily a moment of preoccupation or unweariness can bring suffering. The car was being towed by a railroad engine there, was concealed behind the building, puffing smoke from the front of the engine protruded from the crossing. I watched to the car approaching it. The car was travelling in the direction of the crossing directly toward the driver apparently not seen it.

Such moments as that one's nerve gets a taut as bowstring. There is absolutely nothing a driver can do, but in any case, if he drives a car, he has his foot against the accelerator in a desperate and unthinking reaction to the thought that might somehow have effaced the momentum of the car.

The car continued as it was being towed into the crossing. The wheels of the moving car were a matter with the driver. The machine might throw out and away, the car might be damaged, or some part of the car might be damaged under the powerful car and driver dragged and ground to destruction.

In such a circumstance depending on accident or hours, which electric pulses race down taut nerves. Then something happens. Either the car breaks the horrified tension of the accident is averted and the driver is left weak and nervous exhaustion.

Immediately in this instance, something happened. Our driver saw the locomotive, away, and jammed his foot against the wheels. The car skidded, half around, stopping just out of the wheels. But for the scare that it gave us, he was the worst scared.

ROAD crossings at any time place are dangerous. Their location is a matter of compromise. Construction of the overpass to carry Highway 23 over the street will remove much of the danger which exists on Fourteenth street where the highway now crosses.

Every practical further improvement in traffic conditions would be the construction of an underpass to carry Highway 23 under both the T. and the M. K. and T. on 23rd avenue. The highway, state and state road, crosses

60 WELLS ARE SHUT IN BY CIO WORKERS

Gov. Marland Leaves to Take Command in Field

ARDMORE, Okla., Oct. 20 (AP)—Governor E. W. Marland, who called out the Oklahoma national guardsmen before dawn to patrol the strike-bound leases of the Jones Oil company near Healdton, sped toward Ardmore today apparently to take personal command of the situation. Martial law came after Sheriff Floyd Randolph said that he could "no longer handle the situation" where two hundred CIO workers had shut sixty wells.

Guards were under orders not to allow either the company or the union men on the leases.

Funeral Today at 2:30 P.M. for George W. Weaver

Funeral services were to be held this afternoon at 2:30 for George Weaver who died at his home Monday after having been confined to his bed from a head injury suffered in an oil well accident nine years ago. His death occurred at the Weaver residence at 504 F Ave., where funeral services will be held. Rev. J. I. Patterson was to officiate. Mr. Weaver will be given a Masonic burial in Oakwood cemetery with pallbearers being members of the Masonic lodge. Neill Lane's funeral home is in charge.

Mr. Weaver was a veteran oil operator, having been in the oil business in several other states before coming to Texas. He suffered the head injury which led to his death while drilling a well at Rising Star in 1928. He received his education at Bucknell university where he was recognized as a great pitcher, later playing on the same team with Rube Waddell and Claude Richie, two baseball greats.

He is survived by his wife, a daughter, Mrs. George Christie of Cisco; two brothers and three sisters. Two sons have died. They were William, whose death occurred at the age of nine years, and George Jr., who died in September of 1936. Three grandchildren, Robert, Jimmy and Joe Christie of Cisco; two brothers, Charles and William of Pittsburgh; and three sisters, Mrs. Laura McIntosh and Mrs. Van Deventer of Pittsburgh and Sarah who lives in Buffalo, N. Y., also survive.

Senate Accuses Game Department

AUSTIN, Oct. 20 (AP)—The senate today ordered the investigation of charges against the game department for mismanagement, excessive expenditures, and abuse of authority. Game officials asked an inquiry because of charges.

WILL ARRIVE THURSDAY
Stuart L. Williams of Reno, Nev., will arrive in Cisco Thursday. Mr. Williams is the son of the late Gomer Williams who was postmaster several years ago.

Coeds Wear Ribbons For 'Fur-Away' Beaux

BETTY DENNIS AND RUTH LEWIS
It's mail from their absent boy friends.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 20 (AP)—Twelve girls in the Women's college at the University of Rochester meet every Friday night to try to bring their "hearts" a little closer. The girls are members of the "My Love and I Are Far Apart Club," an organization whose members pine for boy-friends at some distant place, whether Harvard, Princeton or just "back home." All members of the club wear yellow ribbons around their necks to identify their affiliations. The insignia comes from the song, "Around Her Neck She Wore a Yellow Ribbon." At meetings the girls discuss "heart problems" and talk about their boy-friends to sympathetic listeners.

Spotlight Now On Eagle-Pony Fray

By JAMES JOHNSTON
The Oil Belt spotlight is on the mighty Abilene Eagles this week as they go up against the fighting Sweetwater Mustangs, considered by some to be the strongest team in the entire district. It was the Mustangs that started the highly favored Breckenridge Bucks to toppling toward a third or fourth place berth in the district standings and it was the boys from Sweetwater who pushed the Jackets from Stephenville all over the field piling up 12 first downs to 2 for the Jackets, who managed to pull out a win by the simple method of taking advantage of their uncanny luck which has accompanied them safely through the Oil Belt's toughest competition so far. Abilene, just another of the fairly good teams before they played Brownwood is now right on top of the heap along with the Jackets and by the looks of the 48-12 trouncing they handed the Lions it looks like they are going to stay there.

States Spend 170 Millions to Keep Primary Highway

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Upkeep of primary highways is costing the forty-eight states more than $170,000,000 annually. This is one of the facts reported by the National Highway Users conference upon conclusion of an extensive study of highway maintenance expenditures and sources of money used to meet them.

Primary highways, the report explains, include both surfaced and unsurfaced highways maintained at state expense and are those which carry virtually all the commercial traffic. More than one-half the total maintenance cost, or approximately $100,000,000, is paid annually in special taxes and fees levied upon trucks whose owners transport property of other persons for profit. These for-hire trucks, known as "contract" and "common" carriers, comprise only one-eighth of all trucks in operation and less than one-fiftieth of all motor vehicles.

Mrs. E. J. Keough and little son, E. J., Jr., have returned from a visit in Fort Worth.

WRITER FINDS CHINESE ARMY IS CONFIDENT

Chapei Mercilessly Bombed, Defenders Are Entrenched

SHANGHAI, Oct. 20 (AP)—Chapei was mercilessly bombed for 15 hours today while James A. Mills, AP writer, made a survey of the section. He found that China's forces were strongly entrenched and in high spirits.

Square miles of wrecked homes and looted ships told a grim story. Shanghai received the first independent reports that the Japanese and 16 foreign were killed are being pushed back in one section of the North China front.

American Ambassador Nelson Johnson asked the Chinese government to stop Chinese war planes from flying over the International settlement and dropping bombs on foreign areas.

Reports showed that 1,990 Chinese and 16 civilians were killed in foreign areas.

Midgets to Try For Third Win Here Thursday

C. C. Duff, principal of the Cisco grammar school and assistant coach of the Midget football team, announced today that his gridsters will tackle a team from Gorman Thursday afternoon at 3:30 at the new Lobo football stadium.

The boys have been progressing rapidly, Mr. Duff said, and they are getting better every day. Prospects weren't so bright at the first of the season when the Midgets nosed out the Putnam Pups by a 7-6 margin, but they hit their stride against Eastland in their second game giving the Eastland boys a sound drubbing. With none of the team out because of injuries the boys should put up a whale of a fight, Mr. Duff said. In order to give the boys more competition the Midget coaches will allow several high school boys to play on the Gorman team.

The largest and best dressed pep squad the grammar school has ever had will be on hand to cheer the team on and a 25 piece Midget band, the first one ever to be put out by the school, will be there to furnish music for the game. The admission for the game will be ten cents.

Neutrality System Collapse Inevitable

LONDON, Oct. 20 (AP)—A complete collapse of the neutrality system, designed to keep the Spanish war from embroiling the rest of Europe, appeared inevitable today. A new deadlock came, with the refusal of Germany and Portugal to agree to withdraw foreign warriors from Spain.

Italy, however, unexpectedly recommended to the non-intervention committee that an independent commission be sent to Spain to effect the withdrawal of foreign troops on both sides of the war "as soon as possible."

REPORT DEFICIT
AUSTIN, Oct. 20 (AP)—The state's general fund deficit was reported to Treasurer Lockhart today as $14,431,283.

Soloist, Magician Guests Of Lions

The Lions had an unusually good program today at their noon luncheon. They were entertained by a bass soloist from Ranger, J. R. Bond, who sang several numbers, and Prof. Jarvis who astounded his audience with several feats of magic and looked into the future of some of the Lions by reading their palms.

W. J. Leach was chairman of the program committee.

COURT FREES 4 OFFICERS

Hold No Contempt in Willacy Cases

AUSTIN, Oct. 20 (AP)—The court of criminal appeals today reversed a conviction and discharged four officers who had been given fines and suspended sentences for contempt of Willacy county court in connection with the arrest of Louis Lamadried, investigator of the Blanton disappearance case.

Officers were held by the Willacy Judge, W. E. McCharen, to have disregarded the writ of habeas corpus ordering the release of Lamadried, arrested on the charge of illegal pistol carrying. The appeals court held none guilty of contempt because the writ was never served.

Lobo Band Drills on Marching for Band Contests

The Lobo band has been working hard the past week on their marching, a factor which will count a lot in this year's competition at band contests. The members have been rising early and drilling until the opening of school in the morning.

At a meeting of the band leaders of West Texas about a month ago it was decided to compel each band who wished to enter the other contests to enter the marching contests in order to qualify for entry in the other divisions. The contest will be held at San Angelo in 1938. The same sort of contest held at Lubbock last year was won by the Lobo band and gave them the right to enter the national contests at Oklahoma City.

Bandmaster R. L. Maddox, in order to give his band a wider variety of training, has adopted several swing tunes and for the past few weeks have been playing them at the football games. This sort of music is highly popular with the spectators as well as with the band itself.

Two Businesses Install Neon Signs

Two Cisco establishments installed modern neon signs at their places of business, making a much more attractive appearance than the signs formerly used. The two businesses using these signs now are the Moore Drug company and the Daniels hotel.

1,413,300 IS ESTIMATE OF TEXAS SHARE

Basic Allowable on October First Was 1,405,844 Bbls.

AUSTIN, Oct. 20 (AP)—The state railroad commission announced at the monthly oil and gas hearing today that the federal bureau of mines estimated Texas' share of the national market demand for crude in November at 1,413,300 barrels daily.

This was compared to the bureau's estimate of 1,430,000 for October, a basic allowance for the state on October first of 1,405,844 and the current production of 1,468,319.

Operators concluded that the Texas allowable was due to be slashed within the next few days.

Lobo Band to Take Cisco Part in Celebration

The Cisco Lobo band, under the direction of R. L. Maddox, will play Cisco's part in the Ranger celebration of the twentieth anniversary of the discovery of oil tomorrow at Ranger, it was announced at the meeting of the board of directors last night. Mr. Maddox will arrange a program of marching and music using talent from his high school organization.

The directors passed a resolution urging Congressman Clyde L. Garrett, representative from this district, to oppose any "wage and hour" legislation that might be proposed in the next session of congress. The directors took the position that such legislation is not only discriminatory but will create further uncertainty and regulatory impositions which will increase the difficulties under which industry and business generally are now operating.

Plans were set on foot for decorating the business district for the Christmas season. The chamber has most of the equipment which was used last year and the cost of the decorations this year is expected to be slight.

Secretary Spencer reported to the board that all right-of-way for paving the gap which exists in State Highway 23 as it crosses the Katy railroad at Pueblo has been secured and the way is now open for paving this quarter-mile strip and completing the surfacing of the road from Cisco to Moran and Albany.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

To be spiritually minded is life and peace.—Rom. viii. 6.

Man's weakness waiting upon God, Its end can never miss; For man on earth no work can do More angel like than this. —FABER.

Anybody who gives himself up for the good of others, who takes up his cross, will find heaven on the earth, and will trust God for all the rest. —Jewett.

Uncertainty

CONTRARY to casual opinion, it is not the presence of high taxes which is affecting business confidence at this time so much as it is the presence of uncertainty. Business is not averse to taxes, provided business can be certain of what taxes it must pay and thereby be in a position to adjust its costs to the tax program.

BUT what business man can under the present circumstances, with the threat of war abroad, and the presence of a continuing unbalanced budget and increasing demands upon government aid at home, project a practical program of operations for the enterprises with which he has been charged?

SUCH a responsibility is difficult to discharge under normal conditions and when these conditions are in a state of flux it is tantamount to launching a boat on a swollen stream which is likely to take a fickle course among a multitude of new channels.

THE president has just revised his estimates of the federal deficit upward and of the federal income downward. This is a disturbing factor of major proportions at this time. Of greater disturbance is the reality that the end is not yet. Agricultural department officials have indicated that the proposed program for farm aid, the so-called

9-State Program of Advertising Is Texas "Challenge"

DALLAS, Oct. 20 (SpI)—Action of the governors of nine southeastern states in joining forces for a nationwide advertising program designed to encourage industrial development is seen as a "challenge" to Texas' ambitions for leadership in industrial growth, according to a report of the All-South Development Council.

Lawrence Wood "Chip" Robert Jr., noted industrial engineer and until recently assistant secretary of the treasury, announced that upwards of $100,000 had been raised for the first year's operations of the plan, and that the group contemplates an annual advertising budget of $250,000 hereafter. The co-operating states are "normal grainery" program, will probably cost more than any yet undertaken, upwards of seven millions of dollars for the first year. Here is another potential great liability which must be met from some source and it must come out of the economic resources of the country. True, reductions have been made in other assistance activities, but the new obligations proposed to be created will far overbalance whatever retrenchments are made elsewhere.

CONFRONTING the country now is the fact of a special session of congress before which the president proposes to lay a number of relief and regulatory measures, including "wage and hour" legislation. Many predict that the special session will run into the regular session next January. Thus the picture of uncertainty is complicated by the reality of another long period of legislative activity the results of which are unpredictable but are certain to have a great influence upon business activity. Giving credit to the administration for pulling the business horse out of the ditch, it seems foolish to overburden him with obligations and confuse him in direction after he has gotten out of it.

OTHER OPINIONS

Patience About Exhausted

ON the eve of the nonintervention committee meeting, Foreign Sec. Anthony Eden said that British patience is about exhausted with Italian intervention in Spain. The world has marveled that British patience has endured so much, seeing in it a sign of British unreadiness for war. It was partly that, undoubtedly, and partly the responsibility Great Britain feels for the preservation of peace. But British neutrality is due largely to the feeling that Britons have no right to intervene in the domestic quarrels of another nation.

British efforts to achieve for the non-intervention agreement by diplomacy have been prolonged in the face of open and defiant violation in the hope of winning general acceptance of the principle that the form of government a nation has is the exclusive concern of its own people. So far from making any move toward acceptance, the dictator nations have proclaimed their right to decide what kind of political systems other nations shall have.

The British government would not be sorry to see the Spanish nationalists win, preferring fascism to communism if Spain is unable to maintain a democratic regime. But the principle of political self-determination is more important to Britain than the success of the Spanish fascist regime—as indeed it should be to all democracies.

Italy has declared that she will not tolerate a bolshevik Spain. But democratic nations should not forget that fascism lumps democracy and communism together. It would have been equally consistent with that philosophy for Italy to declare that she would not tolerate a democratic Spain. No one pretends that the Spanish popular front government was thoroughly democratic. It was at least deeply tinged with communism. But the fascist revolution gave Italy and Germany an opportunity which pretty certainly would have been utilized if the popular front government had been as democratic as that of Great Britain.

Britain and France are strong enough to protect their democratic institutions against violent overthrow in furtherance of the Italo-German campaign to make Europe fascist. But the weaker democracies are doomed if the stronger ones fail in their effort to establish general political toleration. It will be only a matter of time until Italy and Germany decide that they can not tolerate democracy in Czecho-Slovakia and other smaller countries where it still survives.—Galveston News.

Under the caption of "We, the Governors," advertisements appearing in leading magazines in the executive and financial fields carry the following declaration of policy:

"With a view to aiding industrial expansion of our section and the stabilization of employment we, the governors of the Southeastern states, set forth the following objectives: 1. Proper freight-rate differentials as affecting the southeast. 2. Equitable taxation policies. 3. Friendly labor attitude between employer and employee. 4. Co-operation with federal government on proper major policies affecting industrial development. "It will be our aim by working together on these objectives to maintain conditions favorable to sound industrial development so

TWO gentlemen connected with the cloaking and suiting trade went to the Catskills on their vacation. Shortly after their arrival they took a tramp among the hills.

"I wish," said one, "that I owned that tallest mountain yonder and that it was all solid gold." "That's a lovely thought," said the other approvingly. "Say, Ike, if that mountain was solid gold and you owned it all by yourself would you give me some of it, huh?" "Certainly I wouldn't!" said Ike. "Wish your own self a mountain!" A Washington Daybook

This is the second article in which Preston Grover, Washington columnist, analyzes the New York mayoralty campaign as an important segment in the national political picture.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—For four years, while the democratic organization was living the abundant political life nationally, it has been suffering pangs of hunger in New York City.

That was a major contributing factor in the highly publicized entrance of democratic National Chairman James A. Farley and democratic Senator Robert F. Wagner into the mayoralty campaign in support of Jeremiah T. Mahoney.

The difficulty for the democratic organization in New York City has been that, in spite of party successes nationally, chunky Fiorella La Guardia has been the mayor. And Mr. La Guardia is not a democrat.

Nominally he is a republican; but he is not really a republican either, in the sense of being a strongly loyal party man. In fact, he has been at least as sparing in his aid to the republican cause as a democrat.

And that has put both parties on the spot.

New Deal Issue Out

Democrats could make no use of La Guardia, despite his friendliness to the new deal, in putting their own city organization on its feet to beat him with their own candidate, Senator Copeland, in both the senatorial physician lost in both primaries when running for the republican nomination as well as in his own party.

Mahoney, a calmly disposed example of good health and active living, was Farley's favorite as the man to put La Guardia under. He won in the primary, and Tammany tardily came around to help.

It was part of Republican strategy to avoid a fight on the issue of the new deal. President Roosevelt carried New York City last fall with a margin of 1,300,000 to spare. So republicans settled on La Guardia, a new deal supporter, as their candidate. For all practical purposes, that took the new deal issue out of the race. It gave both candidates a new deal label.

The result was that Mahoney had to direct his fire at La Guardia's administration of the city. That has been tough going. Much praise has been heaped on La Guardia as a reform mayor. Besides he has had the benefit of all the federal funds poured into the city for relief, public works.

Lewis Speech Backfires But Mahoney has had two breaks his way. First was when the republicans, by adroit maneuvering, fastened a wholly republican ticket upon La Guardia's coat tail. That gave the cam-

 "at all; and I came
 "B." sighed David.
 "gallops around!
 "Nina?"

case, and after a last: "What did you think of it, really, Nina?" Cordelia let her go too.
 They were each other's very closest friend, and it would be a lot of fun, tomorrow, talking it over.
 When she came out of the dressing-room, swathed in her mink cape, David was waiting for her. He had on a nice looking chestnutfield; but though his felt hat was just battered enough to be dashing, it looked out of place among all the operas.
 He said: "It's only my second best barouche, outside, Nina. I'm sorry. I hope you won't mind."
 She knew a fleeting moment of terror, lest it be some fearful, handpainted, rattletrap affair, with maybe even pennants tacked on behind. It wouldn't have surprised her. But she said, brightly, that of course she didn't mind.
 To the left of the entrance, a knot of private chauffeurs and taxi-drivers had gathered round a car.
 David led her toward it, and with each step her heart sank... until the men turned around and backed away, disclosing a small, new, cream-colored convertible phaeton. It had green leather upholstery, and green wheels, and every known gadget, horn, lamp and whatnot, attached to it. It was smart, and uppity, and gay among the big, dark cars.

 "You'll have to excuse it," apologized David. "Really, I'm too, too embarrassed."
 "Nit wit. It's precious, David. It's beguiling... Hello, you." And she patted its chromium nose.
 "Oh, Lord, that reminds me. I forgot my grandmother. Hold on a second, will you?" and he dashed back.
 Nina shook her head. What next? The nice idiot apparently never ran out of surprises.
Beagle Likes Nina
 He returned with something big under his arm, that was very restless. Five long something dangled down, and waved about in the breeze. As David drew nearer, Nina saw that they were four legs and a tail.
 "Hello — grandmother!" she greeted them.
 "But David said: "No, this is Beagle. Don't you remember, I came with Beagle? A fine fellow."
 "Ah, yes. So you told Cordelia. Hello, Beagle."
 A great bony head thrust itself through the window, and a long salmon-colored tongue stopped lolling and ran, delicately, over the folds of her mink.
 "It's all right. He likes you. You can come, Nina."
 "Tha-a-anks."
 After just one tiny, well bred cough, the dressed-up little baby carriage started to purr, expectantly. With incredible dexterity, David swung her out into the stream of eastbound traffic, and they were off. David and Nina, and the Beagle in the back seat.

 Once Nina thought someone had thrown a rock at them, but it was only the pup's bony tail, thumping on the glass pane.
 "Has your second best barouche got shatter-proof glass?" she asked and he went into a long ode on the car's virtues that quite floored her.
 "You're positively lyric, Mr. Day."
 He turned north on Madison avenue and began to sing: "Put them all together then spell 'Mother,' a word that means the world to me."
 After he had finished, he said: "I'm singing because I'm nervous... Nina, you're going to get an awful surprise, in a minute."
 She put a hand on his arm.
 "Listen, David," she pleaded. "Draw them out, will you, Pal? All these shocks are too much for one evening. First, there's you, not having the slightest idea whose party you're at; and there's your grandmother swapping stories down in the men's room; and all the big Beagle mystery. Then I find this little beauty, after you apologize for an old ramshackle car... and now that I've calmed down again, you're getting ready to give me the worst blow of all! Have a heart!"

 "You have one, Nina," he remarked cryptically, and covered her hand with his.

Fire Boys Laughed At By Spectators
 UNDERHILL, Portland, Eng., Oct. 20 (AP)—People laugh when there is a fire in Underhill.
 Chief A. J. Jackman, applying for new equipment, revealed why.
 "Our 1901 model fire cart is very heavy, the springs have gone flat, and its antiquated appearance causes nothing but laughter. The streets are so steep we can't move it until all the brigade is present. Even then we are glad to get children hauling on the ropes, too."
 "That causes more fun and ridicule. And it annoys the firemen."

Fight colds! Protect yourself and your family against becoming overheated or chilled. If you do "catch cold" consult your family doctor before it has an opportunity to undermine your health.

ONLY "a cold" . . . .

but serious disease may follow

YOUR doctor will tell you that "common colds" are dangerous. Fifty per cent of all disabling diseases start with this all too frequent winter illness. Many "colds" result from sudden changes of temperature such as occur to occupants of the home as they go from a warm room into an unheated part of the house. Unless every room is comfortably warm sudden changes of temperature are unavoidable.

Winter months, more than any other season of the year, require careful protective measures against "the common cold." If YOUR family is constantly "catching cold" HEAT YOUR ENTIRE HOUSE THIS WINTER FOR YOUR HEALTH'S SAKE — it's a simple precaution to avoid the dangers of sudden changes of temperature.

Chapter 43
The Loot Is Found
At evening Kettering heard Fanning come in and lock the door. The sounds that followed told him that the girl had fainted. To a man mad with hatred, the opportunity was too good to be missed. He stole out of the closet, picked up the gun that lay close, and he had to make a quick getaway.

On the following night he lifted a skiff in the village and rowed up river to the ships. By sheer luck he found the rope ladder hanging down and went up. The suite was empty and he took the opportunity to search it. He made his getaway before Neill and Janet returned. Landing nearby, he waited for Neill to come ashore, and attacked him as has been described. On the next night he visited the yacht a second time to search for the loot.

As for Eyster, nothing new about him came out except that he had bribed McGee, the engineer, to keep him informed of the yacht's movements. There was ill feeling between McGee and Buckless and when the engineer went to Baltimore he did not communicate with the strong-arm man. Eyster was a potential murderer of Fanning, but he lacked the courage to carry it out. As a result of his prowlings, he knew Buckless and was terrified of him, but Buckless was completely unaware of Eyster.

When everything was known and the excitement began to die down, Eyster came to Neill and offered him his hand. The crazy grin was unchanged, but a certain ease had come into the tragic eyes. "Well, goodbye," he said.

Neill took his hand with a good will. "Where are you going?" he asked.

Eyster merely grinned and shrugged his shoulders.

Neill was wrenched with pity for the poor wretch. "Don't go," he said. "This ugly business will soon be over and we can all get a fresh start."

"You can," said Eyster. "I wish you luck."

"Well, anyhow, stick around for awhile, and we'll talk things over."

"All right," said Eyster.

However, within an hour he had disappeared. Neill never saw him again.

Since the jail at King's Green was not suitable for the confinement of so important a prisoner, Kettering was carried up to Baltimore to await trial. After he was taken away, the village of Absalom's snapped back into its former calm, broken only by the arrival of the week-end fishing parties. Virgil Longcope, however, had no notion of wasting the world-wide publicity of the case. Virgil and Neill made it up between them that Neill was to suppress his share in solving the case, so that the whole credit might go to Mark Bonniger.

"There is a democratic caucus next week," said Virgil. "I'll present Mark's name as our candidate for state senator, and it will be carried with a hurrah. Not only with the democrats, but with every voter in the county. At one and the same time we will make the republicans look sick and get us a Bonniger for our leader just as it used to be in the old days. After he's elected, I'm figuring that he'll see the need of getting married and carrying the family on."

"You are looking a long way ahead," said Neill grinning.

"It's my motto," said Virgil.

When Kettering's safe deposit box was opened, and they untied the little package they found in it, a flood of shining diamonds, emeralds, rubies and sapphires poured out. Fanning had put all his ill-gotten gains into unset jewels, as a currency easy to carry around, and good the world over. All this reverted to the estate of Miss Rayner. By will she had left everything to found a home for indigent gentlemen. So the old ladies got it. The yacht was sold and the proceeds added to the fund.

Ira Buckless left Baltimore breathing threats against Neill for having fooled him. However, Neill's business had won him many an enemy of Buckless' kind; and he knew how to take care of himself.

On Bonniger's Porch
At Absalom's, Neill and Janet were followed by a cheering mob wherever they went. To give them a little peace, Bonniger carried them off to his old square house on a hill above the Pocomo. He locked the gate of his place and, as the gate was a mile from the house, they were not troubled by unwanted visitors.

On the evening of the day after the general showdown had taken place, the three of them sat on the porch of the old mansion sipping mint juleps in frosted glasses, and looking at the glorious panorama of the river and its hills.

Strangely enough, they did not find much to say. It was sufficient just to be sitting there together.

After a silence, Bonniger said, "Well, anyhow, one good thing has come out of this sorry business."

"What's that?" asked Neill.

"A friendship that will last as long as we do."

"Let's drink to it."

They raised their glasses.

Bonniger said, with his dry smile:

"Virgil wants me to run for state senator."

"Well, you will, won't you?"

"Oh, I reckon so. I've got a taste for excitement now."

"This old house needs a mistress," murmured Janet.

"Find me one," said Bonniger.

"You haven't got a twin, I suppose?"

Pretty soon Bonniger rose with a transparently busy expression, saying that he must go look at his pigs. Everything had gone to rack and ruin during the past four days, he said. He disappeared into the house.

Neill moved closer to Janet and drew her arm under his.

"Is your yen for independence satisfied?" he asked.

"Ah, don't make fun of me! I was such a fool!"

"Oh, that's all right," said Neill.

"Janet!" he cried. "You will! I thought it only meant another argument."

"I'm not going to argue any more."

"Oh, don't say that. I miss it."

"Well... just as you like."

It's a Natural When Two Old Enemies Meet

WACO, Oct. 20.—It's a natural Saturday when two ancient enemies, the Texas A. & M. college Aggies and the Baylor university Golden Bears, meet on historic Kyle Field gridiron for the major conference encounter of the year.

Southwest conference championship is at stake as the boys from Baylor university, undefeated thus far this season, invade Farmland with the idea of setting back the Aggies, who last week came from behind to tie the Texas Christian Frogs in Fort Worth.

Baylor was picked by most prognosticators to end the season in the circuit cellar and the Aggies took the draw to cop the championship. Baylor and A. & M. began their football histories as opponents in 1899.

In the meantime, Baylor did a fair job by trouncing Southwestern university, Oklahoma City university, then nosing out the Arkansas Razorbacks, last year's champions, in a 20-14 photo finish. They came back last week to easily win from Centenary, 20-0, in a game in which Coach Morley Jennings gave his shock troops a good workout. Centenary previously had whipped S. M. U. Mustangs.

Aggieland followers have watched their team with interest as Coach Homer Norton's boys defeated Manhattan university and Mississippi State. But last week they marred their record and lost a trip to the Rose Bowl by the 7-7 T. C. U. tie.

Although Baylor is still riding the crest of the championship tide, they are in for a severe tossing this week. They are fully cognizant of the strength of the Farmlads, and Coach Jennings will give them the alphabet of works on the practice field this week. The boys will be well versed in the Aggie plays ere they board the special train that will take them to Aggieland.

Here are the five boys—from tackle to tackle—in the Texas Christian forward wall who will carry the brunt of the battle when the Horned Frogs make their New York debut next Saturday, Oct. 23. Averaging better than 200 pounds, this Frog line has been a power on both offense and defense in every contest this year. Whatever showing the Frogs may be able to make against the Fordham Rams when the two teams meet at the Polo Grounds Saturday afternoon will depend to a large degree upon the performance of this line. Capt. Mayne and Sub-Capt. Rogers are seniors; the other three players are juniors. All are letter men.

Market Relapse Due to Jitters, Experts Agree

NEW YORK, Oct. 20. (AP)—The severe relapse in the stock market, most experts agree, has resulted from an excessively growing appraisal of business prospects early this year.

Beyond this basic reason, Wall Street analysis becomes a babel of conflicting and confusing theories, save for this: The enormous selling wave of the past two days grew from a state of jitters, which fed upon itself until the usual climax—a market convulsion—occurred.

Whether Tuesday's selling—7,187,990 shares ending in an afternoon rally—indicated the climax had been reached was something for the future to tell, but Wall Street was hopeful.

To go back to the roots of the matter—a matter of slicing some $25,000,000,000 since August in the total quoted volume of listed securities—the economists say it is necessary to consider the boom-time psychology that prevailed late in 1936 and early 1937, which led to warnings from Washington against another 1929.

Whether these warnings, together with steps taken last year by the federal reserve board, would have sufficed to keep the recovery trend from rising too fast, then suffering a relapse, is a controversial matter.

er with steps taken last year by the federal reserve board, would have sufficed to keep the recovery trend from rising too fast, then suffering a relapse, is a controversial matter.

But this year, some unexpected things happened. In connection with the announcement of the huge British rearmament program heavy bullish speculation in commodities developed in London, and had its repercussions here.

Prices went too high and started to crumble, analysis explain. Then came bumper crops, which sent a number of farm staples sharply lower as the year wore on, notably cotton, which dropped from above 15 cents a pound to close to 8 cents.

Now as every business man knows, buyers, particularly of raw materials, hurry to make purchases when they think prices are going up, but stand aside to await the most favorable market when prices are falling.

So buying for future requirements began to peter out this summer, and slowed up abruptly this autumn.

Whether this interruption in the upward business curve has been sufficient to justify the wiping out of all the gain the stock market has had in the past two years, is another highly controversial aspect of the matter.

Stocks, as measured by the Associated Press daily average of 60 representative issues, have dropped about 40 per cent since last spring. During the same period a decline of only 11 per cent has occurred in the Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity, which is calculated on the basic factors of steel, electric power, automobile production, cotto mill activity, railway freight movements, and residential building.

In this connection, the experts say it is well to remember the market has normally fluctuated more widely than the business curve, since the market reflects hopes and fears, and the business

California Climate Receives Setback

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 20. (AP)—Thousands of persons mostly in the northern section of Los Angeles, expressed a fear to police and hospitals that something suddenly had gone wrong with Southern California's "million dollar climate."

They called to ask about a pungent, acrid something in the hazy atmosphere, complaining that it brought tears to the eyes and smarting in the nostrils and dryness to the throats.

"Are we being gassed?" was a frequent question.

But the weather bureau said no. It explained that the gas, if any, was from the industrial district and that it probably was held in suspension by an almost total absence of air movement.

costs, and lower capital investment.

All these, the report submits, are "at least equally applicable to Texas as a field for new, expanding or decentralizing industry. An official, state-sponsored program of adequate presentation of these advantages, combined with official effort to achieve those same cardinal objectives, seems indicated if Texas is to keep step with—or ahead of—her southern neighbors."

MAPPING THE NEWS OUR FAR-FLUNG DEFENSE

By The AP Feature Service.
NAVY DAY this year finds the bulk of the United States fleet at Pacific ocean stations, where the panorama of national defense shown on this map has been worked out to protect the U. S. from sea attacks from the west.

Hawaii's heavily-fortified Pearl Harbor, key to the plan, is the apex of the "triangle of inner defense." At Samoa, 3,150 miles to the south, is a navy anchorage. Guam, 3,337 miles west of Hawaii, is a supply station. Fifteen hundred miles beyond Guam is Cavite, the Philippines outpost at the front door of Asia and its international tension.

Roosevelt Denies Commitments Made Before Conference

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Oct. 20. (AP)—President Roosevelt asserted in a formal statement last night America would enter the nine-power treaty conference on the Sino-Japanese conflict "without any commitments to other governments."

The statement, issued after a long conference between the president and Norman H. Davis, head of the American delegation to the conference to be held at Brussels Oct. 30, was generally accepted as a reply to a statement by Senator John (R-Calif.) hinting that the United States and Great Britain had agreed in advance on a program of action.

In a statement in San Francisco, Johnson, an isolationist, demanded to know the president's attitude, adding:

"We know the attitude of Mr. Hull and the ambulatory ambassador, Mr. Norman Davis, and we know perfectly well that Mr. Davis would not be going to Brussels unless in advance a program had been agreed on between England and this country."

The president in his statement cited the language of the invitation to the conference—to the effect that the powers would examine the far eastern situation and "study a peaceable means of hastening an end of the regrettable conflict which prevails there."

He also called attention to his radio address of Oct. 12 in which he said the conference would "seek about the head. After receiving treatment here she was carried to an Abilene hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Ross had been to Big Spring and were returning to Baird.

by agreement" a solution of the undeclared war and added it would be the purpose of America, in seeking that solution, to cooperate with other signatories to this treaty, including China and Japan.

"Mr. Davis, of course," he added, "will enter the conference without any commitments on the part of this government to other governments."

Davis sails tomorrow for Brussels.

Department Store Sales Show Gain

AUSTIN, Oct. 20.—Sales in Texas department stores, during September were substantially above those of the like month last year, and the increase in sales from August to September was considerably above normal, figures compiled by the University of Texas bureau of business research indicate.

Reports from 111 establishments show an increase in sales over August of 42.4 per cent; over September last year of 12.3 per cent; and for the year-to-date the increase was 10.3 per cent above the corresponding period a year ago, the bureau's statement revealed.

Cities in which sales were above the state average for the three comparable periods were Houston, Lubbock, Port Arthur and Waco. The reports also indicate that sales in towns and in smaller cities almost entirely dependent upon agriculture were above the state average.

In spite of the substantial increase in retail sales, the percentage of credit sales to net sales increased only moderately, and this was accompanied by an equally large increase in percentage of collections to outstanding accounts.

Eastland, with half their conference games played, and who, needless to say, are always considered competition for anyone they tackle, will go to Breckenridge where they will try to tame the Bucks. This game was scheduled for the home field of Eastland but due to the poor attendance at the Eastland home games it was decided to transfer the game to Breckenridge where it will be played Friday night under the lights, weather permitting.

The downtrodden Ranger Bulldogs will act as hosts to the Big Spring Steers Friday to complete the schedule of conference games for the Oil Belt. The Steers are heavy favorites to take the Bulldogs but they will have no push-over in doing it.

Oil Men Oppose Higher Taxes Before Committee

AUSTIN, Oct. 20. (AP)—Oil and gas district representatives last night bombarded a senate group with statistics on why the production tax should not be increased.

The state affairs committee continued its hearing on a general tax bill, estimated to yield $4,500,000 a year, which would boost the levy on oil from the current 2 3/4 per cent to 3 per cent of value.

D. H. Rubsam of Wichita Falls, representing the North Texas Oil and Gas association, said last year the Texas oil industry paid gross production taxes of $9,624,676 while at current rates, the state was collecting an annual tax of $16,362,000—a 70 per cent increase.

"Taking the 1935 tax figure of $7,830,682," he said, "the 1937 tax shows a staggering increase of 108.94 per cent."

"The item of labor has increased 25 per cent," Rubsam continued, "clean-out work, 33 1/3 per cent; materials and replacements 20 per cent; teaming trucking, superintendence and administration, 15 per cent; the gross production tax, three-fourths per cent and the social security tax on payrolls is 3 per cent."

"It is a well recognized fact that the industry is already carrying more than its part of the burden. It is common knowledge that at present 42.4 per cent of the state's revenues are derived from taxes on the oil industry and its properties, exclusive of the tax on gasoline," he concluded.

The bill levies a natural gas tax of 3 1/4 per cent of value compared with the present 3 per cent.
