UNWILLING TO GO HALF-WAY, SAYS CALVERT

Teer Says Teachers Should Not Quit Retirement Plan

AUSTIN, Oct. 28 (AP)—Robert Calvert, speaker of the house, today blamed members of the senate conference committee on the general tax bill for the futility of the special session which ended yesterday.

"If the senate conferees had been willing to meet the house conferees half-way in the adjustment of differences on the tax rates and allocation provisions, I have no doubt but what the house would have released its conferees from the instructions which prevented them from signing the report prepared and tendered by the senate conferees."

Claude Teer, chairman of the teachers' pension board, said that the teachers should not withdraw from the retirement system simply because the legislature failed to provide the state money to match their contributions.

An explanation of the purpose of diversified occupation courses, such as are taught in Cisco high school and of the work that is being done here in preparing boys and girls for useful occupations when they have finished high school was presented to the Cisco Rotary club today by Ralph Barton, director of the courses.

The program, which represents a practical departure in modern educational trends, has been in existence about six years, Mr. Barton said. It consists of cooperation between the school and business men in the training of students who work half time in the business studied and spend the remainder of the day in the school studying the theory of the vocation adopted and taking other required school courses.

Clarence Dill, high individual in beef cattle judging in the recent state FFA contest at College Station, was also on the program, with a description of the work and training that the livestock judging team of the school has done.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 28 (AP)—American marines and British troops offered tonight to aid the withdrawal of a Chinese battalion trapped by the Japanese to end the menace of stray bullets falling in the international settlement. The defiant and almost certainly doomed battalion refused the offer and held grimly to the small area within Chinese Chapei which the remainder of their comrades abandoned yesterday to flames. Japanese crowds and foreigners here, and worshipping Chinese gathered on the settlement rooftops to watch the last stand.

Japanese advised American marines to take precautionary measures against a possible severe action to wipe out the battalion.

Widespread fighting extended along the line running northwest toward Shanghai.

Japanese reported further advances in north China.

Peanut Warehouse Is Assured for Gorman Territory

GORMAN, Oct. 28. (Sp)—Assurance was given Tuesday of this week by the Gorman Luncheon club that it would underwrite the amount necessary to supply a warehouse in Gorman for the farmers who are members of the Southwestern Peanut association, to store their peanuts in and there-by provide a market here for the peanuts that the association will purchase at 93 and 87 cents per bushel respectively.

The building which has been used by the Carbon Peanut company for storage, has been secured for this purpose, and an application is being filed with the Commodity Credit corporation for the warehouse permit.

Actual buying of peanuts is expected to start early next week. The government grader is already stationed in Brownwood and is ready to qualify the local grader as soon as the warehouse facilities have been secured, and these facilities will be ready as soon as the Commodity Credit corporation approves the application, which we are informed by officials of the association, will be a matter of only a few days.

The Federal Reserve bank in Dallas has the money ready for the payment of the peanuts, and the farmers will experience no delay in obtaining their money when they sell their peanuts. The plan on which the farmers will receive their money for their peanuts is simply this. A grader, qualified by the government will grade the nuts and the warehouse man will issue a receipt for the weight and the grade, this may be taken to the local bank and cashed in the same manner as a check.

Johnson, state boys' club agent, the Kokomo Boys' 4-H club was declared the winner in the state 4-H club social progress contest, which was judged at College Station last Tuesday. The club was directed in the community by local 4-H club leader, L. R. Higginbotham. The Kokomo Boys 4-H club was organized about one and one-half years ago, and since that time it has grown to 16 members. All 16 members will complete their 4-H club demonstrations this year and will turn in completed records. One of the Kokomo members was declared one of the 100 outstanding 4-H club gold star boys for 1937.

The Kokomo Boys 4-H club has made several trips during the year, such as: One trip to College Station, one trip to the San Jacinto battle grounds, a trip to Galveston, a trip to the Pan-American exposition, 100 per cent attendance to all county rally, club Sunday, and encampments, a trip to the district encampment, and many other valuable short trips.

This club's record will be submitted in the national contest to compete for national prizes.

DISTRICT HEAD SAYS MEETING IS BEST EVER

Rural letter carriers of the 17th congressional district and their guests to the number of more than 200 gathered at the Laguna hotel Saturday night for the annual meeting of the 17th district Rural Letter Carriers association which President Joe I. Nally of Trent described as the best such convention that he had witnessed in any district of the state.

The dinner, served on the roof garden of the hotel, was attended by numerous state and regional officials of the association, post office department officials, city and county officials and by Cong. Clyde L. Garrett of the 17th district, whose address was the principal one on the program.

Capacity of the roof garden was more than taxed to take care of the crowd, which was increasing at 9 o'clock.

Among state officials of the rural letter carriers organization attending were President John Hood of Dallas and Vice President D. E. Smith of Colorado City. Earl Slater of Clyde, Texas, editor of the Texas Carrier, official publication of the state association was also a guest.

Inspector P. M. Juvenal of Abilene was a speaker, as was Adolph Geue, of Austin, state paymaster for rural letter carriers at Austin. W. L. Fletcher of Hamlin, treasurer of the national association, was also a speaker. Officials of the district association in addition to President Nally, included Elmer T. Gilbert of Roby, vice president and Roscoe Reeves of Gorman, district secretary.

Other speakers were W. S. Adamson of Eastland, county judge, who formally welcomed the gathering to the county; Gordon Wier of Abilene, who responded on behalf of the district organization; O. T. Burleson, county judge of Jones county; and Burris C. Jackson, Hillsboro postmaster.

County officials were the special guests of the letter carriers because of the peculiar relation of their problems of county road building to those of the carriers.

Sunspots No Cause Of War, Prof Says

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28. (AP)—Don't depend on sunspots to explain the European crisis, the Sino-Japanese war, and the recent stock market gyrations, a Harvard astronomer advised Friday. Loring B. Andrews, secretary of the Harvard observatory, said in an article written for the annual report of the Smithsonian institution that the frequent efforts made by economists and amateur astronomers and others to correlate the occurrence of sunspots with earthly troubles, depressions and booms are almost pure guesswork.

Dairy Manufacture Rate Above 1936

AUSTIN, Oct. 28 (Sp)—Manufacture of dairy products in Texas during September continued at a rate well above the corresponding month last year, the University of Texas bureau of business research has announced. Markings on State Highways Will Be Simplified Motorists traveling United States designated highways in Texas no longer will be puzzled by a multitude of highway markers in thickly populated areas, according to instructions just issued by the Texas Highway commission through Julian Montgomery, state highway engineer, ordering state markers taken down on such routes.

"After an exhaustive study of this whole matter of highway markings we have found that by simply using U. S. route markers it is much easier for the traveling public to follow such highways," said Mr. Montgomery. "With the trend toward simplicity and elimination of confusion caused by duplicate markers some thirty-five states are using U. S. markers exclusively to the satisfaction of all concerned."

"According to the present marking, many places in the state, and especially the business districts of cities, require so many markers on each post that the traveler is forced to stop traffic while studying these markings, thus creating a safety hazard."

State highway officials state that the original purpose in assigning U. S. route numbers was to simplify the markings of highways enabling the traveling public to follow the route, to, or through, other states.

These U. S. route numbers are designated by the executive committee of the American Association of State Highway Officials after a careful consideration of the needs for such designations as submitted by the states.

According to Mr. Montgomery, the elimination of state markers from U. S. routes will result in a considerable saving to the department. He further said that state markers would remain in place on state highways which have not been designated as U. S. routes and which do not carry standard U. S. shield markers.

Credits Offered for Attendance on Sunday School

Rev. Joe I. Patterson, pastor of the First Methodist church of Cisco announced Saturday 23, that the public schools have agreed to cooperate with the churches of the town in raising the Sunday school attendances in the young peoples divisions of the various churches. The plan adopted by the two groups to put over this project will consist of the granting school credits for those students who make a habit of regularly attending the Sunday school services.

R. N. Cluck, superintendent of the Cisco public schools, acknowledged the plan a good one and one that would be beneficial to the community. The Ministerial association at a meeting Thursday 21, voiced their approval.

The plan, as it was explained by Mr. Cluck, will enable students in the public schools, of all denominations, who attend some Sunday school or whatever the denomination may term it, for six consecutive Sundays beginning today, may use this attendance to raise any two of their lowest passing grades from a C to a C plus or a C plus to a B, etc. But in no case, it was emphasized, may they use a Sunday school attendance credit to raise a failing grade.

Credit for attendance on four consecutive Sundays may be used to raise one lowest passing grade, it was explained.

"We are happy to cooperate

NEGRO LOSES UPON APPEAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28. (AP)—Haywood Patterson, one of nine negroes involved in the Scottsboro case, lost in the supreme court Monday in an effort to escape a 75-year prison sentence imposed in Alabama courts for an alleged attack on a white woman. The court said that Justice Black "took no part" in the decision. That removed possibility of a challenge of Black's position on the grounds he was a former klanman.

with the ministers in the town on this movement," said Mr. Cluck. "Children who do not attend Sunday school will not be penalized in any way, of course. We are merely offering this reward to encourage what we believe is a splendid influence upon the children of the community. In my opinion it is a step in the right direction toward establishing a more definite course in character education. Continuation of this policy will depend upon the success met with during this experimental period."

Can Japan Be Stopped? "Maybe"—With 3 IF's

By FREDERICK V. FIELD Secretary, American Council, Institute of Pacific Relations Written for The AP Feature Service

Can Japan be persuaded, or forced, to stop her Chinese campaign short of achieving her avowed intention of completely defeating the Chinese armies? This is the question which has become prominent with the sudden turn in American foreign policy toward international action given by President Roosevelt's Chicago speech.

The answer, or rather the nearest we can come to an answer now, lies in what is likely to develop along three directions:

- 1. The ability and willingness of China to continue strong resistance over a long period of time. 2. The strength of whatever policy the United States, Great Britain and the other supporters of international action decide to adopt. 3. The internal situation in Japan.

With regard to the first factor, we have so far seen the Chinese armies offer unexpectedly strong resistance to superior offensive weapons in Shanghai, but in north China the Chinese armies have been steadily retreating with only one determined stand in the battle of Nankow pass. In the air the Japanese have shown themselves superior to China; on water, except for what China can do to block river channels, the Japanese are in complete control.

War in the North

The majority of close observers, however, believe the Japanese campaign to be very far indeed from completion. Many Chinese sympathizers are not even worried by the rapid Japanese advance in the north, for they interpret the amazing lack of Chinese resistance as suspiciously like a predetermined plan to extend the Japanese lines by drawing the invader far into the hinterland. Once the Japanese line is stretched along the vast length of the Yellow river these observers look for a protracted Chinese campaign of guerrilla warfare designed to make Japanese occupation untenable and to force Japan to economic exhaustion and social unrest at home.

When it is recalled that General Pai Chung-hsi, a noted advocate and experienced leader in was scant possibility that any agreement would come out of this first gathering around the council table. On the contrary the conference was more strategic than anything else, a sparring session which gave each side a fair estimate of the other's trading position. Each group has presented its "asking price" and if anything can be said for the value of the meeting it is that something definite has been laid down in the intra-labor warfare as a basis from which to work toward an ultimate agreement.

In view of this it should not be disappointing that no settlement of the controversy has been reached. A division of sentiment based upon fundamental differences and growing over a long period of time is not susceptible to immediate adjustment. Agreement is more likely to be affected less by the beliefs and opinions of the opposing leadership than by the pressure of significant changes in the political and economic conditions which have such strong bearing upon the welfare and interests of labor.

Two Errors Don't Make a Right

The special session fiasco at Austin is less a reason for blaming someone than for regret. It cost a lot of money to discover that a fatal lack of incentive toward cooperation exists between two principal departments of the state government for which, it seems to us, both are to blame. Reflected in the refusal of the legislature to enact a revenue measure is a growing public distaste for new taxes, especially without the prospect of a corresponding reduction in expenditures. The legislature erred when in the regular session it failed to heed Gov. Allred's warning against increased expenditures and raised its appropriations above his estimates. The governor erred by refusing to submit the subject of economy coincident with the topic of new taxes and thus open the way to a compromise solution of the state's fiscal problem.

REPERCUSSIONS of the special session are certain to be heard in the next political campaign and the results of that campaign may be expected to further clarify the situation which exists with reference to the prevailing state sentiment on the issue.

Further, the ruling class in Japan is sitting on a social barrel of dynamite, and if the workers and farmers are subjected to a long period of lowering living standards, the barrel may blow up. Therefore, the sort of partial commercial embargo which foreign nations might impose on Japan, combined with continued Chinese resistance, would in part provide the external coercion which would promote internal exhaustion and force a halt to the China campaign.

These factors, however, cannot be expected to operate quickly. If quick results were wanted, the foreign powers would have to find a way among themselves to effect a complete commercial boycott of Japan—supported by naval action sufficient to protect the Philippines, Netherlands India and the other raw material areas of the southwestern Pacific.

Will European politics and American opinion permit such a policy? If not the most that can be expected is a mild sort of international action of long duration. And, if not even this can be achieved, no influence on the course of Japanese aggression can be expected from abroad.

Service Station Here Robbed by Hijacker Couple

S. D. Been, proprietor of a gasoline service station at highway No. One and Front street, was the victim of two unidentified hijackers Tuesday night who held him up and robbed him of $5 in cash and an undetermined amount of merchandise. The robbery occurred at about 8 o'clock after most of the cash had been taken home earlier in the evening, leaving around $5 in change in the cash register.

The two hi-jackers, a man and a woman, drove up in a car and ordered gasoline. Meanwhile the man got out of the car and stepped into the station saying that he wished to buy some cigarettes. After filling the car with gas, Mr. Been went inside to wait on the man, who, after purchasing the tobacco pulled a gun and demanded that Mr. Been hand over his money. The woman looked through his pockets and then after failing to find any more cash at the station, the two locked their victim in the rest room and left. The police were immediately notified.

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

I recently spent a few days in a town that was once a good trading center and still has its share of the business belonging to its trade territory, despite the U. S. highway running through it. It has a Lions club that represents the business and welfare side of the city life. Besides its general interests in common with towns of its kind it has in time past discovered its special resources. A very fine grade of silice sand in a heavy layer underlying the hill that overlooks the city has led to the development of a unique industry not found in many even fair sized cities. Access to plenty of gas and distribution over a good highway and a main line of railway, together with the raw material in abundance, were the principal factors that determined the establishment of a successful enterprise. Then something happened. Poor management put the business on a shaky foundation. A similar enterprise in a neighboring state had found this a serious competitor. Therefore a plan that took advantage of the situation. The need of the business or of the investors for cash and the desire of the other firm to be rid of a competitor both worked to bring about a deal that transferred the glass factory into alien hands, not that they wished to develop it, but that they preferred to close it, apparently. It seems to me that it is much better to develop industries in separate communities that make use of local resources, rather than to congest our production into a few centers. A more wholesome economic condition will prevail with the former plan; and especially will it make for a better social balance.

American consumers spend about 19 per cent of their retail dollar for automobiles and automobile fuel. Californians spend 22 per cent of their dollar for motor car transportation.

while usually a session cost about $4,000 per day. In this respect, it was an "economy" session.

Special Session Costly Failure To Accomplish

AUSTIN, Oct. 28. (P)—The session of the legislature cost Texas business over $250,000, before anybody knew whether it would levy a cent of taxes. It cost the state $90,000. It brought the spending of about $200,000 to Austin. Texas business paid about $150,000 in the expenses and costs of representatives in Austin during the 30 days; about $75,000 for the extra compensation of its spokesmen caused by the session, and about $25,000 in telegrams and telephone calls. An element of the $150,000 was the expense and cost of gathering statistics and reports, preparing data and printed matter back at home.

There were the 182 lawmakers and presiding officers; about 180 legislative employees, and an average of 200 business representatives, business men and lobbyists in daily attendance at Austin for the 30 days.

The average expense of the business men in Austin could not have been less than $15 per day. Most members of the house and senate managed to get along on the $10 pay. The house and senate employees average just under $5 per day, and spent about what they were paid.

The capital city profited by the spending of this session, like all others; but with a high percentage of the cash outlay going to hotels, food establishments and for amusements.

The appropriations ran only $3,000 per day for this session.

Blanket of Crops Protects Against Dust Storms

GUYMON, Okla., Oct. 28. (P)—A protecting blanket of growing crops spread over the blowing of five southeastern states in a mighty effort of man and nature to stem the march of the dust winds.

Fred Merrifield, Oklahoma-Texas field agent for the soil conservation service, said "at least 70 per cent of all the blowing in this (Oklahoma) area is nailed down by growing crops."

"They will stay that way, least until wheat planting time in 1938," he predicted. From Texas, New Mexico, Colorado, and Kansas, came other optimistic reports.

H. H. Finell, Amarillo, Tex., regional soil conservation director, saw in much of the dust area the five states the best row crop "in several years."

"The crops are exceptionally fine in the south plains region and much progress has been made in the entire area," he said. Kenneth Chambers, Colorado coordinator, said moisture conservation practices in soil conservation demonstration areas of Colorado had proved beneficial and stable.

Dean H. Umberger of Kansas state college said "the area subject to blowing is probably just as large as last year, but the soil is in much better condition."

Improved cover crop conditions were found in parts of eastern New Mexico and southeastern Colorado by Kenneth M. Gapes, soil conservation service official who made a telephone survey.

Chemical Industries Seen as "Naturals" For Texas

DALLAS, Oct. 28 (Sp.)—Chemical industries are seen as an advantageous and "natural" field for Texas industrial expansion in a report of the All-South Development council which, in noting many physical qualifications of the Lone Star state for this type of wealth-production, urges a stable state policy toward industry to accelerate the logical trend.

Not only is Texas in a favorable position for attracting these industries by reason of its wealth of leading mineral raw materials used in chemical manufacturing, processing and by-products, the report points out, but it also ranks high in non-material raw products—such as cottonseed, peanut oil, pulpwood—which are gaining importance in the fast-growing field of creating new materials by chemical processes.

Recognizing the growing economic significance of recent chemical "miracles" in industry, and the deep interest in farm chemistry, the report reviews salient "facts and figures" set forth in a special issue of "Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering."

That this type of industry would be eminently worth cultivating here is shown, the report says, by these general indices cited by this leading journal: employment in chemical industries is regular, well paid and under favorable conditions of hours and safety, intensive research being largely responsible for this stabilization (the chemical industry is spending $20,000,000 in research this year); 82 per cent of workers are in plants of less than 1,000 workers, 56 per cent in plants of less than 500; there is an average of $8,260 in capital investment behind each worker.

The ratio of salaried to hourly employees is high (18.1 per cent salaried against 12.7, the general average for all American industry); despite rapid increase in output of chemicals per worker—which is the essence of technology—there has been no technological unemployment; and these industries beget new industries, the "offspring" of discoveries of new processes and new products and by-products.

Despite Texas' favorable raw materials status—her petroleum, sulphur, gas, salt, lime, clays, carbon black, coal tar and potash are among the most essential bases of the chemical industry—the state now holds a relatively insignificant place in actual chemical manufacture, accounting for little more than one-half of one per cent of United States chemical values in the 1935 census. Her output of $3,849,071 was almost doubled by that of Louisiana, with $7,324,036; it was about one-seventh as large as Tennessee's ($24,870,886), and was ever topped by little Connecticut and by Alabama, each of which bettered the six-million figure. Such industrial states as New Jersey and New York, of course, were leaders with $138,128,726 and $123,496,822, respectively.

"Facing these facts" the report declares, "Texas should redouble its efforts to develop its latent advantages. The first step, already being taken in many other states, must be the establishment of stable state policies toward industry, warranting long term planning by industrial interests."

Among southern states, Louisiana, whose oil, sulphur, carbon black and salt raw materials most nearly parallel Texas' assets, has made conspicuous progress in the last 18 months in attracting chemical industries which, had Texas been able to present an official attitude of "welcome" to counteract the Pelican state's tax-exemption bait, might as well have settled here, the report says. A recent Louisiana coup brought to Baton Rouge a $5,000,000 ethyl plant, first plant for making this fluid commercially outside its Deepwater, N. J., "birthplace."

Texas' pine forests, her capability for growing any of the new rich-in-cellulose plants now finding industrial utilization through chemistry, her undeveloped lignite, potash, fluorspar and kaolin are "potentials" for putting the state on the fast-changing chemical industries map. Conversion of these into cash assets, the report concludes, would seem to depend on vigorous merchandising combined with an official state disposition to encourage rather than antagonize industry.

Prohibit Order on Beer Sales in Pre. 5 Enjoined

EASTLAND, Oct. 28 (Sp.)—B. H. Acheson, judge of 90th district court at Breckenridge, granted Friday 22 the application of beer retailers in Eastland county justice precinct 5 for an order enjoining putting into effect a commissioners court order declaring sale of alcoholic beverages in precinct 5 prohibited as shown in an election Sept. 18.

Milton Lawrence, Eastland attorney, filed the case for W. C. Caraway, Gorman beer retailer, and others against commissioners court, County Judge W. S. Adamson and Criminal District Attorney Earl Corner, Jr., in 88th district. Lawrence's application for an injunction was first presented 88th district court, which after consideration and argument hearing, was refused, and denied by Judge B. W. Patterson upon insufficiency of allegations to warrant order for issuance of injunction.

Bond for issuance of the writs of injunction, which were to be returnable to the next term of 88th court, was to be filed Saturday 23.

Lawrence alleged that the election was void because of insufficiency of the petition calling for the election, form of ballot was insufficient as the status of Eastland county is undetermined because of a case pending in the court of civil appeals which is an appeal from an order holding void the recent county-wide election upon prohibition from sale of all beverages and that allegedly the petition did not set out the type of liquor legal in the county.

Contestants further contend that reading of the order of the court in calling the election in response to the petition of residents of the precinct did not say what type of an election.

Electric Power Consumption Gains

AUSTIN, Oct. 28 (Sp.)—Consumption of electric power in Texas during September continued the wide margin of gain over last year which has prevailed during the past several months, the University of Texas bureau of business research has announced.

Reports from seventeen electric power companies of the state give total production of 238,000,000 kilowatt hours of electricity during the month, an increase of 19.3 per cent over September, 1935. For the third quarter production of these companies totaled 703,000,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 20.8 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

Commercial consumption, 52,000,000 kilowatt hours, was 15.6 per cent above September last year; industrial consumption, 118,000,000 kilowatt hours, was up 19.6 per cent; residential consumption, 35,000,000 kilowatt hours, gained 15.8 per cent, and miscellaneous consumption, 33,000,000 kilowatt hours, increased 29.3 per cent.

Postal Receipts Well Above 1936

AUSTIN, Oct. 28 (Sp.)—Postal receipts in Texas during September and during the entire third quarter of the year were well above those of the corresponding periods last year, according to the University of Texas bureau of business research.

Reports from 35 Texas cities give total receipts in these localities of $2,191,000 during September and $6,836,000 during three months, July-September, creases of 5 per cent and 4 1-2 per cent respectively over the like periods last year. All but five of the reporting cities showed creases in postal receipts both September and the third quarter last year.

The Characters

Nina, a nice girl with flaxen hair.
Honey, Nina's gay, plump, youthful mother, has brought home a new husband.
Richard, Nina's stepfather, charming, poised dark-haired, well-tailored and Honey's junior by 10 years.
David, a young auto salesman, met Nina at a party he crashed. He has copper hair and an engaging manner.
Cordelia is Nina's closest friend.

Chapter Eight Nina's Plan to Move

On the morning of the day the honeymooners were to return Nina woke with a little-girl feeling of excitement, that was all out of proportion for even such an exciting day. She was down for breakfast at 7:30, and Bridget looked actually shocked at such an unusual happening.

Just as when they had gone away, the house was a mass of flowers, lots of them from Nina. Mrs. Carrie Van Alstyne—Aunt Carrie, as Nina called her—had sent a hideously expensive, and equally hideous looking "piece," on a wire stand. There were red and yellow roses in hard masses, and a red satin ribbon with "welcome" on it in gold letters.
Aunt Carrie was about as close to Honey, as Cordelia was to Nina. . . . a grand person, with a great sense of humor, Cordelia called her "Horseface," and it was appropriate.

When the newlyweds got off the train, Nina thought she had never seen her mother looking better. And when Richard stepped from the platform, Nina felt a distinct shock at being so glad to see him. . . . not critical, not curious. . . . just glad to see him. She kissed his cheek and it felt hard and smooth, and it smelt faintly of some expensive shaving soap. Nice.

In the taxi, he sat in the middle, and drew Nina's arm through his. It felt lean and muscular.

At home in the hall Honey cried: "Haven't you look what Carrie had sent!"

And Richard showed immediately that he was one of them, by not taking the monstrously seriously, for a moment.

Glimpses of the new Honey showed up in flashes of a seriousness that was very sweet; but she had lost none of her youth and gaiety, because of it. Nina felt so happy that it hurt, almost.

She was not surprised at Honey's radiance, for Richard was probably the most perfect lover Nina had ever seen or imagined. It was his—restraint, she thought, more than anything else, that was so frightfully touching. Little things. . . . little, accomplished caresses.

Nina was amused and rather shocked to find herself thinking of two things: that he could have reached this finished state of artistry only through long experience; and that if he were this good in front of her. . . . what must he be like, alone?
They got quite high, that first night at dinner, on several bottles of the Pol'Roget, dix neuf cent, from the cellar; and all the questions about the future that Nina had had in her mind to ask, were forgotten.

Two Vetoes

In the past two weeks, she had wondered a good deal where Honey and Richard were going to live; where she would. She couldn't imagine that a new husband would just quietly slip into his wife's house and settle down there, complacently. And Honey would certainly want to start a new life in a new home. . . . a place to fuss over, and arrange her things in differently. Nina had even thought of a friend's tiny three-room apartment, which she knew was for rent, for herself. Honey would probably take the three servants, but a part-time maid would be enough for her.

But as the days slipped by, no mention was made of anybody moving, any changes of any sort being made. As far as she could make out, Richard had been living about in his various clubs; and beyond personal articles—like his silver toilet set, guns, golf clubs and an enormous wardrobe—he had no belongings at all, apparently. He just moved in. It was as simple as that.

Nina thought: "Well then, I'm simply going to move out." Because, in spite of the fact that she adored them both (she found herself using Honey's phrase), she thought it was a very funny arrangement, and no place for a grown-up daughter to be barging in. She told her mother.

"You know, darling, I think I'll get a tiny place of my own, somewhere nearby, because we'll want to see each other all the time. . . . but I do feel sort of three-s-a-crowd-ish, with you newlyweds."
"But baby!" Honey's little round pink face puckered up pitifully. "I won't allow it, that's all. How old are you? Can I still exert parental authority? . . . Why I'm not even going to let you get married and leave me—ever. That's how much I want you with me. You can't go."

It was impossible to argue with her. After a day or two had gone by, Nina spoke to her stepfather about it.

Now it was Richard with whom she had breakfast every morning; and she supposed it was so particularly nice, because she had been eating alone these last two years.

Nina was not one of the people who are grumpy in the mornings—neither was he; and it was fun to be taking especial care over the spun sugar halo of your hair again, and the selection of your pajamas, because you knew you were going to be seen and appreciated. For Richard did appreciate her. . . . and told her so.

On the morning that she had decided to speak to him about moving away, he told her again, emphatically.

"It's marvelous, you know, having breakfast every morning with someone who is so entirely—decorative. Gets the day off to such a splendid start. . . . Have I told you before?"

"You did, when I wore my new American Beauty. . . ."

She stopped, blushing to think that she had remembered the very day and everything.

"That was Sunday."
And she blushed again—with pleasure this time, to think that he had remembered.

She said, quickly: "There's something I've been wanting to speak to you about. I talked with Honey, but she only said: 'No' as I rather expected she would. I'd like a tiny apartment of my own, Richard." She fibbed a little. "I've wanted one—to fuss over, you know—for ages, but naturally I couldn't leave Honey alone. Now, though, I can. . . . Would you speak to her?"

He was eating grapes in the most marvellously efficient and fastidious manner.

He paused with his brown hand in mid-air, and looked at her steadily. There was amusement, and a terrifying piercing quality in his dark eyes.

Nina's heart was doing a tap dance against her ribs.

"I will not," he said, calmly.

"I didn't intend to get you involved in a family argument, it that's what you're afraid of."

And he said: "It isn't. I'm afraid that she might say: 'All right. Go ahead.'"

The tap dance turned into an elaborate routine. She realized with sudden conviction, that she hadn't ever really wanted to go, at all; and she supposed the relief of not having to was what was affecting her so strangely.

She said: "Expound your grape technique, will you, Richard? I am confounded and envious."
He showed her how he removed the seeds of the preceding grape neatly hidden in the skin of the current one.

They talked, very gravely for some minutes, about grapes.

Incident on the Avenue
Aunt Carrie (Horseface) Van Alstyne was holding forth in front of the living-room fireplace.

She was telling stories on Honey, and the eight or ten people gathered about her were convulsed with laughter.

It was Thanksgiving afternoon and Nina was feeling a little sick from her enormous midday meal. . . . Mushroom soup, and turkey, of course, with rich chestnut dressing, cranberry sauce, and old Margaret's famous candied sweet potatoes, that were really more candy than potato; then more turkey again. . . . Nina sighed.

She signaled her stepfather. "I think I'll walk up Fifth avenue a ways, Richard, or I shall never be able to face food to-night. I'm far from well."

She got on her things and went out into the stimulating November air. Lord, it felt good! She struck out briskly and sniffed great invigorating sniffs.

At 86th street, on the park side of the avenue, she ran into Betty Halliday and her brother.

"Don't tell us. We're out doing the same thing. Are you going to the Fenwicks tonight, Nina?"

"If I recover sufficiently."
A small group of urchins dressed in bedraggled grown-up clothes, their faces painted grotesquely, gathered round a taxi that had drawn up to the curb.

"How about a dime, mister. . . ?"
Richard Challoner stepped out, laughing.

"Hi, Nina! I thought I'd catch you. . . ."

He stopped to pay the driver and then threw a coin high up into the air. The urchins leapt for it.

Betty Halliday's brother whistled, softly.

"So they even follow you through the streets, eh, Nina? Who's the new heart throb?"

And Nina felt the hot blood rushing to her cheeks as she said: "Hush, you idiot. That's my stepfather."

"Oh-o! Sorry."

88th Court Sets Aside Writ of 90th District

EASTLAND, Oct. 28. (Spc)—Holding B. H. Atchison, judge of 90th district court at Breckenridge, was without jurisdiction in granting an order for issuance of writs of injunction to restrain Eastland county officials from enforcing the dry result of the Sept. 8 Justice Precinct 5 election, 88th district court Tuesday set aside the Breckenridge court's action.

The 88th court also adjudged that the order of Judge Atchison directing the clerk of the 88th court to issue temporary injunction is null and void and the clerk was directed to refrain from issuing "such writ of injunction in accordance with such order and that this case remain in status quo to all intents and purposes as if order had not been granted by the said Honorable B. H. Atchison, judge of the 90th judicial district of Texas."

The judgment of 88th court stated that he, B. W. Patterson, and George L. Davenport, judge of the 91st district court, both resident judges of the county, were neither absent, sick, inaccessible, nor were they unable, nor did they refuse to act upon the petition.

Eighty-eight court last Friday refused to grant the application for writ of injunction, holding allegations were insufficient to warrant issuance. An order for injunction was then obtained from Atchison.

The case is styled W. C. Caraway, et al, against W. S. Adamson, county judge, et al. Plaintiffs are beer retailers of the precinct whose voters favored prohibiting sale of all alcoholic beverages. The plaintiffs seek to have the election adjudged null and void.

Milton Lawrence, Eastland, is attorney for the plaintiffs.

FSA Task Most Difficult of Any Farm Agency

DALLAS, Oct. 28. (Sp)—After arranging a state-wide series of conferences between his organization and the Farm Security administration, H. H. Williamson, state director of the extension service, said that FSA has the most difficult task of any farm agency.

"The low-income farmers with whom FSA is dealing have bankrupted more Texas bankers and merchants than any other group," Williamson said. "The Extension Service realized the need for reaching this group, but had nothing to reach them with. We can give them advice and guidance, but they need first of all financial assistance."

The conferences which Williamson came here to arrange will bring farm security and extension service workers of Texas together at 12 district meetings, each meeting to cover 10 to 15 counties. "There are nine state or federal among low-income farmers," the sort of program which extension service has so successfully introduced among other farm groups. Schedule of the meetings, which will be open to the public, is now being worked out. The meetings will be open to the public, and explanation will be made of the manner in which farm tenants agencies serving Texas farmers," Williamson said. "We hope that FSA and extension service will be able to set a pattern of teamwork between these agencies."

C. M. Evans, regional director of the Farm Security administration, said that FSA will finance, may obtain FSA aid, including loans for purchase of farms.

The basis of Chinese social organization is a closely knit and highly organized family.

Valorem Tax Oil in Texas Shows Increase

ALLAS, Oct. 28 (Spc).—Proposed ad valorem taxes levied on Texas oil producers showed substantial increases last year, according to a report just issued by The Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas association.

Analysis of ad valorem tax in 56 Texas counties for the 1936, compared with 1935, showed that taxes paid by oil producers increased $1,395,172 while on all other property valuations showed a net decrease of $27.

Report shows that oil property taxes in Brazoria county increased $169,000, while other county taxes decreased $3,000; in Galveston county oil taxes increased $100,000 while other taxes decreased $125,000; in Chambers county oil taxes increased $120,000 with other levies showing a decrease of $29,000. Additional figures, taken from local records, showed a large number of similar comparisons.

In many oil producing counties the state oil operators are being alarmed over the substantial increases being recorded in the total tax cost per barrel. Analysis shows that increased taxes are due in many instances to continued increases in local taxes, despite the fact that production of oil is being reduced through natural decline in productivity of wells. In many Texas counties this situation has cost operators from three to four cents more per barrel, making the valorem rate in some counties as much as nine cents per barrel in addition to which they must pay state and federal taxes.

Age No Handicap In Making Grades, Study Reveals

DENTON, Oct. 28 (Spc).—Age is no handicap in making high grades in college, but women usually make higher grades than men, according to a study made at the North Texas State Teachers college by A. J. Landreth, student of Dr. M. E. Bonney, associate professor of education.

Analyzing the academic records of 643 members of the freshmen class with an average load of five subjects, Landreth found a negative correlation between age and grades so slightly in favor of youth as to be negligible. This study bears out the findings at other colleges where similar tests have been given, according to Dr. Bonney.

"E. L. Thorndike of Columbia university has made numerous studies of learning among adults in comparison with younger age groups and has found that people can learn almost as well during the forties and fifties as during the twenties," Dr. Bonney explained. "Thorndike also has shown that people can learn very effectively until the eighties and nineties if their interests and attitudes continue to be progressive."

On the other hand, the fact that age does show a strong correlation with church attendance is indicated by a second study made by John T. Daily, another student of Dr. Bonney's in advanced educational psychology.

In this project Daily analyzed the church attitudes of 74 college and high school students ranging in age 18 to 61 years. The tests showed that upper age groups were much more favorable toward the church and more regular in church attendance than younger students.

Women were almost twice as favorable to the church and about twice as regular in church attendance. The tests indicated a strong correlation between attitude toward the church and church attendance.

Slight Increase in Building Permits

AUSTIN, Oct. 28. (Sp1)—Building permits in Texas during September increased slightly over the like month last year, but were moderately below those of the preceding month, the University of Texas bureau of business research stated in its survey of the building industry. Permits granted during the entire third quarter of the year were slightly below those of the like period last year.

Reports from 39 Texas cities show total permits during September of $4,353,000, an increase of 1.4 per cent over September last year but a decline of 7.6 per cent from August. Aggregate permits for the third quarter were $13,121,000, a decline of 2.6 per cent from the corresponding period last year.

Cities in which permits during both September and the third quarter were above those of the corresponding periods last year were: Abilene, Amarillo, Big Spring, Brownville, Cleburne, Dallas, Del Rio, El Paso, Harlingen, Tyler, Waco, Snyder and Graham.

JAYCEES PLAN CELEBRATION ON ARMISTICE

with enthusiasm into plans for a new year of activity.

Report of retiring President Edward Lee on the convention of the state junior chamber of commerce at Wichita Falls, to which he was the local delegate, was heard. Mr. Dyer, chairman of a committee to plan the next regular meeting, announced that the meeting would take place at a dinner on the evening of the second Monday in November.

Dr. Hubert Seale, chairman of the parks committee, announced that the opportunity for developing a state park at Cisco with National Park service aid had brightened considerably since the recent visit of two high officials of the regional offices of the NPS to Cisco.

THE EIGHTY-EIGHTH DISTRICT COURT

(Judge Patterson, Presiding)
New Cases Pending
The following new cases are docketed in the district clerk's office for litigation in the 88th court:

Judgments and Orders
The following orders were issued by Judge Patterson in the court the past week:

The Southern Underwriters vs. Jennie Green, compensation, appealed from the State industrial accident board. Judgment by payment for defendant, Johnnie Green, for $1,550. It was decreed the court that 25 per cent of judgment should be awarded defendant's attorneys, as it was determined that this was a reasonable attorneys fee in the case.

Final report of Allie Putnam Castelow (now Allie Perkins), guardian of the estate of Louise Howell et al, minors, it which was shown the condition of the estate, and the report was approved. The guardian reported to the court that since being appointed guardian of said minors she had re-married, and asked for authority to sign all checks and other papers in connection with her guardianship as Allie Perkins, instead of Allie Putnam Castelow (Perkins). This authority was approved by the court. The guardian further informed the court that she and her wards have removed from Eastland county and the state of Texas to Tennessee, that the law authorizes the court to remove a person as guardian when they are no longer residents of Texas, she asked the court to vacate the guardianship after she had paid all costs involved in her administration of the estates of her wards, and had discharged and paid approved claims against the estate. It was the further petition of the guardian that she be authorized to sign checks for such funds now on deposit in the First National bank of Cisco without the signature of the representative of the surety company by whom she was bonded, as the company no longer has a representative in the county.

These several petitions of the guardian were approved and authorized. It was the further order of the court that Allie Perkins be and was removed as guardian of the estate of Louise Howell et al, minors, for the reason she was no longer a resident of Texas upon the payment of the costs of court involved, and certain other allowed claims against the estate.

In the matter of the estate of J. R. Wood, deceased. Petition of Mrs. Rose Wood for designation of the family home and the 15 acres of land on which it is located as her homestead. Petition approved and the homestead was so designated by the court. Appraisement of the estate was approved as reported by J. W. Barnes, J. M. Searcy and A. G. Pool.

Petition of W. H. McDonald for letters of temporary guardianship of the estate of Billy Bob Montgomery et al, minors, approved and letters ordered issued, and it was further ordered that the guardianship become permanent unless contested at the hearing named in the citation. Petitioners bond was set at $3,400, which was filed and approved with Guy Patterson and R. F. Jones as sureties after said guardian had subscribed to the required oath.

Petition of A. H. Rhodes, independent executor, to probate the will of C. M. Root, deceased, approved and citation ordered issued for a hearing on November 1. The estate is estimated to be of the value of $40,000 in which the testator bequeaths all of his estate to his widow, Mrs. Alice S. Root, his daughter, Mrs. May Smith, and his grandsons, Melvin and Robert Root Smith of Torrance, Calif., his sole beneficiaries, one-fourth to each and A. H. Rhodes, his nephew, is named independent executor and trustee, who is charged with the distribution of these bequests, either in cash or kind, at his discretion. The will is dated May 21, 1937. A codicil, dated Sept. 8, 1937, bequeaths his life insurance, the family jewelry and automobile to his widow, Mrs. Alice S. Root. Citation was ordered issued for a hearing on November 1.

The will of J. A. Bearman, deceased, was filed for probate by the executors, Mrs. Alice T. Bearman, R. A. Bearman and Agnes T. Bearman, independent executors and executrices under the will, who are sole beneficiaries. The will recites that the estate is community property, half of which is bequeathed to his surviving widow, and one fourth each to his son, R. A. Bearman, and Agnes T. Bearman, his daughter. The will also provides for keeping in force his insurance policy, the proceeds of which to be a fund for the education of his grandchildren, children of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Bearman. The petition for probate was approved and citation issued for hearing on November 1.

Final report of J. H. Woodruff, guardian of the estate of J. T. Woodruff, incompetent, showing condition of the estate, filed and approved.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord... Thou shalt go to thy Fathers in peace.—Rev. xiv, 13; Gen. xv, 15.

The crowd of cares, the weightiest cross, Seem trifles less than light; Each looks so little and so low When faith shines full and bright.

Oh, happy, happy that I am! If thou canst be, O faith! The treasure that thou art in life, What wilt thou be in death? —FABER.

True faith is confident, and will venture all the world upon the strength of its persuasion.—Jeremy Taylor.

Can Japan Be Stopped? "Maybe"—With 3 IF's

By FREDERICK V. FIELD Secretary, American Council, Institute of Pacific Relations Written for The AP Feature Service

Can Japan be persuaded, or forced, to stop her Chinese campaign short of achieving her avowed intention of completely defeating the Chinese armies? This is the question which has become prominent with the sudden turn in American foreign policy toward international action given by President Roosevelt's Chicago speech.

The answer, or rather the nearest we can come to an answer now, lies in what is likely to develop along three directions:

- 1. The ability and willingness of China to continue strong resistance over a long period of time. 2. The strength of whatever policy the United States, Great Britain and the other supporters of international action decide to adopt. 3. The internal situation in Japan.

With regard to the first factor, we have so far seen the Chinese armies offer unexpectedly strong resistance to superior offensive weapons in Shanghai, but in north China the Chinese armies have been steadily retreating with only one determined stand in the battle of Nankow pass. In the air the Japanese have shown themselves superior to China; on water, except for what China can do to block river channels, the Japanese are in complete control.

War in the North

The majority of close observers, however, believe the Japanese campaign to be very far indeed from completion. Many Chinese sympathizers are not even worried by the rapid Japanese advance in the north, for they interpret the amazing lack of Chinese resistance as suspiciously like a predetermined plan to extend the Japanese lines by drawing the invader far into the hinterland. Once the Japanese line is stretched along the vast length of the Yellow river these observers look for a protracted Chinese campaign of guerrilla warfare designed to make Japanese occupation untenable and to force Japan to economic exhaustion and social unrest at home.

When it is recalled that General Pai Chung-hsi, a noted advocate and experienced leader in

was scant possibility that any agreement would come out of this first gathering around the council table. On the contrary the conference was more strategic than anything else, a sparring session which gave each side a fair estimate of the other's trading position. Each group has presented its "asking price" and if anything can be said for the value of the meeting it is that something definite has been laid down in the intra-labor warfare as a basis from which to work toward an ultimate agreement.

IN view of this it should not be disappointing that no settlement of the controversy has been reached. A division of sentiment based upon fundamental differences and growing over a long period of time is not susceptible to immediate adjustment. Agreement is more likely to be affected less by the beliefs and opinions of the opposing leaderships than by the pressure of significant changes in the political and economic conditions which have such strong bearing upon the welfare and interests of labor.

Two Errors Don't Make a Right

THE special session fiasco at Austin is less a reason for blaming someone than for regret. It cost a lot of money to discover that a fatal lack of incentive toward cooperation exists between two principal departments of the state government for which, it seems to us, both are to blame. Reflected in the refusal of the legislature to enact a revenue measure is a growing public distaste for new taxes, especially without the prospect of a corresponding reduction in expenditures. The legislature erred when in the regular session it failed to heed Gov. Allred's warning against increased expenditures and raised its appropriations above his estimates. The governor erred by refusing to submit the subject of economy coincident with the topic of new taxes and thus open the way to a compromise solution of the state's fiscal problem.

REPERCUSSIONS of the special session are certain to be heard in the next political campaign and the results of that campaign may be expected to further clarify the situation which exists with reference to the prevailing state sentiment on the issue.

port of essential war materials. Further, the ruling class in Japan is sitting on a social barrel of dynamite, and if the workers and farmers are subjected to a long period of lowering living standards, the barrel may blow up. Therefore, the sort of partial commercial embargo which foreign nations might impose on Japan, combined with continued Chinese resistance, would in part provide the external coercion which would promote internal exhaustion and force a halt to the China campaign.

These factors, however, cannot be expected to operate quickly. If quick results were wanted, the foreign powers would have to find a way among themselves to effect a complete commercial boycott of Japan—supported by naval action sufficient to protect the Philippines, Netherlands India and the other raw material areas of the southwestern Pacific.

Will European politics and American opinion permit such a policy? If not the most that can be expected is a mild sort of international action of long duration. And, if not even this can be achieved, no influence on the course of Japanese aggression can be expected from abroad.

Service Station Here Robbed by Hijacker Couple

S. D. Been, proprietor of a gasoline service station at highway No. One and Front street, was the victim of two unidentified hijackers Tuesday night who held him up and robbed him of $5 in cash and an undetermined amount of merchandise. The robbery occurred at about 8 o'clock after most of the cash had been taken home earlier in the evening, leaving around $5 in change in the cash register.

The two hi-jackers, a man and a woman, drove up in a car and ordered gasoline. Meanwhile the man got out of the car and stepped into the station saying that he wished to buy some cigarettes. After filling the car with gas, Mr. Been went inside to wait on the man, who, after purchasing the tobacco pulled a gun and demanded that Mr. Been hand over his money. The woman looked through his pockets and then after failing to find any more cash at the station, the two locked their victim in the rest room and left. The police were immediately notified.

Special Session Costly Failure To Accomplish

AUSTIN, Oct. 28. (P)—The session of the legislature cost Texas business over $250,000, before anybody knew whether it would levy a cent of taxes. It cost the state $90,000. It brought the spending of about $207,000 to Austin. Texas business paid about $150,000 in the expenses and costs of representatives in Austin during the 30 days; about $75,000 for the extra compensation of its spokesmen caused by the session, and about $25,000 in telegrams and telephone calls.

An element of the $150,000 was the expense and cost of gathering statistics and reports, preparing data and printed matter back at home.

There were the 182 lawmakers and presiding officers; about 180 legislative employees, and an average of 200 business representatives, business men and lobbyists in daily attendance at Austin for the 30 days.

The average expense of the business men in Austin could not have been less than $15 per day. Most members of the house and senate managed to get along on the $10 pay. The house and senate employees average just under $5 per day, and spent about what they were paid.

The capital city profited by the spending of this session, like all others; but with a high percentage of the cash outlay going to hotels, food establishments and for amusements.

The appropriations ran only $3,000 per day for this session.

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

I recently spent a few days in a town that was once a good trading center and still has its share of the business belonging to its trade territory, despite the U. S. highway running through it. It has a Lions club that represents the business and welfare side of the city life. Besides its general interests in common with towns of its kind it has in time past discovered its special resources. A very fine grade of siliceous sand in a heavy layer underlying the hill that overlooks the city has led to the development of a unique industry not found in many even fair sized cities. Access to plenty of gas and distribution over a good highway and a main line of railway, together with the raw material in abundance, were the principal factors that determined the establishment of a successful enterprise. Then something happened. Poor management put the business on a shaky foundation.

A similar enterprise in a neighboring state had found this a serious competitor. Therefore a plan that took advantage of the situation. The need of the business or of the investors for cash and the desire of the other firm to be rid of a competitor both worked to bring about a deal that transferred the glass factory into alien hands, not that they wished to develop it, but that they preferred to close it, apparently. It seems to me that it is much better to develop industries in separate communities that make use of local resources, rather than to congest our production into a few centers. A more wholesome economic condition will prevail with the former plan; and especially will it make for a better social balance.

American consumers spend about 19 per cent of their retail dollar for automobiles and automobile fuel. Californians spend 22 per cent of their dollar for motor car transportation. While usually a session cost about $4,000 per day. In this respect, it was an "economy" session.

Blanket of Crops Protects Against Dust Storms

GUYMON, Okla., Oct. 28. (P) There w A protecting blanket of growth service at crops spread over the blowing dust of five southeastern states in a mighty effort of man and nature to stem the march of the dust storms.

Fred Merrifield, Oklahoma-Texas field agent for the soil conservation service, said "at least 7 per cent of all the blowing land in this (Oklahoma) area is nailed down by growing crops."

"They will stay that way, at least until wheat planting time in 1938," he predicted. From Texas, New Mexico, Colorado, and Kansas, came other optimistic reports. H. H. Finell, Amarillo, Texas, regional soil conservation director, saw in much of the dust area the five states the best row crop "in several years."

"The crops are exceptionally fine in the south plains region and much progress has been made in the entire area," he said. Kenneth Chambers, Colorado coordinator, said moisture conservation practices in soil conservation demonstration areas of Colorado had proved beneficial and sturdy and grass "will tend to check erosion between now and spring."

Dean H. Umberger of Kansas State college said "the area subject to blowing is probably just as large as last year, but the soil is in much better condition."

Improved cover crop conditions were found in parts of eastern New Mexico and southeastern Colorado by Kenneth M. Gapes, soil conservation service official, who made a telephone survey.

Officers said the aged woman once before been lost in the Devil's Den hills and was not found for several days.

Chemical Industries Seen as "Naturals" For Texas

DALLAS, Oct. 28 (Sp.)—Chemical industries are seen as an advantageous and "natural" field for Texas industrial expansion in a report of the All-South Development council which, in noting many physical qualifications of the Lone Star state for this type of wealth-production, urges a stable state policy toward industry to accelerate the logical trend.

Not only is Texas in a favorable position for attracting these industries by reason of its wealth of leading mineral raw materials used in chemical manufacturing, processing and by-products, the report points out, but it also ranks high in non-material raw products—such as cottonseed, peanut oil, pulpwood—which are gaining importance in the fast-growing field of creating new materials by chemical processes.

Recognizing the growing economic significance of recent chemical "miracles" in industry, and the deep interest in farm chemistry, the report reviews salient "facts and figures" set forth in a special issue of "Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering."

That this type of industry would be eminently worth cultivating here is shown, the report says, by these general indices cited by this leading journal: employment in chemical industries is regular, well paid and under favorable conditions of hours and safety, intensive research being largely responsible for this stabilization (the chemical industry is spending $20,000,000 in research this year); 82 per cent of workers are in plants of less than 1,000 workers, 56 per cent in plants of less than 500; there is an average of $8,260 in capital investment behind each worker.

The ratio of salaries to hourly employees is high (18.1 per cent salaried against 12.7, the general average for all American industry); despite rapid increase in output of chemicals per worker—which is the essence of technology—there has been no technological unemployment; and these industries beget new industries, the "offspring" of discoveries of new processes and new products and by-products.

Despite Texas' favorable raw materials status—her petroleum, sulphur, gas, salt, lime, clays, carbon black, coal tar and potash are among the most essential bases of the chemical industry—the state now holds a relatively insignificant place in actual chemical manufacture, accounting for little more than one-half of one per cent of United States chemical values in the 1935 census. Her output of $3,849,071 was almost doubled by that of Louisiana, with $7,324,036; it was about one-seventh as large as Tennessee's ($24,870,886), and was ever topped by little Connecticut and by Alabama, each of which bettered the six-million figure. Such industrial states as New Jersey and New York, of course, were leaders with $138,128,726 and $123,496,822, respectively.

"Facing these facts" the report declares, "Texas should redouble its efforts to develop its latent advantages. The first step, already being taken in many other states, must be the establishment of stable state policies toward industry, warranting long term planning by industrial interests."

Among southern states, Louisiana, whose oil, sulphur, carbon black and salt raw materials most nearly parallel Texas' assets, has made conspicuous progress in the last 18 months in attracting chemical industries which, had Texas been able to present an official attitude of "welcome" to counteract the Pelican state's tax-exemption

bait, might as well have settled here, the report says. A recent Louisiana coup brought to Baton Rouge a $5,000,000 ethyl plant, first plant for making this fluid commercially outside its Deepwater, N. J., "birthplace."

Texas' pine forests, her capability for growing any of the new rich-in-cellulose plants now finding industrial utilization through chemistry, her undeveloped lignite, potash, fluorspar and kaolin are "potentials" for putting the state on the fast-changing chemical industries map. Conversion of these into cash assets, the report concludes, would seem to depend on vigorous merchandising combined with an official state disposition to encourage rather than antagonize industry.

Prohibit Order on Beer Sales in Pre. 5 Enjoined

EASTLAND, Oct. 28 (Sp.)—B. H. Atchison, judge of 90th district court at Breckenridge, granted Friday 22 the application of beer retailers in Eastland county justice precinct 5 for an order enjoining putting into effect a commissioners court order declaring sale of alcoholic beverages in precinct 5 prohibited as shown in an election Sept. 18.

Milton Lawrence, Eastland attorney, filed the case for W. C. Caraway, Gorman beer retailer, and others against commissioners court, County Judge W. S. Adamson and Criminal District Attorney Earl Conner, Jr., in 88th district. Lawrence's application for an injunction was first presented 88th district court, which after consideration and argument hearing, was refused, and denied by Judge B. W. Patterson upon insufficiency of allegations to warrant order for issuance of injunction.

Bond for issuance of the writs of injunction, which were to be returnable to the next term of 88th court, was to be filed Saturday 23.

Lawrence alleged that the election was void because of insufficiency of the petition calling for the election, form of ballot was insufficient as the status of Eastland county is undetermined because of a case pending in the court of civil appeals which is an appeal from an order holding void the recent county-wide election upon prohibition from sale of all beverages and that allegedly the petition did not set out the type of liquor legal in the county.

Contestants further contend that reading of the order of the court in calling the election in response to the petition of residents of the precinct did not say what type of an election.

Electric Power Consumption Gains

AUSTIN, Oct. 28 (Sp.)—Consumption of electric power in Texas during September continued the wide margin of gain over last year which has prevailed during the past several months, the University of Texas bureau of business research has announced.

Reports from seventeen electric power companies of the state give total production of 238,000,000 kilowatt hours of electricity during the month, an increase of 19.3 percent over September, 1936. For the third quarter production of these companies totaled 703,000,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 20.8 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

Commercial consumption, 52,000,000 kilowatt hours, was 15.6 per cent above September last year; industrial consumption, 118,000,000 kilowatt hours, was up 19.6 per cent; residential consumption, 35,000,000 kilowatt hours, gained 15.8 per cent, and miscellaneous consumption, 33,000,000 kilowatt hours, increased 29.3 per cent.

Postal Receipts Well Above 1936

AUSTIN, Oct. 28 (Sp.)—Postal receipts in Texas during September and during the entire third quarter of the year were well above those of the corresponding periods last year, according to the University of Texas bureau of business research.

Reports from 35 Texas cities give total receipts in these localities of $2,191,000 during September and $6,836,000 during the three months, July-September, increases of 5 per cent and 4 1-2 per cent respectively over the like periods last year. All but five of the reporting cities showed increases in postal receipts over both September and the third quarter last year.

September 18 is called the Day of Humiliation by many Chinese. It is a day dedicated to defeats.

PROJECT GROUP MAKES RECORD

A recent visit made by the Eastland county agricultural committee and the county agent to the Eastland county boys who are operating a group project at A. & M. college revealed that the 32 boys, under the leadership of Jack W. Morris of Ranger are making a record in economy and scientific standing that is higher than most of such groups and equal to the best project groups there. There are more than 500 boys in project groups at A. & M. and Morris stated the Eastland county boys would be forced to build a larger one of their own for next year, or turn down many Eastland county boys who "want to join the group."

When R. R. Bradshaw, J. D. Guy and E. E. Blackwell, the members of the county committee were told that the boys in the project group were holding their expense to half that of boys living in college dormitories, they were astonished, especially after eating lunch with the boys and noting the quality and quantity of their food.

Mr. Montgomery first filled his 130 ton trench silo in 1936 with whole bundles. In 1937, he floored and walled the trench with second hand lumber and filled it with red top cane which was ground with a hammer mill powered with an old automobile motor. Before using the mill he removed the screens and hammers and left only blunt knives with which the mill is equipped to cut the silage.

necessary for some producers to designate their excess wheat as a cover crop without definite knowledge of the acreage in their farm allotments. It is estimated that the general soil-depleting allotment for 1938 will be from 80 to 84 per cent of the normal general crop acreage for the farm, except that where restoration land is designated, such allotment may be less than 80 per cent. Therefore, it is suggested that for farms where wheat seedlings equal or exceed the normal general soil-depleting acreage, the acreage designated as a cover crop be an amount ranging from 16 to 20 per cent of the normal general soil-depleting acreage. For the farm, plus any amount seeded in excess of the normal general soil depleting acreage. The percentage should be applied in areas where there is a low amount of abandonment, and a small percentage, should be applied in areas having higher abandonment and a greater per cent of normally idle cropland.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION for WHEAT GROWERS

In order to meet performance in the 1938 agricultural conservation program, wheat growers who have planted for harvest in 1938 an acreage of wheat as great or greater than their customary wheat acreage must file with the county committee not later than March 1, an application for designating part of their acreage as a cover crop to be turned under before mature grain is produced, according to information received by the county agent from the state AAA office.

Such acreage of wheat designated by application to the county committee cannot be harvested for grain or hay but may be pastured until a date approximately six weeks before the normal time of harvest at which time an approved soil building practice must be instituted.

Application forms for designating winter wheat as a cover crop can be gotten at the county agent's office. Wheat growers may either call or write for these. They cannot be filed after March 15th.

"Since individual farm allotments may not be established for all farms by March 15, it may be necessary for some producers to designate their excess wheat as a cover crop without definite knowledge of the acreage in their farm allotments. It is estimated that the general soil-depleting allotment for 1938 will be from 80 to 84 per cent of the normal general crop acreage for the farm, except that where restoration land is designated, such allotment may be less than 80 per cent. Therefore, it is suggested that for farms where wheat seedings equal or exceed the normal general soil-depleting acreage, the acreage designated as a cover crop be an amount ranging from 16 to 20 per cent of the normal general soil-depleting acreage, for the farm, plus any amount seeded in excess of the normal general soil-depleting acreage. The percentage should be applied in areas where there is a low amount of abandonment, and a small percentage, should be applied in areas having higher abandonment and a greater per cent of normally idle cropland."

Motor Industry Pledges Support to Used Car Week

DETROIT, March 1 (Sp.)—The motor industry today pledged its support to National Used Car Exchange Week, the industry's cooperative drive to stimulate used car sales and start the wheels of recovery in motion. The program opens next Saturday (March 5).

Uniting in statements announcing the purposes of the industry's program were Edsel Ford, president of Ford Motor company, K. T. Keller, president of the Chrysler corporation, and William S. Knudsen, president of General Motors corporation.

"The Ford company and its dealers," said Mr. Ford, "are solidly back of National Used Car Exchange Week. We are determined to do everything in our power to make it a success."

"The fact seems to be generally admitted that the automobile industry was the bellwether in the 1933 to 1937 recovery. We are confident that this new united effort to start things moving again will achieve its purpose."

"The one great contribution the automobile industry made to the nation in its efforts to throw off the last depression was its demonstration of courage in the fact of adversity. The same fearlessness is evident today as a united industry moves forward to start the wheels rolling again."

"In the Ford organization we have an abounding faith in our country's future. We are passing through a period of readjustment. When that phase has been completed, we are certain that the country again will swing ahead in true American fashion."

Mr. Knudsen asserted the industry's determination to make available to the American public the latest developments in transportation. He said:

"General Motors corporation and its dealers are happy to endorse National Used Car Week, sponsored by the entire industry. With the progress made in reconditioning used cars, and the guarantee which used cars offer for the protection of the buyers, there should be no reason why cars which cost more to maintain than what is fair, should continue to operate on the road to the detriment of general safety. The automobile industry, and General Motors with it, recommend that car owners with old models and high maintenance costs, look over the offerings of splendid reconditioned cars in dealers' stocks, and take advantage of the outstanding bargains and easy terms of financing offered. There should be no defective cars on America's roads. The industry will continue its work for economy of operation and safety in motor cars, buying with low cost and easy terms of payment."

"America has shown the world its progress in motor car transportation, let us show that we can furnish safe transportation. Springs is almost here, and the cars that have been laid up during the winter because of poor condition are now ready to be traded. The industry wants to get these cars. It wants to furnish transportation at low cost and replace inefficient units in a way that will make the purchasers satisfied and able to cover the road."

Tarleton Girls Study Family Management

STEPHENVILLE, March 1.—Sixteen girls of John Tarleton college have planned a family. Each one has located her family in a particular section of the country. She knows the number in the family and the income to be budgeted. This week each girl has begun plans for a house for her model family. After completing this she will landscape the yard. She will also shop in magazines for furniture for her home, always considering the income. These students are studying interior decorating under Miss Mattie Walker, home economics instructor.

Louis Statham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Statham, and Elsie Pulley, daughter of Mrs. A. S. Kimmell, are among the students. Both are from Cisco. Louise is secretary-treasurer of the Tejas
