Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

People are still writing books about evolution. The meaning of the word has become distorted in many different ways that to me automatically brings the question of just what is evolution. Some launch upon an or pro-thesis on the subject from the arbitrary basis that it involves nothing more than the proposition that descended from monkeys. The matter of fact, that monkey is nothing more nor less a tempest in a teapot resulting from Darwin's study of development in the pursuit of the principle he wished to establish. He studied the elements in plant life, also and of various other forms of life though no one has accused him of saying that man sprang from a crabapple.

When I did develop from a monkey, I doubt very seriously if it is anything we can do. It makes no difference what came from. The significant fact is that we are here, of us probably unfortunately, and no doubt we can do our time more profitably to better ourselves than to be arguing over how we came.

When we have had too much of a denunciation in this and not enough of the common sense Christian of trying to understand the and get along together, as the Reader's Digest, with the current popular of pillorying business for the sake of all, has hit at least a nail on the head.

When we suppose that everything that is charged against the man is true, suggests a article, entitled "Private Virtue or Public Good." "Who among us is free of similar Who among them is elected the first stone?"

When we make no mistake about we cannot have, nor shall we, any marked improvement in politics, business or social-being until the general men and women, ALL and women, lift the small of their own conscience (of these days) and examine into the mean-ness find there."

When we suggest that the most need-eds in private life are those of Kindliness and DEPTy.

When we will do you good to read this tonight. You will no go to bed a little more so-an before.

DEEP TEST IS DRILLING INTO ELLENBERGER

Oplin Well Flow Is Increased During Two Hour Test

Interest moved today to the Lone Star Gas company's No. 1 Thomas, offsetting the Hickok Van Parmer Ellenberger strike eight miles northwest of Cisco. The well began drilling into the Ellenberger formation this morning. At noon it had penetrated the lime five feet with prospect of about 20 feet more to go before it would reach the pay level found in the Van Parmer.

The Thomas is running about 30 feet lower than the Van Parmer. Its total depth at noon today was 4,123 feet. Six inch casing was set around 4,118 feet.

The Hal Hughes et al. No. 1 Poindester three miles south of Oplin in Callahan county, was opened for two hours yesterday on potential test, showing a slight increase in flow at the end of the period.

The well, flowing through two-inch with medium gate opening, put 33 barrels of oil in the tanks during the first hour and 37 barrels during the second. It was shut in while the flow remained undiminished.

Proving That a Streamliner Can "Take It"

Gliding along at 75 to 80 miles an hour the new streamliner trains get you there in a hurry. But can they "take it"? Judging from the two pictures above, the answer is "Yes." The top photo shows a streamliner, derailed but still upright, after smashing and splintering a heavy truck loaded with logs, lower photo. The 85 passengers stepped from the train uninjured, said all they felt was a "jolt." After hitting the truck the streamliner, traveling between Houston, Tex., and Dallas, ripped up the track for more than 600 feet. Two negroes riding on the truck jumped before the crash.

42 Boys Report for Grid Workout

By TOMMY LAMORE

Forty-two boys reported for the first work-out of the spring training period yesterday afternoon, of the Cisco Lobos.

The work-out yesterday consisted of passing and receiving, by the backfield, staunch and punting practice by the linemen. A short tackling practice was held after these workouts followed by track practice which is used to increase the speed of the boys.

Fifteen squads and ten lettermen reported for the practice yesterday and the coaches said that a fine spirit was shown by all of the boys. If this good spirit keeps up the team will go places in their district next year.

This afternoon work-outs will consist of fundamentals of the backfield and linemen, each in groups. Plays from double and single wing back and a shift plan will also be a part of the program. The next ten days or so will be spent in on assignments for a six man defense line. Most teams at the present use at various times a five, six, or seven man line which requires a team to be able to block against these types of defenses.

All boys will be tried at various posts to determine the best position for them. By the time the spring training period is over the coaches hope that they will be able to determine which boys will be suited best for the various positions.

Captain Bill Latch was out for the practice with much pep and enthusiasm as was W. A. Walls, R. D. Dunham, Marcell Harrison, and Walter Preston. Marcell surprised everybody yesterday afternoon by out-running his twin brother Odell, in both the fifty and hundred yard dash. Chesley Tipton and Raymond Reams did some good passing and punting and they will be counted on to do these assignments next year.

Lobo Band Will Go to Brownwood for Festival

Bands from all over this section will take part in the program at Memorial Hall, Brownwood. One purpose of the trip, Maddox said, is to get practice in playing in a large auditorium, such as that in which the regional contest will be held in San Angelo.

A very successful meeting of the Band Parents and Boosters club was held at the high school auditorium last night, the band playing a concert for the meeting.

The Cisco Rotary club reverted to melodramatics in the ancient and accepted style last night to entertain its members and Rotary Annex in the annual Rotary Annex dinner on the roof garden of the Laguna hotel. Mrs. Lee Heltzel was the director and she and the hastily selected impromptu cast earned the plaudits of the club for their presentation of the familiar old plot of gas lantern days, appropriately decorated with black mustaches, villainous hisses, beautiful heroine and dashing hero, and all the dramatic properties of the old-time play, even to the spy-glass detective.

Sutton Crofts was the villain, Miss Sutton Crofts the villainess, Miss Ida Mae Collins the heroine, Lonnie Shockley the hero, Mrs. J. C. McAfee the mother and Ernest Hittson, by his own request, the detective.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The poor among men shall rejoice in the Holy One of Israel.—Isa. XXIX, 19.

O Lord, in whom are all my spirits, joyful in Thee I come; My restless heart exultant sings To know Thy name in home.

The fulness of love is a condition freely offered or perfect acceptance. The varied experiences are as Browning has said, "Just a staff to try the soul's strength on." Shall we not enter today into the very joy of the Lord?—Lillian Whiting.

A Rare Opportunity

NORMALLY competitors, the automobile manufacturers and dealers of the United States have joined hands in a national movement to deal with a common problem. It is the problem of the used car. The used car, by-product of a great demand for new cars, has become a glut in the channels of automobile merchandizing...

ner. These used cars must be moved. They represent capital that is tied up, capital which must be liberated in order that healthy normal sale volume may proceed.

HENCE, there is opportunity during the next week for every person who needs and can afford to buy a used car to secure a good one at a bargain. There are millions of good used cars on the market today. These are going to be moved. One of those rare opportunities for getting the best in merchandise at the cheapest price is presented the public. You can buy with confidence that you are getting the fullest value for your money, value far in excess of that your money should bring.

The condition of the used car market points a moral in the necessity for legitimate profits, a moral that dealers and manufacturers have realized in the hard way. Successful and sound merchandizing demands a fair margin of gain. Overselling, exorbitant trade-in valuations and too easy credit are as fundamentally unsound as laxity in banking is unsound.

THERE is another potential value to this used car exchange campaign. It concerns the element of highway safety. The well known fact that most of the accidents on the highways involve worn-out, unroad-worthy cars. Exchange week will help to remove many of these hazards to safety.

The American Institute of Decorators insists that interiors of homes should match the temperament of the lady of the house. Green walls for jealous wives, perhaps?

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

I don't know what they mean when they say of someone who is slaving at some unenjoyable task, or who is giving a thankless service to some unappreciative tyrant, "He is leading a dog's life." They may mean a stray cur slinking through alleys for morsels of garbage while avoiding persecuting tin cans or guns of official dog-killers.

They chased one another in turn; or crouched down as if to spring at one another's throats, only to turn the threat into a rather rough caress. One had found a ribbon of red crepe and held it as if he had taken first premium at dog show; the other put himself on a competitive basis by trying to take it away from its holder. When they finally had enough and trotted across the street toward my window the looks on their faces reminded me of the looks on the faces of my playmates at school after an hour at blackman and we all came in, tired but happy. So if that's what it is some of us with strained nerves and cross dispositions and hard-boiled attitudes had better enjoy a spell at leading a dog's life.

The Literary Guidepost

By JOHN SELBY

"Action at Aquila" by Hervey Allen; (Farrar & Rinehart; $2.50). "Anthony Adverse" is just passing the 900,000 mark in sales in this country alone. It just has been translated into French, the tenth translation so far, if memory serves. The book is an American institution.

Shortly after the excitement which followed "Anthony's" launching nearly five years ago Allen began a new novel. It was to be set in the Cherry Valley of New York, and was to be another long novel. But it is yet to be completed, because before its author was well into the center of it, he became obsessed with another idea, which grew out of the Civil War and was an embodiment of a good many ideas Allen has had since his own experience in what we used to call the "World War."

The Civil War novel is published today as "Action at Aquila." It is comparatively short, only 120,000 words, and these used with greater economy than was Allen's habit in "Anthony." The setting, too, is comparatively concentrated—the Shenandoah Valley, and the borders of Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia. Although there is rather a forbidding cast of characters supplied by the author, it is a waste of time to read it, for the chief people are few, and one is not likely to confuse them.

Mr. Allen's story is quite simple—a Union colonel is forced to turn the home of a Southern officer and with it the body of the owner. A little later he finds and befriends the widow and her family—though she does not know she is a widow, and he cannot bring himself to tell her. There is an "action" at Aquila which rearranges summarily the lives of some dozens of people; now it is the widow who cares for the wounded colonel, and soon love replaces pity and there is an end.

Mr. Allen has explored most of the human relationships that can grow out of war, even young love. War itself he writes about as senseless conflict and actual death. His people think. An army sweeps by, and Allen's eyes are on the sweepings, not the broom. It is a fine novel, one to be remembered.

Although the Falkland Islands have been held by Great Britain since 1834, Argentina still claims them.

For Love of Polly

By RACHEL MACK

CAST OF CHARACTERS: POLLY CHELSEBY, heroine; stranded in London when war breaks out. JERRY WHITEFIELD, hero; the Yankee who sees her through. CABELL BANKS, privateer captain.

CHAPTER XXVII THE Gray Gull, by means of the sweeps, was held poised like a restless bird in the darkness while the long boat was lowered away. In the boat were Jerry Whitefield and 12 volunteers, hastily chosen. He had said to the crew, "Those that go with me will get no more in prize money than those that stand by in the Gull. Let that be understood." Yet many had clamored to go. It was very heartening. These 12 who accompanied him were Americans, all, each with a crow to pick with England. Revenge, it seemed, could flick as keen a whip as greed or patriotism.

According to plan, the Gray Gull again ran out to sea a distance and stood by. The long boat was rowed to the merchant ship's stern. Now the great hull loomed and towered above them. The oarsmen held the boat pressed to the hull's great timbers while Jerry Whitefield stood on a thwart and grasped a piece of loose tackle that hung from the ship's stern like a ribbon on an untidy woman's bonnet. By means of this he hauled himself aloft, gaining foothold here and there by any means afforded. . . . His moccasined feet came silently over the taffrail, and now he stood on the quarter-deck behind the slouching helmsman. It was true, that thing they had observed from the Gull; the quarter-deck was deserted except for the man at the wheel, and he was none too keen. A rum bottle stood beside him on the deck. . . . Jerry Whitefield seized and bound this man, gagging him against outcry. He felt no pride in his achievement, for the fellow had forfeited half his strength and wits to rum. Jerry doused the lantern and looked down onto the main deck. He counted a score of sailors prostrated from drink and possibly 10 that were still active. The watch was a late one. All others had evidently gone below to forecastle quarters. No officer was visible, either.

Armed with this knowledge he went astern and signaled his men to come aboard. This they did, each man drawing another after him like stealthy Indians taking a stock. As the last man left the long boat it bobbed away in the darkness, the symbol and the reality of a retreat now beyond reached. Jerry, seeing it go, uttered a smothered exclamation of concern. And yet, what matter? They must take this ship or fail, . . . DELAY would be deadly. Jerry whet one of his men at the wheel. With the others he stood for a moment at the turn of the quarter-deck while they picked their opponents on the main deck. The events that followed were as swift as vengeance and as brutal as warfare. The 12 Americans rushed upon the English sailors, overpowered them and herded them into forecastle quarters like so many sacks of meal, throwing them, shoving them, pitching them with a sort of gleeful exhilaration. This accomplished, Jerry closed the hatches and secured them with the locks that they found there. The locks were stout, as English locks were always stout against the chance of mutiny at sea. No shot had been fired, no call piped. There had been only the subdued, repressed noise of men in bodily combat, scuffling, thudding, falling. Jerry ran up to the quarter-deck and stood at the opening of the companionway. He had not long to wait, and it was no hero's work that followed. Several of his men had joined him; as the officers emerged they were overpowered and herded down the ladder they had just ascended. There were but four of them, and the captain was their spokesman. "Who are you?" he shouted at Jerry. "First mate of a privateer, sir. American."

"This is preposterous," said the lieutenant who was second in command. "It's beyond reason. We're just off the coast of England. We're part of a convoy. We've two gun brigs to guard us. The captain's gloomy face brightened. "You're right Mr. Carter. You're quite right. I couldn't happen. Our men won't allow it. Some of the convoy ships will discover this outrage." "Americans have devilish good luck," spoke up the officer who wore the insignia of a third lieutenant. "I'll not be surprised if they pull it off."

HAD Cabell Banks been there witty rejoinder, Jerry had a sudden realization that the occasion warranted it, that a small but vital bit of history was being enacted here without benefit of reporter or quip from the one who had accomplished it. But he was an inarticulate man, and when he had sent his sailors out and had started to back out himself, his pistol before him, he could think of no more suitable exit than to

Deep Test to Drill East of Moran

MORAN, March 4 (Sp.)—Dewey I. McNabb, representative for J. William Rich, was in Moran last week to complete arrangements for drilling a deep test on the Andrews lease 6 miles east of town. This location is 5 miles north of the Hickok discovery well on the Van Parmer that came in for 1,000 barrels natural flow from the Eilenberger, found at 4,025 feet. Work is expected to get under way on this well in the next few days. The Lone Star Gas company has a number of gas and oil producers nearby, producing from 2,100 to 3,600 feet. ## BRING IN YOUR OLD CAR DRIVE OUT A BETTER CAR EASY TERMS

This Saturday morning begins a nationwide event which this country has never seen before. Thousands of used cars—many of them modern cars with the advanced features the industry has developed in the last few years—go on sale at prices far below those of several months ago. Never has there been a national, co-operative movement like this to make better, more modern transportation available to so many people!

This National Used Car Exchange Week comes at just the right time for used car buyers. The season—the prices and the values are all in your favor. This is the week to bring in your old car and drive out a better car.

A great many 1937, '36 and '35 cars are included in this nation-wide sale. Cars have improved greatly in the last few years. If yours is older, you'll find it a real thrill to drive a car with modern style—bigger, roomier body—luggage space—safety brakes—bigger tires—smoother, more powerful engine—better gas mileage. Many of the dealers are offering their best cars with the finest kind of guarantees. If you are driving an old, unreliable car—one that nags you with repair bills and threatens your safety every time you take it out—this is your great chance to own a safer, more modern car.

Your present car may cover the down-payment, and you can pay the balance on easy terms. If you have no car to trade you can still take advantage of the low down-payments and easy terms during this sale. Go early!—before the best bargains are snapped up. Don't let National Used Car Exchange Week pass without seizing your great opportunity to DRIVE A BETTER CAR!

Daladier's Word Is Law in French War Program

PARIS, March 4 (AP)—Under the old black slouch hat of Edouard Daladier is the brain that may determine victory or defeat for France in "the next war."

As minister of the national defense, Daladier supervises the work of France's army, navy and air corps in much the same manner as Chancellor Adolf Hitler now does in Germany. Save only for the ready approval of Premier Camille Chautemps and his fellow cabinet members, Daladier's word and whim are law in the shaping of French defenses.

As minister of war for the past two years, and in three cabinets before that, the aggressive square-jawed Daladier is credited with bringing France's army to its present high efficiency. Now he will coordinate sea and air defenses with the army so that united French forces may strike together in war.

Foe of Dictatorship

Political leaders have remarked that Daladier was the one man in France whom the democratic masses would trust with such power. This 53-year-old politician's career has shown him to be the sworn enemy of dictatorship

HS-U Prexy to Be Honored on 70th Birthday

ABILENE, March 4 (Spe.)—Hardin-Simmons university students and alumni today announced plans to honor Dr. J. D. Sandefur, dean of senior college and university presidents in years of continuous service in the state of Texas, on his seventieth birthday, March 13.

Dr. Sandefur, president of Hardin-Simmons since 1909 has returned from a three weeks visit in Florida to find alumni and student bodies, in his absence, had laid plans to observe his birthday, which falls on the second Sunday in March, as "Prexy Sandefur Day" in Abilene.

The city commissioners authorized Mayor W. W. Hair to issue a civic proclamation, proclaiming the day.

On Saturday, March 12, the Hardin-Simmons student body, alumni and former students, and trustees, will honor the H-SU president at a chapel convocation.

Dr. Sandefur became dean of Texas senior college and university heads, in point of continuous

Contends the Prophets

Daladier retired to his native Vaucluse in the south of France, rolled his cigarettes, rode his bicycle and kept his mouth shut.

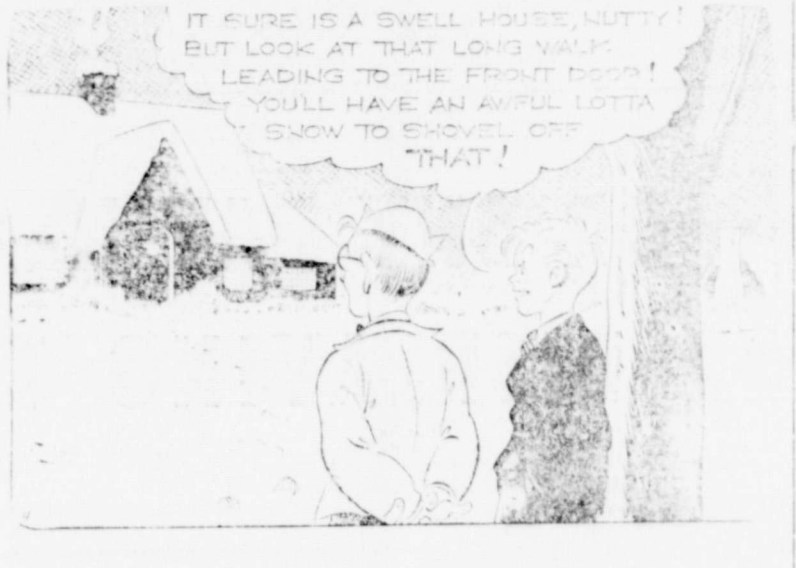

A year later, he resumed his activity in the Radical-Socialist party, then was elected president to succeed Edouard Herriot. When the People's Front government of Leon Blum came into office in June, 1936, Daladier became war minister, the post he has held ever since.

A former school teacher, blunt and quiet except for heated speeches on national defense questions in Parliament, Daladier entered the Chamber of Deputies in 1919. In 1933, he became premier for the first time, after participating in six cabinets. It was his second ministry that fell after the Paris riots.

There are a great many other parts of the treatment—enough to fill 140 pages in the textbook Mrs. Gifford has written — but such simple practice, combined with emotional readjustment, is its basis.

The Washington child welfare conference of 1930 reported 1,000,000 stammerers in the United States. Mrs. Gifford's much larger estimate includes lispers, hesitators, clutterers, jumbliers and others who are more or less articulate.

Having decided to make speech therapy her career, Mrs. Gifford studied widely in this country and abroad, and was fortunate to have a San Francisco capitalist among her patients. Completely cured, he gratefully financed her in establishing a clinic. This later was taken over as an official bureau of the state department of education.

ETIQUETTE Banquet Chairman Must Worry Over Seating Also

By JOAN DURHAM AP Feature Service Writer Like the society hostess, the chairman of the banquet committee should pay as much attention to the seating arrangements as to the menu.

He is restricted in his planning by the shape of the room. The best arrangement, of course, is to have all the guests at one big U-shaped table.

Keep Them In Sight If the facilities do not permit of one big table, the chairman should do his best to have congenial groups at each of the smaller tables.

Two Weeks' Notice Notices for banquets should be mailed a little over two weeks in advance. Programs are almost necessary on formal occasions.

DEPENDABILITY IN MEN . . . and Coffee

It's of those Texas cowboys, a story I'll tell; No name I will mention though in Texas they do dwell.

When the fall work is all over in the line-camp they'll be found, For they have to ride those lonesome lines the long winter round.

They will ride into the branding pen, a rope within their hands, They will catch them by each forefoot and bring them to the sands.

But now comes the rising generation to take the cowboy's place, Likewise the corn-fed granger, with his bold and chunky face.
