New Frome Murder Suspect Arrested at Royston

Through the Editor's Spectacles
By GEORGE

It is San Jacinto day, the anniversary of a battle which freed Texas from the grasp of its forefathers and a country which, as much perhaps as any other, exercised a tremendous influence upon the westward march of our American nation. It is a battle which led directly to Texas independence and the annexation with the United States of the Mexican war territory west of the Rio Grande, including the state of California, and thus owes a debt of gratitude to the heroes of San Jacinto. California ought to give a day to the heroes of San Jacinto and his ragged band of citizen soldiers in its history books comparable with the position of the Bunker Hill and the surrender at Yorktown in the case of the American revolution, and as surely as the years march on, the beginning of the epoch which brought the Pacific coast and its sister states of the west into the union of the Alamo and at San Jacinto.

It is the theme of a poem by the late Judge B. B. Wood of Breckenridge, father of Mrs. H. J. McArdie, which is published below:

THE SHRINE OF TEXAS LIBERTY.

For southwestern reaches was built, long ago, a shrine to Fame, that teaches all people all should know. A monument tells us the story of the men who died there one day, to preserve in glory the stars from Mexico away. A flag was floating o'er a nation newly risen in its birth, and that soon would take its place among the great countries of the earth. A flag above us still is floating, and one hundred years have passed, and silken folds denoting freedom lives while time shall last. Gathered there from every friendly nation near, who reeked not of the slaughter that the world was soon to see. Had Travis oft requested help be sent before too late, and by savage hordes instead, were resigned to meet their fate. A man that arch foe man, who threat'ning on the air, and his savage, cruel yemen the men beleagued there. A red flag was o'er them flying, and shrilled their bugle call, and those brave men, grim death to fight till each should fall.

DEVELOPMENT REVIVES HOPE OF SOLUTION

Clothing Found Near Kent, Texas, Also Is Examined

EL PASO, April 21 (AP)—The arrest of a new suspect and the finding of new clues revived the hopes today of officers investigating the slaying of Mrs. Weston Frome and her daughter, Nancy. Fisher county officers investigated activities in Royston, Texas, where a man was arrested for a reported robbery of another Royston man. An automobile similar to the one previously mentioned in the Frome investigation was used in the robbery.

Officers also examined a woman's shoe and other clothing found near Kent.

Arrest of the Royston man early Wednesday for the alleged robbery of a companion, Tom Henry, also of Royston, of $500, immediately led to sensational developments as officers pieced together a dozen angles involved in the case.

At the time of the alleged robbery, the suspect was driving a black 1937 Plymouth coach, with white markings on the side, and bearing California license plates. A similar automobile was described by eye-witnesses who saw the suspected Frome murderers driving in the Van Horn vicinity March 30.

Investigation definitely established, said a reliable source, that the Royston man was registered in an El Paso hotel at the same time the Berkeley, Calif., women were there, and that he returned to his home at Royston two days after the murders were committed. The women were brutally beaten and slain March 30 near Van Horn, and their bodies found four days later, April 3.

Officers reportedly found on the suspect's person a .32 calibre pistol, the same type weapon as the one used in the Frome slayings. It was further reported that the gun was sent to Austin for study by ballistic experts who examined bullets found in the heads of the slain women.

An unconfirmed report said the suspected robber carried a check folder bearing notations in a woman's handwriting of traveling checks having been cashed in Arizona and El Paso, two $20 checks in the former on March 7, and two $10 checks in the border city on March 20. There were no stubs in the folder, it was said.

Rebellious actions of the suspect, and his stubborn refusal to talk of the Frome case, further aroused officers' suspicions, it was said. It was reported he hotly objected to being fingerprinted, but finally was printed by Homer Bradford of the Sweetwater city police force. What the prints revealed, or where they were sent could not be learned.

The prisoner, held in the Fisher county jail at Roby, allegedly robbed.

Numbers of Cooling Systems Installed

Installation of air-cooling units in Cisco is increasing with various business houses and residences being equipped with these electrical-operated systems by the West Texas Utilities company. Latest to be installed is a unit for the office suite of Dr. E. L. Graham in the Huey building. A system already is being placed in the Peacock club on the Lake road. W. J. Leach has placed a cooling system in his residence.

"We Are Working Over the Railroad"

Workmen here are shown building forms for the flooring of the new overpass at Eighth street and Katy railroad, which is nearing completion by the Jensen Construction company. The structure, one of the most beautiful in the state, will be opened about June 1. It carries the new route of Highway 80, the Bankhead, over the Katy tracks where once a small wooden bridge spanned the tracks.

Ford Accepts Bid to Lunch With President Roosevelt

Get Out of the Complaint Habit, Sadler Tells Club

Speaking at the Cisco Rotary club luncheon today noon, Harley Sadler, Rotarian of Sweetwater, whose popular tent theater opened a two-day engagement here last night, urged the business men to "get out of the habit" of being pessimistic.

"We've all had a taste of the depression," said Mr. Sadler and it is not pleasant. I know that many of us are tempted to cross the street when meeting a friend for fear of being asked for something. Nine times out of ten," he laughed, "this is true."

"But west Texas has always been content of itself. It has had faith. I think that is one of the finest assets it has. What is the use of complaining about conditions. Let's keep that faith and stop being pessimistic."

Mr. Sadler, although on the road for the greater part of each year with his shows, has a perfect Rotary attendance record for several years.

The high school girls trio, consisting of Marian Jacobs, Billie Cole and Betty Lou Powell, winner of second place in the west Texas district contest at Hardin-Simmons university, Abilene, were the entertainers for the luncheon today. They were accompanied at the piano by Miss Catherine Russell.

Band Parents Club to Meet Tonight

The Band Parents and Boosters club will meet this evening at 7:30 at the high school auditorium. The soloists and ensemble who are to play in the band contest at San Angelo will play for the meeting this evening. This will be the last meeting before the contest and all parents and citizens are urged to attend.

Forbes Wallace of Texas A. & M. arrived last night to spend the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wallace.

At least 22 civilians were killed in Puigcerda, Pyreneas gateway from France into Catalonia.

Negro Threatened by Mob, Held in Secret Place

TEXARKANA, April 21 (AP)—Frank Ellis, alias Tommie Wells, 25, negro, charged with the criminal assault on a Texarkana white woman, was held in an unannounced jail today after a band of 50 men sought to locate him last night.

The men formed a motorcade at the shooting range here and visited the county jails at Linden and Jefferson. They made no effort to force entry after they were told that the prisoner was not held in either jail.

Spectacular Fire Levels Elevator

MINNEAPOLIS, April 21 (AP)—A spectacular fire started early today and destroyed the 55-year-old Pillsbury elevator with a loss estimated between $350,000 and $500,000. Approximately 500,000 bushels of wheat, barley, and rye burned. The structure is 13 stories high. It is owned by the Andrews Grain company.

Auto Magnate Confirms White House Report

WASHINGTON, April 21 (AP)—The White House announced today that President Roosevelt invited Henry Ford to an informal luncheon conference with him next Wednesday.

Ford told newsmen of Sudbury, Mass., that he had accepted. The invitation said that if Ford desired, he might bring along his son, Edsel, president of the Ford Motor company, and W. J. Cameron, public relations advisor.

It was expected that the three would talk over business conditions with the president. Ford smilingly said he would go to the White House as a man who had no favors to ask.

Texas Employment Increases in March

AUSTIN, April 21—Total employment in Texas industry and trade during March was a shade higher than in February but slightly below that of the corresponding month last year. The University of Texas bureau of business research has announced. Total weekly pay rolls were up moderately from February and maintained a substantial margin of gain over March, 1937.

Reports from 2,666 Texas establishments showed a gain in total employment of one-tenth of one per cent over February and a decline of three-tenths of one per cent from March last year. The total weekly pay roll of these firms during March was up seven-tenths of one per cent over the preceding month and 6.6 per cent over the month last year.

"Industries whose showing is better than the state average in both employment and pay rolls in comparison with both February and March last year included beverages, petroleum refining, crude petroleum production, and dyeing and cleaning," the bureau's announcement said.

2 SATURATED CADDO LEVELS DRILLED THRU

Will Continue to Range for Test of Base Pay Horizon

Prospects for prolific shallow and medium depth production in the area south of Cisco were brightened considerably this week as the Hayner, Reeves and Hose No. 1 P. C. Larkin, rotary test drilling near the old Hilburn field, penetrated heavily saturated Caddo formations. A constant stream of oil and gas bubbles flowed from the hole through terrific back pressure as the drill bored through two definitely oil and gas bearing streaks of the Caddo.

The lime was topped Tuesday at 2,523 feet and saturation entered at 2,525. At 2,556 the upper saturation was drilled out and the bit entered a hard streak. At 2,474 a second saturated level was entered and drilled out at 2,595. Cored.

The upper formation was cored for 18 feet with a five foot recovery showing excellent oil and gas content. It was not possible to determine the potentialities of the show, because of the weight of the column of mud and the back pressure exerted by the pump, but it was conservatively believed that the horizon would flow naturally for 300 to 400 barrels daily.

The showing is the second of consequence to be encountered in the drilling of this test. The first developed at 1,632 and was regarded as capable of good commercial pay. Neither of these two showings was expected and their appearance has given much encouragement to the operators who said the structure was extremely promising. All sand horizons above the Caddo have yielded oil and gas showings.

The Caddo pay will not be exploited at this time, operators said. The Larkin test was projected on drilling to the Ranger, the basal pay of this area and particularly of the Hilburn field. Its purpose is to give a thorough and scientific test of the structure, and to carry out this plan it will cut to the top of the Ranger expected at 2,965, where showings encountered already strengthen the theory that a good well will be found.

Seven-inch OD casing was moved on location today in preparation for setting on top of the Ranger, where the well will remove its rotary equipment and standardize for drilling in, according to the original plans of the operators.

Molding Mold in Making Steel Gear

molten steel at high pressure and quality is one of the most important experimental developments of the Ford Motor company.

Experiment represents a new method in the art of steel casting which Ford has pioneered with such successful results in the cast steel crankshaft and alloy steel piston.

Centrifugal casting experiments have been confined so far to blanks for transmission gears and ring gears," R. Carroll, Ford metallurgical engineer, said in describing the process. "In both cases it has been very successful, resulting in lighter, and less expensive gears than are produced by conventional forging methods.

My, What a Long Tail Our Car Has Today!

As in an alligator, it's hard to tell where the tail ends and the body begins on this new super-streamlined racing car built at Brooklands, England, for John Cobb's attempt on the world's land speed record at Bonneville on the Utah salt flats next August. As the rear view above shows, the long-tailed stream-line effect is broken only by the turret in which the driver sits. The new speed dragon was designed by Reid Rainon and contains two Napier engines of 1250 h. p. each which drive the front and rear axles independently, making two racing machines in one. Weighing over 3 tons, the car is 4 feet 3 inches high and has a wheelbase of 13 1-2 feet. The aluminum body weighs less than 500 pounds.

Advantages are obtained by whirling the dies rather than turning the metal into a mold, Mr. McCarroll said.

In the first place, centrifugal casting is free of shrinkage, free of porosity and shrinkage, he said. More important is the fact that any remaining crystal grain in the metal runs parallel to the forces the gear is subjected to in actual use. On the other hand, "flow lines" formed during forging are parallel to the forces the forged gear is subjected to in actual use. Therefore the centrifugal casting of the metal is a more direct method of producing the gear, and approximately three minutes later the gear blank emerges. The simplicity and low cost of this operation is in contrast to the forging method. In the metal is taken from the melting furnace, poured into ingots, put through the "soaking pit" to bring it up to the proper heat, and then run through rolling processes, during which about 25 percent of the metal must be cropped off and remelted. This necessitates three reheatings, and a fourth metal less in the forging operation.

Mr. McCarroll said the saving in weight of the cast gears was owing to the fact "we can put the metal where we want it." It is also possible to hold the dimensions much closer than in the case of forgings, leaving considerably less excess metal to be machined off the gear blank. The only sand cores required are those used here undercuts are desired for reasons of shrinkage between prominent protruding parts of castings.

The company's experience with casting these parts centrifugally extends back a full year, he said. At first the molds were spun at speeds ranging from 400 r.p.m., to as high as 1800, but 600 r.p.m. for the ring gear blank and of 800 from the transmission gear blank have proved the most satisfactory.

"There have been, and still are, a lot of problems to solve, since we are exploring new ground in much of this work," he said. "However, we are convinced the principle of centrifugal casting is entirely practicable and we now are developing multiple centrifugal molds to put the operation on a production basis."

The program was arranged by C. L. Wilson, teacher of vocational agriculture in Rising Star high school.

Hunter Again Tosses Hat Into Governor Ring

WICHITA FALLS, April 21 (AP)—Hurling a word of defiance to the state political machine and a pledge to fight for the "plain people," Tom Hunter, Wichita Falls oil man and three times candidate for governor, flung his hat in the governor's race again here Tuesday.

The formal announcement came after a tour over parts of the state in which Hunter had contacted friends and political observers and found voters sympathetic towards his candidacy.

His full statement follows: "In 1934 and 1936 those who believed as I have found the state machine holding a solid line. We pushed it back just as far in the 1936 primary as we did in the first of 1934. We got just as many votes, and each time, though, we were crippled in the scrimmage and couldn't carry through with the ball. In 1934 the money wagon ran over us when we couldn't buy stamps, yet convinced the many that we were millionaires. In 1936 we were forced down by the united front of the state machine, the centennial aid and an unfortunate political trade.

Machine Split

"The machine is widely split this year. The ball can now be carried through the line. The people can score. The horses of the old money wagon are collared in the opposite direction. It may hold the tonnage, but it can't show the mileage. Two self-crowned princes have refused to permit the committee of the bosses to name their order of ascension. In their flight for the "bone" each has even said to the other: You show my reflection and I will portray yours. We know each other. We've played on the same team and have had the same rule book, we've skipped the same rope.

"And they have: they have been in such union that they could pass the rope on to the other without missing a hop. The same fellows financed and brought about the election of both. The election of either would be a victory to the same crowd. The people can cross the wire now because these fellows hold opposite ends of that rope and this hop will trip them both.

"My fight for the plain people was not begun lightly. It was sincere. It is true that they have bled my brow with their silvered lode; they have chagrined my friends by false propaganda, but they have never broken my course. The steerage of this ship of state may now be manned by the plainman."

When the EXPERTS Say He Should Do a MAN-SIZED JOB!

Texas truck operators are not asking for bigger trucks. They are asking for sensible regulations permitting them to fill the ones they have, so they can do their shipping job just as safely, but more economically and efficiently than in the past.

Texas is one of only four states in the Union which limits a truck load to 7,000 pounds. The result is: carriers of heavy merchandise must run half loaded, doubling the number of trucks on the road, raising shipping costs to both producer and consumer and severely handicapping interstate commerce.

Much heavier loads may safely be carried—44 other states permit them. The National Safety Council makes a plea, based on studies of technical experts, for uniform legislation providing for loads of 16,000 pounds per AXLE where high pressure pneumatic tires are used and 18,000 pounds per AXLE where low pressure tires are used. Such regulations are considered absolutely safe by the EXPERTS. They are endorsed by such organizations as the U. S. Department of Agriculture, National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, American Association of State Highway Officials, American Motorist Association and a score of others manned by experts who know that highway stresses are ruled by wheel loads and not by gross loads!

The gist of the matter is this: Let's have laws which are big enough to fit the modern trucking industry, which enable it to fill the demands made on it by the commerce of today, which permit shipments with greater economy to both producer and consumer.

Instead of an ill-advised 7,000-lb. load limit law, dictated by the prejudice of an unfriendly competition, which sends a MAN to do a BOY'S WORK—let's have more adequate regulations as recommended by the EXPERTS, which will enable him to do a MAN-SIZED JOB! For the sake of both safety and economy—REPEAL the 7,000-lb. load limit law!

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Create in me a clean heart, O God. . . . Make me hear of joy and gladness.—Ps. li. 8, 10.

I think if thou couldst know, O soul that will complain, What lies concealed below Our burden and our pain, How just our anguish brings Nearer those longed for things We seek for now in vain,— I think thou wouldst rejoice, and not complain. —A. A. PROCTER.

While we acknowledge the suffering to which man is condemned by sin, the words of the Holy Book are explicit and unanimous in proclaiming the reign of joy in this vale of tears.—Madame Swetchine.

Increasing Evidence and a Way to Save a Political Face

The country has it on the authority of the senate committee on unemployment that one of the best ways to combat the depression and restore jobs to the jobless is by repeal of the undistributed profits tax. The senate committee on unemployment which has been delving into the causes of the recession and the loss of jobs ought to know. It is not an anti-administration agency. On the contrary its chairman, Senator Byrnes, has been a strong supporter of the administration. The report, added to the opinions of an increasing number of administration agencies and leaders, ought to command respect. House bill adherents, however, who have been insisting on retention of the house version of the revenue bill, blessed by the White House, demand proof that the senate bill, abolishing the undistributed profits levy, would be helpful. We wonder what "proof" is desired. If there is not sufficient proof that abolition of the tax would help business there is abundant proof that the tax itself has been oppressive. The country undeniably is in the midst of a depression despite the fact that there is plenty of money waiting to be used. Why isn't this money being used? Why isn't it being expended in productive enterprises, promotional campaigns designed to increase the consumption of goods to raise the American standard of living. Why isn't it being invested in expansions of industrial and commercial activities to give wholesome employment to the millions of workers now turning to relief and government subsidies? Why, instead of seeking investments in business and industrial fields it is flowing into billions of tax-exempt government securities? Is it because these investors who wish to make a profit on their money consider the extremely low rate of government bond interest much more attractive and safe than returns on private investments? Certainly, they do.

If investors' money is avoiding business, how can business prosper? And if business does not prosper how can it hire people and pay wages and take up the burden of unemployment that the government is essaying to do by the process of borrowing more billions which eventually must be paid back with interest by the people?

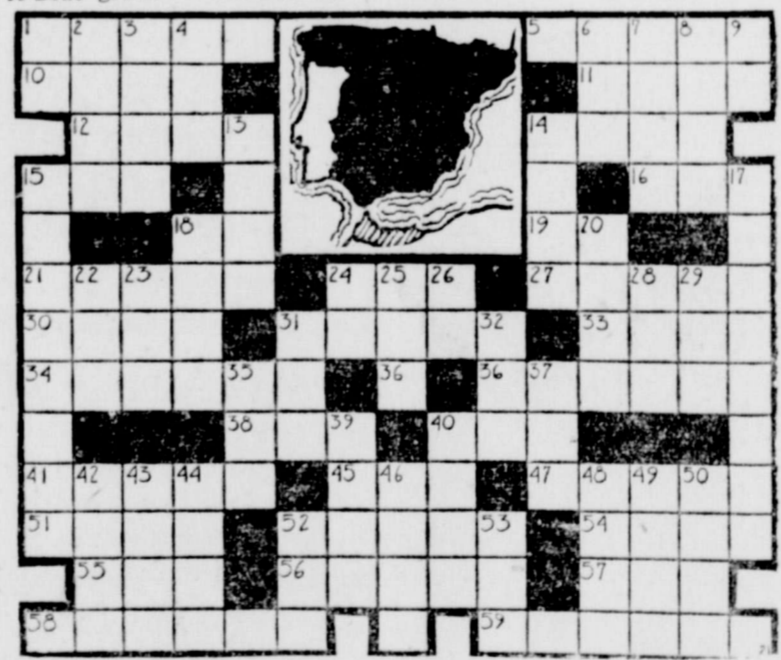

Does it not appear infinitely more reasonable to give private initiative and capital the considerations it asks if, in the face of the current uncertainty, it is urged to take up the slack and keep the pump of prosperity going? Ever since the undistributed profits tax and the capital gains tax were enacted it has been clear that they have exercised a depressing effect upon business. The president, at the outset of his administration admitted that what was being tried was experiment. He promised to be the first to admit a failure. It is suggested now that he look back upon this fine and cooperative statement of principle, this really democratic proposition. If anything is needed to save a political face, he himself provided it very tangibly at the beginning.

Retail Sales in Texas Are Above Nation's Average

AUSTIN, April 21—Texas continues to make a far better showing in retail sales than the nation as a whole, according to the bureau of business research of the University of Texas. Aggregate sales, as measured in dollars, during March of a representative group of department stores, dry goods, and apparel stores, men's and women's specialty stores were only slightly below those of the corresponding month last year and exceeded those of February by almost the normal seasonal amount, the report said. Reports from 106 retail establishments showed total dollar sales during March of only 2.4 per cent below those of the like month last year, while the increase over February was 21.6 per cent. The fact that Easter came in March last year whereas this year it came in April lends further optimism to the current showing.

Human and Other Nature

By W. F. BRUCE

I believe in trying out on yourself the goods you are urging upon the other fellow, I am doing that with the Cisco Daily Press. My radio is out of commission. I turned down all cries of street corner newsmen. I even gave the Mrs. first and only chance at my News-week. I shut myself entirely away from the world and all that it is doing—except, I have read for a week the Cisco Daily Press, as an experiment in isolation. Since I did not enter into conversation any more than usual, somewhat limited at that, I thus had a chance to see what kind of a view one would get of his community, his state, his country, and his world through the one avenue of a local paper. One might begin at the farthest and come home; or might begin with his immediate surroundings and extend the picture to the end of the world. I chose the latter method, and include six issues of the Cisco Daily Press, April 13-19. Thirty-eight eight column pages included in the reading.

First, as to the rural contiguous to Cisco as a center, there are some dozen and a half items bearing upon it. But our main source is the columns of the rural correspondents, about half of whom wrote this week, representing a dozen different neighborhoods. Events include a fire in a rural home, a neighborhood festival in a consolidated school, F.F.A. activities, H.D. club meetings, 4-H interests including the building of a club house, funerals, illnesses, births and their anniversaries, and marriages; also cattle dipping, this year's range program and a shipment of fine cattle. Five different references show interest in a community singing to prove that a current activity that goes over in this section is one of these song meets. The weather affects rural residents; the freeze wrought havoc and the pleasant spring weather helped recovery. Corn had to be replanted and fruit suffered almost complete loss.

Some one moves out of or into a community now and then. Church is still an interest in several neighborhoods, despite the frequent comment these days on the difficulty of maintaining rural churches. Visits of rural folk upon one another any day, any hour of the day, relieve monotonous daily tasks and at distances impossible

Easter Cruise

CAST OF CHARACTERS: JOYCE MILLER, heroine; she took an Easter Cruise. DICK HAMILTON, hero; he bumped into the heroine. ISOBEL PORTER, traveler; she sought a mate.

CHAPTER XIV "Do you think we should venture out of the city?" Mr. Gregory asked uncertainly. They were finishing their lunch at the British Club, and he seemed loath to leave its cool splendor and its conservative protection. "Why not?" Joyce asked lightly. "We have plenty of time, and Dr. Gray remarked particularly that the drive to the Petionville Club was a worth-while sight."

His tone conveyed the suggestion that she might say, "Oh, never mind, thank you," but she didn't say it. She wanted to go, terrifically, if only for spite. Their three faithful guides were waiting attentively for them. Mr. Gregory mentioned the Petionville Club to the driver, and he grinned in quick understanding. In less than a few moments they were out in the country, climbing a mountain road which overlooked the harbor. Here and there tiny cottages dotted the scenery; makeshift affairs they were, some of narrow shafts of bamboo or sugarcane, some of odd bits of second-hand lumber, but all of them were white-washed in flashing elegance. Against the abundant background of tropical shrubbery they were quaint and picturesque.

Keeping Up With The Boy Scouts

Monday night at 7 o'clock scouts of the central section, including those from Blanket, Brownwood, Rising Star, Cross Cut, Pioneer, Sipe Springs, and Zephyr, met at Lake Greenwood. Each man brought food for his supper, which included two eggs, two potatoes, one small steak, one loaf onion, four slices of bacon, four slices of bread, and no cooking utensils. How each one prepared his supper without the aid of a skillet was both educational and very amusing. It was a worthwhile get-together and was thoroughly enjoyed by those present.

Soviet Farmer Purge Is Ordered Stopped

Communist leaders accused the provincial officials of bureaucratic highhandedness and warned them that they would be tried as criminals unless the unwarranted expulsions ceased.
