HUGHES COMPLETES ROUND-WORLD FLIGHT

1940 Olympics Abandoned by Japan

Prospect of Long War With China Causes Act, Gov't Admits

TOKYO, July 14 (AP)—The Japanese government suddenly announced today abandonment of 1940 Olympic plans and cancellation of the 1940 international exposition.

Prospects that the Chinese war would be drawn out made it impossible to finance the two projects, the government admitted. Also, Japanese military opposed the games as an influence for internationalism.

English and American Olympic officials predicted London or Finland would receive the offer for the 1940 Olympics.

It's a Pain in the Neck to Japs

It may be "China's Sorrow"—but the Yellow river has also become a major annoyance to the Japanese invaders. Here trouserless Nipponese soldiers laboriously repair a bridge near Chungmow after the recent floods, so that they may continue the drive on Hankow.

Abilene vs Coleman; Pipe Liners vs. JCC

The big Cisco tournament will continue tonight with two more close hard-fought battles in prospect. Cisco Jaycees, with Carter pitching, will meet Texas Pipe Liners. Carter beat them recently. This game will be a close one if predictions hold true.

Coca Cola of Abilene will be back over the second game. The Abilenians are expected to have their hands full again tonight. They meet Coleman, playing their first game in the local meet.

Hanlon Beats Rising Star in 18 Innings! Red Front Loses

Goodwin, Pitcher, Singles to Chalk Up 3 to 2 Victory

For the second night in a row Hanlon Gassers went extra innings to win in the Cisco tournament. Last night they met Rising Star—and Jenkins, veteran hurler—and won 3 to 2 in an 18 inning battle.

This was probably the best battle played so far in the Cisco tournament attracting so much interest in these parts because of the superb brand of ball given.

Goodwin, the fellow who pitched a nine-inning two-hitter Tuesday night, relieved Puryear in the 10th inning and pitched nine innings. His single in the last half of the 18th frame brought home Adams with the winning run after the latter had singled with one away.

Jenkins gave up only nine hits. He pitched the entire game, bearing down in the pinches.

The exciting 18 inning battle, the longest ever played at the Lions field, was marked by several errors, but the prettiest performances by the outfielders and the infielders, who made seemingly impossible putouts, was the best shown here this season.

UNION CHURCH RITES SUNDAY

3 Congregations Will Worship Jointly

Three Cisco churches will hold a joint meeting on the lawn of the First Methodist church Sunday evening, it was announced today. This will be the first in a series of tri-church meetings to be held each Sunday night at the Methodist church with congregations from the Methodist, First Presbyterian and First Christian churches gathering.

The Rev. C. W. Lambert of the First Christian church will preach for the first service. The Rev. M. H. Applewhite will conduct the second. The pastors of the three churches will probably alternate throughout the summer.

The joint services are being offered that the three congregations may become acquainted with the pastors and may get the fellowship of mingling with the other denominations at their services. Usurers from all the churches will serve and additional seats for the large crowd will be provided. The Rev. Joe Patterson said today. The lawn is pleasant and makes an ideal site for evening services, the pastors reported.

Cisco Team Is Eliminated by Graham, 6 to 3

Red Front, one of Cisco's two tourney entries, was eliminated last night when they tackled Graham and went down before West-ehnde's four hit pitching.

Reed, pitching his second game in as many nights, was slightly wild at times but allowed only seven hits all coming in the fourth and fifth innings. All Graham tallies came in those two sessions.

Graham gave indications if they tighten their defense that they will give somebody lots of trouble before they were eliminated, if they don't reach the finals. They made several errors which cost them all three of Red Front's tallies.

Seventy-Five at M. E. All-Church Picnic Wednesday

Approximately 75 church mem-bers and friends attended the first summer all-church picnic on the lawn of the First Methodist church Wednesday evening.

Basket lunches were spread on a long table constructed for the picnic and the Goodfellows, sponsors of the gathering, provided drinks.

The group enjoyed the fellow-ship of the all church get-to-geth-er and much of the time was spent in friendly discussions among friends.

Greer Pitches 2-Hit Game as Girls Win

Behind the two hit pitching of Opal Greer the Kleiner girls beat Graham 8 to 4 in a fast, well play-ed game last night. Greer had the Graham girls popping up and striking out all night.

Mae Vines, blond first baseman for the Kleiner girls, hit a home run with one on and starred in the field. Eulala Reams hit a homer and made several nice catches to pull the Kleiner girls out of tight spots.

Greer got eleven strikeouts in seven innings, got two hits and scored two runs to turn in an out-standing all around performance. The Cisco infield played air tight ball, not making a single error.

SERIAL STORY

INTERNE TROUBLE BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

CAST OF CHARACTERS
TRAN DEARBORN—heroine, student nurse. She ran into love and trouble when she met DR. BOB BENCHLEY—hero, handsome young interne. He had trouble, too, keeping up with brilliant DR. STEPHEN SARGENT—head surgeon. Dr. Sargent's problem was something else again.

Yesterday, Tran rejects a date with Dr. Benchley, then enters Miss Philbin's room. Her decision was to be one of the most fortuitous in her nursing career.

CHAPTER VI

When Tran opened the door to the demonstration room, a plump figure sat up abruptly on the bed in the curtained corner which represented a ward cubicle, stretched, and yawned. It was Beula Tagg.

"Hello," Beula said, rubbing her eyes and blinking resentfully. "Gosh! You would come and wake me just as I was eating the best dinner I ever set tooth to. We'd just got around to steak and mushrooms when you had to barge in. Say, it looked good! And guess who I was with?" She giggled.

"Top Sarge, of all people! Imagine even dreaming about Dr. Sargent feeding you anything but a thermometer!" "I can't, Tran said wearily, "imagine your dreaming about anything that didn't include food."

"Listen—be a sport, Tagg. Help me get ready for my demonstration tomorrow. Anita was going to be patient, but she's down with an earache."

just at the moment when Tran had managed to forget the sword hanging over her head.

"I knew you were going to meet Anita here," Beula explained. "So I waited."

"You would pick a place with a bed to wait in," Tran told her.

"What do you suppose Miss Armstrong wants?"

"She probably wants to know why my well-known sense of duty hasn't led me to report that fruit cake you keep hidden in your bureau drawer," Tran said, nervously with flippancy against the panic in her heart.

"Students," she quoted again—from the House Rules this time—"are in honor bound to report infractions of regulations that might reflect upon the dignity of the house." And if your constantly expanding waistline doesn't reflect on the dignity of the house, I don't know what does.

"Oh, Utility—you wouldn't!" "Of course not, goop!" Tran said, and went to meet her doom.

Miss Armstrong looked up from a mass of charts and reports on the desk, folded her hands, and studied Tran thoughtfully as she closed the door behind her and stood waiting—very straight in her nun-like gray dress and white apron—feeling as if her trembling must communicate itself to the very chair in which Miss Armstrong sat.

"I've been looking through your record, Miss Dearborn," the director of nursing began.

"Yes, Miss Armstrong?" Tran temporized, shaking more and more.

"I was particularly interested in your early training. You were in school on the continent, I believe?"

She was trying to let me down easy, Tran thought wryly. She'd rather lay my being a misfit to the corruption of European culture than to my innate cussedness—bless her kind heart!

Aloud she said, "Yes . . . Yes, Miss Armstrong."

"You speak several languages, I understand?"

"Why, yes. . . . Yes, I do."

"There is a critical case down in Emergency," Miss Armstrong went on. "Apparently an Italian. He seems to be very anxious about something. It may be important to find out what before operating."

But the regular interpreter is out, and no one there can understand him. Should you mind going down and seeing what you can make of it?"

Would she mind? She would sell her soul for the chance.

Tran cleared her throat and choked out, "Of course, Miss Armstrong. I'll try."

As she sped away, she thought, Suppose I hadn't gone into the demonstration room! . . . I might not have seen Beula in time. I was sunk enough to sneak out and meet Bob tonight. If I had, and anyone had found it out, it would have been curatious . . . Now, perhaps . . .

But a new thought brought her up short: hadn't Miss Armstrong heard yet—about her and Bob—in the instrument room this morning? . . . Because, of course, she was sure to sooner or later. Dr. Sargent's eyes couldn't have missed a trick; and Dr. Sargent was popularly known as the world's worst stickler for discipline.

When Tran slid into Emergency, Dr. Bob Benchley was bending over a quivering figure stretched out on a first-aid examination table. The young interne's face was grim; and the preoccupied look he turned on Tran held no memory of their morning's escapade. Engaging as Tran had found him in his moments of irresponsible gaiety, she liked him a thousand times better this way.

The Emergency nurse stood at the other side of the table, a hypodermic tray on a stand at her elbow. Now she stepped back to make way for Tran.

"Make it snappy, Agility," the interne directed briefly. "Top Sarge will be here in a minute. This is really a case for Dr. Carson, only he's just gone out. If Dr. Sargent backs up my judgment this poor devil goes right up to G-11. But before we put him under complete anaesthesia, there's something he wants to get off his chest."

As the man on the table looked from one face to the other, his own face gray and dripping with sweat, Tran shrank for a moment before something she saw in his bright dark eyes, but did not at once recognize for an agony of terror.

For in all Tran's four months at the hospital, this was the first time she had come face to face with terror—or with suffering of any magnitude, for that matter.

Always before, if a real crisis arose when she happened to be about a ward—doing, under the supervision of an older nurse, the simple little house-maidish tasks which were all she was permitted to do—the senior nurse would hastily draw the cubicle curtains that screened the bed and say curtly, "That will do now, Dearborn. I'll attend to this alone," or "Hurry and get me the head nurse, Dearborn."

Now Tran murmured, "Is he suffering much?"

"Well," said Dr. Benchley, "a crushed leg isn't exactly a picnic at best; but he's had a local anesthetic. It's mostly that the poor devil's pain scared to death."

Scared to death, Tran thought on a quick breath. Scared!

Tran knew how desperately one could suffer fear from the most trivial causes. . . . And this was no trivial matter.

She bent over the figure on the table, put a small hand on his quivering arm, and said softly, "I speak Italian. Tell me."

At sound of her voice, gentle and pitiful, speaking his own tongue, the man centered his glittering eyes upon her face.

"What will they do to me?" he asked, speaking as if they two were alone. "I can see in their faces that I am dying. Already my legs are numb. . . . Tell me the truth. Already I am half dead—is it not so?"

"Oh, no," Tran told him; and was surprised at her own calm assurance. "That is not death that you feel. It is only that they have given you something to help the pain."

"But what will they do to me?" he insisted. "If I am to die, I must know."

"They will only do something to help you rest while they fix you up," Tran told him. "And you must not think about dying. You must think only about how fine it will be not to hurt any more."

In her absorption, Tran did not notice that some one else had stepped into the room behind her. (To Be Continued)

Cisco Friends of Col. Ernest Thompson Urge You to Cast Your Vote for a Man Who Will MAKE TEXAS a Real Leader He is Trained! He is Talented! He is Tested! WHAT HE HAS DONE! As Mayor of Amarillo, he saved citizens nearly a million dollars a year by cutting every utility rate in the city and lowering the tax levy. As Texas Railroad Commissioner, he assisted the farmer through lower freight rates and the livestock industry with emergency drought rates; brought many millions of dollars to the school fund by sensible supervision of the Texas oil industry; helped lower the gas rates in scores of Texas towns. As a man, whose boyhood was spent at hard work, he has achieved a brilliant record of private and public service, fought for his country with high honors during the World War, is chairman of the Oil States Compact Commission, has earned the respect and admiration of straight-thinking people all over the nation. You Buying Pig in a Poke Asks His Constituents is a warning proverb, frequently by an earlier generation of Americans that I wish to commend to every Texan of voting age. It is the warning of buying a pig in a poke. The New Century Dictionary interprets that formerly well-known phrase to mean to take any action without knowing or whose true nature is yet unrevealed.

Because we are confronting a political condition as stated by this proverb that I am pressing this report to my constituents and counselling with them about the election of the governor. As your spokesman, I am making of laws and as a member of the state capital, I have a duty to report to you the information I have from the state government and to you some of the dangers of the campaign.

The campaign of the controversy have arisen, the circumstances of legislation affecting the lives of every element of the political community of Texas. Actually, we are in politics today. The industrial magnate, the farmer, the mechanic, and even the forgotten man or woman are all in politics to some extent, they are all in politics. There is a curious thing about politics—that there is something evil about the government. It is true, politicians are not perfect, but that all bankers, or lawyers, or all workingmen are not perfect. In every branch of our social fabric there develop racketeers, and even criminals. So in politics, under a republicanism of government, no means is provided for the prevention of politics and the individuals in the posts of duty and responsibility.

At the Democratic party in 1937, "I don't know how I have heard eminent and all men announce that business men and not in politics. It has always seemed to me that there was a confession of neglected duty rather than a boast of superiority. If the wrong kind of politician gets control and uses his office for his own advantage, it is largely the fault of these people who conceive themselves too busy to be interested in their own government. Politics may be as pure or impure as the people themselves determine."

I see no occasion for anger or rising temperatures in the present political situation. If there are any who have become overly heated or overly emotional about any man in the governor's race, let me first have this opportunity to talk with you calmly about the dangers of "buying a pig in a poke."

Without attempting to offer personal advice in this race for governor, I am supporting Attorney-General William McCraw for what I think are good and sufficient reasons. May I state those reasons briefly?

I am for William McCraw because he is thoroughly tested in the public service as a soldier on the front in France, as a three-term district attorney in the most populous district in Texas, and as attorney-general for two terms. Under the glaring light of publicity and public opinion he has come out with a distinguished record of service, efficiency, honor and ability. Upon this record he asks for promotion. He is not a "pig in a poke."

Needed Qualifications
I am for Bill McCraw because, in my judgment, he possesses more than any other candidate the qualifications of personality and friendliness that we so sorely need just now. Texas needs team work. We need a legislature and a governor who can cooperate and work together for the best interests of Texas. Bill McCraw is a leader and his whole career has been outstanding because of his ability to accomplish things with others in a spirit of cooperation. With Bill McCraw's knowledge of government he will be able to attain a unity of purpose and policy direction that will give the people their long awaited results. There will be no more expensive special sessions of the legislature because of differences and antagonism with the legislature. Because of all these reasons and the reliable promises made through a sound platform I am supporting William McCraw.

Now let me be as specific and as brief in my warning against voting for the "pig in a poke" and let me remind you again, there is no bitterness in what I say. I do not know Mr. W. Lee O'Daniel. He may be the finest Christian gentleman on earth. I am merely pointing out some things I think we as voting citizens do not know about him but should of any public figure. It is because the people of Texas know so little about this popular entertainer that I use the figure of speech "pig in a poke." The phrase certainly is not intended as a reflection on the man.

Although Mr. O'Daniel has lived in Fort Worth for about a dozen years, we know exactly nothing that would recommend him for any character of public office. When we begin to make investigation about Mr. O'Daniel, as every thoughtful citizen should, we are struck immediately with the vagueness of the man.

Platform Vague
He was a trained voice over the radio that sold flour and entertained mothers and children with poetry and pathos, blended with hymns and hillbilly ballads. As a candidate for governor his record and platform are as intangible and vague; we know no more about him than we did when he was just a crooning voice coming in over the radio.

Never before have I known a man become a candidate for high office in Texas without submitting the details of his life for inspection. This man prefers to remain an indefinite figure, deliberately classifying himself as a political "pig in a poke." Citizens have plied him with questions but he has remained vague and uncertain about his personal history and refuses to discuss problems of government that are pressing for solution. He has employed the biggest publicity agency in Texas to ballyhoo his activities and advertise his flour, yet they have concealed, rather than revealed their man. Even the meager bits of information about his life that he has divulged have been filled with conflicting statements as to dates and events. Why would a man fail to bring into the clear light of day his past record?

Married in War Time
He was married June 30, 1917 which was after the United States declared war against the Central Powers. What he did in the matter of serving the nation during the war is completely blank. At that time he was 27 years old. He has said that he went to Kansas City in 1919 and to New Orleans in 1921. What he did in the intervening years is blank. He came to Fort Worth from New Orleans in 1925. What he did while he lived in New Orleans has not been related. His career in Fort Worth, outside of serving a year as president of the Chamber of Commerce in 1933, has been marked chiefly by labor troubles with musicians, flour millers and construction laborers who worked for him, as the testimony of these men in affidavits amply disclose. It is to be noted that the laborers and unions that know Mr. O'Daniel best, those of Fort Worth, are actively opposing the flour salesman and have endorsed McCraw.

The political affiliation of Mr. O'Daniel is as obscure. He grew to manhood in the state of Kansas at that time almost solidly Republican. His relatives in Ohio, according to his own statements, fought against the South and their's was the army of the Republican party. He has lived in grand old Texas twelve years. The records disclose that in all of that time one poll tax was paid by him and significantly enough that was the year in which Herbert Hoover was defeated for President and Mr. O'Daniel was not interested in re-electing Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1936. He has not voted for anything or anybody since the Democrats gained power and the new deal to the American people was inaugurated.

Withheld Support
Remember that in all of the other years he never had neighborly enough spirit to qualify to vote for a friend who was running for his school board, justice of the peace, prosecuting attorney, sheriff or any other office. His belief is that all public servants are crooked professional politicians. Meanwhile he was becoming a rich man through sales of flour over the radio. He purchased farms in Parker county and Tarrant County and a large home in Fort Worth. He was educating three children in the public schools but withholding the support of the schools that the poll tax affords.

Here is a man who by his statements wants Texas to go forward. What has he done to contribute to Texas' forward progress during his residence in this state? Texas has been going forward. In the past six years there has been steady progress after the lean years of the Republican depression. Several important amendments to the constitution of the state have been adopted.

The voters provided for exemption of our homesteads from state taxes.

The voters provided for the old age pensions.

The voters provided for the temporary commitment of insane persons in hospitals.

The voters gave the legislature authority to release delinquent taxes after ten years.

The voters authorized the voting of $20,000,000 of bread bonds for relief of Texas citizens.

The voters provided for the payment of retirement pensions to Texas public school teachers.

The voters provided for rendering assistance to the blind and to the dependent children.

Where was the voice of O'Daniel and where was the vote of O'Daniel on these issues?

Prohibition

Furthermore, he didn't vote for or against repeal of prohibition. He hasn't said yet whether he is opposed to the open saloon and sale of liquor by the drink, and whether he is against licensing race track and other gambling in Texas. Do the people of Texas want to elect this indefinite character of man their leader?

Now this self declared candidate of the common citizens rides to the rescue of the people who are his beloved. He proposes to pay $30 a month to every person over 65 years of age. The federal government which provides for the payment of up to $15 to persons in need is restrained by law from paying those not in need, and matches our funds on that basis. Could this salesman change the minds of Congress and President Roosevelt and revolutionize this program? O'Daniel's office seeking promise is idle deceit and comes much too late for those of us who have been on the firing line, fighting the abuses and mistakes of administering this program. He wasn't a leader then or even standing beside the old folk in these fights.

Hitler Cabinet
About the only other concrete proposal O'Daniel makes is to constitute a personal government within the government after the fashion of Hitler and Mussolini. He says he would clear out a room in the governor's mansion and summon representatives of business and industry to sit there and act as a board of directors. He would even call in an outside lawyer to advise his Nazi Counsellors.

It is a fine thing for us as citizens that the Texas Constitution already provides for a board of directors and a legal adviser selected by the voters themselves and not by any governor. It is my privilege to be a member of that board of directors as a State Senator. It is as a member of that board of directors that I am submitting this message to you. I'll be a member of the board of directors for the next two years with Bill McCraw in the executive office and a democratic co-operative legislature representing the people at Austin. There will be no Nazi councils in the governor's mansion next year nor in any other year if you and I keep our reason and rely on sound common sense.

Let's never buy any "pig in a poke."

Wheat Growers Should Make Work Sheets

All wheat growers should make work sheets on their farms according to Harry K. Westerman, ass't. in agricultural conservation.

Due to the estimated large yield of wheat in 1938 there is a probability that a marketing quota will be placed on wheat harvested in 1939. As this is probable, all wheat growers in Eastland county were urged to come to the county agent's office and make a late work sheet on their farms. Those producers who have already made work sheets should call and give the acres planted and yield per acre for the past 10 years. If the marketing quota is placed on wheat in 1939 and a producer does not receive an allotment he will have to pay a tax on all wheat produced and sold in 1939. Therefore it is very important that all wheat growers visit the office and make a work sheet or give the necessary information at once.

Farmers who are growing wheat for the first time in 1938 can receive an allotment for 1939. This allotment will come out of the state reserve. All farmers who have had wheat in 1935, 1936, and 1937 will receive their allotment out of that set aside for Eastland county. Those growing wheat for the first time in 1938 should report that fact in order to receive an allotment.

While at the county agent's office they should contact J. D. Guy, Eastland county federal crop insurance supervisor and discuss insurance on their 1939 wheat crop.

TO THE MERCHANTS and VOTERS of CISCO

Precinct No. 4

Vote for Jess Nobles for Commissioner of Precinct No. 4

We want a road out here, so we can get to Highway 29, which will connect the Breckenridge, Albany and Moran highways. It will take only a short piece of road to do this, and it will bring lots of trade to Cisco. Stephens county has a good road up to the line of Eastland and Stephens county line. I understand the commissioners have approved of this road and had the money to put it in. The right-of-way has been received by Mr. Mitcham and he has offered to furnish some material to put on this road. It will go between his ranch and mine. But it seems that we can get no action on this. Anyone who is fighting us is fighting Cisco merchants by keeping trade out. We want all of the people to get to Cisco, good weather or bad. Someone out here is fighting this road for some cause or other.

People who want to develop the county and our town should have a road if anyone does. Who is trying harder than I am to keep Cisco alive? I want good roads and good streets. I gave $2600 in cash to help pay to pave Cisco streets with brick. How many property owners in Cisco came up to that? I saw cars stuck in the mud on Cisco main street before we got the street paved. It might make the mud haulers mad to pave the streets because they lose their job hauling mud. It might stop this road dragging job to give us a road.

All of Cisco's business men, good property owners and real estate men help me get this road.

that United States motorists pay approximately one billion dollars in federal and state gasoline taxes per year, a sum equivalent to about seven per cent of the wages of all industrial workers in the manufacturing plants in the land? Gasoline is cheap, only the tax is high.
