AYS STALIN ORDERED AFL DESTRUCTION

Investigator Lays Sit-Down Strikes to Communism

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18 (AP)—Jacob Spolansky, criminal investigator under the Wayne county, Michigan, sheriff, testified today before the house committee investigating un-American activities that Joseph Stalin, Russian communist dictator, had ordered the sit-down strikes of the American labor union.

Spolansky attributed to communists the major part in sit-down strikes in recent years.

'B' Team Will Play Brownwood Friday Night

Playing in what will be their scheduled game of the year, the Cisco Lobo "B" team will play the Brownwood "B" eleven Friday night at eight o'clock in Brownwood.

Thus far the "B" team has failed to win a game and although the news have been close they have not yet been able to get any of the boys on the "B" eleven, who are undefeated and untied, and so will be out to earn to win this game Friday.

This is the first year in many years that the "B" team has had regular schedule arranged before the start of the season — most times in the past were arranged at the last minute, it being one of the steps in rebuilding Cisco football teams up to their former caliber.

The effect of this has already been shown in many different ways more so in the manner in which the boys on the "B" eleven, many of them prime prospects for next year's varsity eleven, have improved this year, than in others.

Lobo Drills To Stress Pass Offense, Defense

Continuing their drills for the big Graham Steers whom they will meet Friday at Graham, the Lobos were scheduled to go through some long hard drills this week. Thus far there are no serious injuries on the squad although Bill Latch and Coy Warren, co-captains, both have bruised shoulders.

Walter Preston has been sick during much of this week, a thing that has caused the coaches plenty of sleepless nights since the symptoms as far as could be determined seem to indicate that he may have appendicitis an operation of which nature would keep him from playing the rest of the season.

If Preston were unable to play the burden at right end would fall squarely on Warren Doggett who has played a good many minutes in games this year, and although he would pull the weight average of the line down some degree his experience and other qualities could be counted on to make up for this to a great extent.

Drills the rest of this week will be concentrated more or less on pass offense Coach Petty has announced with a number of new plays to be tried out for the first time this afternoon coming in for a good share of work.

The varsity will scrimmage the "B" team this afternoon with most of the time to be spent on pass defense, offense, and new plays.

South America Learned-- Europe Has Not

SOUTH AMERICA has accomplished what Europe could not do. It has peacefully adjusted its most troublesome boundary dispute, a dispute as acrid as any Europe has seen. It has adjusted it in a simple, civilized manner.

Europe, boasting of itself as the center-point of civilization, may well watch this example in wonder and envy. For Europe has been able to do no better than arm to the teeth, glower, and adjust Czechoslovakia's boundaries by pressures that were scarcely less a war than if the fighting had really begun. Nothing has been really settled. Czechoslovakia is dismembered, resentful, helpless.

No party to this sacrifice for peace is satisfied that justice has been done, or that lasting peace has been achieved.

Yet in South America the century-old dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay over the Gran Chaco territory has been laid to rest forever.

THE presidents of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, the United States, Peru, and Uruguay have sealed four years of difficult peace negotiations by delineating the boundary between the countries. During the next two years it will be finally surveyed and marked, while troops of both countries are kept away from the new frontier.

People in the United States seldom recognize the bitterness of this dispute. Paraguay and Bolivia have fought in the past a few countries have ever fought. A three-year war was concluded in 1935, leaving both countries exhausted and disrupted.

Natural recognition of the futility of all this by the people of both countries was aided by kindly and impartial offers of other South American countries to mediate. The Pan-American Peace Conference at Montevideo helped. The patient, tactful services of American diplomats, Spruille Braden in Colombia and Alexander Weddell in Argentina, helped.

It is doubtful if American diplomacy can show anything more to its credit in many years than its part in this victory of peace.

BOLIVIA and Paraguay hated, and fought, and almost died. But they learned the lesson of war's futility. And they applied the lesson in a sane, civilized settlement of their differences. Both countries must inevitably gain by this mutual triumph.

Europe has also fought, and hated, and its very civilization is now in grave danger. But the lesson has not been learned there.

Perhaps a lamp has been lighted in the jungles of the Chaco which may lead Europe to a better world, much as it was led forward in 1776 by the lamp lighted at the little bridge in Concord.

In a darkening world, it is a light on which all people may feast despairing eyes.

Somebody or other has just announced that women are better guessers than men. That's particularly humiliating, boys, when you think of the practice the women give you.

That Atlantic Coast hurricane broke all the rules and turned in the wrong direction, and now the meteorologists know what it's like to be a political forecaster.

Political Parade

Germany has employed its most skilled scientists to make fuel oil from coal but has been only moderately successful. The fuel can be supplied but it would take an army behind the lines to make fuel for an army in the field. The consumption of coal in making the oil would rob other industries almost equally important in war time.

Just how long Germany could continue to fight on without an adequate supply of fuel oil is problematical. In the world war she got along very well for four years with her major supply source cut off. Since then, motorization of armies has proceeded rapidly. Germany's principal striking weapon, the air force, would be grounded without oil. And one of the disappointments of synthetic oil is that it is not satisfactory for airplanes.

A Reserve Horsepower

Consumption of oil in other motorized wings of the army is much greater even than in the air. Germany boasts of the fast striking power of her motorized armies. Yet its military chiefs have recognized the crippling possibilities of a shortage of oil by retaining a considerable body of horse cavalry and horse artillery.

Nothing much ever is said about this particular wing of the service. It is known among military men to be Germany's ace in the hole against a time when fuel no longer would be available and the fighting and hauling would have to be done with horses which could be fed from the countryside.

Access to the Rumanian oil fields would solve Germany's oil problem. Rumania ranks fourth among the great oil producing countries. It now produces 10,500,000 tons annually and could be expanded. It would be a long haul from Rumania to the western front or to a Russian front but the Danube provides a water route and railroads another.

The battle for the Rumanian oil fields might transfer the major war front far to the east. In that event, England and France would be hard pressed to defend them from capture — unless Russia should step in as an ally. And Russia seems to be cooling off toward France since the Czechoslovak affair.

A Washington Daybook

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—It was about noon of a late day in May, just time for the staff of the U. S. legation in Managua, Nicaragua, to toss off a frosty lime fizz and put on fresh linens before lunch. Suddenly a burst of rifle fire cut loose over near the Campo de Marte.

In 1922 a burst of rifle fire from over in that section of town meant a revolution and it was 1922 when this firing began, and if you ask the Marines that is a hot time to start a revolution in a banana republic.

United States Minister Ramer at Managua sent Major John Marston, commanding the Marine Guard, to the scene of battle. The officer found Generals Arsenio Cruz and Salvador Castrillo, leading a dissatisfied wing of the conservative party, had already seized the government's Fort Loma and were trying to take over Campo de Marte.

Now It Can Be Told—

For Minister Ramer, quick action was the word. Just how quick is disclosed for the first time now, 16 years later, in a publication by the state department of its once secret files.

Acting under Ramer's direction, Major Marston told General Cruz that "any firing upon the American camp or the city of Managua would result in immediate intervention of American forces to preserve order and protect American interests."

Those are drastic words for the representative of one American republic to say to people of another independent republic, but in those days the U. S. was backing up its policy with bayonets. Ramer told the rebel general that 10,000 more Marines were within a few days call. The United States, he said, "will not permit this revolution in Nicaragua."

General Cruz tried to explain that he would be careful not to shoot at American interests, but Ramer insisted it would be impossible for him to fire on the city without jeopardizing American life and property.

The revolution folded, right then and there. A deal was negotiated allowing all the civilian rebels to go free and limiting punishment of military rebels to 30 days in jail.

Okay and Congrats!

But late that night, after the shooting was over, Minister Ramer became uneasy. He recognized that he was out on a limb in taking such a high-handed stand. Just before midnight he telegraphed Secretary of State Hughes (he's Chief Justice now) explain-

Experts Say Oil May Cause Hitler To March Again

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—The reason military experts expect Hitler to become dissatisfied with his present situation is—oil.

Careful computation of Germany's domestic oil production places it at an outside limit of 2,000,000 tons annually. In a war, that amount, even if available all at one time, would last Germany six to eight weeks. Military sources quoted from abroad estimate Germany's war time consumption would be 12,000,000 tons as a minimum and possibly 20,000,000 tons.

At present Germany can buy from the United States and Mexico. In event of war with England those sources would be cut off by blockade. Then what?

That question explains why every German move is interpreted by military observers as directed toward gaining access to the Rumanian oil fields, one of the world's best. That field could not be cut off from Germany by the British navy.

Could Make It, But— It is one of the sorrows of Central Europe that despite its wealth in iron, coal and food, it has almost no natural oil resources. There is little in Sudetenland, tak-or two."

"Go ahead," said Feely, "but if

"Well, I can try."

When Feely had hung up, Tait called Stephens' hotel. The mu-

Tait said: "Listen, Torchy—how soon could you get the band together?"
"It's only four o'clock," Stephens answered in a hurt tone. "It ought to be easy to get 'em together—because they're probably all in bed, where they ought to be."
"Can you have them in your apartment at five?"

A badly stifled yawn came over the wire. "We-ell, my apartment's pretty small, Bob. But I'll try.
What's the idea, anyhow?"
"I'm your new manager," Tait said, "and I want to talk to you."
Stephens' voice came suddenly awake. "You—you are? What happened to Rogers, anyhow?"
"Mrs. Dombey fired him. I don't mind saying it was at my request." Tentatively Tait added:

"Any objections?"
"None at all, Mr. Manager.
Harris Rogers never was a guy I'd pick up to go on a fishing trip.
Come on around at five and the cats will be here."
"Good going, Torchy. See you then."

And, true to his word, Torchy had them packed into his diminithere at a minute before five.

"Boys," grinned Torchy, "this is the new manager. He looks like a guy that would pay salaries, but you never know. And say, Mr.
Tait, you might tell us right now
how many you're going to fire."
"I'm not going to fire anybody," Tait said. "I'm going to scream for help from you fellows."
"Oh-oh . . ." said Torchy.
"Maybe I mentioned salaries too soon."

Bob Tait laughed. "No you didn't. I think we can still pay them—providing we work together. The Swingateers is still a hot band. You fellows all thought a lot of Dombey. Well, before he —he was killed he made Myrna Dombey a partner in the corporation. That means she's taking Lud's place. If the thing goes down, she goes with it—and so do

"The Swingateers have got to keep going," one of the boys said in a low tone. "Lud is just as big an idol today with the whackies as he ever was. Torchy knows his style. And we'll all do what we can. We'll swing as wide as we ever did, won't we, boys?"
"Wide as gates," another said.
"We'll send it out for the ickies." Tait grinned. He felt better about things than he had for several hours.
