Pumpkin Planner Profits From Funny Faces

By NEA Service
MADISON, O., Oct. 31—There are some mighty queer looking pumpkins growing in the backyard of John Czeszczewski, nurseryman and landscape gardener. But they're pumpkins calculated to bring joy to the hearts of youngsters as Halloween, with its pranks and parties, approaches.

Each year, for four years, this northeastern Ohio town has looked forward eagerly about this time to the latest Czeszczewski "molded pumpkin" creations—pumpkins with features of notables in public life, of death's heads, of just ordinary people—all designed to give the traditional Halloween Jack O'Lantern a new lift.

Catch 'em while they're young is the basic rule in growing "planned pumpkins" says Mr. Czeszczewski. An aluminum, two-part mask of whatever facial form desired is placed over the unsuspecting and helpless pumpkin at an early age. In about three weeks the two halves are removed and there looking up at you is your closest friend or favorite movie actress, a pumpkin. Imagine Garbo in pumpkin pie, or Gable lighted up with a candle.

It's a very successful business, too. Pumpkin Planner Czeszczewski sells his special pumpkins at good prices, has achieved something approaching national fame.

N. B.—Mr. Czeszczewski calls himself "CZ." for obvious reasons.

"Alas, poor Yorick," might be appropriate lines for this scene, where Mr. Czeszczewski holds a death's head pumpkin. Lower, two views of the skull mask. Left, a front exterior, and right, an interior.

TWO PROJECTS CANCELLED IN DIES DISTRICT

Cong. Refrains From Charging Connection With Probe

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP)—Chairman Dies, Texas, of the house committee investigating un-American activities, said today that two public works projects in his district had been cancelled since the inquiry began.

He added that he was not prepared to charge the cancellations were due to the administration's disapproval of the methods of the committee.

President Roosevelt said recently that the committee had permitted itself to be used for political purposes that were unfair and un-American.

Business to be discussed consists to a large extent of the records of each church presented by the various pastors. It is the aim to have these records in the best possible order.

The Rev. J. B. Curry, presiding elder, is in charge of arrangements. Tickets are 35 cents.

Great and Humble From Far and Near Will Honor Will Rogers at Claremore

Perched proudly on the knoll where Will Rogers always wanted to build a home, but somehow never did, this solid building of native limestone is being dedicated as a permanent memorial to the man who launched a thousand quips, and never an unkind one.

One in a thousand — this picture of the late Will Rogers, now being honored by a memorial in his home town of Claremore, Okla., was selected as his favorite picture by Will's son from the family collection of more than 1000 "favorite pictures" of their famous father.

By NEA Service
CLAREMORE, Okla., Oct. 31—If, in some celestial hideaway, Will Rogers is still getting all his knowledge of earthly goings-on from the papers, he will learn from this that the folks back in Claremore are going to do something big for him Nov. 4.

Yes, sir, they're going to dedicate a $200,000 memorial museum to Will on that day—which would have been his 59th birthday if Wiley Post's plane hadn't plunged to earth three years ago.

They've built the memorial of native Rogers County limestone on a ridge that Will always allowed he'd like to build a house on himself, some day, but he never got around to it.

There will be plenty of celebrities present, of the kind Will liked to hob-nob around with when he was reading the papers and commenting on what they said. It will be the kind of a ceremony where you'd always have been likely to find Will himself, a few years ago, and then you'd have read all about it in the next morning's paper with a kindly crack from Will.

There'll be speeches by Governor Marland and Jesse Jones, Howard Hughes, Douglas Corrigan, Eddie Rickenbacker, Eddie Cantor, Fred Stone, and George Chan will be there, and maybe 50,000 other people. And of course Mrs. Rogers and the three Rogers children.

There'll be a big rodeo and pageant of the Old West that Will would have liked if he could see it, because he used to be a rodeo rider himself. Old-timers like Pawnee Bill and Col. Zack Miller are arranging it, and more than a thousand will take part.

Episodes of early Oklahoma history beginning with the Battle of Claremore Mound between the Osages and the Cherokees in 1818 will be given, the night performance under lights resounding to the plunking of horses' hooves, the squeal of wagon wheels and the crack of the blacksnake whip.

No one need be surprised, though, if during the thick of the pageantry and hullabaloo, a dry but unearthly voice should be heard saying:

"Shucks! I was just an old cowhand who had a little luck. Why all this h.c. fuss about me?"

WILL'S RELATIVES TO BE ON HAND

But it wouldn't be right to have only the famous and great talking over a memorial for Will Rogers, and so the Becone College Glee club will sing, and the Oklahoma Military Academy and A. and M. college bands will play, too.

And Will's own relatives, the Herbert McSpaddens, who are running Will's old ranch down near Oologah, will be up for the ceremony. Mrs. McSpadden is a

ASSOCIATION HEAD TO GET RR POSITION

Operators To Determine Stand in Meeting Next Week

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP)—John J. Peiley, president of the association of American railroads, said President Roosevelt today asked him to ascertain the attitude of the railroads toward the fact-finding board's report recommending cancellation of the proposed 15 per cent wage cut.

Peiley said he agreed, adding his "best guess" that the managements in their meeting in Chicago next week would outline their stand.

Some executives in New York predicted Saturday the government might offer the railroads about $1,000,000,000 in easy-term rehabilitation loans, as a sequel to the presidential board's recommendation that the managements abandon their proposal to reduce wages 15 per cent Dec. 1.

Law Forbids Loans

Existing law forbids the Reconstruction Corporation to make loans to railroads, except for maintenance purposes, unless the Interstate Commerce commission certifies the carriers are not in need of reorganization. In reliable circles here it was said the roads which could obtain such certification were the ones least in need of loans. The RFC recommended to congress at its last session the law be changed to permit loans without the "no reorganization needed" certification. The legislation failed of passage, however, some of the opposition being based upon the roads' proposal to reduce wages.

Although the president's fact-finding board recommended Saturday that the rail managements withdraw their notice of a pay cut, the recommendation is not a legally binding.

He won recognition as a land attorney for the University of Texas, serving 30 years in that capacity.

Loboes Enter Practice For Mid-November Title Drive

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

The glamor of the O'Daniel campaign for the governorship is gone, leaving, to all evidence, a man trying to make tolerable the untried political role he has assumed. The business of being governor of a state is a peculiar joy, but it requires for the service of these some peculiar qualifications and ambitions. The ambition to be, shall I call it the "O'Daniel" instinct, for the vicious and all the time being along the political front.

The governor-to-be, I am confident, is discovering he has traded a role of a rising popularity for one of a man to him unhappy duties and responsibilities, which are not by any reasoning gain more friends than he will. And the further necessity of a program and platform, and prosecuted with persistent and sustained vigor, doubtless counter to the temperament and character of the governor.

Being governor is something a deal different from running for governor. The tumult of the shouting, the thrill of the exhilaration of winning these things pass away like an anesthetic and then comes the coming after with its headache and its sober realizations. I do envy Mr. O'Daniel, particularly because he is not a politician, experienced in attitude and strategy, and psychologically equipped for the role he has assumed.

His interviews with the news writers reveal nothing more than confusion and his growing taste of his new job. He does not even appear to have grasped the real reason for his overwhelming victory. One would think he believes it entirely due to his insistence upon pensions for everybody over 65. It is being realized that he

Police Force Asks Cooperation Tonight

On the eve of Halloween Chief of Police M. L. Perdue issued a plea for all who are moved by the spirit of the season to enjoy themselves without damaging property of causing widespread and unnecessary disturbance. The local police force is heavily taxed in instances of this sort and needs the cooperation of the citizenry, he said.

He emphasized the fact that a good time could be had without the destruction of property, at the same time thanking townspeople for their cooperation in the past.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Sing aloud unto God your strength. Make a joyful noise unto the God of Jacob. Ye shall go out with joy, and be led forth with peace. Ps. lxxxv. 1, 2a, 12.

The Best Allies

IT is surprising to discover the editorial weight of the Wall Street Journal, representative of the ultra-conservative in American business, falling on the side of the Jersey City administration in its denial of the right of free speech to any element, such as communism or socialism, which disagrees with the peculiar political philosophy of the Hague dictatorship. The Journal actually and deviously argues for previous restraints upon the right of free speech, which, if we have been taught aright, the constitution of the United States expressly makes an unlimited right in this nation. A ruling by a United States district court handed down since the Journal spoke editorially amply confirms this belief by condemning the ruling by the Jersey City director of public safety in denying permits to radical groups for meetings in Jersey City as violative of the constitutional rights of citizens.

THE WALL STREET JOURNAL is viewing favorably the position of the Jersey City officials in their suppression of vital civil liberties is simply exhibiting that toxic attitude infecting large sections of American business, particularly the established, conservative elements of that business, which is the most responsible for the "isms" that have arisen to curtail our free and democratic society—the desire for suppressing competing influences, the desire for privilege. Free speech is not free if it is not entirely free, and it is obvious that any power given public officials to deny its rights to any person for any reason whatsoever is the power to suppress it completely. Jersey City officials, just as the officials of other governments, are empowered to deal with the consequences of free speech in the form of riots or disturbances, but they are not empowered, no matter how eloquently it may be argued, to deny the right of free speech on any presumption of what may result.

THE JERSEY CITY tyranny is ideal hangings for the pernicious doctrines of those to whom the fundamental American liberties are denied. No small wonder that radical elements desiring a favorable audience with the American public mind so vigorously seek to take advantage of it. Mayor Hague and his machine are the best allies that communism and its train have in this nation.

Non-Voters Are a Handicap in a Democracy

ACCORDING to all the newspapers, the coming congressional elections are a highly important event in American politics. We shall see, through them, how much of a reaction there is against the New Deal; the voters will get their chance to express themselves, and in one way or another our democracy will register its verdict on this that and the other thing.

So registration lists are up, interest is at fever heat, and all the signs indicate a heavy vote.

But when the smoke has cleared away and all the votes have been counted, it will be found—as usual—that only a little better than half of the electorate bothered to go to the polls at all. The stay-at-home who never pokes his nose into a polling booth will once more be a significant if little-noticed feature of the election.

THERE are lots of reasons for this. A certain amount of this stay-away business is due to the fluid nature of our population; people move about, find themselves ineligible to vote, fail to transfer their registration, forget about the absentee-ballot provision, or through some other oversight are unable to vote even though they would rather like to.

Another thing which must account for a large proportion of the absentees is the fact that in many districts—probably in most—the outcome of the election is pretty clear before the votes are cast. Many a man, in such circumstances, reasons something like this: "Well, I'd vote for Candidate Blank, but he's going to win anyhow and I'll be pretty busy Tuesday so it won't hurt if I don't vote."

But when all such excuses are made, the fact remains that there are some millions of the citizens who fail to vote simply because they are too lazy, too indifferent or too cynical about politics to take the trouble.

Of course, this is a free country. The right to vote carries with it the indisputable right to refrain from voting.

NEVERTHELESS, the non-voting voter is decidedly a handicap to democracy. For if voting is a privilege, it is also a duty. The theory of democracy assumes that each man will perform that duty; each man who fails does his bit to weaken the democracy he lives under.

For the "special interests"—the pressure groups, the political machines, the factions, the something-for-nothing people—none of these ever fail to vote. It is only the man who has nothing at stake but the welfare of the country as a whole who stays away from the polls. And because he does stay away, a disciplined minority can, and very often does, run things with scant regard for the interest of the whole.

That is why non-voting is a peril to democracy. And if you have been a non-voter, now is an excellent time for you to think over and decide to stop being one.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—One employer asked officials for blanket exemption of his 176 female employees for the wage-hour act on the ground that they were handicapped.

"They're all crazy," he shouted. The employees turned out to be elderly colored women engaged in sorting rags. New regulations require that applications for exemption of handicapped workers from the 28-cent minimum wage must be signed by both employer and employee, state the extent of handicap and assert that a deficiency impairs earning power.

The wage and hour division is glad to leave to the employer the problem of persuading 176 elderly colored women to sign a statement that they shouldn't get more. If statements made by employees in case of the many others received by Administrator E. F. Andrews are to be believed, quite a few undertakings will use their jobs when the act is applied. Especially married by the dozens, apparently, are women obliged to their employers to be as "slow" to earn 25 cents an hour. Andrews has ruled that in blanket exemption certificates will be issued for a woman because he is shown to be "slow or handicapped."

Probably the danger of widespread hardship has been averted by a last minute distribution of previous orders which permit exemption of handicapped workers until February unless a special condition—such as an employer's honest belief that working subjects is impracticable, imposed by the woman or physical deterioration of some kind, justifies for exemption which may have employed signature, need not be filed before December if these conditions are not ascertainable. "At least slightly. That's what I banked on when I put the ad in the paper. He couldn't stand to have it rubbed in — and no doubt the $10,000 had something to do with it."
"What ten thousand?" said Feely wryly. He shoved the letter into his bathrobe pocket. "All right. You started this. What do we do now?"
"You become a song publisher and interview Mr. Weeks."

Feely rumbled his thinning hair. "Why don't you be the song publisher."
"There's the chance that Mr. Weeks may know me, and know that I'm the manager of The Swingaters. Remembering a certain night in the Millbay district, I think it's a good chance, too. So I'll go along with you and pretend I'm interested because my band will introduce and plug the song that you select to publish."
"Okay, Bob. I've been everything else. I might as well try acting a song publisher. Got any idea how they act?"
"Sure. They act dumb—like a detective," Tait laughed. "You won't have any trouble."
"Get out of here," Feely roared. "And I'll meet you in front of the main entrance of the Pacific-Plaza at a quarter until 3 tomorrow."
"Good!" Tait said. "By the way, did you have Nelda Starr watched?"

Feely read the letter. Then he read it again, this time aloud: "Dear Sir—I can write a song similar to the one you mention in your classified item in the paper. It was the reprint comics magazine which Tait had picked up in Nelda Starr's apartment.
"Thanks," Dannie said. "I like comics."
"Listen, Mr. Feely, look at that advertisement on the back."
Dannie looked. It was the advertisement of a novelty company in Minneapolis. It offered and illustrated at least two dozen odds and ends appealing to boys. Plans for auto racers, X-ray boxes, chameleons, turtles, a book on ventriloquism, invisible ink. Dannie grinned. "Yeah, I used to send for a lot of stuff like this when I was a kid. Once I got a chameleon. I put it on the linoleum in our kitchen. It was checked in linoleum and the darned thing died trying to make good."

"That's an old joke, Dannie. Look down there in the lower left-hand corner."
Feely looked. Then he raised his eyes to Tait's. "Well, what do you know about that?"
"I don't know anything about it yet. But I do know it advertises a gadget to make a noise like a cat's cry. You put it in your pocket, squeeze it, and have fun with your friends and your dog. But I wonder if maybe it might be used for something else."

"You're dreaming, Bob. This nutty musician, with his Obsession about a song called 'The Cat's Meow,' might get one of these things if he figured to do some murder. But Rogers or this Starr girl aren't crazy. It's just a coincidence."
"I suppose so. But the thing interests me enough so that I'm going to wire that outfit and ask them to tell me the names of the people who've ordered that gadget from this town in the last two months."
Feely yawned. "Well, go ahead and have your fun. But let me get some sleep." The detective politely opened his door again. "How's Myrna these days?"
Tait caught his breath, wondering if Feely knew that Myrna had disappeared. He took a long chance. "Fine, Dannie. He felt like a heel, saying that—but he consoled himself with the thought that if Dannie knew that Myrna wasn't sleeping peacefully at the Claremont then Dannie Feely himself wouldn't sleep the rest of the night."

At 2:45 next day Tait stood in front of the Pacific-Plaza. He was on edge and worried. A telephone call to Anne Lester had revealed that no word had been received from Myrna since last he had telephoned. And Tait wondered if Weeks, the musician, would really appear. If he didn't—
"Well, Mr. Tait!"
The newspaper photographer turned to see Dannie Feely, a flower in his lapel. "Perhaps you don't remember me, Mr. Tait. My name is Farnsworth, Elliott Farnsworth, the song publisher."

"Of course I remember you," Tait said, grinning in spite of himself. "Let's go inside and see if our genius is standing by the Number 4 elevator."
Side by side the pair went into the luxurious lobby of the Pacific-Plaza, steered themselves directly toward the bank of elevators. Surely enough, there stood by the fourth elevator a tall, cadaverous-looking fellow whose clothes were out of keeping with the well-groomed lobby and its prosperous-looking occupants.

doesn't even know the Ten Commandments, although the decalogue formed his platform in the campaign.

The new governor-to-be is doubtlessly a good man, a well-intentioned man, a man who would like to cure all the state's political evils in a fulsome, rosy-checked, hail-fellow-well-met manner of doing, just as he sold flour on the radio and from the top of his sound bus. But he is discovering that political evils are not cured that way.

Unless the people—the voters of the state—gain a needed lesson from this episode, which seems to be growing daily in futility, and realize that no white knight cleft full-panoplied from the Olympian skull is going to solve their problems, but that they themselves must do so, this episode is going to demonstrate just one thing. It is going to demonstrate how quickly a white hot meteor of public enthusiasm can be extinguished in the stagnant bogs of our persistent political dominion.

Beware The Cough

From a common cold That Hangs On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Creomulsion not only contains the soothing element found in many cough remedies, such as Syrup of White Pine Compound with Tar, and fluid extract of Licorice Root, but it also has fluid extract of Ipecac for its powerful phlegm loosening effect, fluid extract of Cascara for its mild laxative effect, and most important of all, Beechwood Creosote nicely blended with all of these so that it will reach the source of the trouble from the inside.

Thousands of people, who really know their drugs, use Creomulsion in their own families, realizing that this excellent preparation aids nature to soothe the inflamed mucous membranes, to heal the irritated tissues, and to loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm. Druggists also know the effective Beechwood Creosote and the Creomulsion "tops" for cough cause in it you get a good dose of Creosote emulsified so that it is palatable, and may be taken frequently by both adults and children with remarkable results.

Creomulsion is generally found satisfactory in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritation, especially those stubborn ones due to common colds that hang on for dreadful days and nights thereafter. Don't worry through another sleepless night—use Creomulsion. Even if other remedies have failed, your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not satisfied with the relief obtained.

Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product, and the relief you want. (Adv.)

doesn't even know the Ten Commandments, although the decalogue formed his platform in the campaign.

The new governor-to-be is doubtlessly a good man, a well-intentioned man, a man who would like to cure all the state's political evils in a fulsome, rosy-checked, hail-fellow-well-met manner of doing, just as he sold flour on the radio and from the top of his sound bus. But he is discovering that political evils are not cured that way.

Unless the people—the voters of the state—gain a needed lesson from this episode, which seems to be growing daily in futility, and realize that no white knight cleft full-panoplied from the Olympian skull is going to solve their problems, but that they themselves must do so, this episode is going to demonstrate just one thing. It is going to demonstrate how quickly a white hot meteor of public enthusiasm can be extinguished in the stagnant bogs of our persistent political dominion.

Beware The Cough That Hangs On

From a common cold

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Creomulsion not only contains the soothing elements found in many cough remedies, such as Syrup of White Pine Compound with Tar, and fluid extract of Licorice Root, but it also has fluid extract of Ipecac for its powerful phlegm loosening effect. Fluid extract of Cascara for its mild laxative effect, and most important of all, Beechwood Creosote nicely blended with all of these so that it will reach the source of the trouble from the inside.

Thousands of people who really know their drugs, use Creomulsion in their own families, realizing that this excellent preparation aids nature to soothe the inflamed mucous membranes, to heal the irritated tissues, and to loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm. Druggists also know the effectiveness of Beechwood Creosote and the Creomulsion "tops" for cough relief in it you get a good dose of Creosote emulsified so that it is palatable, and may be taken frequently by both adults and children with remarkable results. Creomulsion is generally found satisfactory in the treatment of coughs, chest colds and bronchial irritation, especially those stubborn ones due to common colds that hang on for dreadful days and nights thereafter. Don't worry through another sleepless night—use Creomulsion. Even if other remedies have failed, your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not satisfied with the relief obtained. Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product, and the relief you want. (Adv.)
