Thompson Sees 1939 Good Year for Oil Industry

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

Breckenridge Buckaroos playing for their arduous Lobes, yesterday, and semi-dirted sissies from Dynamo look made our own boys look pretty. Of course, the Buckaroos intend it that way. They very much liked to have the Big Dam City boys stopping score. As it was won by two touchdowns hard game and a lot of out the outcome of the was not anyways near as easy to the Dynamo fans thought it would be.

Today afternoon the we look the Sweetwater season winner apart and put the Mustangs together. The score was 32 to 6. "6" was the result of a last minute pass interception was run the length of a touchdown. Sweet-Ablene and San Angelo a double round robin and not so nearly even that of the trio could be six or other would be half a None of them were any even as good, as the Ranger team or the wood team, and the Cisco could have taken the best players of all three teams helped them. The end of the oil belt certainly able to fear from the bids of the western sector. Of course, 1939 may different story, for they do not out there. (Incidentally sees 16 players next year.)

There is no doubt on the anyone with a cool head common discretion that the are easily the second eleven in the Oil Belt. that they gained with the best seasons they have many long moons. The was were mighty glad the over last week and I think they would dislike the boys to the extent of that the Lobes gave the toughest fight of any they defeated.

They may lay away their armor with satisfaction to own owes them and coaches, J. T. Petty and Brett, a vote of thanks for the finest jobs that has been at Chesley field in a year.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

The wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits.—James 1:17.

Heaven is made up of perfect peace, unity, boldness, and love; all of these, and all is perfection.

If we can't be glad, we've learned at least, To range in peace earth's pleasant pasturage.—ROBERT BROWNING.

Record of the Past Is Reason for Optimism

UNLESS all signs fail, America is taking a new climb out of the depression. Industrial production expanded in October for the fifth consecutive month, unemployment figures are dropping rapidly, and business sentiment as a whole is unusually optimistic.

No one knows, of course, how far and how fast this climb will be continued. We shan't be able to say goodbye to this depression until our business indices have reached the 1929 level; indeed, because our population is greater now than it was then, that level will have to be surpassed before we can truly say that nation-wide prosperity is here again.

Past experience may not be a perfect guide, in a world so changed as the world of today. Yet it is the only guide we have, and it has a rather encouraging message.

DURING the last half century, American business has been hit by five full-dress depressions—including the present one. After each of the other four, industry and trade climbed to a higher level than the one they had occupied before, and the general living standard of the American people went up with them. And the most encouraging thing is the fact that although each of these climbs took place during a period of technical improvement—which is supposed to mean a percentage decline in the number of jobs—the working population of the country actually increased faster than the total population.

This is made clear in figures contained in a bulletin just issued by the Central National Bank of Cleveland.

For example: from 1890 to 1930, the country's population increased 95 per cent—from 63,000,000 to 123,000,000. Yet the number of jobs increased by 113 per cent in the same period—from 23,000,000 in 1890 to 49,000,000 in 1930.

To look at it from a different angle, between 1890 and 1900, American business created 6,000,000 new jobs; between 1900 and 1910, it created 9,000,000 new jobs; between 1910 and 1920, it created 4,000,000 new jobs; between 1920 and 1930 it created 7,000,000 new jobs.

WHERE does that leave us? Well, the bank's bulletin goes on to remark that our highest standard of living heretofore came when there were about 50 jobs for each 100 of the population. Our population today is 130,000,000; we need, therefore, approximately 52,000,000 jobs. Today about 45,000,000 people are regularly employed. There is, accordingly, a lag of some 7,000,000 jobs to be made up.

Past experiences indicate that that is by no means an impossible hurdle. In the ordinary, normal course of business development we ought to get over it without strain. When you stop to think that our industrial and commercial plant is operating far below capacity, you can see that one or two years of continued expansion might do the trick very nicely.

There is every reason, then, to look forward to 1939 with the utmost confidence.

Recovery and Progress Rest on Our Own Confidence

ALTHOUGH Americans are supposed to be the greatest in the world, and often do their best to live up to the title, it just happens that one of our troubles these days is the fact that we're not cocky enough.

Perhaps you could blame it on the depression. The 1929 crash made us discover that some of our most cherished idols had feet of clay; and we went on from there to tabulate our faults in great detail, with the result that we fell into the habit of picking flaws in everything that has been done in the last half century.

THIS may have been good for us. A proud soul is usually all the better for a little chastening. But it did not create the best possible psychological atmosphere for recovery. The elements that go to make for recovery are intangible, and one of the most important is confidence—confidence in one's ability, in one's future, in the drive and energy and intelligence of one's fellows. A dash of the old-time American cockiness would have helped wonderfully.

So it is proper to call attention to remarks made the other day by William O'Neil, president of the General Tire and Rubber company, on his return from a tour of Europe.

America may have her troubles, says Mr. O'Neil, but compared with Europe she is practically next door to the golden gate. The best labor in the world and the best employers in the world are to be found in America; they operate in the world's richest market, and between them they maintain the world's highest standard of living.

Which leads Mr. O'Neil to his next point. "Some politicians," he says, "have tried to persuade us that America succeeds because of its natural resources and because it is a comparatively new country. Go to Europe and you will see the fallacy of this. Relatively there are more natural resources in Rumania than there are in the United States, just as there are in Brazil, but this country has gone ahead of them both."

AND that is a truth it wouldn't hurt us to remember.

We have had a rich continent to exploit, to be sure, but that isn't the whole answer and we do ourselves a disservice by pretending that it is. Our great advantages are human—our system of government, our social and economic organization, the vision and ability of our business leaders, the intelligence and ambition of our labor. It is on these things that America's greatness has been built in the past; it is on them that its recovery from this depression will be built.

So it would help if we could regain some of that old-time cockiness. For recovery and progress rest, after all, on confidence. We don't create confidence by telling ourselves that we're just lucky. We can create it—and we have every right to do so—by examining the reasons for past success and doing a little exultant chest-thumping once more.

Grid Broadcast Season at Climax on Saturday

With only one game remaining to be played on December 3, the football broadcasting season of the Southwest conference can be said to reach its climax on Saturday, when the Humble Oil & Refining company will bring to Texas radio followers of the game broadcasts of the Texas Christian-Southern Methodist game in Dallas and the Rice-Baylor game in Houston.

The experts are saying that the conference championship hinges on the T. C. U.-S. M. U. contest in Dallas, both teams being undefeated to date in conference competition, and T. C. U. remaining undefeated and untied during the whole season. The Humble company's broadcast of this game will begin at 1:50 p. m. with Kern Tips handling play-by-play and Hal Thompson color. It can be heard over stations WFAA-WRAP, Dallas-Fort Worth; KPEC, Houston; and WOAI, San Antonio.

The Rice-Baylor game is one of the traditional season-end games of the year. It is expected that Rice will have a stronger team on the field than at any time during the past several weeks, and the Baylor Bears are reported to be in top-notch shape for the contest. It will be the last appearance of Baylor's Bill Patterson in conference competition. The Humble Company's broadcast of this game will begin at 2:20 p. m. with Cy Leiland handling play-by-play and Eddie Dunn color. The entire game can be heard over stations KFLD, Dallas; WAGO, Waco; and KTRH, Houston. Station KTRSA, San Antonio, will join this network at the conclusion of the CBS broadcast of the Army-Navy game.

WOW Drill Team Has Barn Party Tuesday

A barn party was given by the Woodman Circle drill team of Cisco Tuesday evening. The guests came attired in old-fashioned apparel, and ring games, style shows, a mock wedding, and a candy breaking formed the diversion for the evening. Mrs. Claude Strickland, wearing a Martha Washington dress, was hostess and directed the entertainment. Music was furnished by Miss Joyce Rainbolt, who played a variety of accordion selections. In the bathing revue, Miss Evelyn Mitchell, dressed as 1915, was awarded the prize and Tommie Ball was winner in a men's style show. Mr. Ball was also "bride" in a womanless wedding, with R. D. Jones as the bridegroom and Claude Strickland the parson. In the grand march, Mr. and Mrs. Jess McCasles were declared the best-dressed couple. Following the entertainment, delicious refreshments were served.

Mrs. Burnam W. M. S. Circle 6 Hostess

Circle Six of the First Baptist W. M. S. met Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. J. E. Burnam, Randolph Hill, with Mrs. W. H. LaRoque, chairman, presiding over the meeting. Following an opening prayer by Mrs. C. J. Stephens, a hymn was sung. Mrs. B. B. Hurst, recently moved to Cisco from San Angelo, was welcomed into the circle as a new member. Mrs. L. L. Howser brought the devotional, from the book "Acts."

Refreshments were served to Miss W. H. LaRoque, T. E. House, E. J. Poe, G. B. Langston, L. L. Howser, B. B. Hurst, C. J. Stephens, J. C. Lawdermilk, W. D. Hazel and the hostess, Mrs. Burnam.

How To Relieve Misery of Your CHEST COLD

If you are suffering from a miserable chest cold, try this: Massage throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. Then spread a thick layer on chest and cover with warm cloth. VapoRub goes right to work to bring relief—two ways at once. (1) Direct through the skin like a poultice. (2) Direct to the irritated air-passages with its medicated vapors. This poultice-vapor action loosens phlegm—clears air-passages—checks tendency to cough—relieves local congestion. Often by morning the cold is over.

Former Cisco Girl Bride in Dallas Ceremony

(Dallas Morning News)

Miss Jenny Lea Mathews became the bride of Lodowick Cobb Allison Thursday morning at the Gaston Avenue Baptist church. The Rev. W. Marshall Craig officiated.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Mathews, Cisco. Mr. Allison is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Allison, Corsicana.

F. B. Mathews, Jr., Overton, gave his sister in marriage. She wore a black costume suit with matching accessories. Her shoulder bouquet was of white orchids and valley lilies.

Miss Blanche Mathews, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a plum-colored dress with black accessories and a corsage of ranunculus. Robert H. Cobb attended his cousin as best man.

The altar was decorated with white chrysanthemums, palms, ferns and candelabra. Miss Hazel Cobb, aunt of Mr. Allison, played the wedding march and Mrs. Ray M. Wilhite, sister of the bride, sang.

Miss Virginia Lee Smith of Fort Worth presided at the guest book. Mr. and Mrs. Allison will be at home at 1111 North Carroll after a short trip to San Antonio. The bride is a graduate of Cisco high school and Randolph Junior college. Mr. Allison was graduated from Corsicana high school and attended the University of Texas.

The following attended the ceremony from out of town: Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Allison, Kenneth Allison, Mr. and Mrs. Ed M. Polk, Jr., and Miss Ann Polk, Corsicana; Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Newland, Kilgore; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Kendrick, Duncan, Okla.; Mrs. Ray M. White, Wichita Falls; Mrs. W. W. McNatt and Miss Nell McNatt, Naples; Miss Eloise McNatt, Waco; Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Irvin, Dainingerfield; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Smith and Miss Virginia Lee Smith, Fort Worth; Miss Virginia Carter, Miss Elizabeth McCracken, Miss Marie Graves, Miss Maxine Hampton, Cisco; Miss Helen Newton, Overton.

THANKSGIVING DINNER

SERIAL STORY LOVERS AWEIGH

BY BETTY WALLACE

CAST OF CHARACTERS
JUDY ALCOTT—admiral's daughter. She faced a choice between two navy suitors.
DWIGHT CAMPBELL—ambitious lieutenant. He faced a choice between his wife and duty.
JACK HANLEY—flying sailor. He faced a test of a patient love.
MARVEL HASTINGS—navy wife. She faced the test of being a good sailor.

and custom. Dwight had been careful about making his way from the first. He had accepted sage advice, done duty on a battleship as soon as he graduated. He had requested transfer to a destroyer at the end of his three years, and for his first shore duty chosen postgraduate work at the Academy. Now he was set. If he didn't get passed over. But he wouldn't. At least, until he married Marvel, there had been no danger.

Jack's career had not been so cut and dried. His choice of flying his success in it, removed him from the groove. And now his faith in dirigibles, his desire to get back to them, was setting him still further apart. But he was a good officer, a skillful flyer.

Her mother came in and found her still with the card in her fingers. Mrs. Alcott did not comment about the call. Marvel hadn't made. She only said, "I doubt if I shall attend her housewarming. But go, if you like."

"Liek?" said Judy.
 "I expect the new house is very beautiful."
 "I am curious," Judy admitted.
 At that, she might not have gone if Dwight hadn't come to see her one evening. He explained that Marvel was tied up in a beauty salon downtown. "I stopped by on my way home, but she said she'd be hours. I've wanted to talk to you Judy."

The pulse in her wrists was leaping, but she managed to speak to him coolly and matter-of-factly. "You're looking well, Dwight. I know you must be very happy."
 "Happy." His eyes shone. Then his brow clouded. "You got a bid to the housewarming, I know. That's what I wanted to talk to you about."
 "Yes?"
 He floundered. He said at last, "Marvel—well—she doesn't like me to tell her what to do. She's proud, and she's had so much social experience. But of course, it isn't Navy—she doesn't understand—" His eyes sought her.
 "Look here, Judy, I know I've got a colossal nerve, but I wish you'd hint to Marvel that we—well—she—ought to call around—you now what I mean. I'm afraid the brass hats are going to think she's got a healthy courage, asking them to her house first."

Judy said slowly, "I don't see how I can tell Marvel anything. It's her own business. And she—you'll pardon me, Dwight, but—I don't think she likes me very well."
 "Nonsense! Of course she likes you! She's head-strong, used to her own way. I guess I'm a blundering ass sometimes and she doesn't want anyone laying down the law to her. If there were some older woman—your mother, maybe..."

Judy looked back at him levelly. "Mother would never dream of it, Dwight. I couldn't ask her."
 He flushed. He looked uncomfortable. "I guess I'm making a bigger mess of this than it was to begin with. But curse it all, you and I were such good friends, and I had more or less depended on you to—" That was the climber in Dwight, his mind told her.

She said, "You know I tried. You know I wasn't successful. Listen, she's not a baby, she's no fool, either. She'll get on to it. People will forgive her first few mistakes after a while."
 His brow furrowed. "I hate having her get off on the wrong foot and maybe never fitting in."
 "That's a matter of temperament, isn't it?" And Marvel's got to be to scintillate. To be the Queen Bee. There were no Queen Bees in the Navy. Just admirals wives, and by the time they got to be the wife of an admiral, they had learned much hard common sense.

He leaned forward. "Judy, you and I don't have to stand on ceremony. We were such good friends! You know I think the world of you. Don't let me down now! It's a delicate problem, nothing a man can handle. Promise me you'll speak to Marvel. Can't you strike up one of these beautiful friendships women are always getting into? You pop around a lot with Diane Bell. Why can't you let Marvel in on the combination? In

CHAPTER XIV

Judy saw Jack Hanley almost every night. They played monopoly at the Bells' house, although Bill continually complained that if the stakes were seafights and promotions instead of real estate and railroads he'd like the game better. They danced at the club, and went to see movies, and dropped in at parties on the station.

Judy was scarcely aware, she told herself firmly, that Dwight Campbell was now Marvel's husband, and away on a honeymoon with her.

When the Campbell's returned, and to everyone's incredulous surprise, Marvel leased a house close to the station "I could have thought she'd take the royal suite at the Coronado," said Diane.

"She had that before. Maybe a house is a change."
 "But such a house. Actually, it's small!"
 The Navy was soon to be undecorated about Marvel's house. Small it might be, but she was bent on making it perfect. Things arrived from exclusive shops in Los Angeles and San Francisco. There was whispering of antiques, of an interior decorator, of amazingly intricate glass curtains, drapes and overdrapes.

Judy tried not to be curious, not to want to see Dwight. And then the invitation came. A housewarming. Judy turned it over in her fingers. Marvel should have called, as a new bride, on the admiral and Captain Lane and then in order on each of the wives of the officers next in rank. But Marvel was doing this her own way.

Judy thought of the meticulous Navy gradings. The numbers that even in officers of the same rank determined once and forever who called on whom first on arriving at a new station. Who took command in a group, who sat nearest the head of the tables, even though all wore of the same rank. This might seem ridiculous to people on the outside. Probably it seemed ridiculous to Marvel, if she so much as knew of it, which Judy doubted. But there were good and sufficient reasons for the law. As a matter of fact, Jack Hanley, who had graduated second in his class at the Academy, outranked Dwight.

It was a pity that Marvel should begin at once to flaunt tradition
