F. D. R. APPEALS FOR CONTINUED ADVANCE

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

An institution which Cisco business men should greet with satisfaction and assist with all possible manner of co-operation is the Cisco Livestock exchange just organized here and scheduled to conduct its first auction next Monday. It is a step on the way to what Cisco ought to have done years ago. Once a week it is proposed to hold these auctions in which a farmer with a calf, a steer, a bull, a cow, a horse, a mule, a goat, or whatever he may have, may sell at good advantage.

It probably has not occurred to enough of us that the farmer is a business man. Income does not magically happen to him. It is earned in exactly the same fashion that the merchant earns his profits and the clerk his salary. The farmer is engaged in producing a certain thing necessary to life or desired by humanity. But unless he can sell that product he has no money. Purchasing power doesn't "just happen" to him. He has no Ali Baba formula.

It is obvious that the farmer cannot buy unless he sells. He must have a market in order to make a profit. That is simple. It is common rule. And yet many communities are simply sucking their thumbs over this issue, refusing to do any sowing where they hope to reap, refusing to believe that there is any money in the country because they do not see any of it.

The basic truth of the matter is that, in a large measure, our own community has been something of a parasite on its trade territory. We have refused to provide for the people who make it a territory the kind of service which they require to transform their goods into gold. Other communities have been wiser, and we are, except in a few instances, merely being fortunate in being able to glean from the results of these rival efforts a modicum of the trade that we should obtain.

The proof of this pudding is seen in the fact that local firms who are giving the sort of service that is necessary and right are prospering. They do not need to be pointed out. Their activity and success mark them.

Obviously, if we are to benefit the most from our area, if we are to gain the full measure of its possibilities instead of watching purchasing power and values that many of us do not even suspect flow to other centers, we must get busy. We must provide the services that make it profitable for those whom we want to attract to come here. We must return value received, otherwise we are fooling nobody but ourselves.

And we have the best location for a prosperous community.

Jitterbugs Help Judge Deal Justice

Judge Joseph Cordes, right, looks on in a Milwaukee courtroom as jitterbugs Kay Darling and Joy Hamilton demonstrate how physically fit one must be to perform operations of the Big Apple. Reasons for all this was that a man claimed injuries in an auto accident won a $5 Big Apple prize a week later. Defendant claimed he couldn't have been hurt much. The judge took matter under advisement.

Lions Hear Gas Conservation Program Today

Tommy Thompson of the Lone Star Gas company, Dallas, had charge of the Lions program today with moving pictures, showing the great conservation program now going on over the United States and how the Lone Star's program of organization is conserving the gas resources of the country and turning them to bringing heat and fuel to consumers over the nation. The pictures together with Mr. Thompson's synchronized verbal explanations made an interesting and instructive program.

Other visitors and guests were Tom C. Mabray, division freight and passenger agent of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas lines, and Lion Cub Bob Taylor, new secretary of the chamber of commerce for Cisco.

Mr. Taylor said he was mighty glad to become affiliated with Cisco and her institutions, and asked the assistance of every Lion as well as every citizen, in aiding him to function as the sales agent of Cisco as a community.

A letter was read from District Governor R. N. Richardson inviting the Lobo band to attend and participate in the program of the district Lions convention to be held at Mineral Wells, May 7-8 of this year.

Mac Anderson of McCamey is the guest of relatives here.

Moves Cost Eastland County Tenant Farmers $22,350 Says Supervisor

Year-end moves will cost Eastland county tenant farmers more than $22,350, and that is only the beginning of the cost to them and to the general public, George I. Lane, county supervisor of the Farm Security administration, said today.

The supervisor estimated that 447 farm tenants of this county move every year. The actual cost is around $50 per family, he said, but the final cost to the tenant and to the public is much greater.

Most of the tenants who move could be stabilized through leasing methods which would encourage them to remain upon the same farm and to improve it, the supervisor stated. He said that the FSA flexible lease form, now being distributed by his office is winning favor with both landlords

Mrs. Buster Elliott Seriously Injured

Mrs. Buster Elliott, sister-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hayes, was reported in satisfactory condition in an Eastland hospital where she is confined following serious injuries sustained at Dublin Sunday afternoon when the car in which she and two children and a brother and his wife were riding was struck by a speeding car.

Mrs. Elliott was riding in the back of a pick-up en route to her brother's home at Dublin when the machine, just leaving a service station, was struck and hurled a distance of 45 feet by another car. The small vehicle was overturned several times, spilling its occupants along the highway.

Mrs. Elliott suffered serious facial cuts, a severe mouth injury and a bad leg cut.

An 18-month-old son sustained a cut on the head and bruises. Her brother and his wife each were cut and bruised.

After emergency treatment at Dublin Mrs. Elliott was removed to the Eastland hospital.

and tenants and that a considerable number of farms in this county will be operated under it during the coming year.

"A tenant who stays upon a given piece of land for only a year has no opportunity to build up that land and no incentive to do it," Mr. Lane continued. "Instead he is inclined to take out of it all he can. The land owner may be struggling along like the tenant on an inadequate income. He has his money invested in the land and taxes to pay, so he also is interested in having the tenant get the most possible out of this year's crop, letting the future take care of itself. In many cases, the land lord does not live in the county or the state, and fails to realize what is happening to his soil."

The supervisor said that tenant

Lobos Defeat Rising Star in Conference Start

The Cisco Lobo basketball team quiet kept unbroken their long string of home game victories last night by defeating the Rising Star five 25-26 in their first conference game of the 1939 cage season.

The contest was rough throughout and so close that a timekeepers' dispute in the fourth quarter delayed the game for some time, Rising Star finally being given the benefit of the doubt and two extra points. The Lobos trailed 16-12 at halftime and did not gain the lead until midway in the fourth quarter. The winning counter came in the last few seconds of play and broke a 26-26 tie. Odell Harrison looped in the payoff counter from close range.

Although the local cagers had previously beaten Rising Star by a 27-6 margin, it was believed that their improvement had made up the difference.

Marcel Harrison was high point man of the evening with 21 tallies, his all-time high for this year, while Hill of Rising Star was next with 17.

Rising Star counted eight of their points on free throws which kept them in the game until the final whistle.

The Lobos will meet Ranger at Ranger Thursday evening in their second conference game. Following is the complete Eastland county schedule.

January 3—Carbon vs. Ranger at Carbon, Gorman vs. Eastland at Eastland, Cisco vs. Rising Star at Rising Star.

January 5—Carbon vs. Gorman at Gorman, Cisco vs. Ranger at Ranger, Rising Star vs. Eastland at Rising Star.

January 10—Carbon vs. Cisco at Cisco, Rising Star vs. Gorman at Rising Star, Eastland vs. Ranger at Eastland.

January 12—Carbon vs. Rising Star at Carbon, Eastland vs. Cisco at Eastland, Ranger vs. Gorman at Gorman.

STOCK SHOW TO BE HELD LATE IN FEBRUARY

CofC Sets Aside $200 for Financing FFA Awards

Dates for the annual Eastland County FFA Livestock show here were tentatively set for late in February by the board of directors of the Cisco chamber of commerce which met last night in the first session of the new year and the first with the chamber's new secretary, Bob Taylor.

T. G. Caudle, agricultural secretary of the chamber and show superintendent, reported on plans for the show and requested that it be held at that time. The board voted to set aside $200 for financing the show and paying premiums to the boys who enter their livestock. Although livestock breeders of the section are expected to enter exhibits in the show no premiums will be awarded adults. All vocational agricultural teachers of the county will be invited to organize exhibits from their FFA classes, Mr. Caudle said.

Dr. F. E. Clark, G. P. Mitcham, Jr., Sutton Crofts and Frank Harrell were named as a committee to assist Mr. Caudle in conducting the show.

The board discussed several encampment and convention projects and directed the secretary to take necessary steps toward obtaining these for Cisco.

Possible trade extension programs were discussed and Sec'y Taylor said he would ask the trade extension committee to meet within the next few days to map out such a program.

The board submitted the names of 18 citizens from which the city will choose nine to fill vacancies occurring on the board. Seven of these nine vacancies regularly occur, the remaining two being due to removals from the city. Those whose two-year terms regularly expire are B. A. Butler, J. D. Lauderdale, W. J. Leach, S. H. Nance, W. J. Poe, R. L. Ponsler and Charles Sandler.

Scarlet Fever Reports in Error Says Dr. Lee

There are only two homes under quarantine for scarlet fever in Cisco, Dr. W. P. Lee, city health officer, told The Daily Press today in a statement correcting erroneous reports which he said had been circulated, alarming the public unnecessarily.

"I wish to state," said Dr. Lee, "that there are only two homes under quarantine for scarlet fever and one for diphtheria. Another condition that has caused some uneasiness is the fear of children coming from homes under quarantine. The instructions of the state health officer furnished me are that susceptible contacts in the home should be quarantined for seven days after the last exposure. Such persons can then be considered free from contagion."

Baptists Look to Even Greater Year

With large congregations both morning and evening at the First Baptist church last Sunday and two additions to the church indications are that 1939 will be an even greater year than 1938 and the past year was a year of material and spiritual blessings for the church, the Rev. Judson Prince, pastor, said today.

Prayer service will be held this evening at 7:30, after which the monthly business meeting will follow. All officers were urged to have reports ready.

Rose With Roosevelt

Frank Murphy, New U. S. Attorney General

FDR Attracted to Murphy as Mayor

By The AP Feature Service

DETROIT, Jan. 4.—Thin, red-haired Frank Murphy, successor to Attorney General Cummings, had been in politics in Michigan some 10 years before his name became known nationally.

His rise to prominence seems to date from the time he attracted the attention of Franklin D. Roosevelt when Roosevelt was governor of New York and Murphy was mayor of Detroit.

In the turbulent days of 1930-1933, Murphy was trying to whittle Detroit's $400,000,000 debt. He was reorganizing Detroit's social service — instituting several reforms similar to those to be set up later under social security by President Roosevelt.

Auto plants were shutting down, banks were closing, relief rolls were growing. Murphy called on Washington to help; care of the unemployed, he insisted, was a national problem.

In May, 1933, after Roosevelt had become president, Murphy resigned as mayor to accept a Roosevelt appointment as governor general of the Philippines.

Three years when, in 1936, he was called back. Elections were coming up and democratic leaders figured that Murphy-for-governor would help carry Michigan.

Murphy won. He scarcely had taken office on January 1, 1937, when a sit-down strike in Flint inaugurated a series of labor troubles that beset his administration.

Amidst the clamor that the sit-downs be evicted, Murphy held out against bloodshed. He finally brought about peaceful settlement of the strike. But critics have said ever since that he did not know the importance of property rights.

After a witness before the Dies committee had testified that Murphy countenanced communist activity, Murphy replied, "They called me 'Red' as a boy and they call me 'red' now."

Last November he was defeated for re-election after a campaign largely concerned with his labor record.

He's a bachelor—says he never found time to marry. He's a worker, too; rarely finds time to play, though when he does he plays hard. Likes to ride, and plays golf, but his golf is not so good. Enjoys the theater, likes Katharine Cornell especially.

Weather

West Texas—Fair Wednesday and Thursday; cooler in west and north portions Wednesday and in southeast portion Thursday.

DESTINY WAITS UPON AMERICA HE DECLARES

Sees New Deal Costs as Indefinitely Less Than Dictatorship

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 4 (AP)—In his annual message to congress "on the state of the union," President Roosevelt appealed to the American people to bear the cost of the New Deal willingly as the price which this country must pay for making democracy work in a world that is looking to America for a way out.

In an address broadcast from the house of representatives where he spoke to a joint session of the new congress, the president declared that this price is infinitely less than the price which dictatorships exact for their claimed advantages and security.

The president reminded the nation that some years ago he had said "this generation of Americans has a rendezvous with destiny." That prophecy has come true, he declared.

The way to achieve that destiny is plain, open and peaceful, he said, a way which, if followed, "the world must forever applaud."

Danger From Without
"Events from across the sea have made clear that the dangers from without are less to be feared than the dangers from within," Mr. Roosevelt told congress and millions of listeners throughout the world who heard the radio broadcast of his address.

Declaring that "investment for prosperity can still be made in a democracy," the president uttered the hope that congress will see fit to set up a permanent long range planning agency.

The president swept aside criticisms of the democratic processes as too cumbersome, complicated, and costly with the assertion that a dictatorship, for all its claimed advantages in saved motion and national efficiency with the statement that a dictatorship involves costs of spiritual values which the American people will not pay. "America still intends to do its

New County Terms Begun as 1939 Gets Under Way

EASTLAND, Jan. 4 (Sp.)—New courthouse officials, and there were only two, were getting into routine of their work Tuesday.

Garland Branton became county treasurer and T. C. Williams county superintendent Monday after being administered the oath of office by County Judge W. S. Adamson.

In the commissioners' court Fred Siekman of Rising Star became a new member. He succeeded A. N. Searley, also of Rising Star. Branton is of Rising Star and Williams is of Cisco.

John White, former county treasurer, was in his office on the third floor to serve as clerk for the 91st and 88th district courts.

C. H. O'Brien began his second term as assessor-collector as did Sheriff Loss Woods and Clerk R. V. Galloway on the main floor of the courthouse.

Henry Davenport of Ranger, Newt Crawley of Gorman and Arch Birt of near Cisco also began new terms. They are members of Commissioners' court. Judge Adamson, too, was beginning his second term as was Criminal District Attorney Earl Conner, Jr.

O. C. Funderburk also began a new term. He is an associate justice of the 11th court of civil appeals.

Besides Mrs. Susan Hunt of Ranger, assistant county superintendent, and Miss Sibyl Holder of Cisco, assistant district clerk, the clerical personnel of the courthouse was unchanged.

Bi-County WPA Teachers Ass'n Has Meeting

The Works Progress Teacher association of Eastland and Stephens counties met with their supervisor, Dr. Lee Clark, at Ranger, Saturday, December 31.

An interesting program was presented by pupils and friends of the Ranger district with Mr. Connel, music director, in charge. A talk by Rev. H. B. Johnson, pastor of the First Christian church of Ranger, was followed by a reading by Miss Bearden of the New Hope community. A quartet from the New Hope class sang two numbers. Mrs. Jones of the Nazarene church of Ranger gave a reading. Another pupil from the New Hope class gave a reading. The program was concluded by a talk from Dr. Clark.

There were several visitors present.

W. T. Francisco, the district supervisor, could not attend but sent words of cheer for the new year.

The teachers of the two counties organized themselves, electing Lee Humphries as president and Mrs. Dona Reed as secretary and treasurer.

The meeting adjourned to meet in Breckenridge in February.

County Singers to Meet at Ranger

The Eastland county singing convention will meet at Calvary Baptist church at Ranger Saturday and Sunday, it was announced. The Stamps quartet and many other prominent singers from Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas are expected.

The convention will open Saturday morning and close Sunday night. Dinner will be served on the ground.

A. E. LeClaire is president of the convention and the Rev. J. A. Lovell is host pastor.

The Case for Optimism

MAYBE we have spent a little too much time lately listing the things that are wrong with the world. There are enough of them, heaven knows, to make an impressive list; but we can overdo pessimism very easily, and it does not hurt us to be reminded that there is another side to the picture.

So there is a good deal of interest in a little bulletin just sent out from the New York office of the Good Neighbor League, citing the reasons that exist for optimism.

THE league feels that the race is making real progress in spite of all its troubles, and points out that this progress is nowhere so visible as in America. Among the encouraging facts on the horizon it lists there:

Since they signed the treaty of Ghent on Christmas Eve, 1814, the United States and England have maintained an unbroken peace —in spite of various incidents which gravely strained their relations.

The United States has made progress toward breaking down the barriers between nations, by signing trade agreements with 20 foreign countries during the last few years. From these agreements are coming closer economic relations and better understanding.

Transportation and communication facilities have so improved that journeys which used to take weeks now take days, and no part of the United States can be said to be isolated.

A generation or two ago, the ordinary workman in America toiled 16 hours a day for very low pay. Today he works half of that time, gets a much higher wage, and has a standard of living which gives him comforts and luxuries that once were the exclusive privilege of the very wealthy.

DEATH rates have been reduced and the average life span has been doubled within the last century. Education, once the privilege of a few, is now available to all. Differences in religious beliefs, once responsible for bitter divisions among the people, are no longer a problem in America; instead, leaders of Jews, Catholics and Protestants are working actively for harmony and better relations.

All of these things add up to a pretty impressive list. They have nothing to do with the dire problems which loom so large today; but for that very reason they are all the more encouraging, because they are enduring, continuing gains and not mere temporary changes in conditions.

Through them, one can see the development of a slow but steady rise in the well-being of the average man. His life has been growing more comfortable, his chance to use his God-given talents to the best advantage has been enlarged, his prospects for getting a little more happiness into his life are somewhat better. The different items in the list may not look so important, taken singly; added together, they show an amazing amount of progress.

And that is a fact which we must not lose sight of. Looking at the clouds on today's horizon, we may easily begin to feel that the whole world is going to pot. But underneath the surface, the general course of man's progress is upward.

Must be the Christmas spirit. Republican Senator McNary of Oregon thinks senate action opposing third term for FDR would be ill-mannered.

The Roosevelt grin is to flourish and gleam, it would seem. FDR gets a toothbrush and soap in his Christmas stocking, according to Mrs. Roosevelt.

For the First Couple of Weeks, Anyhow

State Traffic Death Toll Down 23 Per Cent

AUSTIN, Jan. 4 (Sp.)—State police closed their 1938 death book today and showed a gain of 23 per cent in the encounter between man and vehicle.

As a result there are 164 motorists and pedestrians alive in Texas today who had the previous year's record continued—would be dead. The 1938 death count rose to 1,579 persons, but remained far under the 1937 all-time high mark of 2,043 dead.

Strict supervision over reckless and speeding drivers, educational work, engineering and public opinion performed the feat, said Homer Garrison, Jr., public safety director, who had ordered Texas highway patrolmen concentrated at points where death had successfully stalked most of its victims in 1937.

Christmas holidays were seized with discouraging weather conditions which vaulted the death figures to an estimated 30 persons, but unofficial returns for the month of December showed a drop of 65 under that month of the previous year when 230 Texas travelers were killed.

Lowered speeds and more alertness on the part of drivers, Director Garrison pointed out, brought about a decrease of 1,189 among the year's injured. The total injury group included 14,994 persons, many of them never to walk again, the reports stated. A stronger driver's license law made effective in late 1937 was given credit in the safety march for removing three per cent of permit applicants from behind steering wheels.

Special Attention Being Given to Starch Plants

Business men or farmers interested in financing factories which will provide a market for farm products are invited to communicate with George I. Lane, county supervisor of the Farm Security Administration, with headquarters at Eastland.

Mr. Lane said that special attention is being given in some parts of the state to possibility of developing factories for making starch from sweet potatoes, but that FSA aid is available for similar enterprises for other farm products. Loans will be made to low-income farmers to buy stock in such enterprises, which must be co-operative. It is not necessary, however, that the plants be operated by the co-operative. They may be leased to a private concern on a profit-sharing basis.

"Some parts of this state have enjoyed a remarkable increase in prosperity in recent years, because they have been chosen as the location of milk plants," the supervisor said. "These milk plants, manufacturing butter, cheese, and powdered or condensed milk, have provided a market for all the milk that can be produced the year around in those communities. The price paid has not been high, as compared with the price that the farmer might obtain by selling grade A milk. However, these plants provide a market for all the milk, every gallon that the farmer can produce."

New Industry
The state is now upon the verge of development in the sweet potato industry which may bring the same sort of prosperity as the milk plants brought to the dairy areas, he said. Certain sections of northern and eastern Texas and of southern Oklahoma grow bigger and better sweet potatoes than anywhere else, but production and marketing has been carried on without organization or advertising. A plan has been sought to stim-

Australia Warns of Falling Birth Rate

CANBERRA, Jan. 4 (Sp.)—The National Health and Medical research council expressed concern recently at the falling birth rate, particularly in Australian cities.

Making recommendations for a national campaign to promote greater physical fitness of the Australian people, the council declared:

"Recent international events have brought to a sharp focus the unpreparedness of this nation in a war emergency."

cultivation of yams in this favored area, and at the same time provide outlet for the surplus in case the table market became glutted. The Farm Security Administration, from its regional headquarters at Dallas, Texas, recently sent a committee to Laurel, Miss., where the nation's one and only plant has been set up for the turning of sweet potatoes into starch.

Four Flat Tires by Another Name

EVANSTON, Ill., Jan. 4 (Sp.)—One might expect culture in this university town but Policeman Ed Fellow's report about four flat tires found on John Kelly's vandalized car seemed like culture-plus.

This is what Fellow wrote: "Mr. Kelly parked family jalopy at 951 Sherman. Mr. Kelly came out a few minutes later and found the inflated apparatus that carries the car on its horizontal plane had lost their pristine roundness on the posterior side."

Confusing Trends, Reduced Earnings Characterize Oil Activity in 1938

Confusing and contradictory trends, with slightly reduced total production and substantial curtailed net earnings, characterized the operations of the domestic petroleum industry in 1938. Domestic demand declined, exports increased. Crude production, well-drilling activity and refining operations were those of 1937. Prices, both crude oil and refined products, declined to slightly lower levels.

The further development of improving refining methods and the drilling of the first 15,000-foot oil well among the technological developments. Petroleum taxes continued at high levels, with the federal tax bill estimated again at more than 10 per cent above all taxes levied in the nation. Gasoline taxes alone were under $1,000,000,000.

United States production of crude oil in 1938, as estimated at 1,980,331,000 barrels, or 3 per cent below the production of 1937. The industrial production of 61.3 per cent of the world total, this output of 1,213,000,000 barrels representing a decrease of 5 per cent in 1937.

New Wells
Total of 27,517 new wells was drilled in 1938, or nearly 5,300 more than the 1937 record. It is estimated that 19,388 produced oil in 1937, or about 18,000 barrels under the record. The number of new wells in operation, 440, showed little change from 1937, but does not reflect huge expenditures for plant modernization, research, and replacements, usually large withdrawal of

SERIAL STORY SKI'S THE LIMIT

BY ADELAIDE HUMPHRIES

CAST OF CHARACTERS
SALLY BLAIR—heroine. She had everything that popularity could wish for, except...
DAN REYNOLDS—hero. He might have had Sally but while he was king on skis...
COREY PORTER was king of the social whirl. So... But go on with the story.

CHAPTER XXI
The first thing that Sally did in the process of trying to forget the Sally that Dan had not wanted, was to destroy the letter that she had kept locked so long in her jewel case. She told herself that Dan was a coward, since he had run away. She told herself that the tables had turned, that she, the old Sally Blair again, did not believe in Dan Reynolds. She would forget that she ever had believed in him. She would forget she had ever known him.

She had never used his letter now; she would never read it over again. She did not even read it when she took it out of its hiding place. She tore it into tiny fragments, deliberately, cruelly, with that dangerous brightness in her dark eyes. A brightness that was not satisfied even then. She carried the fragments to the fire burning in the grate in her lovely bedroom; she tossed the pieces into the flames. She watched them crumple around the edges, shrink up into a pitiful small heap of gray ashes.

Like my heart, Sally thought, watching them—and leaned down swiftly to gather them into the palm of her hand, to let a tear fall on them. The last tear, she resolved fiercely, that she ever would shed over Dan Reynolds. If only she could have turned her love to ashes as simply as this, tossing it back into the flames again!

She wore Corey's big diamond on her third finger of her left hand now. She was supposed to be engaged to him. Corey had made up her mind for her. Sally, dancing until dawn, partying, laughing, playing the part of the gray glamour girl once more did not have any mind to make up. Nor any heart. Only a dull emptiness, taking the place of the old ache, where her heart once had been.

"I hope you won't rush into this marriage," her father said. He was troubled about his daughter. He was not at all sure she was happy these days. She was too feverishly gay, too restless, too eager. Her dark eyes were much too bright to suit him.

He had hoped that if Sally must make a choice of one of the numerous young men who always had clustered around her like bees buzzing over a flower that she would be someone like young Reynolds. But he must have been mistaken in thinking that Sally had been taken with the lad. She would not have forgotten him so soon, when he went away so unexpectedly. Sam Blair had been sorry about that. But he had been convinced that the lad had had good reason; that in time he would return to offer it. He was not so convinced now that Sally, although she wore Corey Porter's ring on her slender finger, was in love with him.

"I'm not in a hurry to lose my little girl," Mr. Blair said. Especially not in any hurry to lose her to young Porter, he might have added. But he had nothing in particular against the boy, except that he was a bit wild, had had too much of the good things of this world. If Sally was sure he was the right man for her, her father would have to be satisfied, too. He did not see as much of Sally as he had for awhile, so that he did not find it easy to talk these matters over with her. "Oh, I'm not in any hurry," Sally returned, stopping to lay a light caress on her father's forehead. That was not exactly true; she was in a hurry now. Outside Corey's horn was already honking impatiently for her to join him. Sally wanted to be in a hurry. Then there was not time to think—or to remember. "I'm not rushing into anything, Daddy," she wanted to rush, to run, to dance—to live on the edge of excitement and thrills. Surely that was the best way to forget what might have been, not to think of into her eyes. That he thought she had not heard him above the roar of the motor. For then he would not be able to hear her heart's painful hammering. He could not see the pain in her dark eyes' depths.

At first, which was why she had not answered right away, Sally had wanted to cry out, No, no! She had wanted to say I Don't want to go anywhere where there is skiing, I don't want to climb to the top of any mountain. For all of that would remind her too vividly, too poignantly of Dan. Dan who had been the King of skis. Dan who belonged in that white world of the big outdoors.

But Sally said, "Of course, I'd like very much, Corey." She did not cry out in protest. What if it did bring back that stifling nostalgia, start her heart hammering again? It might remind her of Dan. Or it might prove that she had forgotten him. It might convince her that the things she told herself were true, that she no longer cared for Dan, that she no longer believed in him.

She had to be convinced of that some time. Or she could not go on pretending. She might as well like this way of facing it. Dan had left her world. She could go back to his. Perhaps then she could put him out of her heart forever. All that emptiness.

CHAPTER XXII
If there was a more beautiful world than that of snow-bound Lake Placid, Sally had never seen it. Great blue-white mountain peaks pierced the deep azure of the sky, pine trees formed tall black regiments, frosted fields shimmered like miles and miles of silvered gauze; the lake itself wore a dull glazed sheen.

The crowd was exceedingly gay and smart, lovely girls in all manner of sport outfits; rugged, handsome men in ski sweaters and knickers. None handsomer, or more attractive than Corey; no girl more strikingly pretty than Sally Blair. Again heads turned as they passed by, skating arm in arm, or carrying skis and poles; again people remarked what a fine-looking couple they made. "That's Sally Blair," someone would say. "Remember, she was Queen of the Dartmouth carnival last year." Or, "That's Corey Porter with her. His father is the millionaire. He and Sally are engaged, you know."

Looking at them anyone might be envious. They had everything, this young couple, good looks, health, money to burn—and love. The world was all theirs. Or so it seemed. No one could guess that this particular world, in Sally's thoughts, belonged just to one person. A boy who this time last year had been king of them all in this world of his. A boy whose memory was stingingly potent, achingly ever-present as Sally skated and skied, flirted and laughed, pretended to be as gay, as happy as the old Sally Blair.

The day after the arrival of Corey and his party there was to be a contest. "It's sort of unofficially a tryout for the Olympics, I understand," Corey said. "I believe there will be contestants from everywhere. It ought to prove interesting. We ought to go and watch it."

The Olympics that Dan, this time last year, had hoped to make. That he would have achieved, surely, had it not been for Sally. That he had said, one day beside a brook in the spring, he would one day try out for again.

But of course Dan would not be trying out here. Sally did not even know where he was. What had become of him. She told herself she did not care. "Of course we'll go," she said to Corey. "I wouldn't miss it for anything." No matter how much it might make her remember. She had asked for it, hadn't she? She wanted to be thoroughly cured of all memories forever.

The next day could not have been more perfect. Not a cloud in the sky, the scene like a carnival with its hundreds of rainbow-colored spectators at the foot of the mountain where the contest would take place. The dazzling sweep of white snow, the high, winding, smooth down-trail.

There were several events scheduled, langlauf, or cross-country, jumping and down-hill, a slalom course with its flags forming gates and zigzag flashes for an obstacle race.

If she closed her eyes Sally almost could have imagined that some one of the contestants might have been Dan. But none of them, she told herself, sizing up their performances, could equal him. Besides, she would not close her eyes. She would not think of Dan. Not any more. Not here where it seemed as though she could not keep from thinking of him every minute. Where, in spite of all stern resolutions, all laughter and pretense, that old familiar ache weighed down on her again.

"Why, look... who's that?" someone in Corey's party asked, even as Sally Blair had voiced the same question a year ago. Everyone was looking up at the figure of a young man poised on the edge of the steep drop, making ready for the jump, the swift, downward flight. A figure that made it so gracefully, so effortlessly, that it was sheer joy to watch the symmetrical beauty of movement.

Sally had no need to ask who it had been. She knew before she heard the answer. There was only one person who could ski as that boy had, commanding such tribute. But it could not—it simply could not be Dan! She dared not believe her eyes, though she had not closed them. She dared not believe the hammering of her heart that yet could not be denied.

eyes narrowed. "It won't do any good," he said, even as he had said that other time. "Dan proved he didn't want anything to do with our world. Why go back into his?"

"That has nothing to do with it," Sally said. "You're not afraid to see me, are you, Corey?" This brought an angry flush to Corey's fair cheeks, a quick denial that was almost too ready. He was afraid. But not for the reasons Sally thought.

"Come on, then," Sally said. Her reasons were different from what Corey might have supposed, too. If she met Dan again, talked with him, looked into his eyes, then maybe at long last she really could forget him. (To Be Continued)

Mrs. Sanford Presides Over WMS Meeting

The Woman's Missionary society of the First Methodist church met at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon in the first business meeting of the year with Mrs. C. R. Sanford, newly-elected president, presiding. "Leaning on the Everlasting Arms" was the opening hymn, after which Mrs. J. T. Fields led in prayer. Plans for the year's work were outlined by the president, committees for the various activities were appointed and leaders and members for the three circles were read as follows:

Monday

The City federation will meet Monday at 3 at the clubhouse.

Ranger Woman Will Be Williams' Aid

EASTLAND, Jan. 3. (Sp.)—Mrs. Susan Hunt of Ranger, it was announced Tuesday, has been appointed assistant to T. C. Williams of Cisco, new county school superintendent. Mr. Williams succeeds C. S. Eldridge, who has accepted a position as representative of a book company. The appointment of Mrs. Hunt was made by Mr. Williams.

E. R. Trimble, former assistant county superintendent, has been employed on a county-wide sanitation project of the WPA, it was stated.

RR Comm'n Office Remains in Eastland

EASTLAND, Jan. 4. (Sp.)—Indications Tuesday were that Eastland, at least for the present, would keep its oil and gas office of the railroad commission office. Grady Russell has not been dismissed and is in charge of the office. He is deputy supervisor, as was I. J. Killough, who has gone into private business. Killough, who lives at Eastland, was a veteran employee.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel germs and phlegm. Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained. Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

Gael Dives For Gain

Rimassa, galloping halfback for the St. Mary's Gaels, takes a dive over the Texas Tech line for a short gain during the drubbed the Californians a touchdown in the second period of the third annual Cotton Bowl game played in Dallas. The St. Mary's player on the ground just under Rimassa's legs is Mesak, a guard. The Tech player wearing No. 36 jersey is Waldrep. Charging help tackle Rimassa is Scott, huge Tech end, and trying to block him off on the right is Jack, No. 74.

Barber Funeral Held This Afternoon

EASTLAND, Jan. 4. (Sp.)—Funeral services for A. J. Barber, formerly of Eastland and member of one of the county's oldest families, were held today at 2 o'clock at the Hamner Undertaking company chapel in Eastland. Mr. Barber was killed in an automobile accident Saturday night near Hondo, N. M.

Burial was in Eastland cemetery. Mr. Barber was the son of the late P. P. Barber, long time resident of Eastland county.

Survivors are three sisters, Miss Emma Barber of Alamogordo, N. M., Mrs. R. W. Daniel of Abilene, Mrs. E. R. Hanks of Plainview; four brothers, R. P. Barber of Eastland, M. G. Barber of Alamogordo, J. P. Barber of Houston, and Neil J. Barber of Plainview. In charge of Eastland arrangements is Hamner Undertaking company.

own thinking," the president declared in a blunt statement which was no doubt intended for ears other than those in this country. Involves Too Great Costs

"A dictatorship involves costs which the American people will not pay," said the president. "It involves the cost of our spiritual values, the cost of the right to say what we please, the cost of freedom of religions, the cost of walking down the street with our neighbor and being sure he is the right neighbor, the cost of having our children brought up in the free air and not molded and enslaved by machines."

"If avoiding these things means taxes on my income, taxes on my estate, taxes on my property, I will pay these taxes willingly as the price for the free air of a living and not a dead world," said the president in closing his address.

The new congress convened yesterday in a brief period of joviality and good-fellowship. But within half an hour the bitter discord underlying the surface found expression in:

A report from the senate committee on campaign expenditures denouncing WPA for indulging in "unjustifiable political activity" in connection with the recent elections.

A statement by Senator McNary (R-Ore.) that he would ask that the report be referred to the commerce committee, which will be in charge of the nomination of Harry L. Hopkins, former WPA chief, as secretary of commerce.

The first open bid by the increased republican membership of the senate for coalition support from anti-New Deal democrats. It took the form of a statement emanating from a republican caucus that the minority was ready to "co-operate with any group" to reduce governmental expenditures.

An assertion by Chairman Smith (D-SC) of the senate agriculture committee, who is frankly and picturesquely angry because President Roosevelt opposed his renomination last summer, that he intended to fight for a complete revision of the administration's crop control program.

A report submitted to the house by Chairman Dies of the house committee on un-American activities denouncing Secretary of Labor Perkins for failing to deport Harry Bridges, west coast director of the CIO, and asking that the investigation be extended and include the National Labor Relations board.

In addition, American foreign policy, as well as national defense, took on the stature of one of the session's most important issues. Chairman Pittman (D-Nev.) of the senate foreign relations committee said he favored "ostracism" of Japan and announced that his committee would review all statements relating to foreign affairs.

A JOY TO THE TONGUE - THIS 'MAKIN'S' TOBACCO!

And P. A.'s "crimp cut" to roll faster, firmer, easier. No bunching, no spilling

IT'S BETTER TOBACCO - CUT TO SMOKE SLOWER COOLER MELLOWER

70 fine roll-your-own cigarettes in every 2-oz. tin of Prince Albert

LARRY ROMANO (above, right) adds: "I want my L'makin's smokes to be rich-tasting but without harshness, and that's just the way I get 'em with Prince Albert—mild, fragrant, and extra tasty. What's more, P. A. rolled smokes hold their shape. They stay rolled—and stay lit too."

You'll find that Prince Albert smokes cooler because it's specially cut to burn slow. That means mellow smokes without sacrificing ripe, rich taste.

CUT YOURSELF IN ON REAL SMOKING JOY—YOU DON'T RISK A PENNY

Roll yourself 30 swell cigarettes from Prince Albert. If you don't find them the finest, tastiest roll-your-own cigarettes you ever smoked, return the packet tin with the rest of the tobacco in it to us at any time within a month from this date, and we will refund full purchase price, plus postage. THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

A large illustration of a prehistoric bird with the text 'ARCHAEORNIS, A PREHISTORIC BIRD, HAD NO BILL... BUT A REPTILIAN SNOUT... AND HAD CLAWS ON ITS WINGS.' Below it is a cartoon of a man with a speech bubble that says 'CAN YOU SPELL THE WORD THAT IS POPULARLY PRONOUNCED "SHIVEREE?"' and another speech bubble that says 'THE DRUIDS BELIEVED THAT THE MOON WAS THE PLACE OF ABODE AFTER DEATH.'

ANSWER: Charivari... a word of French origin, correctly pronounced sha-ree-va-ree. This mock serenade originated in the Middle Ages in France, and was used at that time only when the bride and groom had been married before.
