TWO CONVENTIONS IN CISCO THIS WEEK-END

SCHOOL GIRLS AND VETERANS TO MEET HERE

250 Due for Homemakers Gathering on Saturday

Two conventions will draw several hundred visitors to Cisco this week-end, one a convention of high school girls and the other a district meeting of veterans. The former will be held Saturday at the high school when girls and instructors from the homemaking departments of about 25 high schools in this zone area will hold the first convention of homemaking clubs in this area. The Cisco homemaking department, directed by Miss Billie Bishop, will be hosts to the visitors, who are members of clubs organized to correspond with the clubs formed by the vocational agriculture departments of the schools.

Around 250 girls and their leaders are expected here for the one-day event which begins with registration at the high school at 8:30 o'clock. A luncheon at the high school dining room will be served by the Cisco homemakers from 12 noon to 1 p. m. A varied program of activities has been prepared.

The second gathering will be the district convention of District Eight of the Veterans of Foreign Wars which will convene at the American Legion hall here at 9:45 a. m. Sunday. Around 100 veterans and members of the auxiliary, which will meet at the same place.

Rate Campaign to Be Discussed at Wichita Falls

ABILENE, Feb. 14 (Sp.)—The West Texas chamber of commerce campaign against freight rate discrimination, already grown into a nation-wide movement, will be discussed at a district meeting in Wichita Falls, Monday, February 20.

Additional affiliates to the WTCC-sponsored freight rate equality federation will be sought at the session to strengthen the regional organization's case when its representatives testify before the foreign and interstate commerce committee hearing in Washington, February 28. Organizations have joined the federation by the score but additional affiliates are needed, officials said.

The Wichita Falls meeting, called by President H. S. Hilburn, Plainview, will open at 2:00 p. m. in the Wichita club in the Hamilton building. WTCC directors, local chamber of commerce presidents and secretaries and other interested persons from more than 30 towns are expected to attend.

Col. E. O. Thompson of the Texas railroad commission and WTCC Manager D. A. Bandeen will attend the committee hearing in Washington. Copies of the WTCC report on freight rate discriminations recently were furnished on request to every member of congress. This and other data furnished by the organization has aided the freight rate equality bloc of 65 senators and congressmen in its work in the present session of congress.

President Hilburn says that although remarkable progress has been made in the rate equality campaign, the battle is far from won and its ultimate success calls for the cooperation of the entire southwest.

"The Indiana legislature has appropriated 10,000 to fight us on freight rate adjustments. With opposition of this kind we cannot relax in our equality campaign for one instant. West Texas has taken

LOBOS TAKE FIRST OF TWO BRECK GAMES

Locals Come From Behind; Play Here This Evening

Pulling from behind a seven-point lead at the half, the Cisco Lobos maintained their unbroken record of wins over the Breckenridge Buckaroo basketball team at Breckenridge last night in the first of a two-game practice series which will conclude with a game here at 7:30 tonight. The series precedes the opening of the league district championship tournament at Breckenridge Saturday.

The final score of the game last night was 34 to 23, convincing enough but hardly to be expected at the half when the Cisco boys were behind their Buckaroo rivals 21 to 14.

The Lobos will play their first game in the title tournament at 8 o'clock Saturday night when they meet the Shackelford county team.

Nazis Reported Seeking Barter with U. S. Farmers

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 14 (AP)—Germany was reported Monday to be offering farm machinery, poultry netting and barbed wire in exchange for wheat and lard in extensive pure barter deals with midwestern farmers and packers' cooperative organizations.

That barter negotiations are being carried on was confirmed by German sources here and by informed quarters in Berlin. Dr. Wilhelm Tannenber, first secretary of the German embassy here, and Dr. Horst Fricke, German commercial attaché in Chicago, were said to be representing the reich in the negotiations. Informed persons here would give no hint, however, of what American groups were involved. In Chicago, representatives of the large packing companies said they knew nothing of the negotiations.

German information gave this account of how the negotiations were initiated: The cooperatives approached Fricke and said they wanted to re-open the German market for American agricultural products. Fricke told them Germany would be disappointed. Pictures of the babies will be published in The Press as rapidly as Osborn Studio can complete the photographs and The Daily Press engraving plant can make the cuts. So if your baby's picture doesn't appear today, don't be disappointed.

First Honor Roll in Baby Parade to Appear Next Week

At noon today approximately 75 babies from Cisco and communities surrounding Cisco had been entered in the Big Baby Parade sponsored by the Cisco Daily Press and cooperating merchants. The Parade, which costs nothing to enter, is proving popular beyond the most optimistic hopes of the sponsors. Everywhere parents and friends of the little tots are canvassing for votes for their youngsters and as each day passes the enthusiasm of the campaign grows apace.

Those who expect to enter their babies and have not done so are urged to send in their entry blanks (the form is printed on this page) at once in order that the youngsters may get off to an even start. The parade, to last seven more weeks, is just getting well under way.

The Sunday school program will begin at 9:30, instead of 9:40, with F. B. Altman reviewing a portion of the church missionary book, "Invincible Advance."

Washington, D. C., Feb. 14 (AP)—Appointment of a westerner to succeed Associate Justice Louis D. Brandeis of the supreme court was predicted by informed persons.

Names prominently mentioned included Judge Harold Stephens of Utah, a member of the United States court of appeals for the District of Columbia; Federal Circuit Judge William Denman of San Francisco and Sam G. Bratton of Albuquerque, N. M.; Justin Miller of the United States court of appeals for the District of Columbia, and Senator Schwellenbach, democrat, of Washington.

The name of Florence E. Allen of Cleveland, a member of the sixth court of appeals, has figured in speculation. Others called possibilities were: Attorney General Frank Murphy of Michigan; Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson of New York; Donald R. Richberg, former administrator of the national industrial recovery act.

Senator Minton, democrat, of Indiana. Samuel Rouenman and Ferdinand Pecora, judges of the New York supreme court.

James M. Landis, dean of the Harvard law school and former chairman of the securities commission. Robert M. Hutchins, president of the University of Chicago.

Justice Brandeis Resigns From U. S. Supreme Court

"Chanters" to Be Here Sunday Night

The McMurry college Chanters of Abilene will give a program at the First Methodist church Sunday evening, it was announced today. The Chanters, famed college choir, are under the direction of Mrs. Gypsy Ted Wylie, and their appearance here is being sponsored by the young people of the church. The service begins at 7 o'clock.

The act he referred to enables federal judges who have reached the age of 70 and have served 10 years to retire at full pay. A supreme court judge's pay is $20,000 a year.

Washington, torn for several years by a deep-seated conflict between the new deal and its critics, reacted to Brandeis' announcement with a spontaneous and unstinted expression of praise for the justice's achievements, in which both camps joined.

And, just as promptly, came the usual outburst of conjecture and speculation as to who his successor would be. Within an hour, western senators were demanding that a westerner be given the place.

But President Roosevelt has sometimes ignored sectional demands in his appointments.

The Brandeis departure gave Roosevelt an opportunity to make his fourth appointment to the high bench. He has named Justices Black, Reed and Frankfurter, all of them appointed since the president's great conflict with the court and his defeated proposal to re-vamp the bench.

Unlike the situations which arose when the president replaced Associate Justice Van Devanter and Sutherland, in whose views he expressed the utmost opposition, no change in the so-called "liberal-conservative" balance of the court could be expected with the naming of Brandeis' successor.

Much in Common For the economic philosophies of the famous jurist and the president have many things in common.

"There must be a power in the states and the nation to remold, through experimentation, our economic practices and institutions to meet changing social and economic needs," Brandeis wrote in a dis-

Aged Liberalist Retires at Age of 82 Years

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 14 (AP)—Associate Justice Louis D. Brandeis, noted defender of social and economic experimentation in the field of government, stepped down from the supreme court Monday and into retirement at the age of 82.

With characteristic simplicity, the tall, ascetic jurist, whose gray eyes have peered down from the bar of the tribunal for 23 years, wrote to President Roosevelt in a one-sentence announcement of his withdrawal.

Pursuant to the act of March 1, 1937, I retire this day from regular active service on the bench," he said.

The act he referred to enables federal judges who have reached the age of 70 and have served 10 years to retire at full pay. A supreme court judge's pay is $20,000 a year.

Washington, torn for several years by a deep-seated conflict between the new deal and its critics, reacted to Brandeis' announcement with a spontaneous and unstinted expression of praise for the justice's achievements, in which both camps joined.

THEATER AND STORE ENTERED BY BURGLARS

Intruders Apparently in Search for Small Cash; Ignore Safes

Thoroughly aroused over repeated instances of burglary, which appeared the work of amateurs, city officers today bent to a determined effort to apprehend intruders who last night added two more Cisco business houses to their list. In neither case did the burglars get loot of any consequence, apparently confining themselves to a search for cash.

Both places—Piggly Wiggly grocery and the Palace theater—were entered about a month ago by knob-knockers who failed to open the safe in either case, although they obtained at that time about $15 from each.

Those who broke into Piggly Wiggly last night used a crow bar or some such instrument to break loose the heavy bar with which the rear door had been fastened. Two or three dollars in change was taken from the cash register.

Store owners, T. J. Tillinghast and F. E. Shockey, said they could miss no merchandise.

Entrance to the Palace theater was gained by breaking the lock on the front door. The safe in the office of Manager K. N. Greer was not tampered with, but drawers in his desk were pulled out and contents dumped on the floor and papers scattered promiscuously in what appeared to be a futile search for money.

The Foreign Policy association estimates that 60 nations spent $17,600,000,000 on naval and military preparation in 1938.

Anniversary Is Observed by Sorority Here

Beta Upsilon chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma celebrated its third birthday Saturday, February 11, with an initiation dinner on the roof garden of the Laguna hotel.

The sorority flowers, American beauty roses, and colors, gold and crimson, were effectively used in the decoration of the table which was centered with the three-tiered birthday cake.

After the words of welcome by Mrs. Moore, the initiates and guests were introduced. Before the cake was served, Mrs. Irby gave a short history of the organization and extended birthday greetings to the group.

A program carrying out the Shakespearian theme was given by members of Mrs. Moore's Shakespearian class.

Places at the banquet table were laid for the three initiates, Misses Bishop, Collins and Stimson, and the following members and their guests.

With a fitting quotation from the Bard of Avon, Mrs. Moore closed the program.

Places at the banquet table were laid for the three initiates, Misses Bishop, Collins and Stimson, and remain at peace may be thwarted by the actions of others. Peaceful settlement is possible only if both sides are willing to resort to it.

"This nation's most vital and cherished interests, however, may be challenged and attacked by another nation, and to such a challenge a free people like ours can offer no other reply but determined defense and resistance."

The secretary said that "an American citizen traveling abroad—whether on business, on pleasure, or in pursuit of cultural aims—must have at least a reasonable expectation that he will sustain no deliberate injury and will not be subjected to arbitrary maltreatment by action of governmental authorities of another country."

He mentioned two duties of the government in this connection—first, "To secure a fair definition of the rights of our citizens abroad," and second, "To maintain the rights of our citizens thus established and to afford our citizens abroad a full measure of appropriate and legitimate protection."

Says Dust Storms Are Dropping Off

GOODWELL, Okla., Feb. 13 (AP).—Wright Langham, who keeps box scores on the severity and frequency of "black blizzard" dust storms, thinks they are declining sharply.

"The peak was reached in 1937, when we had 157 dust storms in the Oklahoma panhandle," said Langham, on the staff of the experiment station at Panhandle A. & M. college.

"In 1938 the number dropped to 75. In January a year ago there were 11, but in January of this year we had only five."

"The entire area has the best vegetative covering since 1932."

Town's Only Tavern Sponsored by Church

WESTPHALIA, La., Feb. 13 (AP). The only place in this town of 200 where a man can buy a glass of beer is operated by a church.

It is the Westphalia clubhouse, part of a cooperative founded by the Rev. Hubert E. Duren, pastor of St. Boniface Catholic church.

The cooperative also embraces a general store and a "credit pool" which makes loans to members.

Father Duren declared 98 per cent of the 700 persons in the parish belong to it.

The clubhouse, which with an athletic program forms the recreational facilities of the cooperative, also has pool and card tables. It is under the direct supervision of the church.

Father Duren declared the aim of the cooperative is to enable all to create a "good life" for themselves.

Plastic Surgeon Urges Safety Belts

EL PASO, Feb. 13 (AP)—If you want to avoid the chance of disfigurement in an auto accident wear a safety belt or learn to think quickly.

That is the advice of Dr. John Pangman, plastic surgeon, who repairs disfigured persons. When an accident occurs, passengers frequently are injured because they are thrown about the inside of the car, Dr. Pangman said.

A safety belt that holds the passengers tightly in their seat might prevent this.

Lacking a belt, the doctor suggested a person has a better chance of escaping injury if he grabs an overcoat, blanket or similar article and clutches it to the upper portion of his body and over his face, protecting himself.

Chewers Keep Cleaners Busy

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 13 (AP)—It takes 17 men 22 nights a week to keep chewing gum wads cleaned up on Canal street, this city's main thoroughfare. A bucketful of gum wads is the nightly harvest.

Once while the gum cleaning crew was working away with putty knives, steel wool and scrub buckets, up walked a buxom woman. "Cleaning she inquired. "Yes," a woman "Well," she said wad from her mouth. The clean-up crew groups of three to five. Another applies to remove the stain up with a steel wool.

senting opinion delivered in 1932. In retrospect, many have pointed to that statement as a forecast of the new deal.

Although ill with an attack of grippe, Roosevelt lost no time in dispatching a note of regret to Brandeis today.

"One must perforce accept the inevitable," he said. "Ever since those days long ago, when you first took your seat on the supreme court bench, I have come to think of you as a necessary and very permanent part of the court—and, since 1933 as one who would continue his fine service there until long after I had left Washington."

Chief Justice Hughes issued a statement saying "The retirement of Mr. Justice Brandeis is a most serious loss to the court."

In the senate, the comment was vastly different from that which, back in 1916, greeted the word that President Wilson was nominating Brandeis to the court. Then, he was denounced as an "agitator" and as "a dangerous radical," and the confirmation was confirmed only after Wilson made an appeal to party loyalty.

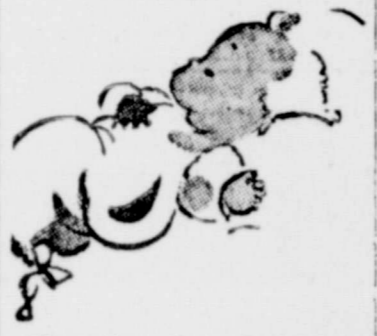

Senator King (D-Utah) said today that "Justice Brandeis is one of the greatest justices that the country ever had."

Brandeis gave no reason for his withdrawal, but friends of the jurist said it was undoubtedly because of age and ill health.

The annual spendable income of a 200 by 300 mile area surrounding Memphis, Tenn., is calculated at $600,000,000.

WOMEN WANT BEAUTY!

BY LOUISE HOLMES

CAST OF CHARACTERS
SUSIE LAMBERT—She served waffles and dreamed of being beautiful.
DICK TREMAINE—He liked Susie's waffles but he couldn't see Susie.
JEFF BOWMAN—His chief concern was to make Susie as beautiful as she wanted to be.

Yesterday: Susie answers the Harker ad, is chosen among the first five applicants. Then Harker decides to investigate individual-ly.

CHAPTER VIII

It was 10 days after Susie read Harker's ad that Jeff Bowman started out to investigate the five homely applicants for Harker's. Jeff was what is commonly called a swell guy. To Edna, his mother, he was the dearest boy in the world. His big frame was loosely hung together, his red hair was none too smoothly brushed. He tried to brush it, but it was that kind of hair. He had nice, healthy skin, sprinkled with a few freckles, and sparkling blue eyes. His eyes laughed, there were little wrinkle fans at the outer corners from laughing. His chin was stubborn, his mouth could be very tender.

Jeff did not go over in a big way with the girls, perhaps because they utterly failed to interest him. His mother said the girls didn't know what they were missing and gave thanks that they did not.

To hasten things Jeff went on his mission by plane. He found a girl in Denver. She was well past 40, precise, dull. He marked her off the list. Two dime store workers, one in Detroit, the other Cleveland, met the same fate.

The fourth applicant was a faded housewife with a none too attentive husband. Jeff did not mark her off the list. She had very little personality. Jeff thought her a weak sister, but he couldn't help thinking how much fun it would be to fix her up and flash the result on her no-account husband.

At last he arrived in Rivertown, the small University city where Miss Susie Lambert dwelt at 1019 Elm street. Jeff hoped Susie was a student. He had a great respect for education and, if the Chief was set on Susie, it would be fine if she weren't too dumb. Going to the old frame house on Elm street he waited for the door to open with pad and pencil in his hand. When the landlady answered his ring he announced that he was taking names for the city directory.

When, among others, she mentioned Susie, he asked, "Is Miss Lambert employed?"

"Yes, she works at the Waffle Shoppe just west of the campus."

Inwardly Jeff groaned. Betaking himself to the Shoppe he straddled a stool and ordered a waffle, meanwhile glancing about.

"Syrup or honey?" he was asked by a waitress.

"Syrup, please."

He heard her say, "Waffle and syrup, Susie," and took a good look.

"So that was Susie. Oh, Lordy—Lordy— Fat, awkward, pasty faced. He noted the negative hair, scowling eyebrows, ridiculous blases on a crazy little nose, the thin, wide mouth. Susie was terrific. If the Chief wanted homeliness he had his wish—wowie! But the girl could make waffles!

While enjoying one of her masterpieces he saw Susie move ponderously across the floor to the telephone, heard her say, "Is there a letter for me, Mrs. Johnson?" and saw her face fall as she hung up the receiver. As if her face could fall any lower, he thought.

After paying his check he went to the counter beside Susie. "I beg your pardon," he said. "Wonder if you can help me out?"

"I'll try." Her voice was pleasant, extremely pleasant in fact. She raised her eyes questioningly and Jeff gazed into clear gray blankness, then the thick lids fell again.

"I'm looking for a family by the name of Lambert," he told her. "Someone sent me to you, said your name was Lambert—." This was Jeff's ruse to observe Susie for his report to John Harker.

"I'm sorry," she said quietly. "My family lives on a farm upstate. The Lamberts here are strangers to me."

"Well—thanks just the same." Jeff went away and Susie looked after him. He'd been friendly. Like Dick, he had looked at her, not through her. Like Dick? There was no one in the world like Dick.

Much of Susie's enthusiasm over becoming attractive had faded in the past two weeks. She'd been a fool to go off the deep end that way. In retrospect she was a little ashamed of her letter. Nevertheless she bought a Chicago paper each day and knew that the model had not yet been chosen. A tiny, quivering hope still lay behind her thoughts.

Jeff went back to the office and reported to John Harker. At last he got around to Susie. He stopped, shaking his head, not knowing how to begin.

"Well—?" Harker gave him a verbal nudge.

"The best I can say is that Susie isn't deformed, that she has a pleasing voice and the average number of features. Maybe you can do something for her, but man, you'll be letting yourself in for something."

"That's what I want," said Harker eagerly. "Tell me about her."

"She weighs a ton, maybe half a ton, her eyebrows come out over her eyes like ragged awnings, her mouth is this wide," Jeff went on, stretching his thumb and small finger. "She has three chins, dust-colored hair and her nose — it's helpless."

John Harker touched a button. "Susie it is," he said. "When we get through with her she'll be Suzanne." His secretary came in. "Take a letter, Miss Griggs. My Dear Miss Lambert—"

Susie received the letter on the following day. As the winner of the contest, she was to report to John Harker at her earliest convenience. She was to make plans for an extended stay. Susie sat down on the top porch step of Mrs. Johnson's rooming house. Funny about her knees. They had an inclination to buckle. After a while she went to her room and packed a suitcase with her forlorn best. In an old trunk she placed the rest of her belongings. She gave up her room and Mrs. Johnson, upon being asked, consented to store her trunk in the basement.

Taking her suitcase Susie went to the Waffle Shoppe and resigned. The manager, at first irate, finally humbled himself and begged. When this failed he offered Susie an unbelievable increase in salary. Dazedly she stuck to her resolve. She was in a trance, or was it a nightmare? Walking out of the room she had called home for five years, throwing over the best job she'd ever have, it had all the earmarks of a nightmare. And all because some lunatic in Chicago had said he could make her beautiful. Suddenly she shook with hysterical laughter.

Then came reaction. Her mind swung back and forth like a terrified pendulum. Doubts assailed her. When she presented herself to John Harker he would take one look and change his mind. The thought of being observed so critically, being discussed, her bad points, of which there were so very many, talked about, made her cringe.

"I don't care," she said to herself. "I won the contest, didn't I? They can't kill me for being ugly."

Going to a pay station she called John Harker.

"This is Susie Lambert," she said, when the connection was completed.

"Oh, yes, Miss Lambert." The cordial kindness of his voice bolstered her shrinking courage. "Thank you for calling. May we expect you soon?"

Susie's spirits lifted miraculously. She hadn't been imagining things after all. Mr. Harker expected her.

"I'll reach Chicago at 6 this evening," she told him.

"Good." He asked for particulars. At what station would she arrive? At 6, did she say? Someone from the office would meet her. Hotel accommodations would be made for her. A conference in Mr. Harker's office at 9 in the morning. Trembling violently Susie went to the bus station. It might be an insane adventure, but it was an adventure and the first in Susie's life. Her heart lifted, her feet seemed not to touch the ground. At long last Susie was one of the chosen.

The Other Side of The Gov't Spending Question

THE following excerpt from a letter written by Senator Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia to Chairman Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the federal reserve board should be read by every person who maintains that because a person opposes "deficit recovery" and extravagance in public expenditures, that person is against aid to the needy.

I WANT to concentrate now on what I conceive to be the essential point of your doctrine. For you the important thing is not the mere magnitude of the government expenditure but the excess of the government's spending over its income; in other words, the magnitude of the deficit.

You explained yourself very clearly when you testified in December 1937 before the house banking and currency committee when you said (p. 120):

"The way to get money into operation is for the government to spend more than they collect. If you spend more than you collect, you create that budgetary deficit that puts money into operation."

It is the deficit that does the work of bringing about business recovery. Moreover, it is important, from the standpoint of your theory, that the government borrowing to meet the deficit should not be borrowing from individuals but that it should be from banks, so that new bank credit will be created to increase what you call "purchasing power." What you want is a deficit, financed by expanding bank credit.

I call your attention to two ways of getting such a deficit. One is the method, apparently contemplated by you and those in the government who think as you do, of the maintenance and even the expansion of the existing fantastically high government expenditures. But another way, equally effective, would be a curtailment of government expenditures, accompanied by an equal curtailment of taxes. A complete tax holiday would create even a greater deficit.

With respect to your general doctrine that a deficit will bring about business recovery, I call your attention to the fact that Mr. Hoover did very well in this matter. He had a deficit of $3,153,000,000 in 1932, preceded by a deficit of nearly a billion in 1931.

In your testimony before the senate committee on finance in February of 1933 (hearings, pp. 712-713 and 720) you proposed a total of $3,000,000,000 as gifts to the states and as expenditures on self-liquidating public works as a sufficient contribution from the government to purchasing power in that great emergency. We have expended that amount over and over again and you insist that continued and still more lavish expenditures are still indispensable to recovery, and their withdrawal will mean disaster.

I want to get business prosperity restored not by financial manipulations on the part of the government but by restoring confidence on the part of the business community in the fairness of the government, by eliminating needless frictions and restraints, and by freeing the enterprise of a great people, who want jobs, not charity; work, not taxes.

Nine years of deficits, very largely financed by bank deficit, should shake even your confidence in the value of deficits as financial magic in making business prosperity.

I emphatically repudiate your doctrine that debt for its own sake is good, that deficits for their own sake are good, and that an expansion of bank credit for the purpose of financing deficits is good.

I believe that the general flow of purchasing power must come out of production itself, production in one industry giving rise to the demand for goods produced by other industries; that, with the proper proportion among the different kinds of industrial activity, the producers themselves will clear the markets of the goods that other producers create, and that all the financial manipulations of government deficit spending designed to create additional purchasing power merely mess up and distort the picture.

You profess to favor the capitalistic system, but you seem to forget that the profit motive is to capitalism what the law of gravitation is to the physical universe. Private enterprise is more concerned about the "hope" of profits than the profits of the hour. This must be so, because a factory is not built for this year but for many years. It is the confidence in this "hope" of profits that is impaired by the expectation of the evils of the inevitable day of settlement.

In conclusion, may I be permitted a personal word. Since I came to the senate in 1933 I have consistently fought what I regarded as waste and extravagance in government expenditures. At no time have I opposed what I believed to be appropriations sufficient and reasonable to provide for the needy and to finance the proper and necessary functions of government. I mention this only because of the inference often suggested and inferred that if one opposes waste and extravagance he is willing for citizens of America to starve and freeze and suffer, and the country to stagnate because of the lack of adequate government appropriations.

150 "Half Pint" Grid Teams Are Already Entered

AUSTIN, Feb. 14 (Sp.)—A year-old infant in state athletic annals, six-man football in Texas has moved to the front of the national picture. R. J. Kidd, athletic director of the University of Texas Interscholastic league, stated here today.

Expecting more entries before September, the league already counts 150 "half-pint" football teams in fifteen or more districts ready for next fall's competition.

In addition to directing six-man football the league annually manages the competition between more than six hundred Texas high schools in orthodox football, basketball, track, and academic contests. Competition in all but football and basketball culminates in the state meet May 5 and 6 on the university campus.

Second to Texas in the number of playing teams is North Dakota, reporting 129 squads.

Designed to meet the needs of small schools, unable to buy equipment or produce enough players for the eleven-man sport, the six-man version was originated by Stephen Epler in Chester, Neb., high schools in 1934. The game immediately took hold and is now played in 42 states, Mr. Kidd reported.

In Texas, it was taken under the wing of the league last year and districts organized for competition among the smaller schools. By the end of last season most of the teams counted gate receipts enough to buy equipment for this year's competition, Mr. Kidd said.

The league director predicts a bright future for football's "half-pint" version, denies that it is less colorful than its orthodox parent.

"It has all the thrills of regular football," he declared, "and it's faster."

He also believed that its rapid growth would benefit the eleven-man game, by placing football itself in a "larger circulation."

Consolidation of State Departments Recommended by Governor O'Daniel

AUSTIN, Feb. 14 (Sp.)—Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel came forward Monday with his long-awaited message recommending consolidation of state government departments in the interest of economy and efficiency.

He proposed that the state board of water engineers, state reclamation engineer, livestock sanitary commission, game, fish and oyster commission, agriculture department and feed inspection service of A & M college be merged in a "department of agriculture and livestock."

"I do not believe that the $2,000,000 which the legislature is appropriating each biennium for these separate agencies is accomplishing all that could be accomplished," the governor said.

Declaring agriculture, livestock raising, fruit growing, conservation and reclamation of land and conservation and re-stocking of game were vital state problems, Governor O'Daniel expressed opinion grouping of state agencies concerned with them would be a great improvement over the present system.

He said he realized some arguments could be given for the maintenance of the various services separately but stated he believed sound business judgment dictated consolidation.

While divisions within the proposed department would deal with the specialized activities, he argued bringing the divisions together would make possible elimination of duplication of effort and waste of expenditure and cooperation to do "the one big job."

The governor would vest control of the department in a board of 31 farmers, fruit growers and stockmen to be elected or appointed by the governor from the 31 senatorial districts. Board members would handle policy matters and choose a commissioner of agriculture. The presidents of Texas A & M college and Texas Tech would be ex-officio members.

"I believe we should take action which will give farmers and stockmen of this state more recognition than they have had in the past in dealing with general affairs of the state," Governor O'Daniel said, "and I believe the development of a strong department, as herein recommended, would serve to accomplish this purpose."

He asserted the law should be so drafted that only actual fruit growers, farmers or livestock raisers would be eligible for membership on the board and specifically said he didn't want men who had "retired and moved to the city."

The game, fish and oyster department was given more space in the message than any other of the departments.

In this connection the governor said:

Texas was overlooking a tremendous opportunity to

A motorist was having the usual trouble of the uninitiated in removing a tire from the rim . . . He pulled and hauled, sweated and swore . . . A passing minister hearing the profanity stopped and said: "My friend, I believe if I were you I wouldn't do that cursing . . . Why don't you just try praying . . . Whenever in trouble, always try prayer first to help you out."

The motorist too worn out to offer any argument or resistance to the suggestion knelt by the tire and rim and prayed for help while the minister stood by . . . When the prayer was finished the tired motorist put his hand on the tire to assist himself to arise and the tire fell off the rim . . . The minister evidently as surprised as the motorist exclaimed: "Well, I'll be damned!"

Well, you can't say we allow news to get old and stale down here before we print it . . . Because we got the Walker Bible class program a day ahead . . . we staged it for last night when they assure us it is to be tonight . . . At any rate we were on time . . . and we secured an invita-
