A negro giving his name as George Brown and his residence as Lubbock was named in charges of chicken theft filed in justice court here today by Chief of Police Milton Perdue after the negro's capture yesterday by O. Gustafson, police officer, who chased the man through a water-filled creek and then fired two shots at him to halt him.

Have You Entered Your Baby in the "Baby Parade?"

If you haven't entered your baby in the Big Baby Parade, sponsored by the Cisco Daily Press and cooperating merchants, do so at once, in order that the little fellow may have an even start.

Another group of pictures of babies in the contest will be published in Sunday's edition of the Cisco Daily Press.

Several new entries were received this morning, despite the cold weather and the ice, some of them from Eastland. One mother telephoned the Daily Press from Eastland, notifying she was entering her baby. Others mailed their entry blanks.

The Parade is gaining momentum every day. Interest is mounting at a rate which assures it of being one of the most interesting events that has ever taken place in this section.

Everybody loves a baby. And the Baby Parade is a wonderful opportunity to pay tribute to the little tots.

The most striking fact about the Baby Parade is the fine looking babies that are entered. This section of Texas certainly yields nothing to any other country in the quality of its babies. It would be mighty hard to choose a winner on looks alone.

AREA MEETING TO BRING 250 MEMBERS HERE

Cisco High School Girls to Be Hostesses to Event

Between 200 and 250 high school homemaking department students and their instructors from an area of seven counties embracing 25 schools, will be here tomorrow for the initial convention of the eastern district of Area Two of the newly organized Future Homemakers clubs. The convention, for which Miss Billie Bishop and her homemaking classes will be hosts, will begin at the high school at 9 a. m. with registration.

The morning program will include a general meeting, a business meeting with Miss Gladys McGee of Breckenridge, district club president, presiding, a skit by the Eastland Future Homemakers club entitled "Model Club Procedure" and singing, directed by Miss Vernelle Stimson, teacher of public school music in the Cisco schools. Stress is laid on group singing, since group singing will play an important part in contests at the state rally.

The general meeting will begin at 9:30 and conclude at 10:30 with Principal O. L. Stamey of Cisco high school welcoming the visitors, and Miss McGee responding. There will be singing and other features, including the skit by the Eastland girls.

Supt. R. N. Cluck will speak at the general meeting in the morning on the importance of the homemaking program in fitting the girls for practical everyday life.

The girls of the Cisco club, assisted by the First Industrial Arts club, will serve a luncheon in the homemaking department parlors at noon. In the afternoon there will be future meetings, with a general program and separate meetings of homemaking teachers and girls, each conducting their programs independently.

During the general meeting there will be group singing, with Miss Stimson directing, assisted by members of the Cisco choral club and the Lobo band.

The program will conclude with a tea at the home of Mrs. Sam Kimmel where the homemaking department girls will be hostesses, assisted by members of the First Industrial Arts club. Mrs. O. L. Stamey and Mrs. W. W. Wallace will pour.

Important Board Meeting Called

An important conference for board members and other interested members of the First Christian church has been called for 8:45 Sunday morning in the men's room of the church. The Rev. William T. Pearcy of Indianapolis, Ind., treasurer of the board of church extension, will be here for the conference, it was announced. The Rev. Mr. Pearcy will also preach at the morning church hour, 10:30 o'clock.

Cisco Merchants Will Continue "Dollar Day"

Cisco merchants will continue their dollar day bargains next week. Most all participants were pleased with the response to the first dollar day publicized last Monday for Wednesday selling. Some merchants sold all the items they advertised, they report. One store reported it had the best day of general selling it has experienced in several weeks. Some few said their response was not so good, but all that have been contacted reported that they believed better results would accrue after the idea had gotten over a little stronger and the event had become fixed in people's minds.

Some few stated that Wednesday was a bad day to get people to town, but that fact was back of the move. Cisco has become too much of a Saturday town, and it was the belief of merchants that if people could be brought to town in the middle of the week, more buying could be promoted.

All merchants are urged to prepare their copy Saturday morning so that it may be in the office in time for insertion in Monday's paper.

Deputy Collector to Aid Citizens Here

Joe Sims, deputy collector with the internal revenue service of the treasury department, will be at the First National bank in Cisco on March 1 from 8:30 a. m. to 4 p. m. to give assistance to any who desire it in connection with the preparation of income tax returns. President Alex Spears of the bank announced today. This will be the only visit that a member of the department will be able to pay Cisco to give this service prior to filing date, it was explained, and those desiring the assistance were asked to take note of the date.

WHITLAND, Wales, Feb. 17 (AP)—January sitting of Whitland police court had to be abandoned for lack of magistrates after five were unable to appear for varying reasons.

Ass't Scoutmaster For Troop 49 Named

Marion Smith, teacher of science in the Cisco high school, has been named assistant scoutmaster of Troop No. 49, sponsored by the First Baptist church. It was announced today. Mr. Smith has accepted. Scoutmaster is John Smith.

Troop No. 49 was honored at special services at the church last Sunday evening, and the pastor, the Rev. Judson Prince, expressed himself as well pleased with the large number of young people who attended.

The Chanters to Sing Here Sunday

The Chanters, famous choral organization of McMurry college, Abilene, will sing at the First Methodist church Sunday evening, the service sponsored by the young people of the church, it was announced. The Rev. Joe L. Patterson, pastor of the church, will preach.

House Group Studies Cotton Remedy

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 17 (AP)—A house agriculture subcommittee began work Thursday on a program to reduce the nation's 14,500,000 bales of surplus loan cotton to a normal level without disturbing the present production control system.

Representative Fulmer (D-SC), chairman of the subcommittee, said the discussion revolved around a proposal to impound 10,000,000 bales for use for five specific purposes over a three-year period.

The 4,500,000 bales left would represent a "normal surplus," he added.

TEMPERATURE FALLS TO 27 THIS MORNING

Traffic Restricted as Ice Sheet Covers Streets

Rising temperatures and fair skies were promised west Texas for Saturday by the weatherman after one of the worst cold waves of the winter had descended upon the section last night coating the world with ice and making the streets and sidewalks dangerously slippery.

Business was at a standstill as the ice coating made travel on the highways or walking hazardous.

The temperature, however, did not fall as low as it has in previous cold waves. The Cisco Gas corporation recording thermometer registered a low of only 27 degrees at 8 o'clock this morning while at noon a tendency to rise was evidenced. Then the reading stood at 28 degrees.

The norther, moist with rain, struck about midnight last night. From 62 degrees at 5:30 p. m. yesterday the thermometer fell to 46 at 7 p. m. and 33 at midnight.

The cold interrupted plans for a junior chamber of commerce tour of this section to advertise the Eastland County Livestock show and rodeo next week. Plans had been made for the trip to start at 12:30 today noon, the Lobo band to play in various towns and communities to be visited.

District VFW Convention Here Sunday

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars posts of District Eight, headed by District Commander Jack Nabors of San Angelo and members of post auxiliaries led by President Mrs. Loraine Young, also of San Angelo, will gather in Cisco Sunday for a convention.

There will be a religious service at the First Methodist church at 11 a. m. with the Rev. Frank Turner, former Cisco pastor and president of McMurry college of Abilene, preaching. The veterans and auxiliary members will gather at the Legion hut at 9:45 a. m. and go in a body to the church.

In the evening there will be business sessions of the VFW and auxiliary.

Mrs. Irene Dodds of Dallas, state auxiliary president, was expected to be present.

TO BURKETT SHOW

T. G. Caudle, teacher of vocational agriculture in Cisco high school, took members of the Cisco FFA livestock judging team to Burkett Thursday for the Burkett Livestock show, which he judged. Boys who went were Gail Jones, J. V. Heyser, Jr., Carl Graves, Warren Hall and Elmer Robinson.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

If ye keep my commandments ye shall abide in my love. These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full.—John 15: 10, 11.

Life, with all its joys and sorrows,
And hope and fear,
Is just our chance of the prize of learning love—
How love might be, both here and there.

We Hope Judge Hunter Is Confirmed

APPOINTMENT of Judge J. C. Hunter of Abilene as chairman of the state highway commission is greeted with pleasure by Cisco business men acquainted with the efficient and broad-minded west Texan. Judge Hunter, for two terms president of the West Central Texas Oil and Gas association, demonstrated an ability which marked him for promotion in the service of his fellow oil operators and distinguished him as a sound, practical and able administrator and leader and a man who knows how to get along with people and accomplish the most in cooperative action. Judge Hunter would make the state highway commission one of the best if not the best member it has ever had. He would bring to the office a thorough-going mind, a practical ability and conscientious concern for a job well done. The only way in which ability can be proved is in trial, and the successful manner in which Judge Hunter not only has conducted his own business, but has discharged the obligations of such a "thank you" job as that of president of an oil and gas association, marks him as timber for the post to which Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel has named him.

THE furor raised by the east Texas senators over the appointment of a west Texan has its merits, of course. West Texans would do the same thing if in their boots. But if fitness and merit are primary considerations in the appointment of a man to a public post in Texas then Judge Hunter is eminently qualified. He will have the interest of his state at heart. He will work earnestly in that interest and study the job with a conscientious thoroughness that will produce the best in plan and achievement. We earnestly hope that Judge Hunter will be approved as chairman of the Texas Highway commission.

HE would be a worthy successor to a fellow townsman, Judge W. R. Ely, who distinguished himself and the commission in his period of service thereon.

Jesse James as portrayed by Hollywood is merely an errant youth but in the light of some alleged goings on in New York federal court where a judge is said to have borrowed $500,000 from litigants, Jesse was practically a Sunday school teacher.

Konrad Henlein asks "where can we find another Hitler?" and the silence is truly wonderful.

Roosevelt and God were most popular in a recent poll of New York school children. The third winner, spinach, indicates the kids were prodded, not polled.

To the three fundamentals of French patriotism, fraternity, equality and liberty, may be added a pair of junior partners, Curtiss-Wright.

A recent birthday in Doorn prompts the thought that the day may come when Hitler will be only an anniversary.

While there may be many things wrong with the Munich pact it must be remembered that nobody is in the trenches as a result of it.

As Jimmy Hines might say, "Judge Nott that ye be nott judged."

"What Is a Town?" Pertinently Asks Cisco Chamber of Commerce Secretary

By BOB TAYLOR

We say or hear it said that a town is dead, or that its progress is arrested by a period of inactivity wherein its trade recedes and its monetary evaluation decreases. When we say a "town," just what, exactly, do we mean? What is a town? Is it a group of buildings separated by streets, which are traversed by automobiles? That is in part what a city looks like. Closer observation reveals that the buildings, streets and automobiles are inhabited by what H. G. Wells truly calls "the people." In fact, since the people built these buildings, paved these streets and bought these automobiles, and are directly responsible for the whole setup, we can conclude that a town is not a town at all, but the people which populate it. And also may we conclude that since people are people, we may say that a town is a composite of the mental attitudes and relations of its people. Hence in case someone were to hint that Cisco were in any degree dead they certainly would mean not the town, but "we, the people."

The time-worn comparison of the athletic team may best be drawn. Any town is as strong as its weakest member. So this old world is still run on a strictly personalized basis, whether it seems mechanized to the nth degree or not. A team is its members. If its members fail to study new rulings, use the same old plays time after time, and turn their backs on all new methods of subduing the opponent, then they are likely to slide to the cellar. Likewise, any town.

The most distressing angle in the sporting world, however, is the situation of a good-looking team with a world of good material, and the makings of a champion club, trampled by weaker teams because of the lack of that indefinable spark of teamwork, cooperation and good sportsmanship.

A little research proves that Cisco has all the material necessary for progress. Every citizen is familiar with the obvious assets of their town, and probably wonders why something is not done about it. The effective buying income of Eastland county is millions in excess of that of most surrounding counties. The evaluation of its farm and livestock products greatly exceeds many of its neighbors. Cisco's bank and postal deposits look down on those

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

BY BRUCE CATTON
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON—By day the national capital is exciting enough. By night it is nothing less than magical.

When the sun goes down they turn on the floodlights. Then the Capitol dome glows over the dusk, white and shining, the Washington monument rises like a pillar of fire by night; and a marble Abraham Lincoln sits in his great chair in the Lincoln Memorial and through some trick of the lighting seems to look out with a brooding tenderness at these two symbols of his country.

These three things... Capitol, monument and memorial... somehow sum up the best that Washington means.

The best place to go to see them is the open space in front of the Lincoln Memorial. To the east the monument, a tall, unadorned shaft which is a constant reminder of the man and the spirit that brought the country to birth. Beyond it the Capitol. All you can see of it is the dome, made small by distance, gleaming as white and insubstantial as the dome of some city imagined but never seen.

How in ordinary times, it is easy enough—all too easy, perhaps—to remember your country's imperfections down here in Washington. Under that gleaming dome of the Capitol, for instance, there sits a cross-section of the electorate; men who often enough make mistakes, and think of their own fortunes instead of their country's, and share in all of the faults common to all the rest of us.

But by night, when the lights are on, you don't think of that.

For if you see the reality by daylight, at night you see the ideal. And in the long run the ideal is always more important than the reality. What America always counts to be, often honestly tries

Tick Eradication Activities in 61 Counties

The livestock sanitary commission of Texas in conjunction with the bureau of animal industry conducted activities for the prevention and eradication of the fever carrying tick in 61 counties in Texas for the month of January.

Six whole and parts of three other counties are engaged in systematic tick eradication work.

Twenty-three whole and parts of one county that are released from both federal and state quarantine still contains a small number of quarantine herds that are being systematically treated.

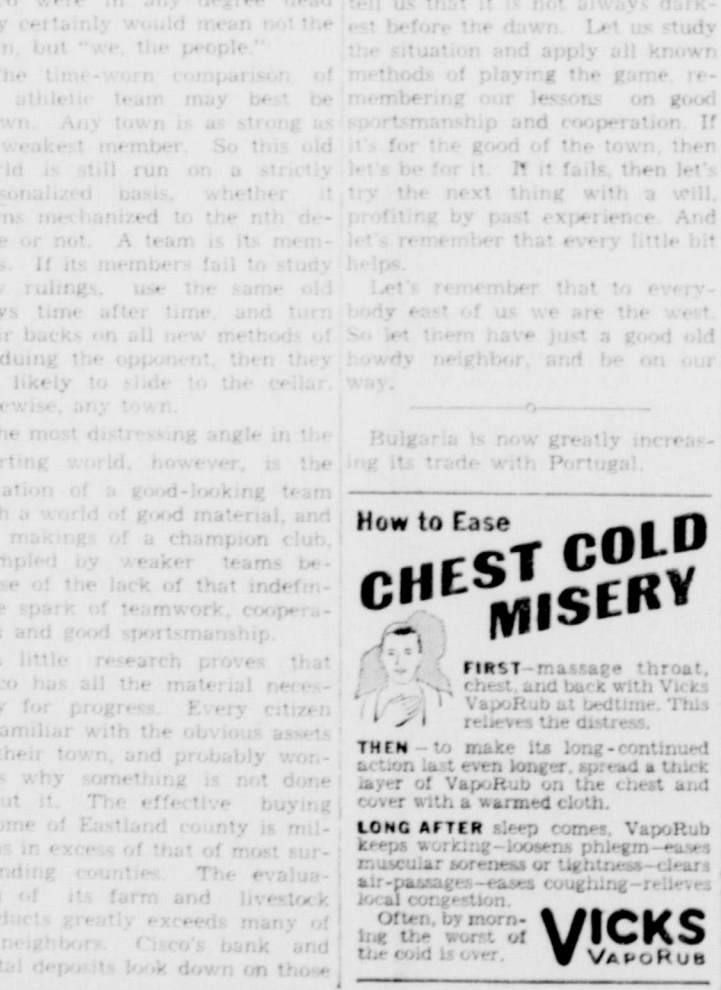

The remaining 29 counties and parts of two are also released from quarantine but are counties in which inspections or dippings or both are done in accordance with state or federal requirements.

Forty thousand and sixty-five herds and 638,909 cattle, horses, mules, jacks and jennets were dipped or inspected.

Eight herds and 19 livestock were upon inspection found to be infested with the fever tick.

One thousand, five hundred and sixty-seven herds and 21,635 livestock are being held for further systematic treatment.

Everybody frozen up this morning including the cars and windshields . . . the wise are putting on defrosters and otherwise taking safety measures . . . Plenty of danger today if you drive a car without plenty of vision . . . saw a man who is getting good wages and who has to be out all day hesitate to buy a 50-cent defroster today . . . He is braver than we . . . one little crash could do much damage . . .

Saw a car dash in front of another this morning . . . Couldn't see the other car . . . as good luck would have it good brakes on the other car saved a crash . . . Jack Henseler, the man who is responsible for "baby steps," came all the way down here from Chicago, to take a little fall or injure his foot on the slippery ice . . . He said we were not supposed to have this kind of weather down south in Texas, where those of the north thought palm trees waved and the lazy sunshine breathed only soft romance and enchantment . . . He'll probably send back for his winter clothes . . .

Merchants busy receiving spring goods and customers shivering as they look at the new patterns . . . and spring styles are very ornate and the trend is to be very gay . . . even as to men's wear . . . Makes us laugh as we try to vision some of our more sedate men all dressed out in red, orange, or some of the bright shades of blue for their trousers . . . and a coat of some dashing combination blend . . .

STAMP NEWS

CONTROVERSY rages over 40 "error" sheets in the issue of the 6-cent annual sheets, found by a buyer and promptly cancelled and released at a price ranging to $2500 for a perforator horizontally. Now, because prices have rocketed, the Post Office is preparing an entire printing of bi-colored sheet imperforate horizontally. Such a move, employed by Canada under similar conditions, would present monopoly and speculation on these values.

The California group in litigation to the Post Office points out that such imperforate sheets at this time would clear the way of any suspicion of error and safeguard the average collector at the same time.

Plans for the new U. S. of famous Americans are to be approved, and suggestions to flood the Post Office department. One thing certain, the issues will be set to lower values.

Names already suggested include Emerson, Whitier, Twain, representing Irving port; Charles Wilson Peck; Bert Stuart and John Sage; Key, John Philip Sousa and Augustus Saint Gaudens. Daniel Chester French, and Horace Mann, and Ed. Eli Whitney, inventor of Henry, statesman; Clara B. Burroughs, naturalist; Josef dams, sociologist; Dr. C. Long, first to use anesthetic surgery, and James B. Eads, engineers.

There will be no military or persons previously upon stamps in the series. Not living persons be honored. (Copyright, 1939, NEA Service, Inc.)

SERIAL STORY

WOMEN WANT BEAUTY!

BY LOUISE HOLMES
COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

SUSIE LAMBERT—She served waffles and dreamed of being beautiful.
DICK TREMAINE—He liked Susie's waffles but he couldn't see Susie.
JEFF BOWMAN—His chief concern was to make Susie as beautiful as she wanted to be.

Yesterday, The Bowmans entertained Susie, then Jeff leaves her at a luxurious hotel, Susie is frightened at its well-bred elegance.

CHAPTER X CHAPTER XI

Alone in her room at last, Susie breathed easier and looked about with unbelieving eyes. John Harker had done well by his protégé. Thick carpet, soft lights, taffeta hangings, deep chairs, plump smooth bed. Susie wandered about, touching lamp shades, bed spread, and drapes with beautifully loving fingers. Finding a cord beside the drapes, she swished them back and forth delightedly. She tried all the chairs, turned the lamps off and on, examined the stationery in the desk and raised the French telephone to her lips. Doing so, a delicious warmth spread through her veins.

The dazzling bathroom was equally delightful, although Susie's rapture was somewhat dimmed by her inability to avoid the mirrors. She undressed and bathed in the shining tub, experimenting with the shower, adoring the scented, cellophane-wrapped soap.

Finally, in her skimpy night-dress, she slid awkwardly between lined sheets. Reaching up to switch off the light she smiled blissfully. It was a smile that some day would be called enigmatic, provocative, but Susie had no way of knowing that. She only knew that she was happy, that Jeff was to call for her in the morning and, with Jeff, she was not afraid of the great adventure.

She awoke early, startled for a moment, then remembering. Her eyes moved, taking in the details of luxury, her soul absorbing them. Somehow she had never been able to reach Dick in her shabby room, he had been remote as the stars. With taffeta curtains ballooning in the morning breezes, with golden sunshine spattering the carpet, she was part of his world, the world of ease and beauty.

She bathed again, slowly, purring, brushed her unruly hair and wadded the ends into a tight knot on her neck. Why she had let it grow was a question. Just one of those vague yearnings to look like the smooth little college girls. As if she ever could. Now she fervently wished for a hair-cut. Her hair would have been neat at least.

Dressed in her horrible clothes, since last night she had come to appreciate how horrible they were, she followed Jeff's suggestion and had breakfast sent to her room. He had been wrong about dinner being late. She consumed oatmeal with thick cream, bacon, eggs, muffins with marmalade, two doughnuts and three cups of coffee.

Quite satisfied, she left a quarter on the tray and went to the throne-like chair in the lobby. A clock on the wall told her she had an hour to wait. She sat quietly. No one noticed her except a porter who obviously wanted to dust the throne.

Meanwhile Jeff and his mother discussed her at breakfast. "She's like a fat cocoon, Jeff," Edna said. "We don't know what kind of butterfly may come forth."

"Butterfly—ye gods," Jeff hooted. "If she's a butterfly I'm Peter Pan sitting on a rose petal." "I'm not so sure," his mother went on, buttering his toast thick the way he liked it. "First she'll have to get thin."

"Not too thin," Jeff said, crunching his toast. "I hate 'em waspish."

"I hadn't gathered that Susie is being made over to suit you," Edna put in dryly. "I've an idea she may have a good figure, her flesh is distributed evenly."

"Pretty hilly, if you ask me." "I didn't ask you. Her eyes are nice, what you can see of them, and she has lovely teeth. Just what they'll do with that nose I can't imagine. Maybe if she didn't have so much face—"

Jeff got up. "Thank goodness it isn't up to you and me to find her hidden beauty. I'd throw up my hands right now." He kissed his mother, held his smoothly shaven cheek against hers for an instant, then grabbed his crumpled hat, Edna sometimes wished Jeff was a little less casual about his clothes. He was such a darling—

"Be a good girl while I'm gone," he said, the door closing behind him.

At precisely 8:30 he bounded into the lobby and found his charge patiently waiting. Pulling a chair beside the "throne," he showed her the morning paper. Already she was being featured by Harker's. In the center of the ad was the announcement that Susie had come to town. Susie was not pretty, but Harker's intended making her so. She was the winner of their recent contest.

They promised a picture of Susie on the following morning and urged all women, not entirely satisfied with their appearance—and who was?—to follow the methods employed by experts in the beautification of Susie. Her progress, what she did and how, was to be printed daily for their benefit.

Reading the announcement, Susie gasped. "Gracious—oh, my gracious." "Where Susie leads—" He got no farther, halted by her snapping eyes.

"I won't have my picture in the paper for everyone to laugh at," she flared. "I won't be a-a guinea pig." "Can't take it, eh?" Jeff had been afraid of this. If a girl were sensitive at all she might not feel that the result justified the exploitation. Not knowing what else to do, Jeff argued with her a little.

Tears blurred the spark in Susie's eyes. "I didn't know it would be like this. If a girl were sensitive at all she might not feel that the result justified the exploitation. Not knowing what else to do, Jeff argued with her a little.

"Look, Susie," he began persuasively, "you can't get everything in this world without giving up something you cherish. Try to look at it this way. The Chief received 5000 letters from girls who wanted to be beautiful. Out of 5000 he chose you. I know Mr. Harker, he won't put you up to ridicule. I've helped with the copy, it's dignified and handled—well, delicately."

Susie shook her head violently. "I won't do it," she said emphatically. "Mr. Harker can experiment on someone else."

Jeff sighed. Girls were all alike temperamental as the very devil, even the fat, homely ones. He approached from another angle. "I'll lose my job, Susie," he said. "I was sent to get you and I'll lose my job if I fail. Edna will feel badly. She's proud of my job, she thinks I'll get somewhere."

It was a master stroke. Susie stopped shaking her head. Jeff and Edna were her friends. She couldn't let her friends down.

Struggling from the depths of the chair she said, "All right, I'll go. I guess Mr. Harker won't fire you because I turn down his publicity stunt."

In the car Jeff tried argument. "Reason it out, Susie. Men in business don't go around spending money on strange girls just because they've got kind hearts. Of course this is publicity stunt—"

"And I'm the fat goat," she countered, indignantly, frowning brows fairly bristling.

"But what did you expect?" Jeff went on in exasperation. "I don't know," Susie said defiantly. "I was a fool, that's all. I guess I thought I'd walk out into Mr. Harker's office and he'd wave a wand over me and I'd walk out the original glamour girl." She was angry and bewildered.

"That's crazy." "I know it." She lapsed into silence.

Six Awards to Be Offered High School Students

AUSTIN, Feb. 17.—Scholarship endowment at the University of Texas took a step upward today with the announcement that six awards, each of $750, will be made this spring for the first time to Texas high school graduates.

These stipends, available through bequests of the late Will C. Hogg of Houston, university ex-student and one of the institution's greatest benefactors, will be open to Texas students for senior or graduate study at the university.

The grants will allow six boys and girls to go through a year of university training in comparative financial comfort.

Records compiled here, however, show that the university still lags behind 25 other state-supported colleges in scholarship endowment. Considerably ahead of the university's annual $10,581 in awards, Louisiana State grants $76,000, the University of Virginia $102,000, it was shown.

Applications are now being received by university authorities for the Hogg awards, each backed by an endowment of $20,000. They include the James Leckhart Autry scholarship in law; the Joseph S. Cullinan and the Walter B. Sharp scholarship, both in petroleum geology or in field geology; the Arthur Lefevre, Sr. scholarship in pure or applied mathematics; the Estelle B. Sharp scholarship and the Miss Ina Hogg scholarship, both in home economics.
