COUNTY VOTES "DRY" BY NARROW MARGIN

Awards Announced in Most Successful Stock Show

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

It will be admitted that the Eastland County Livestock show which closed here yesterday afternoon was from every important angle a distinct success. From the angle of the number and variety of exhibits, it set a record over 10 or 12 years. From the angle of the crowds it was also a success. From the angle of the weather it was not so successful. But it is precisely because of this factor that the show was noteworthy. High and disagreeable wind with a minor dust storm failed to detract from the exhibits. The more credit is due to Mr. Cattle and his associates in the management of the show, and the more emphasis that the results place on the demand for just such an event.

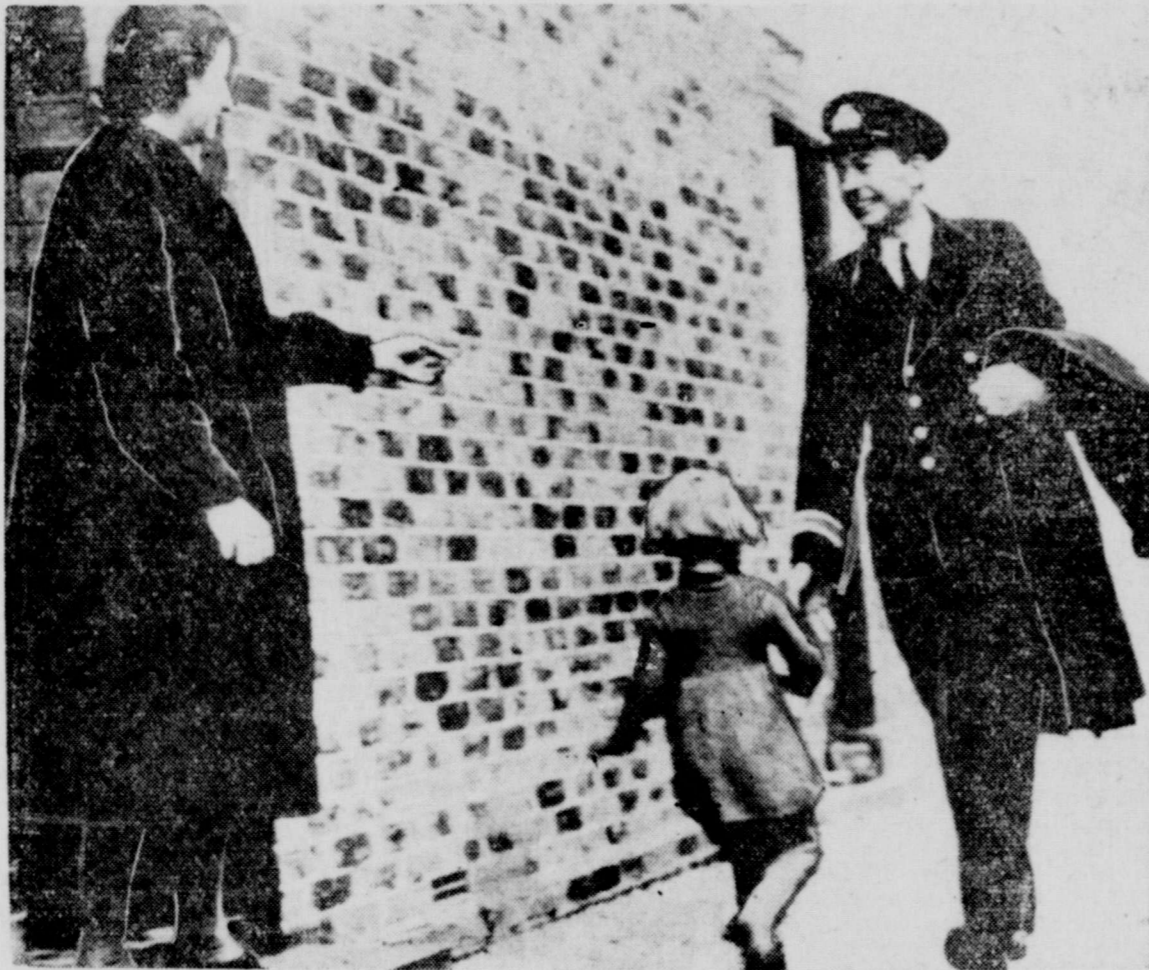

This column does not recall a single year in which the show has been blessed by the weatherman. In every case rain, cold or windstorms have interfered with its conduct. So persistent has been his record that we have come to think of such weather as the common complement of the event, just as the annual Easter spell is supposed to usher in the spring.

To survive such persistent non-cooperation from the weatherman is evidence of the need of the show. The county livestock industry, with special reference to the FFA boys and 4-H club boys, requires it. It provides a healthful arena for competitive showing of the stock and a forum of a sort where standards and values may be given proper emphasis. Since the emphasis has been placed on boys' exhibits, the show has gained more and more authority. It is destined to increase in this authority. In time auctions for the sale of such entries as their owners wish to sell will be established in connection. Such sales will increase the value and appeal of the event and multiply the number of exhibits as well as the interest of commercial stockmen in the show. A market is essential to values. The judgment of human demand as expressed through such sales will attach more authority.

But if the weather has been unfavorable, the show and its directors are entitled to greater credit for having overcome a more serious handicap. That has been the lack of accommodations for the exhibits. The show has been nomadic in the sense that it has had no home of its own. If, under these adverse circumstances, it has achieved success it is reasonable to assume that, with proper barns and accommodations, it will become a major spring livestock event. By all

BEGIN NOW TO CLEAN CITY, IS APPEAL

"We cannot begin too early to look to the cleanliness of the town if we expect to be free of flies and mosquitoes," says Dr. W. P. Lee, city health officer, in a statement Saturday. "No breeding places should be allowed. Cans should not be thrown out without first making sure they will not hold water. "Rubbish containing manure should not be burned, all such should be hauled away. "Lots where animals are kept should be cleaned daily and a small amount of lime should be sprinkled over the piled manure. "Do not mix wet and dry garbage. Much of the dry garbage can be burned. Wet garbage must be placed in covered containers and put where it can be gathered by the wagon. "If such precautions are not taken, we will be fighting flies and mosquitoes all spring and summer. Will you not do your part in this necessary work of keeping clean? What affects one affects all, and one person's carelessness can cause discomfort and perhaps danger to whole neighborhoods. Mr. Clements is beginning early to have the streets and alleys cleaned. Your cooperation is earnestly requested."

March Brings Snow and Dust From Rockies

PUEBLO, Colo., March 2 (AP)—March roared into the Rocky mountain states with snowstorms and unseasonable dust storms, and this south central Colorado city, caught between the two lashed by a destructive windstorm. A snowstorm that piled four inches of snow in Denver in five hours extended southward beyond Colorado Springs, finally halting traffic on the Colorado Springs-Denver highway Friday night. The unexpected "dusters" swirled over much of New Mexico and southeastern Colorado, and extended to the edge of the mountains west of Pueblo. As in Montana and Wyoming, temperatures remained moderate in Colorado and New Mexico. Attempting to travel the Canon City-Pueblo highway with visibility reduced to two feet, two trucks collided and one, carrying a heavy load of coal, overturned. At least eight automobiles bumped those ahead in stopping at the accident scene. Clayton, N. M., was crowded with visitors forced to stop there overnight by a snowstorm blocking Highway 87. Some of the 500 unexpected visitors found lodgings in private homes.

NAZI MONROE DOCTRINE IS PEACE PRICE

BERLIN, March 2 (AP)—Germany will fight until Britain and France recognize a "German Monroe doctrine for central Europe" and restore her war-lost colonies. This was declared by sources who know Adolf Hitler's mind as the chancellor Saturday to President Roosevelt's emissary, Sumner Welles. Another point in the message given by the fuhrer to the American undersecretary of state in their 94-minute conference in the chancellery was understood to be that England must renounce "her stranglehold control" of the strategic lands of the world's raw materials. Germany's price of peace, according to this version of Hitler's declaration, includes permanent German hegemony—political domination—over Bohemia-Moravia, Slovakia, Poland and Hungary, making the reich proper a solid bloc of about 130,000,000 population. Guarantees Wanted Also it was said, he wanted guarantees that Britain and France would not stir up the Balkans or Scandinavia. Hitler was said to have argued further that disarmament must begin by England's relinquishing military control of Gibraltar, the Suez canal and other strategic

U. S. SUB MAY HAVE EXCITED BRITISH SHIP

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, March 2 (AP)—A peaceable United States submarine, mistaken for a German U-boat, may have caused the 2,390-ton British steamer Southgate to believe she was being attacked in the Atlantic, United States army officers suggested Saturday.

Two United States submarines were in the vicinity given for the Southgate when she wirelessed Friday that a U-boat was attacking her, members of the general staff in charge of operations in the Caribbean defense area, disclosed.

Besides three destroyers and a coast guard cutter already hurrying to her position, 130 miles northeast of San Juan, Lieut. Comm. Stephen B. Cook, commanding the United States air patrol squadron No. 51, sent four planes to join the search. The two submarines are part of a flotilla of five which had been

MAJORITY OF 100 VOTES IS ESTIMATED

Heavy "Wet" Lead Is Overcome by South County Balloting

Overcoming a long lead given the "wets" by voters in Cisco, Eastland and Ranger an avalanche of "dry" votes rolled in from the southern communities of Eastland county last night to give the "drys" a narrow victory in the most closely contested prohibition election ever held in this county on the basis of incomplete and unofficial returns to the Cisco Daily Press. With Alameda, Okra, Nimrod, Dothan, Mangum, Pleasant Hill and Tudor unreported, the "drys" had a majority of 17 against legalizing the sale of beer. These boxes have voted predominantly dry in all prohibition elections in the past and a victory for the "drys" was conceded on the basis of the returns available. Cisco gave the "wets" their biggest majority, rolling up a vote of 824 for legalization to 480 against, a majority of 344, the largest polled in a prohibition election in the county in many years. Eastland gave beer advocates a majority of 238 and Ranger a majority of 216. The dry strongholds were Carbon, Rising Star and Gorman where unusually heavy votes were sufficient, with support from numerous small dry boxes, to overcome the heavy wet lead in the three larger communities and give the anti-beer element a narrow margin of votes. Carbon Dry Stronghold Carbon turned in the astonishing figure of 265 against 36 for legalization. Rising Star voted 258 against 73 for, considerably behind Carbon in percentage of potential vote cast. Gorman voted 363 against 151 for. In west Cisco box, which gave the heaviest majority of any for legalization the vote was 605 for and 350 against. In east Cisco the vote was 219 for legalization and 130 against. Unofficial returns by boxes available last night were:

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

If thine heart be wise, my heart shall rejoice; yea, my reins shall rejoice when thy lips speak right things.—Prov. xxiii, 15, 16.

Then give to the world the best you have, And the best will come back to you; Give love, and love to your heart will flow, A strength in your utmost needs; Have faith and a score of hearts will show Their faith in your word and deed.

Religion in its true sense is the most joyous thing the human soul can know; and when the real religion is realized we will find that it will be an agent of peace, joy, and of happiness.—R. W. Trine.

The Fire Speeder Menace

DESPITE repeated appeals and warnings the practice of rushing after fires continues to be observed in Cisco with alarming prospects of death or injury, not to say interference with efforts to save Cisco property, every time the incident occurs. Why it is necessary for certain drivers to rush with the fire-trucks is hard to understand. There is practically nothing that can be accomplished. If these curiosity drivers perform some needful function in connection with the efforts of the fire department to extinguish the blaze, it is logical to conclude that the organization or conduct of the department is lacking. It would indeed be a sorry state of things to leave the community protection against fires to the haphazard presence or contributions of bystanders. Such, of course, is not the case. The city's fire department is well able to handle the emergencies and it has no need of bystander assistance. On the contrary the department can work to a great deal more advantage without this gratuitous and dubious assistance.

THE greatest menace, however, does not occur at the scene of the fire, it occurs on the way to that scene. It exists in the danger to life and limb even among the racing curious who impede or follow the course of the fire trucks to the site. The Press hopes that it will not be necessary to pay with a life or serious injury to some citizen for the necessary public precaution.

THE fire and police departments, however, are taking timely steps to deal with the problem, according to an announcement by Comm'r W. J. Leach, who heads these departments. Mr. Leach has called attention to the municipal regulations which give control to the dangerous practices. In addition speeding laws and state statutes further arm the community against these menaces. At the fire, city ordinance provides for regulation of crowds as follows:

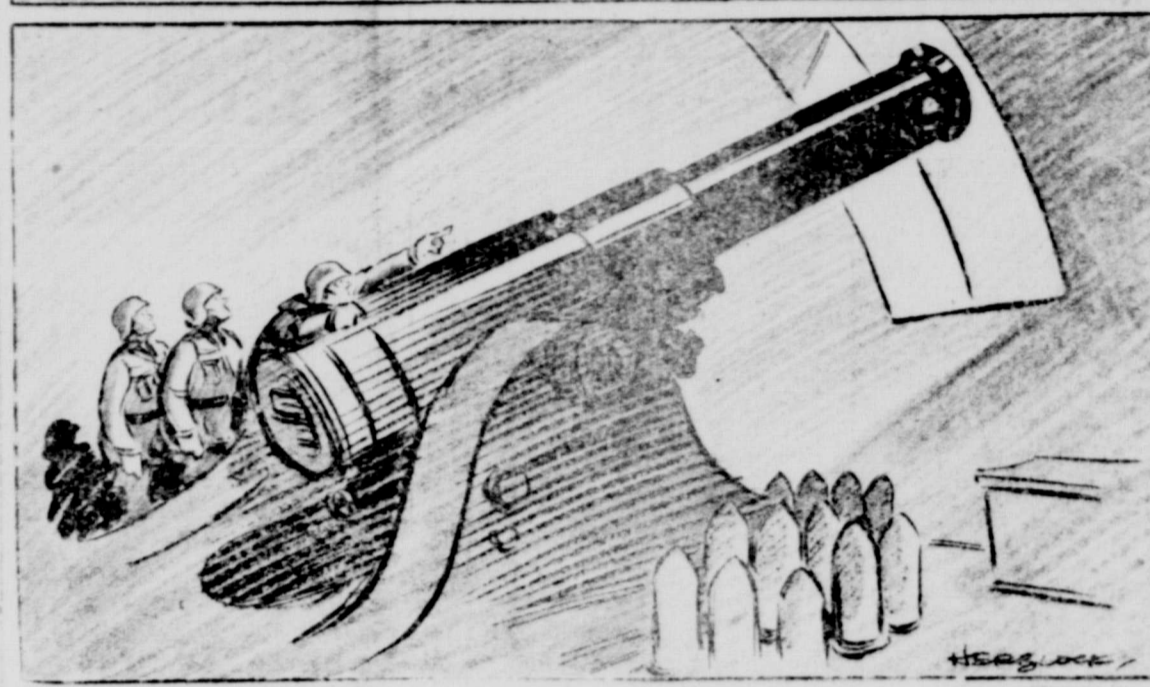

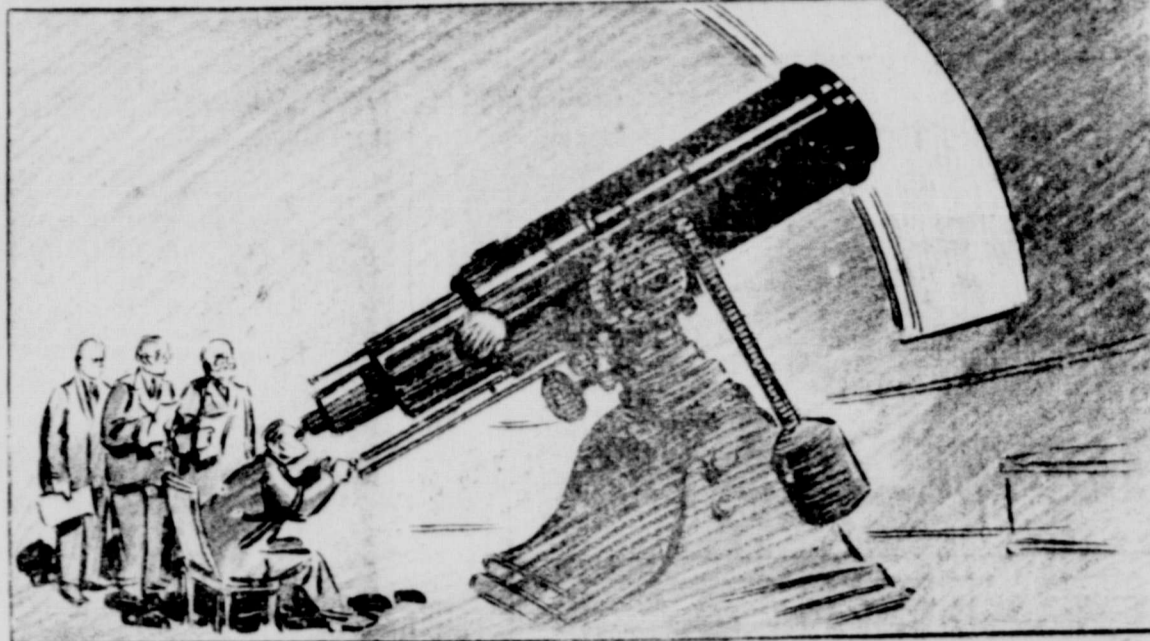

WHEN a fire occurs, the chief, or, in his absence, the assistant chief, shall establish lines at reasonable distances from the fire and shall appoint guards at suitable places, whose duty it shall be, in connection with the fire police, to see that no person, other than members of the fire department, pass within the lines so established. During a fire, it shall be unlawful for any person to pass within such lines without permission of the chief; and any person so doing shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof, shall be fined in any sum not less than one dollar nor more than one hundred dollars; provided this article shall not apply to firemen, fire police, city police nor persons belonging to or interested in the premises so guarded.

ON the way to and from fires, speeding can be controlled, and will be controlled. Mr. Leach warned, under the anti-speeding ordinance which limits vehicles within the city limits to 20 miles per hour. This is a valid ordinance and one that can be invoked not only in cases of speeding to fires but in other cases in which vehicles travel at excessive rates over the streets of the municipality.

STATE laws prohibiting parking at fire plugs and driving over fire hose also may be invoked to deal with the problem.

Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance

Editor's Note: The following is the fifteenth of a series of articles prepared by W. O. King, manager of the Abilene, Texas, Social Security board field office, to be published in this newspaper. The information contained in the articles is educational and for the public in general and for the wage earners in particular. For additional information concerning the federal old-age and survivors insurance program, our readers are requested to contact the Social Security board field office, located at 205 Alexander building.)

He is currently insured, because he worked 6 of the last 12 quarters immediately preceding his death. He is not fully insured because he did not work in covered employment for half the number of quarters between 1936 and the time he died. The only survivors who can receive monthly benefits following the death of a currently insured worker are his widow, if she has dependent children in her care, and the dependent children themselves. These benefits are payable until the children reach 18, or 19 if still in school.

STABILITY
Cisco Daily Press: "The suggestion that the Eastland County Livestock show here put emphasis on sheep and goats has met with considerable interest. It is generally admitted that this is a sheep and goat country. About the only thing it lacks is sheep and goats. These can be secured. Not overnight. But in a program which within a few years would find the county well populated with live stock which would be a worthy and valuable complement to the beef cattle industry, a source of soil conservation and of new income."

Safety Shorts

From Oil Belt Safety Council
"Come on and get in! There's always room for one more!"
You've heard just such an invitation as that, haven't you? Perhaps you've said the same thing yourself as you started to drive to the beach or home from a date. A car should not carry more persons than it is designed for. The Oil Belt Safety Council warns. Too many passengers crowd the driver. An overloaded car handles differently. Overloading was believed to be the cause of a recent accident in which seven occupants of a car were killed. Don't let the same thing happen to you.

It is gratifying to see Cisco and the other oil belt towns seeking to form a more stable income. They have been hard hit by the decline in oil activity, but their citizenship is not the kind to go down without a fight. Back in 1923-27 Cisco, Eastland, Breckenridge and Ranger were as thriving as a circus on payday. Rooms in private homes rented for $45 a month. There were scores of applications for the first business houses to be vacant. Money came and money went—as long as the oil flowed. No one ever figured it would stop, or would start somewhere else. But oil populations are mobile. When the east Texas field was discovered in 1930, oil people in west Texas gradually shifted or were transferred to the scene of the greater activity. Cisco—Eastland—Ranger payrolls slumped. The heyday was over. Now they are rebuilding along

Santa Anna Saddle Reminds of Struggle

AUSTIN, March 2 (Sp.)—The single-stirruped saddle of the legendary General Santa Anna was a grim but highly ornamented reminder of the Texas revolution struggle for March second visitors to Texas Memorial museum here today.

A well-preserved example of fine Mexican leathercraft, the silver-trimmed saddle generally accredited as being custom built for the notorious Mexican general, is over a hundred years old.
Since being put on exhibition at the museum's opening, January, 1939, the exhibit—first received by the museum's history division—has been viewed by more than 50,000 visitors, attendants estimated.
As result of requests by university ex-students gathered at a University of Texas alumni banquet in Boston in 1929, the saddle was donated by a Boston resident, Mrs. Howard W. Brown. Mrs. Brown received the saddle through a relative, one Thomas Wentworth Pierce, who obtained the saddle while constructing early south Texas railroads, museum curators said.

France Remembers Hero of Medicine

ALTHOUGH the current Americans series of stamps marks a departure from U. S. precedent, the custom of honoring private citizens in stamps has long been established in France. Included among the "Heroes of Peace" whose portraits have formed French designs is Jean Charcot, 19th century physician, who presided on the semi-postal above in Jacobs, L. for the benefit of French neurology and for his resy, Jean Salpêtrière, where he established the greatest neurological clinic in modern times. He was an authority on diseases of the brain.
The coat of arms of Liechtenstein is pictured on a new stamp of that country, one of a series of two values. The coats of arms of two counties form the design of the other stamp.

In the Upper Room

OUR lesson, based on the story of the Last Supper in the Upper Room where Jesus was observing the Passover with His disciples, brings us into the closing scenes of our Lord's earthly ministry and His preparation for Calvary.
It is upon this Last Supper and the symbolic eating of the bread and drinking of the wine that the communion service in the Christian Church has been established.
It is fitting—especially in these days when there is such great need of drawing Jews and Christians together in tolerance and in love for one another—that the Last Supper, which founds the Christian service of communion, should have been the Jewish Passover, still observed with such solemnity and devotion by Jews throughout the world.
THE Passover and the service of communion have more in common, however, than this association in the lives of Jesus and His disciples. They are designed to promote the same spirit of faith and gratitude to God for His mercy and salvation. Both emphasize the reality of religious fellowship and the consciousness of a bond of unity in faith, hope, and devotion. They also emphasize that element of sacrifice that has been so essentially associated with religious service and with human welfare. The progress and betterment of man has been possible because of those who have borne heavy burdens and accepted great sacrifices to attain it.
This last Passover of the day of the Master was a period of great sadness, because Jesus had assured the disciples that one of them should betray Him. The shadow of the Crucifixion was very definitely upon His mind and the disciples, who had returned from all that they had done in this world to follow Him, were puzzled and disappointed to find that, instead of setting up an earthly kingdom, He was going to some mysterious fate. Apparently they did not even understand what this fate would be or how, through suffering, the Master was to fulfill His earthly mission.
BUT in the depth of their sorrow, they must have sensed a deeper mystery. They may have wondered, but when Jesus broke the bread and gave it to them, and when He spoke of the wine in the cup as His blood "poured out for the remission of sins," and when He spoke of the time when He would drink with them in His Father's kingdom, although they may not have understood, they must have sensed some world of glory above the tragedy that overshadowed them.
We see these things after the fact. We can enter into the experiences and understand the disciples did not understand. It is this that ought to enrich us the service of communion, the Lord's Supper which repeats and symbolizes in our experience what happened in that Upper Room.

means, an important project in connection with the show should be the securing of a plant capable of housing the exhibits and associated activities each spring.

Another thing: The number of sheep and goat exhibits this year increased to an unexpected extent. In the past these exhibits have been poor. This year, however, they rivaled in number and excellence other departments. There is good reason to believe that through this show it will be possible to develop a regional sheep and goat event of major proportions and of great influence upon the future agricultural economy of this section.

Improvement of German-American relations also was declared to be most desirable, according to this version of Hitler's talk, but to be impossible as long as Washington declines to name an ambassador for the non-vacant post in the Berlin embassy.

An authorized source said that Welles probably would talk later with Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, No. 2 Nazi, and possibly with Paul Joseph Goebbels, the propaganda minister.

Goering returned to the capital Saturday after several weeks on the western front and observing German air activity along the north coast. The time for his meeting with Welles has not been fixed, the informant said, but "it undoubtedly will take place."

Welles was accompanied by the chancellor by Alexander C. Kirk, United States charge d'affaires.

Ciscoan Shows Costume Made 100 Years Ago

Mrs. John Stiles, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Lee Clark, recently wore to the D. A. R. George Washington luncheon at the home of Mrs. Alex Spears, a dress which had been bought by her grandmother, Mrs. William Reid, of Bell county, over 100 years ago.

The dress, bought while Texas was a republic, is made of broad-clothed bombazine, which, at that time, cost approximately fifteen dollars a yard. Tiny jet buttons adorn the front of the blouse.

In an early American costume exhibit at the Texas centennial in Dallas in 1936, the dress won first place. It is owned by Mrs. Emaline Simpson of Dallas, granddaughter of Mrs. Reid. Mrs. Simpson and Mrs. Clark are first cousins.

CAST OF CHARACTERS
ANN BROWN— orphan daughter of a gambler, alone in an unfriendly city.
PAUL HAYDEN—stock room boy with ambition.
STEVE CLAYBOURNE—wealthy playboy.
CLARA BROOKS—dime store counter girl.
IRENE TEMPLE—society debutante.

YESTERDAY: Ann makes it clear to Paul that she has no intention of marrying him, and they agree on a movie date. Later she meets the other roomers in her new home. One of the girls, Florabelle, promises to arrange a date for Ann soon.

CHAPTER X
Clara said, "This is our place, Ann. Come in and start living with me."
Ann followed her into a small living room. Worn carpet, sagging chairs, limp curtains, grimy walls covered with pictures. Evidences of Clara's artistic attempts crowded the room. Artificial flowers, blatantly artificial, sprang from cheap vases and bowls. The pictures were garish and impossible. Little china dogs and cats and elephants littered the tables and window sills. A cot, covered with a pseudo-oriental rug, did duty as a davenport.

Off the living room, was the kitchen, a small cupboard arrangement with doors swung wide. Through a door in another wall, Ann glimpsed a bedroom. In spite of the atrocious color combinations, the place had a homey, pleasant air.
"Isn't it nice?" Clara asked proudly. "The furniture belongs to me. When Ma divorced Pa and married Dave she gave me the stuff. Pa didn't want it because he was marrying Rose and she had swell things."

"It's very nice," Ann agreed, wondering what her little violet plant would think of the riotous atmosphere.
Clara led the way to the bedroom. Ann's quick eye noticed that the bed was a good inch thicker than the one she had left. Clara pulled back a curtain which hung from a shelf. "This is the closet. See—you can have half and two drawers in the dresser. Pretty nice diggin's, don't you think?"
They were interrupted by a quick knock on the door. "It's Sam," Clara exclaimed, "my boy friend—the one I told you about." She opened the door to admit a big, loose-jointed youth who looked most uncomfortable in a necktie and ill-fitting suit.
"Hi, Sport," Clara greeted him. "Come here, Ann, and meet Sam Little. Little—" She laughed. "Isn't that a name for him?"
The young man awkwardly held out his hand and Ann put hers into it. His hand was huge, hard as a table top.
"How do you do," she said.
"To."
Clara bustled into her coat. "We're going to the movies. Make yourself at home, Ann."

"I will."
She watched them as they went down the stairs. She saw Sam kiss Clara at the turn. She stood there a moment, thinking of Clara and Sam? Were they in love? Was that why they had kissed?
Strangely enough, Ann had never been kissed. The reason was quite simple. There had been no opportunity while she traveled from one end of the country to the other with Pete, always under the watchful eye of her mother. And there had been no opportunity since.
She thought of Paul Hayden with a quickening of the pulse. Perhaps he would kiss her some day. But no, he was afraid of girls, afraid that one of them might marry him.
Ann sniffed. He needn't worry about her. She heard an impatient honk and Neddy and Teddy, one a definite repeat of the other, tripped down the stairs.

Ann went back to the bedroom. She put clean newspapers in the dresser drawers and carefully placed her few belongings in neat piles. Clara's jumbled toilet articles had been moved to one side and she set out her jars and boxes, comb and powder puff. She got the wire hangers from her bag and hung up her dresses and coats.
A warm feeling of home enveloped her. The girls in the hall had been friendly. It was nice to know that Clara would come in later. She had a date for the next evening—a date with Paul Hayden. Perhaps life had found her at last.
She placed the silver spoons under her nightdresses and carried the plates and iron to the kitchen. Here disorder reigned. Her fingers itched to get at it and she did a little preparatory straightening. She'd buy shelf paper—only a dime—and a tough little scrub brush—a nickel at Clara's store. "Mind if I come in?" It was Florabelle, still in the orchid draperies, still insolently smoking.

"Mind? I should say not. Sit down." Ann came from the kitchen and dropped to a chair, curling one foot under her.
"God, I'm sleepy," Florabelle groaned, throwing herself among the rainbow hued cushions on the cot, stretching her long, lovely body. "Didn't get in until 4 this morning."
"Gracious—I'm afraid I couldn't work if I stayed out so late."
"It's all in getting used to it. I figure I won't always be young and I may as well make hay while the beauty lasts."
Ann could think of nothing to say. She thought, "You're beautiful, but not so terribly young."
Florabelle said, "Guess you haven't been around much, Ann."
"No—well, in a way, yes. I've lived in almost every city in the United States. I've stayed in the best hotels and—"
"Well, well—" Florabelle sat up. "Looks as if you'd come from Yahoo or somewhere. Not that you look like a hick. What are you doing in a dump like this? Lost your cunning?"
Ann flushed. "I traveled with my father. He died a year ago."

"I've been on my own ever since." "Oh, I see." Florabelle got to her feet, yawning. "Come over and see where I hang out." She trailed across the hall and Ann followed. Stepping inside Florabelle's door, her eyes opened wide.
The apartment, architecturally speaking, was like her own, but the furnishings were vastly different. The walls were pale yellow, the woodwork had been painted silver, the carpet was dove gray. Chromium glittered.
There was a low davenport flanked correctly with two overstuffed chairs and a coffee table with a glass top. Lamps and ash trays and pictures of men stood upon other tables. A radio, encased in aquamarine colored glass, hummed softly. The room was ornate, cheaply and fantastically modern.
"It's—it's very lovely," Ann said.
"It'll do." Florabelle pushed the bedroom door open and Ann received another shock. The bed was low and wide, it was soft and thick, a velvet cover fell to the floor. The dressing table, two small chests separated by a shelf, stood below an immense, circular mirror. There was a gold brocade slipper chair and a wardrobe. The door of the wardrobe stood open and Ann saw rows of gowns, shoes on a rack, hats in transparent boxes. Beside the bed, in a chromium table, stood an ivory telephone.

Florabelle opened another door and displayed a small bathroom. "Mrs. Follet made this out of a closet," she yawned. "I had to have a private bath."
Somehow, the place shocked Ann. She said, because Florabelle expected her to be impressed, takes my breath away by a beautiful apartment. Follet's third floor."

Ann said, "I want to see some day."
"Why don't you have a look?"
Ann's eyes widened. "I only have a week."
"It isn't what you see," she said.

129 Deaths in Texas Blamed on Tetanus

AUSTIN, March 2 (Sp.)—Texas had 129 deaths from tetanus (lock-jaw) in 1938, according to vital statistics records of the state department of health. The number of deaths from tetanus yearling by year for the past decade has shown no appreciable decrease or increase, the mean average being about 130 for each year of the decade. Peak of the decade was the 151 recorded deaths in 1934.

A significant factor in tetanus prevalence is that the disease develops usually from a trivial wound or injury which too often is neglected until complications set in.

"In the course of the disease convulsions may be frequent and set off by any slight stimulation to the central system. Stiffening of the muscles of the jaw is one of the first symptoms of tetanus, a characteristic which gives the disease its name.

"Puncture wounds, such as those from sticking a nail or thorn in the foot or hand, prove most dangerous. This is explained by the tetanus characteristic whereby the germs thrive only in a closed wound or in the presence of other germs that use up the air present. Tetanus germs live in open air," stated Dr. George W. Cox, state health officer.

"Preventive technique against lockjaw should include proper care of all minor injuries and wounds. Anti-tetanus serum should be given after a puncture wound. Gunpowder wounds are also frequently followed by lockjaw. The period of incubation for the disease to develop in man is usually from six to fourteen days, according to the degree of infection. When the incubation period is brief, six days or less, tetanus is almost always fatal. With a longer period for the disease to develop, it becomes milder, and the chances for recovery consequently greater."

LEAVE 'EM WHERE THEY LIE

Broken Elbows—Leave 'Em Where They Lie

How does a broken elbow happen?

By driving with elbows stuck out of the window and being side-swiped by a passing car or truck with overhanging sides.

How do you prevent this accident?

Keep your arm inside.

What must you do when it happens?

Every car has a Jack handle which makes a splendid splint. Use it. Or get four or five small branches about the size of a finger that reach from the shoulder to the end of the fingers, or use newspaper folded tight along the length of the page as a support, and tie in places around the arm with the elbow straight.

What if the skin is broken and the bones stick out?

Place a clean handkerchief or shirt tail or anything over the wound to stop bleeding as described previously and tie the stick or newspaper or something in place with the arm straight as described above.

What about infection?

Don't worry. See issue on INFECTIONS.

SPLINT 'EM WHERE THEY LIE! LEAVE 'EM WHERE THEY LIE! TREAT SHOCK!

EVERYBODY'S FRIEND

Who are the best friends of advertising?
 The manufacturer? . . . Yes, for advertising gives him a chance to acquaint thousands of people at once with the fine product he has made.

The merchant? . . . Yes, for advertising draws people to his store who might never have known about the outstanding goods he has to sell.

The consumer . . . you? . . . Yes, because advertising informs. It tells what, it tells where, it tells when, it tells how much. It saves you infinite trouble, and makes life easier, more economical, more satisfying.

Every one profits from advertising. That's why advertising's friends are many . . . and loyal!

Reds and Finns Battle at Gates of Viipuri

HELSINKI, March 2 (AP)—The red army hammered loudly Saturday at the gates of Viipuri, with battles raging in the outskirts of that shell-ravaged city, which is the key to the Karelian isthmus.

(A soviet communique said the Finns were burning the city as they fell back and the Russians already were in the southern suburbs.)

The Finns themselves acknowledged that after three months of war, including a month of sustained assault against this objective, the Russians were moving on Viipuri from the south and east by land and from the southwest over the island-dotted ice of Viipuri bay.

Russian losses continued to be heavy the Finns said, in fighting along the entire isthmus front from the edge of Viipuri on the west to the fortress of Taipale on the east. Taipale, on the Lake Ladoga shore, is holding fast despite one of the war's heaviest bombardments, they said.

lying in San Juan harbor since early Wednesday after completing one leg of a shakedown cruise.

Two submarines left Friday and were headed in a direction that would have placed them in the vicinity of the Southgate at the time she sent her alarm.

An intelligence officer said he believed it was "understandable" if the British merchantman's captain became alarmed. He said there have been many reports of submarine activity in Caribbean waters in recent weeks, including stories denied by Dominican republic officials that German undersea craft had been refueled in harbors of the nearby island.

Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis, commander of the Atlantic squadron, an hour after the Southgate's call, said he had been informed of it but didn't pay much attention to rumors.

The cost of state government in Texas in 1924 was $50,519,819. By 1933, it had more than trebled, being $157,747,878.

commander added, and parachute flames were dropped "to drive home the fact that our aircraft were once again over the capital of the reich."

It was the sixth flight the British have reported making over Berlin in the six months since war started, and the first time this week that widespread Royal Air Force scouts have drawn the fire of Nazi anti-aircraft guns. The communique said the British scouts reconnoitered "important towns" in northwest Germany and "kept watch" on seaplane bases at Borkum, Norday and Sylt.

Intense Fire

The returning pilots reported their appearance over Berlin caused "intense activity" as pale blue searchlights stabbed the darkness in a vain effort to spot the enemy.

The intense gunfire which greeted the German raiders in the early morning North sea mists led Berwick residents to believe a big naval engagement was occurring to the north near the Fifth of Forth.

(In Berlin, DNB, the official German news agency, announced that Nazi planes had "sunk or extensively damaged" several British ships under convoy, but the location of the raids was not immediately disclosed.)

Four Aberdeen trawlers which reached port Saturday morning reported they had been bombed Friday. The trawler Stachelovra said a submarine had fired on her several days ago, but had missed as she rolled in the heavy seas.

Roosevelt to Ask More Canal Defense

ABOARD ROOSEVELT TRAIN EN ROUTE TO WASHINGTON, March 2 (AP)—President Roosevelt rode toward the national capital Saturday ready to begin blueprinting additional defenses for the canal.

He was prepared to pick up again the White House duties he had dropped for a 15-day cruise on which fishing was subordinated to a minute inspection of those defenses.

He brought back from his 4,000-mile voyage a definite idea that the number of airplanes and anti-aircraft guns already at the canal must be doubled and that a third set of locks was essential.

High Spots on Record-Breaking Run

Signs of the times in a motor age—these highway markers tell the story of a two-year, 100,000-mile truck test run recently completed by Chevrolet. In Canada, Mexico and every state of the Union, the truck operated on all types of highways and under every conceivable weather hazard, setting a new world mark for sustained and certified automotive operation, under the sanction and official observation of the American Automobile Association. The unit carried a 4,590-pound "payload." An average of 15.1 miles per gallon of fuel was maintained throughout the 100,000 miles, at an average operating speed of 33.07 miles per hour. Oil mileage was correspondingly high—1,072 miles per quart.

Shaping up, therefore, was a scrap with congress for legislation to strengthen the navy's lifeline between the Atlantic and Pacific. The house appropriations committee had slashed from the war department's civil functions appropriation bill a $15,000,000 fund and a $99,300,000 contract authorization recommended by the president to permit a start on a new set of canal locks costing $227,000,000.

LONG EFFORT TO CONVENE SENATORS FAILS

BATON ROUGE, La., March 2 (AP)—Governor Earl K. Long's second effort to convene a special session of his hitherto obedient legislature failed Saturday when the legislators, in open revolt against the repudiated state machine, failed to report a quorum in the senate.

Only 13 of 39 senators were present at roll call nearly an hour after the body had been called to meet.

Senators immediately quit the chamber and Coleman Lindsay, president, said "there can be no session because there is no quorum."

Long, trying to salvage some of the wreckage of the once all-powerful Huey P. Long political machine, first summoned the legislators to meet Friday. They didn't show up because, Long said, they probably did not receive his first call in time. Then he issued a formal call for Saturday morning.

His proclamation listed, among the purposes of the six-day session, possible changes in the Huey P. Long "dictator" law which gives the Attorney General authority to go into any parish and take over the work of the district attorney.

This was interpreted as a move to forestall the announced intention of the newly-nominated attorney general, Eugene Stanley, to start criminal prosecution of alleged irregularities in state government. Stanley was nominated on the ticket of Attorney Sam Jones, "reform" candidate who beat Long for the governorship. The new officials will take office in May.

$8,400,000 Sought In Income Taxes

CHICAGO, March 2 (AP)—The government's computation of back taxes and penalties due from persons indicated here in the federal income tax drive approximated $8,400,000 Saturday.

William R. Johnson, reputed overlord of the city's gambling syndicate, was indicted Friday on charges of attempting to evade payment of $1,389,919.98 taxes for the three years 1932-34.

Including penalties and interest, the amount the government reckons is due from Johnson totals $2,232,497.41. Prosecutors called it the second largest personal income tax action on record.

The biggest action since the start of the drive involves M. L. Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher. He was charged with evading income taxes of $3,258,809.97 during the five years 1929-34.

In other actions the government seeks $505,755.11 in income tax for the years 1933-34 from William R. Skidmore, a junk owner listed by investigators as Johnson's co-partner in gambling enterprises, and $132,460 in income of Andrew J. Creighton, reputed boss of two gaming clubs.

RUSK BANS SALE

HENDERSON, March 2 (AP)—Rusk county Friday turned down on the legalized sale of beer by a margin of 250 votes.

The county electorate voted to prohibit the sale of beer "months" ago after five years drinking the brew.
