RUMANIA TO REJECT NAZIS' SECURITY OFFER

What It Means: The War for the Neutrals

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
AP Feature Service Writer
WASHINGTON, March 16.—The Russo-Finnish peace treaty is further evidence that the important war game these days is "Neutrals! Neutrals! Who's got the neutrals?"

Not just one neutral. All the neutrals.

Particularly all the important neutrals.

Glance back to the beginning of this war.

The Germans allowed war to overtake them ONLY after they had forged a ring of neutral states around the reich.

Beginning at the north, and hugging clockwise, Hitler last September could gaze with inward satisfaction on neutral Scandinavia, the Baltics, Russia, the Balkans, Turkey, Italy, Switzerland, and the low countries.

That left the Germans with but one hole to plug—a 150-mile gap hard against the French border. They plugged it with the west wall.

Allies' Problem Tougher

The allies had no such simple, concentrated problem. There was a besieged action, requiring a hydra-headed offensive. For it was they who declared the war. The four main points of their offensive war were these:

1. They manned the Maginot line, stalemating the Germans there.
2. They established a blockade around Germany where possible, denying both entre and egress of supplies and trade on the west and south.
3. They encouraged and deliberately planted propaganda within Germany to foster internal disintegration.
4. They wooed the buffer neutral states with all the ardor of a lovesick young swain.

The headlines have been telling you a lot about this allied offensive. Also they have NOT been telling you a lot more. They have told you how the allies manned the Maginot. They have told you about the propaganda leaflets dropped in Germany from allied war planes. They have not told you about allied espionage work in Germany.

The headlines have shown

PETITION ON OIL HEARING HERE IS SENT

Shallow Oil Operators Seek 20-Acre Rule Modification

A petition signed by oil operators and asking for a hearing on a plea to modify the state 20-acre spacing rule where shallow drilling is concerned, went forward from the Cisco chamber of commerce last week, Manager P. R. Warwick announced.

Omar Burkett, state representative, secured the agreement of the state railroad commission's oil and gas division to conduct a hearing at Cisco in the event the operators desired it, and Saturday he wrote the commission, urging that a date for the hearing be set at once.

The hearing will adduce evidence to be used in determining commission policy on applying the spacing rule to wells of around 1,000 feet, which produce from pools whose entire extent is sometimes less than the 20-acre units set up for drilling single wells under the spacing program. Operators have pointed out that to force shallow wells to be spaced in 20-acre plots would result in abandonment of much necessary drilling and consequent loss in conservation of oil and gas resources.

They Took Part in County Federation Meet

Above is shown a group of active and past officers of the Eastland County Federation of Women's clubs, which met at the Cisco First Presbyterian church Saturday afternoon at 2:30. They are, back row, left to right: Miss Willie Word, secretary; Mrs. J. L. Turner, treasurer; Mrs. J. LeRoy Arnold, president; Mrs. Joseph M. Perkins, president of the State Federation of Women's clubs; Mrs. Vernon Deffenbach, parliamentarian; and Miss Ruth Ramey, Eastland county agent, and front row, left to right: Mrs. A. J. Olson, president of the Cisco City Federation; Mrs. William Reagan, pioneer clubwoman and president of District Six at the time of county federation organization. Meses. Albert H. Gleason and C. H. Fee, pioneer clubwomen.

PRICE IS TOO HIGH, KING CAROL THINKS

Stiff Opposition Is Encountered in Rumanian Gov't

BUCHAREST, March 16 (AP)—Sources close to King Carol declared Saturday that Rumania could not pay Germany's price for a "security" offer.

They described the terms for the proposed Hungarian and Russian border guarantees as "intolerable and impossible of acceptance" and said the plan was doomed unless Germany modified it greatly.

Stiff opposition arose in high government quarters against every concession asked of Rumania—political, economic and military.

The king's advisors were said to feel that any Rumanian attempt to give Germany the virtual monopoly of exports she seeks would disrupt the country's economy almost as badly as war itself.

King Is Angered

The king was pictured as particularly indignant over a reported German suggestion that he take a pro-Nazi Iron Guardist into his cabinet.

A Rumanian military mission now in Berlin, it was reported reliably, has been told that Russia could be persuaded to sign a 25-year non-aggression pact with Rumania and that Hungary would pledge not to press territorial revision demands for 10 years.

Rumania, which already has a

County Federation Here Saturday

Through the Editor's Spectacles

By GEORGE

County Agent Elmo V. Cook has taken a needed step in calling a meeting of sheep and goat raisers of the county to discuss the organization of a possible market for wool and mohair. Eastland county is without such a market, despite the fact that the increase in numbers of sheep and goats over the past few years has been great. This increase is bound to continue. No other agricultural industry within this section—I might almost say no other industry of any kind whatsoever—has the potentialities for increase that exist with sheep and goats. No section is better equipped for raising these livestock and none stands in greater need of the benefits which they will bring.

It ought to be the concern, not merely of the raisers of sheep and goats, but of the business men of the county to see that the growing industry is given all the encouragement possible. County Agent Cook estimated at a dinner-forum of the Cisco chamber of commerce last fall that at a minimum, the county would support half a million sheep and half a million goats. The income from the wool and mohair crop off such a population would be such a figure that the county would realize such prosperity as it has not known since the days of the oil boom. And the income directly derived is not all that would result. The increasing in soil fertility, the clearing of brush and creation of new pasture lands for other types of livestock,

CITY-WIDE CLEAN-UP TO BE PLANNED

To plan a city-wide clean-up program, in which the chamber of commerce, junior chamber, garden club, other women's and civic clubs of the community will participate, a group of citizens, representing these organizations, has been summoned to meet at the chamber of commerce offices Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The meeting will be held under the auspices of the chamber of commerce city beautification committee, of which Mrs. C. H. Fee is chairman.

Asked to the meeting were Mrs. Eugene Lankford, Mrs. W. W. Fewell, Mrs. Barton Philpott, Mrs. E. J. Poe, Mrs. Alex Spears, Mrs. A. J. Olson, Mayor J. T. Berry, Dr. Chas. Hale, H. R. Garrett, A. L. Osborn, Joe Clark, Chas. Sandler, Joe Clements, B. A. Butler, E. A. Brown, Jr., and A. G. Tuttle.

CLEMENTS THANKFUL FOR COOPERATION

Thanking the citizens who have cooperated in the clean-up drive which the city has been conducting under his supervision, Joe Clements, city street commissioner, Saturday appealed for more general cooperation during the next few days, so that the campaign can be completed with the best results.

"In order that the city trucks could be free to start work on the paving program, expected to begin at any time now," Mr.

The girls told of their work in the club. Included in the picture are Miss Ruth Ramey, county agent; Miss Margaret Blount, assistant county agent. Meses. Henry Wilson and Josie K. Nix, club sponsors, and Misses Bernice Hatton, Helen Dempsey, Jo Jane Nex, Veda Faye Ramsower and Doris Mae Harbin. Behind the group are shown feather comforts which were exhibited at the meeting by Miss Ramey, illustrative of the work being done by various home demonstration clubs.

Cisco Teams Defeat Rising Star Friday

The fifth grade boys' and girls' teams of the Cisco West Ward played similar teams from Rising Star Friday afternoon on the local field.

The Cisco girls won by a score of 57 to 14, and the Cisco boys defeated the visitors by 15 to 2.

Mrs. Roy Camfield coaches the boys' team, and Arch Bint is the girls' team coach.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Tuggle and children of Woodson have been visiting in the Roy G. Tuggle home.

West Ward P-TA to Sponsor Shows

The West Ward Parent-Teacher association will sponsor the shows Tuesday and Wednesday at the Palace theater, it was announced Saturday.

Manager K. N. Greer of the theaters has assured the P-TA of exceptionally attractive bills for these days. A percentage of the receipts will go to the P-TA for financing its program in connection with school activities at west ward.

Wool and Mohair Market to Be Discussed at Meeting Called at Eastland March 26

Sheep and goat raisers of Eastland county are being invited to meet at Eastland on Tuesday, March 26, at 2 p. m., to form a county organization and discuss how to market their wool and mohair, Elmo V. Cook, county agent has announced. L. F. Aston, manager of the Mid-West Wool Marketing association, Fort Worth, will talk to the group on cooperative marketing. Frank Grayson, marketing specialist for the U. S. department of agriculture, will discuss mohair and wool grades.

There is no definite marketing set-up for wool and mohair in Eastland county, according to County Agent Cook. For this reason he is expecting a high percentage of the wool and mohair producers of the county to attend the meeting and help work out plans for a definite marketing arrangement. Growers have also requested the meeting in order that a county organization of sheep and goat raisers can be formed to sponsor an educational program to acquaint growers with solutions to some of their production problems such as selecting breeding animals, feeding, and control of parasites.

Cook estimates that the numbers of sheep and goats in Eastland county have increased at least ten fold in the last five years and states that if there were as many sheep and goats in the county as the land could conveniently carry their income would

George C. Coyle to Be Buried at Dallas Monday

George H. Coyle, well known Ciscoan whose interest in breeding of thoroughbred horses carried him to all parts of the country, died Friday afternoon in a New Orleans hospital to which he had been confined since December 29, 1939.

Funeral services will be held in Dallas at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, and the Rev. Joe I. Patterson, pastor of the First Methodist church here, will go to Dallas to conduct the services.

A sister of Mr. Coyle's, Mrs. C. E. Kennemer, lives at Dallas. Her address is 4301 Overhill Drive, Highland Park. His mother, one brother and three other sisters, besides his immediate family, also survive.

His immediate survivors are his widow; one son, C. C. Coyle, and two daughters, Mrs. Henry Bettis of Pratt, Kan., and Miss Virginia Coyle, who lived with her parents.

Cisco Students on Tarleton Honor Roll

Mary Louise Poe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Poe; Daisy Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Wood, and Dorothy Slaughter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Slaughter, all of Cisco, are making excellent records at John Tarleton college. Each started the second semester on the honor roll the first time grades were issued. No student who makes below 80 in any subject is accorded this honor. About 12 per cent of a student body of 1,300 attain this goal. The three are now eligible to receive an award as being "distinguished students." These awards cannot be made, however, until all grades have been computed at the end of the semester.

CHAPTER XXII

It was during that rainy week that Clara confided her wedding plans. She and Roy Swenson were to be married on Saturday of the following week.

Ann made a dress for her, and a cunning little hat. Knowing that she must find another room, she let her plans ride, waiting until she could see Paul again. The next meeting might mean anything.

She saw him on Thursday night and the rainy date was no more. He seemed to almost dislike her. He scorned her, quite coldly, that he had been transferred to Mohr, that he was leaving within a few days.

Ann couldn't know of his sleepless nights, that, in desperation, he had gone to the manager and asked to be transferred. The kiss in the park had done it. "I can't kid myself any longer," was the way Paul put it to himself.

Ann felt that a door, through which she had glimpsed happiness, had been rudely slammed in her face. She almost felt that Paul had slapped her. Even then she felt no resentment toward Paul. He had stated his convictions fairly and squarely at their second meeting and she had promised to abide by them. It was her own fault if she had taken a casual kiss too seriously. She managed to put up a brave front.

"Does it mean a promotion for you, Paul?" she asked, ignoring the real issue, the personal issue.

"Maybe a little—I'm not sure. I hope so."

"Yes, so do I."

They were standing on the steps of the rooming house. About to start for a walk, Ann had stopped short at his announcement.

"Could we go to a movie?" she asked. "In a movie she needn't talk."

"Sure," he said.

Neither Ann nor Paul could have told a single detail of the picture. For three hours they sat side by side, eyes on the silver screen, not speaking. Then they were again back on the rooming house steps. They stood silently until the two furtive-eyed young men who lived on the second floor passed inside.

"I don't like the looks of those birds," Paul remarked, for something better to say.

"I have the feeling they're up to no good," Ann agreed absently. "All sorts of people in the world."

"Yes."

It was hard going. After a moment, Ann said, "Will I see you again?"

"I'll try to make it. Pretty busy—getting packed and everything. I suppose you are."

"Well—" He took a step away from her.

Ann bit her lip, hard. "Best of luck, Paul."

"Thank you. And you, Ann—things have got to break for you. You're the tops—you've got what it takes—the kind fates will catch up with you—I know they will."

"Will they?" she asked childishly.

"They've got to." He held out his hand. "Goodby, Ann."

She put hers in it and quickly drew it away. "Goodby, Paul."

Wearily she climbed the stairs. Paul had gone. He had not asked her to write, he hadn't said she would hear from him. Paul had gone—

Friday and Saturday were unendurable days. Clara announced Paul's departure from the store. It was all over.

On Sunday Ann's troubles were pushed aside by the newspaper headlines. Florabelle's friend, Clancy, had been murdered in an apartment hotel. Florabelle had been arrested for the crime. Clancy's widow was flying from Omaha.

The girls gathered in the hall, looking with fearful eyes at the closed door of Florabelle's apartment. Even Neddy and Teddy were serious. Clara cried, Ann felt sick. Mrs. Follet went through the second floor hall, muttering to herself that she'd always known Florabelle would come to the gallows, that she kept a respectable house and she wouldn't put up with such goings on. Myrtle crouched in a corner, her eyes big and haunted.

"I know how it'll be," she kept moaning. "Florabelle ain't got a chance. Folks like us don't get the breaks. They'll take her away—"

The girls stood back, awed, as two policemen unlocked Florabelle's door and went inside.

"They're searching for evidence," Neddy whispered and Teddy gulped. "Evidence—"

It was a strange day in the rooming house. Florabelle sent for clothes and Ann packed a bag. She would never forget that few minutes with Florabelle in the city jail. Locked doors, barred windows, guards—horrible.

"I didn't do it, Ann," the girl said. She was no longer a girl. Her face was ravaged and old.

"But that's what I get for playing with fire. Keep away from men—kid—men like Clancy."

Ann tried to encourage her. "They'll find the right one soon, Florabelle. Keep hoping."

"I don't know who did it," Florabelle said through tight lips. "I was tight—we were all tight—somebody put the gun in my hand—"

Ann went away, so depressed that she could scarcely drag herself up the El stairs. The next day passed with no good word, but on Tuesday the load was lifted. Ann's prophesy had been well founded. Clancy's murderer was apprehended and Florabelle came home. She was a chastened woman. When Mrs. Follet asked her to leave the respectable rooming house she hadn't a word to say. Three days later the girls heard that she had married the postman. Ann never saw her again.

While all this was going on Ann had been thinking. Nothing was going to come her way unless she forced it to do so. Her mind darted up and down blind alleys. There seemed to be no way out. At last she came to a conclusion and talked the matter over with Clara.

"I can't go on like this forever," she said. "I absolutely refuse to make over hats all my life."

"Gee," Clara objected, "you've got a swell job. What if you had to stand on your feet all day?"

"I'm going to try something else."

Clara was alarmed. "You'd better hang on to what you've got."

"I will—until I get what I want. Clara, I've put my name at the agencies—"

"A lot of good that'll do you,"—for a place as parlor maid or companion or something like that."

Clara was horrified. "You mean you want to be somebody's servant?"

"Call it that if you want to. I don't mean general housework. I want to live in a beautiful home and handle nice things, even if they don't belong to me. I want

Survey Joins Nation Observing Wildlife Week

Some 1,000 regular and 1,300 seasonal employees of the bureau of biological survey join with millions of Americans in observing National Wildlife Restoration week, which begins today (Sunday, March 17). National, state and local organizations throughout the country will hold special meetings this week to focus attention on wildlife conservation problems in the United States, according to R. D. Hilderbrand, U. S. game management agent.

In the nation's capital leading professional wildlife conservation workers from all states in the union will convene tomorrow morning, March 18, for a 3-day session, March 18, 19 and 20, of the Fifth Annual Wildlife conference, which will be held in the Mayflower hotel. The wildlife conference will be sponsored jointly by the American Wildlife Institute and the National Wildlife Federation.

Open house will be held on many of the 266 national wildlife refuges administered by the biological survey, Hilderbrand said. Among the refuges open to the public are the two sanctuaries in Texas.

Wildlife Stamps on Sale

"National Wildlife Restoration week is observed to call attention to the need of uniting the efforts of all friends of outdoor America to the end that future generations shall have their rightful heritage of wildlife," declared Hilderbrand.

This week the 1940 series of wildlife poster stamps will be placed on sale. Proceeds from this sale go to the National Wildlife Federation and provide for conservation work in the same way that Christmas seals aid in the fight against tuberculosis.

"The bureau of biological survey has been engaged in wildlife work since 1885," said Hilderbrand. "Since that time, when it was a section in the department of agriculture, the biological survey has become the largest wildlife-conservation agency in the world."

Research Program Practical

In July, 1939, the bureau was transferred to the department of the interior, the federal department which more than any other is concerned with the conservation of natural resources.

Since its inception, the biological survey has expanded its research in the life histories and habits of all species of animals to include in its wildlife-conservation programs restoration of the forms depleted or extirpated in certain areas; management of the abundant and overpopulated species and the areas in which they live; and the enforcement of federal game laws.

"Research field stations are located throughout the country," Hilderbrand said. Scientists assigned to this work are engaged in one of six fields of investigation: Distribution and migration of birds, wildlife surveys, food hab-

District Meetings to Launch Public Expense Studies

ABILENE, March 16 (Sp.)—A series of district meetings was announced today by the West Texas chamber of commerce to launch organization of study of public expenditures and taxation and widespread participation in this year's budget making hearings as provided by state law.

Completion of its budget analysis staff and appointment of Berry Brown, budget expert, as research director for the staff and local taxation committees also was announced by the regional organization.

The schedule for the district meetings is: March 20 at Olney, March 21 at Plainview, March 22 at Pampa, March 26 at Stephenville, March 27 at San Angelo, March 28 at Odessa.

A president's news letter mailed today and signed by President E. K. Fawcett, Del Rio; J. S. Birdwell, Wichita Falls, WTCC vice-president in charge of organization; A. F. Ashford, San Angelo, vice president in charge of activities, and D. A. Bandy, WTCC general manager, invited all WTCC directors, local chamber of commerce presidents and secretaries, public officials and other interested persons to attend the nearest meeting. Representatives of more than 180 towns are expected to participate in the six sessions.

A printed report of the WTCC Budget Analysis Plan will be distributed at the meetings. This report is signed by all members of the WTCC public expenditure and taxation committee. These are: James D. Hamlin, Farwell, chairman; Kindel Paulk, Wichita Falls; H. C. Custard, Cleburne; B. P. Bludworth, Brownwood; H. W. Allen, Amarillo; Dudley Yard, Peecos; I. R. Collard, Spearman; and Wm. L. Pier, Fort Worth.

Each meeting will open at noon with a luncheon. In the session following, Chairman Hamlin will discuss the public expenditure and taxation problem. Mr. Bandy will discuss remedies for the problem and explain operation of the WTCC budget analysis staff.

The regional organization is calling on its affiliated towns to organize local public expenditure and taxation committees to cooperate with local governmental subdivisions in analyzing proposed budgets and making constructive recommendations.

"Object of the series of meetings," Mr. Bandy said, "is to make preparations for this program prior to budget making time, as provided by law, in order to render our political subdivisions some real service."

Members of the budget analysis staff will be available to local committees to study and analyze proposed budgets and Mr. Brown will be on duty continuously at its fur resources, disease control and national park wildlife.

It is on the basis of migration and nesting studies that we can estimate the migratory waterfowl population each year, the wildlife expert explained. The survey's nation-wide network of refuges, which play an important part in the restoration of our waterfowl, were selected, in part, on knowledge of where the birds go during the flights north and south each spring and fall.

The four major flyways were worked out by survey scientists studying flights by birdbanding methods. In Texas, there are now 29 birdbanding stations in operation.

Study Big-Game Populations
Wildlife surveys, declared Hilderbrand, are invaluable as indexes of trends in mammal populations. "They serve, for one thing, to let you know how the balance sheet, so to speak, stands. Knowing population trends is important if one is to plan a wise conservation program."

"We know there are about 6 million big-game animals in this country," he continued, "because annual nation-wide surveys were begun two years ago." Each inventory shows the estimated population of 15 species of big game animals in the various states.

By following the increases or decreases, from year to year, the survey can take steps to preserve the species.

the WTCC headquarters here. The staff members are accountants and budget analysis and tax experts and through training, study and long experience are highly qualified for the work of assisting local committees with their problems, Bandy pointed out.

Members of the staff are: John B. Allred, Wichita Falls, chairman; George R. Donnell, Odessa and San Antonio; Roy G. Tuggle, Cisco; Jack Helton, Colorado City; C. A. Freeze, San Angelo; C. J. Brasher, Lubbock; H. V. Robertson, Amarillo; Horace M. Conley, Abilene; Frank L. Wilcox, Waco; C. M. Grider, El Paso; and J. Warren Day, Fort Worth.

Burkett To Make Race on Same Platform

Standing squarely on his record in the present legislature and declaring that he has not changed his attitude or platform on state issues which he outlined in his platform two years ago, Omar Burkett, state representative from the 107th district, comprising Calahan and Eastland counties, Saturday issued his formal announcement for re-election.

"Everything that I told the people of this district I would do, I did, or tried hard to do. The voters appreciate the fact that a legislator cannot do everything that he wishes. He can't pass all the laws he wants to pass. He can't always cut down the appropriations he would like to reduce. He must cooperate with the other 149 members of the house if he expects to do anything for his constituents and to put over the best part of his program. I have done this and want the people of this district to know that their district is tops with the legislature and the various departments. The record speaks for itself."

Record on Legislation

"I advocated liberalization of the old-age assistance law and other social security legislation, and these became laws. I advocated school aid and supplemental teacher salary payments, and these became laws. I advocated anti-nepotism legislation and fought for it, but it could not be passed. I advocated and collaborated in writing legislation to authorize delinquent tax adjustments by commissioners courts and other political sub-divisions, and this became law. I advocated a state land board and it was set up. I advocated a road bond district law and it was passed, setting aside state money for county road bond state auditing set-up that will account for every dime paid into the state treasuries. At present state receipts are approximately $80,000,000 a year. Only $35,000,000 of this is audited."

Burkett presented the following statistics on tax collections in 1938: "For every $100 in ad valorem taxes collected in 1938 the following divisions were made: State government, $13.14; road districts, $28.05; cities, $25.88; school districts, $29.72; improvement districts, $3.21.

"There were levied and collected in Texas from all sources for the year 1938, an average of $1,787,400 for each of the 254 counties of our state, a grand total of $454,000,000. Cigaret taxes alone were approximately $7,000,000."

Burkett asserted that he still stands on his contention that Texas needs no new taxes, but that proper allocation of existing revenues will meet every state need. "I am firmly in favor of consolidating state funds and restoring appropriation to each department by the legislature at regular periods, instead of the present method of setting up special funds and earmarking receipts for departmental administration. I want a state auditing set-up that will account for every dime paid into the state treasuries. At present state receipts are approximately $80,000,000 a year. Only $35,000,000 of this is audited."

Burkett pointed to his support of the bill which would have placed old age assistance investigation in the hands of the county judges and commissioners, a program he still contends should be done. The bill failed by a few votes because federal authorities frowned on the move. He asserted that the old people of the state are entitled to have quick access to someone in their locality who knows them.

He also cooperated with county officials in taking care of mentally ill patients and is proud of the fact that no insane person has remained in confinement long before transfer to a state hospital. "I advocate the same principles on which I stood two years ago," said Mr. Burkett. "I am the same man, and I have the same platform. I still believe in the principle of a day's work for a day's pay for every person on the state's payroll."

"I have been asked," Mr. Burkett continued, "at various times by many people my opinion of various state candidates. I have no comment to make to anyone seeking office, but I do want to go on record at this time as to our present governor. In all sincerity I believe him to be honest, sincere and attempting to do a tough job well."

In ten large Texas cities with total population of 1,430,000, there are 600,000 persons, or 42 per cent, who depend for their living upon the oil industry.

Texas homes and industries are the largest consumers of Texas natural gas, using three-fourths of the total annual output.

State Officers Probe Midland Bribe Case

AUSTIN, March 15 (AP)—Two investigators for the state police and two assistant attorneys general were in Midland today for an inquiry into possible ramifications of a case in which a deputy supervisor of the railroad commission is charged with taking $5,000 bribe.

The deputy supervisor, Gordon Bigham, was at liberty under a $1,000 bail pending grand jury action. He was discharged shortly after his arrest Tuesday at Midland.

Officers who left for the West Texas city were Special Investigator B. F. Spain and Ranger J. Thompson of the state police and Assistant Attorneys General Be Woodall and D. Burle Davis.

Attorney General Gerald C. Mann said Martelle McDonald, district attorney at Midland, has requested that state officers continue to assist in investigation and prosecution of the case.

Accused of Bribe-Taking
Bigham was accused of accepting a bribe "contingent upon his recommending to superior office that the reduction be made in a lowable production on property of the Shasta Oil company." Off

TO THE CITIZENS OF CISCO:

Since our announcement as candidates for election to the City Commission, there has been such persistent street talk to the effect that we are the candidates of one of the gas companies or that our candidacy was brought about at the instigation of one of the gas companies, that we feel that we should make a statement with reference to this.

We believe that these rumors emanate possibly from parties uninformed but probably from parties who are fully aware that there is not a word of truth in them and who are desirous of throwing this issue into the race for City Commissioners, when they know that in truth and in fact, there is not one scintilla of truth in it.

Neither of our Gas Companies asked us to run or not to run nor has any one of their employees suggested that we run or not run.

The issue of Gas rates in Cisco is not before the people in any way or manner. We were requested, both by personal request and by petition of a number of our best citizens, who have the best interest of Cisco at heart, to announce as candidates for the City Commission.

When elected, as your City Commissioners, we will endeavor to the best of our ability to pass on each and every issue that may arise for our consideration in a fair, unbiased and unprejudiced way, bearing in mind at all times the best interest of our town and citizenship.

We will not draw or ask any compensation as your City Commissioners other than the small compensation provided for by City Charter.

We are not seeking this office for the slight remuneration it pays, but for the sole purpose of seeking to render some service to our citizenship and our town at its period of emergency.

It is also being persistently rumored that it is our intention, if elected, to make a complete change in their personnel of the City of Cisco Employees.

There is no foundation in fact for such a rumor and we never discussed this among ourselves until the persistency of these rumors caused us to do so. We do not now contemplate making any change in the personnel, but when any matter involving the personnel comes up, we will treat this as we will treat all other matters, that is, pass on the particular issues and questions as they might arise.

We sincerely believe that every citizen in Cisco who is well acquainted with us, will feel fully confident that it will not be the policy of any one of us to discharge any employee who has been faithfully and honestly discharging his or her duties. We are not trying to build a Political Machine.

When elected, we go into office without the slightest obligation to or ill feeling toward any citizen, employee or corporation but will sincerely and earnestly seek to perform such duties as may be imposed upon us and to settle all issues which may arise with complete fairness to all parties involved and in such a manner that, so far as is possible, the citizenship of Cisco will be fully informed as to what we are doing at all times.

We sincerely solicit your support on April 2nd.

LEAVE 'EM WHERE THEY LIE

Leave 'Em Where They Lie—Treat Shock
How and when should the patient with the injured back be moved to the hospital?
Leave him lie until an ambulance or truck can be had in which he can be brought in lying flat on his back—stretched out.
If he is set up or tries to sit himself up, a broken vertebra that no one can tell about may be present which will slip out of place and probably crush the spinal cord.
Keep him flat until a stretcher or blanket or seat cushion (legs over the end) is obtained upon which he is to be rolled and lifted, still stretched out, and supported in the middle of the back, into the back of a truck or ambulance. Put a folded cot or small pillow or something under the small of the back. Keep him stretched out flat.
Don't attempt to lift him by the shoulders and feet, which will fold him in the middle and so possibly jackknife the spine and crush the spinal cord, for the same reason that you are instructed not to sit him up. If he is lifted in a blanket or sheet or overcoat, don't let the middle of the back sag down. It is far safer to let the legs and head hang over the ends. So fold the blanket on two sides instead of at each end.
If this simple care is taken, and the automobile injury did not crush the spinal cord, he will recover from a simple broken back (broken bone in the back); but if in moving him you are careless and don't follow these instructions, you stand a good chance to crush the spinal cord and the patient will be paralyzed for life.
LEAVE 'EM WHERE THEY LIE! KEEP 'EM STRAIGHT OUT—FLAT! TREAT SHOCK!
Never pile 'em in a car—move 'em only lying out flat in a truck or ambulance.

Supper. He knew also just where Jesus intended to go for the night. Jesus then left the bonnet about nine o'clock. One hour later Jesus and his disciples left for Gethsemane, a place whither Jesus was accustomed to retire at the seasons when he did not go to Bethany. It was in Gethsemane that the Passion began.

Two recent conferences helped unarrange some of the states of liquor traffic. In Chicago, representatives of Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan and Indiana talked over conducting liquor control legislation. One immediate result was the promise of the Illinois Liquor Control Commission to check bootlegging of Illinois liquor in neighboring states. A similar meeting in Buffalo was attended by representatives of seven states.

At another midwestern conference, highway prohibitions were voted out and reciprocal agreements established between Iowa, Nebraska, and Minnesota. Other states represented at this meeting are still thinking the matter over.

An agreement to abolish license fees on trucks and trailers was recently reached between New York and Michigan. Trucks from either state may now move freely in the other.

Tariff conditions had reached a point where further complications were virtually impossible. Easing of some restrictions is almost inevitable. It is probable for a state to restrict foreign vehicular travel or imports only as long as other states don't reciprocate. When the idea spreads as it did, it brings shame for everyone, offers no relief to the local business men whom it is designed to hit.

Constitutionally a state may not impose a tariff. But the wall of restrictions that has been set up in almost every state, is far more deadly than any tariff ever could be.

They're still talking about building some of those superhigh highways. Of course, if the world became one continent, we could use them to tow the whole continent down to meet Admiral Byrd.

American clipper planes will not stop at Bermuda and British carriers, who were beginning to enjoy their work, will have to go back to reading the newspapers.

Authorities had been for some time that Jesus who knew the habits of Jesus' intimates. They wanted to arrest him secretly. "So something" was done on the last day of a tumult among the people, about at that time there were in many friends of Jesus in Jerusalem. It was that Jesus was their very own. Through Jesus they could find out where Jesus would go next and so Jesus' friends were part of some big estate or farm. It may have belonged to some friend of Jesus, for it served him many times as a place of refuge for his mother and Joseph.

Here in the Garden of Gethsemane occurred the terrible agony. The agony is from the Greek word, agonia, meaning "struggle." The Evangelists give us a full account of it, thus showing how important they considered it. It is well to read the account given by St. Matthew, with a few supplementary words of St. Luke. St. Matthew writes: "Then Jesus came with them into a country place which was called Gethsemane, and he said to his disciples: 'Sit ye here, while I go yonder and pray; and I will come and talk with you, and ye shall go along with me.' And he went a little farther, he fell on his face, and began to pray, saying, 'My Father, if it be possible, let this chalice pass from me; nevertheless, not as I will, but as thou wilt.' And he cometh to his disciples and findeth them asleep, and he saith unto Peter: 'What couldst thou not watch with me one hour? Waken ye and pray that ye enter not into temptation. The spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak.' Again he saith unto them: 'Sleep ye and dream, ye will not watch. Behold, the hour is at hand, and the Son of Man will be betrayed into the hands of others. Rise ye up and go; ye will not watch with me.'"

From these words we can picture the entire incident. As soon as Jesus and his friends entered the Gethsemane farm, the order of eight of them to stay near the gate or entrance. Then he took with him Peter and James and John, and went a little way further into the grounds. He was Peter and James and John who had been the witnesses of His Transfiguration, now they were to be permitted to be the witnesses of His Passion. And as He walked along with them, a terrible struggle came upon Him. His whole body trembled, and He began to be hot and distressed. "He said a powerful word some little time of His address, a address as great and as intense that it threatened to break His heart and to cause His sudden death. He asked the three disciples to remain awake, and thus by their watchfulness preserve Him some little bit of comfort. They He returned from them about a stone's throw. He led to His cross. He drop a blood trickling down upon the ground." And St. Matthew continues: "Then He cometh to His disciples and saith to them: 'Sleep ye now and take your rest; behold, the hour is at hand and the Son of Man will be betrayed into the hands of others. Rise ye up and go; ye will not watch with me.'"

Raynolds Co. appellee's motion for strike statement of facts. From Ames et al. vs. Doris Rice Herrington et al. appellee's motion for rehearing: The Bankers Trust company of New York et al. vs. The Federal Land bank of Houston, et al.

Motions present were: Mabel J. B. Brandon, Charlie Davis, C. C. King, George Caraway, M. P. Clappert, Earl Rutherford, E. E. Sanderman, R. W. Parks, Jim Healey, E. N. Hull, Bill West, W. W. Everett, O. D. Allen and Miss Clara Brown.

The friends and neighbors of Mrs. Doyle Gunn gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Caraway Wednesday evening and gave Mrs. Gunn a shower consisting of linen and groceries. The guests were entertained by Mrs. Weeks and Mrs. Stanley Webb.

W. W. Everett led the older folk in a number of four-note songs. "Dad" Talon furnished novelty tunes with his famous French harp, accompanied by his son, Mabry Taber, at the piano, and by Stanley Harst, guitarist. Stanley Webb sang two solos, and Gen. Callaway led the group in singing several songs.

Mrs. Gunn was called and responded with words of thanks and appreciation for the many lovely gifts Mrs. Gunn had her oldest son in a car wreck near Westford during the Christmas holidays.

Revel services at the Methodist church will begin next Saturday morning with the pastor, Rev. J. Morris Bailey, doing the preaching.

Scaling Tariff Walls

Tariff walls are growing so high, state officials are gradually beginning to realize. The trouble is that the farmers work hard ways. It's all right for a state to set up a tariff wall to make outsiders think twice before they try to come in, but the walls are not only keeping outsiders from getting in—they are also keeping the natives from getting out.

What It Means--

you how the allies bought off Turkey with nearly $200,000,000 worth of loans, and guarantees against attack. They have related the ways the British buyers in the Balkans have been outbidding Germany for Balkan oil and grain.

The headlines have indicated clearly that the British blockaders at Gibraltar have favored the Italians right long. Despite a disagreement about coal, the British are about to talk over a trade agreement with Mussolini. You have also seen how the British and French have sympathized with the pope in his peace efforts, while the nazis, until recently, didn't give the Catholic church much room. You've even had evidence that the British are not ready to declare war against Russia. Germany's friend in the east.

Allies Tread Quietly
What's more important, the allies have refrained from taking violent steps to cut off Swedish ore and Rumanian and Russian oil from Germany.

Because that means running roughshod over the very neutrals they're wooing. With the neutrals as pawns as they are these days, cleverman tactics inspire terror within their breasts, not tender response.

With Germany across the street, what would Sweden do, if the allies deliberately forced their way through the Swedish countryside with troops to help Finland? Sweden would have to fight the British or expect a counter attack from Germany. Sweden would then become a bloody battleground.

What would Turkey do, if the British deliberately tried to get their warships into the Black sea to cut off Russian oil supplies, without so much as a "by your leave"? Turkey would have to resist, to keep from becoming a battleground before she wanted to.

Moscow and Peace
Allied tacticians and diplomats are smarter than that. They're telling the neutrals that the allies are fighting for the independence of European states, as well as their own skins. And they're trying to prove it, by not violently forcing the hands of a single neutral. That's the way to win the neutrals, in the long run.

The German high command has been unmindful of French-British tactics. Hitler has moved God up a peg or two in his public addresses, and demoted the pronoun "I". He's taken a shilly slap in the face from the Catholic church over the Vatican radio, and sent Von Ribbentrop to Vatican City to reply with kind words.

Apparently Germany put pressure on Russia to leave some sort of independent state in Finland. There was one other reason why Moscow would offer peace to the Finns:

A further incursion into Scandinavia might embolden Russia in the European war, which is contrary to Stalin's long-term policy of waiting until Europe is exhausted before making his play for power in the west.

A Tie--So Far
It's all in the game of "Neutrals! Neutrals! Who's got the neutrals?"

At the moment the struggle for neutrals is still a stalemate.

Sweden, Russia, some of the Balkans, and maybe Italy are still "sympathetic" to Germany, for their own reasons. Rumania, Turkey, and some of the Balkans face the other way, for their own reasons.

It is true that peace in the Baltic can do the allies no good whatever. For it can release Germany and Russia from that diverting struggle and permit them to carry out their economic barter arrangements.

But there's little the allies can do about it now except make gestures. For their game with the neutrals is not a short-term affair. It is only beginning.

Ultimately the aim of the allies is to get the neutrals on their side, and fighting in the front lines all around the German circle--fighting enthusiastically, and with the bolstering morale of Franco-British aid.

But it is doubtful that the British and French allies are yet ready to scatter their own man-power all around the German circle, instead of concentrating on the Maginot line.

For it would be too late to lock the door on the Maginot line after the Germans had broken through.

Borrowed capital used by the Texas oil industry amounted to nearly $650,000,000 in 1933. Texas banks have outstanding oil loans totaling approximately $68,000,000.

Services For Pre-Easter Week Are Announced

From Palm Sunday through Easter the First Methodist church will conduct evangelistic services on the general theme, "Following Jesus Through Holy Week." The pastor of the church, the Reverend Jas. I. Patterson will bring the message; and Mr. Stanley Webb, assisted by Mrs. Webb will lead the music.

The sermon subjects for the week are: This morning--Palm Sunday--Jesus Enters Jerusalem. Tonight at 7:30--Jesus at Bethany With His Friends. Monday--A Great Day In The Life of Jesus. Tuesday--One Bestows Love, Another Betrayal. Wednesday--A Day of Silence. Thursday--Jesus in the Garden of Gethsemane. Friday--Jesus on Trial and His Crucifixion. Easter Sunday Morning--Christ's Living Presence. Easter Sunday Evening--The Great Roll Call. These services are all at 7:30 p. m.

All children who desire to join the church this morning are asked to come to the pastor's study promptly at 9:30. Parents are invited.

and the improvement of the grass that would result would greatly enhance the income now available from other agricultural sources. And the increase in commercial and industrial enterprises founded upon the new purchasing power would be another advantage.

But the benefits of the industry, no matter how extensive it may become, will not be fully realized until a market is provided. For the purchasing power that is generated will center largely about the place where the wool and mohair are sold. The first concern of the business men of Eastland county is to see that the growers have at home a market that is as attractive as markets elsewhere. By doing that the enterprise of the raisers is stimulated while the center of the industry is kept within the county. Both market and industry grow stronger together.

It should be apparent to the people of this county that Eastland county business is suffering serious and persistent losses through the lack of adequate farm markets. Unless this situation is remedied more and more of the resources of the county are certain to be drained away to other and wiser centers. It isn't a question of whether or not markets can be provided in Cisco. It is a question of doing it or not doing it! It is futile to argue. It is important to take action. No, it is VITAL.

visited to come with their children. They will be received into the church at the close of the morning service.

Babies will be baptized at the beginning of the morning service Easter Sunday.

The following groups have special responsibilities for the days assigned: The church school, officers, teachers and members will be present and in charge of the service Sunday night. This responsibility will be carried by the board of stewards and woman's missionary society at the service Monday night. Tuesday is youth night. Wednesday--Family night. The service Thursday will be in charge of the Philathea class. Friday--The Goodfellows class. Easter Sunday night is All Church night. Every member is to answer present as the church roll is called. This roll-call is symbolic of the "Great Roll Call." This is the subject of the sermon for this evening.

It is hoped that all the members and their non-Christian friends will participate in these services.

Immediately preceding court's sustinment of Blanton motion to dismiss, the plaintiff had read depositions from dressmen telling of Blanton's creditable record in congress.

Technically, Blanton took non-suit. The court costs were paid by him.

Blanton told a newspaper "I never did want one cent of Clyde Garrett's money, but I wanted was the opportunity of a courthouse to bring the testimony of a source of the substantial members of congress with whom I have served many years, and know me and services better than anyone to prove that during my career in congress that I have never been guilty of dishonorable or sworn testimony has been that. That was all I wanted that is what I got."

"I have no comment to make this time," stated Garrett, plans to return to congress in several days.

THE STORY OF DEMOCRACY

By Hendrik Willem van Loon
Illustrated by the author

Democracy in Athens Suffered From Its Own Weaknesses, Too

Athens stood for the ideal of a state based on overseas commerce.

CHAPTER TWELVE
For the sake of their common goal?

Why in our own day and age could England and Germany live in peace and harmony when they could so easily have come to terms about their respective spheres of influence—Germany being allowed to dominate the European continent while England took care of her maritime empire? I do not know the answer. I can only state the facts and observe the results and those were exactly the same in the fifth century B. C. as they seem to be in the twentieth century A. D.

Ever since the beginning of time, there had been two conflicting theories of life and they had dominated the whole of Greek history. Sparta had always represented the interests of the landed gentry (of the Junkers, as we used to call them in Germany, whereas Athens had stood for the ideal of a state based upon overseas commerce.

Once more we see how little our world changes in its true essentials. For always we seem to have had these two conflicting philosophies of life with us—the man of the soil against the man of the sea—the conservative farmer, unwilling to accept any sudden changes (since nature, with whom he deals all his life long days is the great conservative) and the merchant and trader who must make quick and unexpected decisions.

Brief Public Life...

face bowed to the ground, and prayed: "FATHER, IF IT BE POSSIBLE, LET THIS CHALICE PASS FROM ME."

Now, WHAT was his chalice which so appalled Jesus — this chalice which was so terribly bitter that even the God-Man seemed to hesitate to drink it? Of course, we cannot fully understand. It is a mystery. But we can partly gather the causes of this Agony, or struggle with Himself, the effect to do what His human nature seemed to fight against. Jesus, of course, knew all the future. He could see the magnitude, the awfulness, of His coming passion and death on the Cross. Remember, He was a man, with every man's fear of death and terrible pain. His human nature recoiled from the torture that was before His eyes. There was no sin in him. Thus, sin had not prepared the way for Him as for ordinary mortals for the separation of the soul and body. And if we shirk so from death, especially a painful death, how much more did He shrink from it. He who was of such finer substance than we, He the perfect man! He was the master of life and death. How terrible for Him to submit Himself to the power of death! Thus, Jesus suffered terribly, knowing that He was facing death, even though He faced it willingly. He willed to submit Himself to death, but His human nature shrank for it just the same.

Now, besides this natural fear of death that so crushed Him to the earth, there was even a greater burden that cast Him down. It was the load of sin which He was about to take upon Himself. We can see some of the tragedies that were so close to Him. As he lay there with his face to the ground, how many terrible visions came before His eyes! He saw the treason of Judas already on the way to Gethsemane to sell Him; He saw how His dear friends, the Apostles, would run away from very fear of their lives; He saw how Peter would deny that he even knew Him; He saw how the Jews would gloat over His death, how they would harden the hearts and remain impenitent; He saw the coming destruction of His beloved Jerusalem; He saw the suffering of His followers throughout the ages; He saw the attacks upon His gospel, the persecutions through all the years from the days of Nero down through the Reformation times to Russia and Mexico and Spain; He saw the heresies, the scandals, the sacrileges, the impurities, the robberies, the injustices, the innumerable sins of every kind which men would commit; and finally He saw how many souls would be lost in spite of all He had done to save men.

No wonder there was a struggle with Himself as to whether it was all worth which, seeing what little use men would make of his passion and death. He was crushed by the shame of sin, the sin of man that He was taking unto himself. Added to all these visions were the attacks from the devil, suggesting to Him that all was hopeless, that He would die in vain, and that the devil would still be victor by claiming so many souls.

Thus, numbering all these woes that crushed down upon Jesus, we can see how He begged to be spared paying such a terrible price. He experienced all the tortures of soul and body that could be produced by sin and evil, and His soul broke forth in a cry for help. He was now, as it were, a criminal, with all the sins of mankind upon him, and He was abandoned to Himself by His Father. His human nature rebelled against enduring such agony, but His reason and will immediately sought in prayer and union with the Father the courage and determination to empty the chalice to the very dregs, and thus carry out the Divine Will.

So ended the first agony. Jesus returned to the favored three, only to find them asleep. It was not because they did not love Him, but they were tired out. Jesus expressed surprise that they could not watch this short time with Him. He addressed His complaint particularly to Peter, who such a short time before had expressed his willingness to die with his Master. "Watch ye and pray that ye enter not into temptation." Thus, He warned them to be in readiness so as not to lose their faith in Him when they would soon behold Him arrested and brought to trial and death.

Then He retired from them to pray and struggle with Himself. He repeated the same words of

Boyce House Returns From Flicker Capital -- And He Hasn't Changed

By BESS STEPHENSON
in Fort Worth Star-Telegram

Boyce House has come back from Hollywood wearing a dark brown business suit, white shirt, plain green tie, light brown snap brim felt hat and conventional low-cut oxfords.

His coat and pants matched his hair showed signs of a recent visit to the barber shop and his socks were held up by ordinary, everyday garters.

He looked, in short, just about the same as when he left here in October to work on the script of a picture called "Boom Town" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Neither the tailors nor the barbers of Hollywood had had any effect on him.

We asked him if a short haircut and one-color suit didn't make him feel conspicuous out there. He said, "Yes, it did." The only time he felt perfectly at home was the time he snagged a hole in his coat and went by a tailor's to have it mended.

The tailor said he could lend him another coat if he wanted to walk around while the mending took place. So House strolled up and down Hollywood Boulevard in a beige coat and dark trousers. That day, he felt he belonged.

His Job

Author of many an article and a book about Texas oil booms, House was called to Hollywood as technical adviser last fall when M-G-M got ready to prepare a script based on the James Edward Grant magazine story, "A Lady Comes to Burk Burnett."

His job was to keep the script authentic with the atmosphere of a real Texas oil boom. He went out to work for two weeks and felt (he says) like "The Man Who Came to Dinner." Even so, a lot of folks told him he worked too fast.

His first assignment was to prepare an oil boom dictionary. In that, he included more than 400 words and phrases peculiar to the oil industry. His second assignment was to write a brief history of the oil business. His third was to write a detailed description of Burk Burnett as it was at the peak of its oil boom.

With all his foregathered knowledge of these things, he could have finished any one of the three assignments in 30 minutes. But they told him to take a week, so he took a full day.

And Afterward

After supplying this preliminary background information, House's job was to sit in story conferences as consultant to say when dialogue or situations were of were not in keeping with the manners, morals, and general attitude of an oil boom.

In the story conferences were Sam Zimlist, the producer, Jack Conway, the director, and John Lee Mahin, one of M-G-M's highest paid writers. House never met James Edward Grant, the man who wrote the story in the first place—and got $20,000 for it.

Now that the script for the movie is finished, the studio is ready to start production with Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Claudette Colbert et al in leading roles. We may look for the picture next fall.

Though House spent a day describing Burk Burnett for the script writer, he isn't sure the town will be called by name in the finished movie. They plan at the moment to make the picture so that it could be just any Texas oil boom.

Bubbling with anecdotes about Hollywood, House says his last months out there were all fun. He thought of himself as "home in Wonderland." But he's back in Texas now and confronted with the rumor that he may run

Castor and Sweet Potato Chief Topics

DENTON, March 16 (Sp). — Castor and sweet potato chemurgic programs will be featured at the Texas Farm Chemurgic conference at North Texas State Teachers college in Denton April 26-27, in accordance with plans outlined by the board of governors, composed of representatives of the west, east and south Texas regional chambers meeting at the college Friday afternoon.

Max Bentley, activities manager of the West Texas chamber of commerce, Elmore R. Horn, agricultural and forestry director of the East Texas chamber of commerce, and Otis Fowler, manager of the Denton chamber, met with President W. J. McConnell, W. N. Masters, Gilbert C. Wilson and Roy J. Leffingwell of the college staff to outline the program for the chemurgic meeting. Ray Leeman, executive vice president of the South Texas chamber of commerce, was unable to attend the meeting, but will offer full support to the coming Texas chemurgic conference.

Subjects to be covered during the two-day meeting in April will include castor program, sugar beets, financial phases of the chemurgic program, paper industry, cotton seed oils, sweet potato program, plastics, flax, citrus fruits and tung oil.

The chemurgic conference will be held in two sessions on Friday, April 26, and a morning session on Saturday, the 27. A noon luncheon and evening dinner were arranged for Friday. The West Texas chamber of commerce will have charge of the Friday morning session and the east Texas and south Texas organizations to take charge of the Friday afternoon and Saturday morning meeting.

Leffingwell was named as secretary of the board of governors to handle the administrative work of the chemurgic conference.

Roy Pippen Is Candidate for County Comm'r

W. L. (Roy) Pippen Saturday authorized the Cisco Daily Press to announce that he will be a candidate, subject to the action of the democratic primaries, for county commissioner of Precinct No. 4.

Mr. Pippen, a resident of the Dothan community all his life, has been engaged in stock farming and followed it as his profession. He served for two years with the U. S. army engineering corps, building roads and bridges in the United States and France and received during that time some of the best engineering training in road construction available.

"I will run a clean race with no whispering," said Mr. Pippen in his formal announcement Saturday. "This is the first time that I have asked for any public office, and I ask the support of the voters on my promise to devote my full time to the duties of the office and to give constant attention to the condition of the roads and bridges I will work for economy in public affairs. Any consideration shown me will be greatly appreciated."

"I believe that I have sufficient experience both with the legal and physical requirements of the office and with local conditions to administer the duties to and promise the most efficient and careful administration of its duties of which I am capable."

Some people have the mistaken idea that banks like to say no to prospective borrowers. This is not true, particularly of the FIRST NATIONAL. Here you will find that our officers lean forward, not backward, in their consideration of every legitimate loan request. Naturally, as good bankers, their first thought must be for the safety of their depositors' money, but after they are satisfied on that point you will find them highly co-operative in trying to meet your borrowing needs. They like to say yes whenever they can consistently do so.

H. S. Stubblefield for Justice of Peace, Precinct 6

Henry S. Stubblefield Saturday authorized the Cisco Daily Press to announce that he will be a candidate for justice of the peace, Precinct No. 6, subject to the action of the democratic primaries.

Mr. Stubblefield, a former county commissioner and a member of the county school board for a number of years, has had sufficient experience in public affairs to apply quality him for administering the duties of the office.

"I believe that I have experience enough and judgment enough to administer the office in a dignified, able manner for the best interests of the people and of those who have business before the justice court," he said. "I solicit the support of the voters

R. L. (Tub) Wilson Announces for Cisco Constable

R. L. (Tub) Wilson, present justice of the peace for Precinct No. 6, Saturday announced his candidacy for constable of the same precinct. Experienced as a public officer for 17 years, Mr. Wilson said that, if elected, he would devote his full time to duties with which he is intimately familiar.

"I believe that I have sufficient experience both with the legal and physical requirements of the office and with local conditions to administer the duties to and promise the most efficient and careful administration of its duties of which I am capable."

BRUCE CATTON'S AMERICAN ROUNDUP

BY BRUCE CATTON
SEA Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The foreign trade boom, predicted ever since the outbreak of the war last September, is beginning to take hold.

United States exports today are running at a rate fully $300,000,000 a quarter above that for a year ago. On a volume basis, they are nearly as high as they were in 1929, although value basis is lower because of lower prices. Trade to Europe and to the Far East has picked up, and trade to South America has gone up even faster.

This boom did not really get going until the middle of December. Only a small part of it is due to orders of war materials as such—airplanes, chemicals, airplane gasoline, etc. Disappearance of Germany from much of the export market, and partial disappearance of Great Britain, are shifting to American exporters orders previously placed elsewhere.

DOMESTIC BUSINESS DROPS BACKWARDS

SHARP as this rise has been, it has not offset the drop in industrial production due to fading of last fall's inventory boom. Index of industrial production shot up from 103 in August to 128 in December; it has fallen back to 105 as of today, and is expected by government soothsayers to go a bit lower. Some of these are frankly pessimistic and look for a period of inventory liquidation in the spring; others believe that expanding export trade will "firm" price levels, prevent an inventory crash and pave the way for new business investment and a substantial upturn.

All are agreed on one point: a heavy spring offensive in the European war would create a buying wave here that would make up all the ground lost since December.

NON-PARTISAN BLOC SURVEYS UNEMPLOYMENT

INTERESTING and possibly important development in Congress is the assembling of 50-odd congressmen of both parties to study the unemployment problem. The bill was started rolling by Jerry Voorhis of California, but the group isn't confined to the usual western left-wingers.

Two meetings have been held so far, and a dozen sub-committees have been named to study various aspects of the unemployment problem—practically everything from taxation on up (or down) to technological change.

So far, Voorhis is serving as temporary chairman. As soon as organization is complete he will step out to make way for a permanent one. He is anxious not only to keep the non-partisan (to date the group includes 18 Republicans) but to keep it from looking like a bloc formed to boost any one specific measure.

NO FOOD STAMPS FOR LOW-INCOME GROUP

CONTRARY to reports, no expansion of the food stamp plan's application to low-income families is in sight now. Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation has been experimenting with the idea in one town in Oklahoma, distributing free stamps to all families whose gross income is under $19.50 a week; but it hasn't studied the thing enough to have any idea what it proves.

What is expanding is use of the plan for relief families. FSCC officials say slightly over half a million people used the stamps in January; since, they say, there are 20,000,000 people in families getting some form or other of public assistance, and hence eligible for stamp aid, they figure that need is plenty big enough.
