FD. Relieves Wallace and Jones of Foreign Economic Duties With Reprimand

WASHINGTON, July 15.—President Roosevelt has ordered Vice-President Henry A. Wallace and Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones relieved of their foreign economic warfare duties and severely reprimanded them for publicly airing their dispute over purchases of foreign strategic materials.

In a sweeping executive order, the president created a new Office of Economic Warfare and designated Leo T. Crowley to take over work formerly handled by Mr. Jones and the vice president.

The president rebuked the vice president, head of the Board of Economic Warfare, and Jones, as supervisor of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for their public debate.

He abolished the BEW and transferred its functions, along with those of all RFC subsidiaries engaged in foreign economic matters, to the new OEW, headed by Crowley.

Both Men Agree.

Wallace and Jones immediately issued statements in which they concurred with the president's action.

"In wartime, no one should question the overall wisdom of the commander in chief," Wallace declared.

Jones issued a longer statement in which he said:

"I concur most heartily in the president's determination to have harmony and co-operation between government officials and agencies in the war effort. The Department of Commerce and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and its subsidiary corporations engaged in foreign purchases will receive every possible assistance from the new Director of Economic Warfare."

The director will find the affairs of all RFC agencies engaged in foreign purchases, as well as the Export-Import bank, in excellent condition. He will find the organizations functioning with a maximum of efficiency and at a minimum of expense.

The president could not have selected a better qualified man for the important assignment of director of the Office of Economic Warfare than Leo T. Crowley. Mr. Crowley is well and favorably known to the business and financial world."

Crowley has already accepted his new job. He is now serving as alien property custodian and director of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Bickering Must Stop.

Simultaneously, the White House made public a letter from the president to heads of all governmental departments and agencies, telling them flatly that he would expect their resignations if they went directly to the press to air their interagency disputes without first submitting them to him. This reiterated a previous order.

Wallace recently brought the feud with Jones into the open by charging the latter with obstructing the war effort by acting too slowly to purchase strategic materials from abroad.

Mr. Roosevelt, in identical letters to his 1940 running mate and to Jones, said he had come to the conclusion that the unfortunate and acrimonious public debate between them made it necessary in the public interest to transfer their administration of foreign economic matters to other hands.

"In the midst of waging a war so crucial to our national security and to the future of all civilization," the president wrote, "there is not sufficient time to investigate and determine where the truth lies on your conflicting versions as to transactions which took place over a year and a half ago."

The chief executive said his action Thursday night was not intended to decide who was right, but the important thing is to clear the decks and to get on with the war at once.

"To do this," he added, "requires a fresh start with new men, unencumbered by interagency dissension and bitterness."

The order directed the RFC to turn over to the new OEW all

YANKS MOVING IN ON MUNDA FOR THE KILL

SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, July 15.—American and Australian troops pushed across hilly New Guinea scrubland from three directions today toward Komiatum, one of the last strongholds on the approaches to Salamaua, after capturing the Mubo bastion four miles to the southwest. Mubo, a tiny native village 10 miles southwest of Salamaua, fell yesterday under a concerted assault that wiped out 950 of the estimated 1500 Japanese troops in the entire Mubo, Komiatum area.

At the opposite end of the blazing 750-mile South-Southwest Pacific front, American soldiers and Marines also were on the march, in this case against Munda, main Japanese base in the central Solomons.

Slugging through knee-deep mud, the American forces were believed within 1700 yards of Munda airbase.

In addition to being Allen Property Custodian, he still holds the FDIC job and also is chairman and president of the Standard Gas & Electric Company. He accepts no salary from the government.

A white-haired man of medium height, he is one of the most engaging figures in Washington, but even before the war found little time for social life.

Obey or Quit.

In his letters to department and agency heads, President Roosevelt called attention to his warning to them of Aug. 21, 1942, not to air interagency disputes in the press, and added:

"By this letter I do not place any restriction upon your furnishing statements in response to congressional inquiries. But if you have a disagreement with another agency as to fact or policy, instead of submitting it to me or submitting it to the Director of War Mobilization for settlement under the terms of the order creating that office, you feel you should submit it to the press, I ask that when you release the statement for publication you send me a letter of resignation.

"If any subordinate of yours violates my instructions in this regard," the president continued, "I shall expect you to ask for his immediate resignation."

Wallace's removal as chairman of the BEW was unprecedented. Never before in the memory of veteran government authorities has a vice president served in such an important capacity outside his senate duties and hence an occasion to terminate such extra activity on the part of the second administrative officer of the land has never arisen hitherto.

Power for Victory

In the war news, the big headlines go to the air raids, the commando landings and the taking of large territories and great cities. The loudest acclaim naturally goes to those who take the biggest risks and make the most sensational achievements. Yet full credit should also go to those on the home front whose daily service is essential to victory. This vast group includes not only those who build ships, planes, tanks and other war equipment but every person who works faithfully in an industry that is bolstering the war effort.

The electric power industry, for instance, is one without which no other war industry could operate. There must be power for the lathes, punches, riveters and other machines that make our war weapons, power to light our factories for night shifts, power to take workers from their homes to their jobs and back. One of our main defense aims is to protect our power plants; one of the main objects of our bombers is to destroy the enemy's generating plants.

General Cable Corporation, which makes wires and cables through which electric power is transmitted, does well to call public attention* to what the power industry is doing to hasten the day of victory. This industry has given the United States more electric generating capacity than all the rest of the world and has delivered this power to the places where it was most needed and could most readily be harnessed to the war effort. In this and other essential industries, every worker should know that victory depends on his doing his part and should have recognition for unusual performance.
