Two Cisco Boys Participated In Iwo Jima Capture

"Treat Them As Good Citizens; Not as Heroes"

Two letters arrived in Cisco recently from the now famous volcanic island of Iwo Jima, and both were good news from two Cisco members of the fighting Marines.

The first letter was written March 1 and came from Lt. James Qualls to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Qualls. He said:

"I guess you had figured by now that I was here. The going has been pretty tough, but the Japs can't stop the Marines and old glory is now waving from Suribachi Mountain. It was put there the fourth day of fighting. But you have read all about it by now.

"They didn't leave me on land before we shoved off again; the sooner we rid the Pacific of the Japs the sooner we can come home. The Japs are getting more and more nervous every time we hit them.

"This fox hole life is the best, and mother earth sure feels comfortable and safe when shrapnel and shells are flying around. I feel like a hobo whenever we go to cook our rations over a fire, but I still get a kick out of the rugged life. Let every one know where I am. I cannot write to anybody. Love, Jimmy."

Huddleston's Letter.

The Lavon Huddleston's letter to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Huddleston, was written March 12. This Ciscoan is with the Fourth Marines on Iwo Jima. He said:

"This island has been a real bed since our arrival, but it is quieting down now. I never had any harder in my life than the two first days and nights here.

"We have plenty to eat and drink and so far I have escaped without even a scratch.

"Find out where Johnnie Edwards is and tell him that Billy B. Hickaby is with me. Love to all. Lavon."

Corporal Elder Procures, Distributes Rations

AN AIR SERVICE COMMAND DEPOT, England. — Overseas servicemen list the top three morale builders as mail, food, and exchange rations. Doing his morale-building part is Corp. Harlan S. Elder of Cisco, manager of the two PX stores on the field. His job is to procure and to distribute American made candies, cigarettes, tobacco, shaving cream and other "home" made articles familiar to men away from home. His group, a unit of the air service command, is flying critically needed supplies and equipment to assault troops on the western front now making the final push against Hitler-held Germany. Night and day giant C-47 transport planes carry the light arms and equipment from supply depots to the American troops on the continent.

Corporal Elder is the son of Jesse Elder, 2101 D avenue, Cisco, Texas. He entered the army in July, 1942.

E. L. Jackson, former employe of West Texas Utilities Co., member of school board and Lions club and an all-round good citizen, writes to Monroe Sweeney from far-off Admiralty Isles in a most interesting vein. Mr. Jackson is serving as a warrant officer with a naval construction crew. Excerpts from the letter:

Dear Monroe: Thanks very much for your letter of the 11th which I enjoyed, and especially the picture on the letterhead which shows the Lake Cisco swimming pool. How nice it would be to be back there to enjoy the evenings this summer. It will soon be Autumn down here since summer has almost gone. This may sound strange as the seasons are reversed, but to us here it means nothing since the temperature is about the same the year-round. We are just two degrees South of the equator, and the sun comes up every morning at about 6:30 and then sets at about 6:30 in the evening. I suppose all this sameness causes things to seem so monotonous.

I am glad to hear of the boys you mentioned in your letter; namely, Kenneth Huffman, Paul Mosley, Herby Litchfield and others. The young fellows we so often recall as just kids are scattered all over this world. This morning as I was eating breakfast, a young fellow came over from another table toward me. He was smiling and I at once recognized him as Bradley Griggs, whom I had known since babyhood at Albany. I am stationed near a big air strip where many Navy flyers come and go each week, so I am keeping my eyes open for the kids from home. These youngsters are still keeping in shape out here in athletics as they did in the states. We have baseball fields, volley ball and basketball courts, tennis, and we even stay with the good old American game of "Pitching Horseshoes."

They are not interested in athletics alone. As an example of what I mean, there is a telephone switchboard operator just a few desks behind me taking care of his job. After about nine o'clock there is very little telephone work and he then has some spare time. One would think he might just sit and read, but no, he is studying mathematics. He is working for the next higher rate in his branch of the Navy. I have noticed these young fellows all over the base, busy with their studies. I don't mean to say that all of them study, because they do not, but hundreds of them do, and I know they will get ahead.

I can see the older men at night as they slowly read the letter from home, and they are now answering it. I can see in their faces as they write, their love for the family and how they would like to be back home.

Monroe, as long as I see these fellows in their true colors out here, I have no fear for America in the future. These youngsters and the older men will return to the U. S. A. much better citizens, and I hope the folks treat them as good citizens when they return and not as heroes, to be soon forgotten.

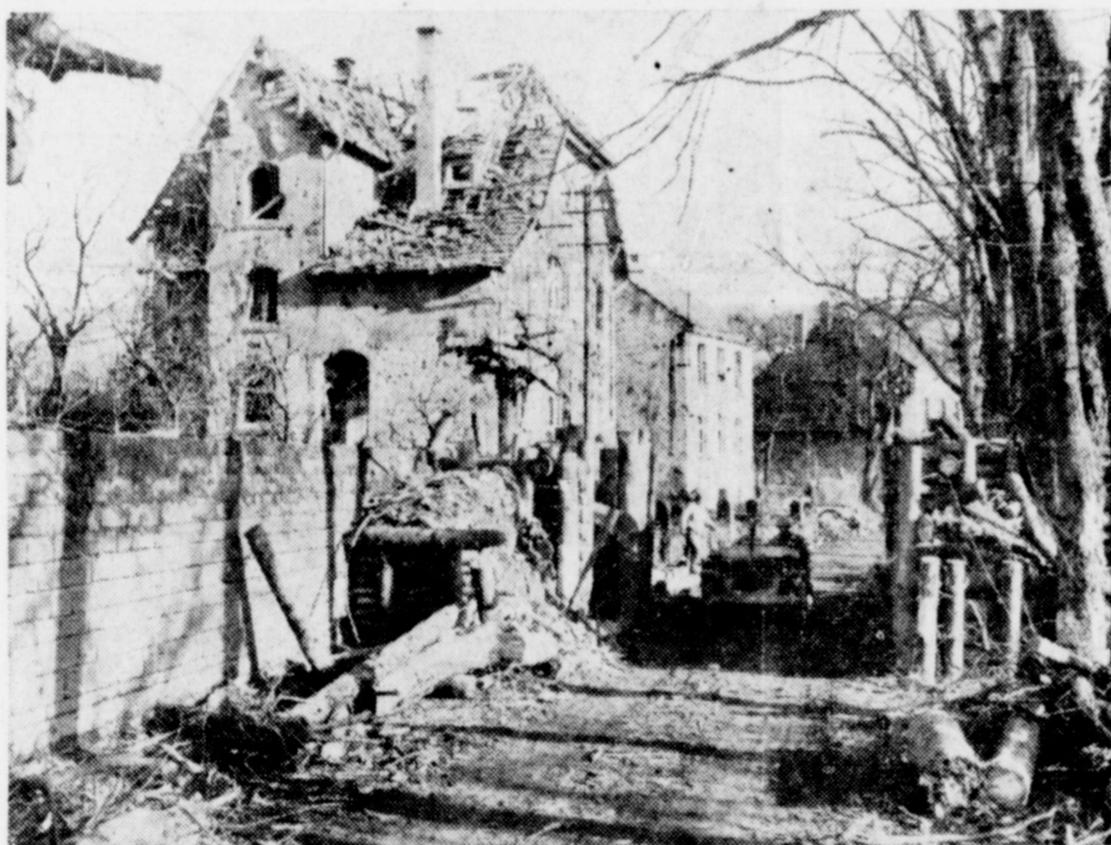

Your friend,
E. L. JACKSON.

A 21st Bomber Command announcement also increased the areas leveled in the two previous mammoth fire raids to 17 square miles in Tokyo and two square miles in Nagoya.

Senators Protest Exportation Food When Scarce Here

WASHINGTON, March 14. — Protests against heavy food exports under lease-lend and the United Nations & Relief and Rehabilitation Adm. are being voiced in the Senate.

Senators also expressed belief that the new interagency committee designed to filter foreign food requests had come too late.

Sen. James O. Eastland, Democrat, Mississippi, endorsed the new committee and said he hoped it would immediately make available salt meat and other items of essential diet for southern laborers.

"If this is not done I shall ask the Congress to correct the situation by appropriate legislation," Eastland said.

The food situation in the south already is "desperate," he said.

Dr. Rainey Not Certain What He Will Do, He Says

FT. WORTH, March 14.— The question whether Dr. Homer P. Rainey, ousted president of the University of Texas will enter the Texas governor's race next year was left unanswered by the educator here but he did not close the door to the possibility he will be a candidate if pressed by his supporters.

Dr. Rainey, here for an address at First Baptist church before a meeting sponsored by the Fort Worth Young Democrats and the Women's Committee for Educational Freedom, declared "I am not running for governor" but added that he could not say he would refuse to run if pressed.

He came here from Dallas, where he conferred with Tom C. Gooch, president of the Dallas Times-Herald, concerning that newspaper's offer to pay $5,000 to a charitable organization if the educator could prove his assertions that the university regents are interfering with academic freedom.

MEN AND MATERIAL STREAM ACROSS 2 BRIDGES TO RE-FORCE 70,000 SHOCK TROOPS

PARIS, March 11.—First Army troops have captured Honnef, providing a firm northern anchor for their Rhine bridgehead, into which men and material streamed across two bridges Wednesday to reinforce 70,000 shock troops the Germans said already were there.

Moving forward through the forested hills east of the Rhine in a dawn attack, the Americans captured the town of St. Catharinen, four miles northeast of Linz and seven miles directly east of a large bend in the river. The infantry moved on beyond less than two miles from the Ruhr-Frankfurt-on-the-Main superhighway. Kaetzehaus, five miles east of the Rhine, was cleared and Kalenborn was entered.

Honnef, a picturesque watering place of 9,000 was the largest place yet conquered in the Remagen bridgehead. Significantly, it was in the area where Field Marshal von Model displayed his greatest resistance.

Their strength increased over a new pontoon bridge, erected under fire Saturday, and the prized Ludendorff bridge which the Germans still tried resolutely to cut with heavy shells and bombs.

A Berlin broadcast declared Wednesday that German planes had scored direct hits on the Remagen bridge and on a pontoon bridge near by.

The Ludendorff bridge still was reported in a frontline dispatch, however, to be functioning at 9:30 a. m. Wednesday. The double-tracked 1,200-foot bridge has been reported hit numerous times, but Associated Press correspondents at the front said it was repaired swiftly. Pontoon bridges usually are quickly mended.

The 1st Army still fought in Hoenningen in the drive down the Rhine bank 16 miles from Coblenz. It was disclosed that the new pontoon bridge across the Rhine was put into position somewhere south of the Ludendorff bridge.

The bridgehead had been elbowed into an assault base from 11 to 13 miles along the Rhine and up to almost six miles in depth. The Germans reported a new Rhine crossing two miles down river from Honnef at Koenigswinter, 20 miles from Cologne and the Ruhr.

To the south, the 3rd Army cleared the western bank of the Moselle River save for stragglers and opened a new drive across the top of the industrial Saar district which carried nine and a half miles east of Saarburg and the Siegfried Line.

Thirteen towns were captured, mostly on the east side of the Moselle. The fighting was in the rugged Hochwald and Hunsrueck Mountains, which made progress slow.

General Patton's army captured a record bag of 6,619 prisoners Tuesday raising its nine-day total to 27,127. Most of these surrendered in Eifel pockets sealed off by swift armored columns.

The 1st Army captured 1,263 prisoners Tuesday, bringing its campaign total since crossing the Roer Feb. 23 to 37,671. Patton's 3rd Army, attacking since Jan. 30, has seized 63,288. The British, Canadian and 9th Armies in the north took 50,477 in their campaigns to the Rhine through and behind the Siegfried Line.

The total of 151,436 Germans, plus perhaps an equal number killed or seriously wounded showed that General Eisenhower had achieved a large degree of success in his avowed objective of destroying Germans west of the Rhine. Those who escaped lost much of their heavy equipment; they needed rest and reorganization which they hardly had time to attain with the Allies on or across the Rhine for 150 miles from Coblenz to Holland.

The Germans were increasingly nervous about the Canadians, British and U. S. 9th Armies on the Lower Rhine, predicting an "imminent Rhine crossing" between Emmerich and the Dutch border. Patrols of both sides tested opposing strength in the Duisburg region. The 9th Army captured 30 and killed two Germans of a party of 36 which crossed the Rhine in their sector.

Army Investigative Records to Be Confidential

WASHINGTON, March 14. — Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson has told congress that army confidential and will not be revealed to legislative investigating committees.

Stimson's statement was in a letter to Chairman Ewing Thomson, Democrat, Texas, of a House Military Affairs Subcommittee investigating charges that Communists have been commissioned in the Army.

He told Thomson that investigative records are for use only by the Secretary of War and Chief of Staff. They include testimony from civilians and FBI reports. They were obtained on the promise that they would be kept in confidence, he said.

Maj. Gen. Clayton Bissell, chief of Army Intelligence, told the committee he would make the "201 files"—records of an individual's conduct in service—available in closed session. But he said he could not reveal any details of the personnel investigation.

Bissell previously told the committee there were no Communists holding Army commissions. He was recalled to testify after the naes of 15 men with alleged Communist affiliations were published.

DON'T HOBBLE OIL INDUSTRY.

One of the nation's leading oil men, when asked his opinion as to the total of our potential oil reserves, said: "I do not have the remotest idea, and neither does anyone else. But on the basis of past experience, it appears that we have explored only about half the potential oil lands in the continental United States." He then pointed out that the only way to find out what is in the unexplored part is to drill holes and see.

"Given reasonable encouragement and without unnecessary deterrents by governmental interference, it is the consensus of our industry that, if necessary, it can supply the people of the United States with oil from within its borders for many years to come. The oil industry is concerned about the present situation, for it is a stupendous job to supply the enormous war requirements, and we don't like to have to cut down the civilian supply. The present situation is one for concern because, momentarily, we are using oil faster than we are making new discoveries. The primary reason for that is that we are not drilling enough exploratory wells and the reasons for that are a shortage of materials due to other war demands for these same materials; a serious shortage of skilled manpower; and a frozen price structure which we do not think sufficiently encourages wildcatting. We cannot find oil unless we hunt for it. Every oil man is convinced that, as soon as the restrictive influences I mentioned disappear, new and rich oil reservoirs will be found." If the American oil industry had not been developed to the highest state of efficiency before the war, it could not have even begun to carry on the global war in which this nation is engaged. That in itself should be sufficient warning that our national oil policy should be one which not merely conserves our oil resources, but which encourages their development along increasingly progressive and scientific lines.

FREE MARKETS.

Although Russia and Germany have entirely different backgrounds and traditions, it is no accident that over-all economic planning for government control or ownership of all productive activity has blocked the existence of democratic institutions in both countries.

Where a central government assumes responsibility for operating the economic system or of assuring employment, the free expression of the will of the members of that society is incompatible with the functioning of such a planned economy. Such control of a nation's production and distribution inevitably destroys a free market, and without a free market, individual freedom which permits man to carry on private enterprise and buy and sell as he sees fit, cannot exist. It is becoming more generally recognized that a peaceful world in the future will depend largely upon free markets — the interchange of goods and services between nations. Therefore, it is logical that the greatest possible freedom of opportunity in production and distribution should exist in the United States in order to insure freedom and opportunity at home. But, instead of that, we already find a well-planned program reaching far into the future, after the war has ended, to control production and distribution, even down to retail trade.

Those in charge of so-called postwar planning seem not to understand the driving force of individual incentive which flows from free opportunity to produce and sell. The limit of their vision seems to be to ration constantly dwindling supplies, rather than promote conditions which increase production, with resulting increased sales of food and commodities of all kinds, with countless new jobs resulting therefrom.

While our national government talks about free markets abroad, let it not forget that the success of such a policy so far as the United States is concerned, rests first upon a national policy that encourages free markets at home where the initiative of the individual is not restricted by some government bureau at every turn.

BEES NEED BUMBERSHOOTS?

They say that "bees never get caught in the rain." Maybe you claim you've seen different. But the changed natural light as a storm approaches is supposed to make bees get busy and fly home. They may be weather-wise or not. But you've simply got to be!—for Spring weather demands an oil change in the car you cannot replace, and Conoco Nth motor oil will give your engine OIL-PLATING for extreme resistance to wear—

That's really how to hold down carbon, gum and sludge.

That's really how to keep up engine power.

That's really how to get good mileage from your oil and your gasoline.

The special life-giving quality of OIL-PLATING comes from patented Conoco Nth oil's additional ingredient—a climax of notable research. This effort developed the magnet-like effect that makes metal attract OIL-PLATING—lubricant fastened square in the path of friction. And you can credit the same intensive research with making your OIL-PLATED engine defy corrosion.

Then both worst causes of wear are curbed. And you're safer from lay-ups — junking — walking! Surely Conoco Nth is worth its slight extra cost. OIL-PLATE today. Continental Oil Company

MORE ABOUT THE SAME THING

The abstract, contrary to a rather general opinion does not cure the title, but rather reveals its condition, good or bad. Three things are strived for in the abstract. (1) To locate the property by field notes and plats. (2) To discover the true ownership as the records may reveal it. (3) To detect the liens and encumbrances, if any. The abstract serves many other useful purposes, but these three are most important.

JOINT PROGRAMS WERE PRESENTED TUESDAY.

The women's missionary union of First Baptist church met Tuesday afternoon to hear programs presented by the Sunbeams and girls' auxiliary organizations. The meeting opened with group singing of "We've a Story to Tell To the Nations," followed with prayer by Mrs. A. B. Cooper.

Mrs. E. J. Poe, president spoke a few words of appreciation of the WMU auxiliaries and their efficient leaders and then turned the meeting to Mrs. Cecil Adams, Sunbeam sponsor.

Mrs. Adams brought a splendid devotional, setting forth the tragedy of failing the younger generation in a spiritual way. At the close she requested the group to sing a stanza of "Onward Christian Soldiers" while the Sunbeams marched in to present their program. The program consisted of scripture quotations and songs by the children; in which they reflected the splendid training given them and displayed their own ability and aptness to learn.

The Junior girls' auxiliary then gave a good program which was illustrated by various members in costumes representing the foreigners who are in our states. Mrs. N. S. New, sponsor, was unable to be present but had given practical instruction to the group which was shown by their ability to put on the program in her absence. The two programs were much enjoyed.

A short business session was conducted by the president and garments were assembled for shipment to Buckner orphan home. The circle count was made and Mrs. F. D. Wright read a letter of appreciation from the gray ladies of Brownwood for donations and co-operation.

WATCH YOUR GUN.

The Sportsman's Service Bureau of the Sporting Arms and Ammunition Manufacturers' Institute issues a warning against the use of any gun with a barrel that has become dented. Such action courts rupture to the piece, with attendant risk of injury to the shooter. If the barrel of your gun becomes dented, do not, under any circumstances, try to "shoot out" such dents. Have the piece repaired by the maker or a fully competent gunsmith. And while we are on the subject, here's a reminder that all shotguns having Damascus or twist barrels, no matter how beautiful or expensive they may be, are unsafe for use with any shell loaded with a modern smokeless powder.
