Modern household

needs more hot water than ever before

With acres of dishes and miles of clothes to wash in one year, the modern household needs double the amount of hot water which was required to run a home a few years ago. In fact, 85 percent of the water used inside the home today is hot. So having enough hot water is all important, especially if you use automatic washers and home laundries.

The new gas automatic water heaters are designed especially to meet this need of the modern household. They are fast. They are worry-free. They are most economical to operate. If you're planning to modernize your hot water service, to enlarge it to care for the many uses for hot water today, make sure you size it to your family needs.
