TRI-STATE POULTRY SHOW

The fifth annual Tri-State Show that is to be held at Amarillo, December 3rd to 8th, from all indications will be one of the best poultry shows in the Southwest, both in quality and number of birds shown.

Inquiries and requests for entrance blanks have been received from Oregon, Nebraska, Michigan, Colorado, and Kansas, as well as all over Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Great interest is being manifested because this showing of standard bred fowls, such as chickens, turkeys, ducks, geese and guineas will give the large number of breeders throughout the Panhandle an opportunity to enter their fine birds and to buy new and number of breeders have started raising finer stock for their flocks. A large ing chickens on a commercial scale in the past few months since it has become so well known that this section was so ideally located on account of the excellent climate, the abundant in cheap feed stuffs, and the strong local market. This show will very likely do much toward creating a greater demand on the part of the breeders for better blooded stock.

Breeders of the pet stock are also the Tri-Statte Poultry Show, and a invited to display their specimen at large variety of rabbits, pigeons, canaries, pea fowls, parrots and other pets are expected. In the past there has been as many as three pet agls on display.

This show is hld under the auspices of the Panhandle Poultry Association of Amarillo in the Municipal Auditorium and is made free of charge to the public. The officials of the show are making big plans to make it the best ever held in the Panhandle, and the public is urged to visit it and see some of the finest poultry specimens in the booked chickens coupled with the ideal local conditions are the reason why Amarillo eggs bring a premium of $1.00 per case on the markets of Dallas, Fort Worth, Oklahoma City and Kansas City.

The aggregate prizes for the individual and county exhibits total $1500. To take care of the fine birds, the directors have $1000 of upto-date steel coops. The show is a member of the American Poultry Association, and has two of its directors as judges. They are E. C. Branch, Lees Summit, Mo., and Walter Barton, Arlington,

MOODY TO AIR FACTS IN HIGHWAY SUIT

AUSTIN, Nov. 28.—Because he believes the people of Texas deserve to hear threshed out in court the charge that the Hoffman Construction company has made unreasonable profits on state highway contracts, he has not even considered making a settlement with the company, Attorney General Dan Moody said today. This statement was made after a two hour conference with Earl Conner and John D. McRae of Eastland, and R. L. Bates of Austin, attorneys for the construction company.

Attorneys for the company offered Friday to accept obligation for re-treatment of six hundred miles of highway, or, as an alternative, to settle on the proportionate terms, upon which the American Road Company confessed judgment. This offer is a part of the formal answer which will be filed Monday in the fifty-third district court.

The charge has been made that in letting the contract to the Hoffman construction company, certain officials abused their authority and discretion. I think the public is entitled to know the facts a court hearing will develop," Moody said.

The attorney general said attorneys for the construction company while in a conference had made no definite offer for a settlement. "I gathered from their talk, however, they would like to settle," he said. We spent most of the time discussing some of the evidence likely to be offered."

In the suit filed by Moody against the construction company it is alleged the price of thirty cents a square yard at which a contract for asphalt surfacing f 600 miles was let, was unreasonable and yielded an unconscionable profit. The state is now suing for $100,000 damages, cancellation of all highway contracts, and prevention of payment of $351,000 due the company from the state.

Caloric Requirements of the Child

DIETITIANS declare that the average boy or girl of four years should receive about forty calories a pound of body weight per day. The average weight of a child of four years is forty pounds. Therefore the total caloric requirement would be approximately 1,600 calories. Calory is merely the name for a certain measure of heat derived from the burning of food.

Necessarily, the caloric requirement of the child is dependent on his temperament, since a child who plays hard and long requires more nourishment than one who leads a quieter life. Rate of growth also has a bearing on caloric requirements. The child who is growing rapidly should be given more food to meet his caloric needs than the boy or girl whose growth is normal.

Mothers know the daily diet should consist of the essential foodstuffs, protein, carbohydrates, fats, minerals and water. The important thing for her is to learn the foods that contain these essentials in a balanced diet. Below is a well-balanced menu for a child six years old compiled by an authority on home economics.

- Children often become wearied of drinking plain milk. Mixing their milk with fruit juices is a welcome change. Following is the recipe for a refreshing milk drink: Mix 1/2 cupful orange juice, 1/4 cupful evaporated milk, three teaspoonfuls of sugar, 1/4 teaspoonful of lemon juice and a few grains of salt. Shake well in a fruit jar before serving.

GOODNIGHT TALKS OF EARLY DAYS

Charlie Goodnight, probably the oldest settler of the Panhandle, was interviewed the other day, and corrected some Texas history. Among other things he denied that Quannah

Parker's father, Peta Nocona, had been killed by Sul Ross. In this he agrees with Quannah Parker, who used to tell us that after the battle near Medicine Mounds, when Cynthia Ann Parker was captured by Texas Rangers, his father, Peta, used to moan and cry for months over the loss of his wife. And he died several years later.

Rather tragic as Cynthia Ann herself never could become reconciled to civilized life and died of homesickness two years after her capture.

Captain Goodnight told the reporter: "No, sir, Sul Ross did not shoot and kill Peta Nocona, Indian husband of Cynthia Ann Parker," Goodnight said, "I was on that scouting expedition and I know that the Indian was not killed, all the current stories to the contrary. He lived many years after that raid. I remember well how surprised we were when we found Cynthia to be a white woman. She had lived so long with the Indians that she was one of them and we should by rights have let her go back. She died of a broken heart two years after we took her. Her 3-months-old baby died in a few months. She was the saddest woman I ever saw.

"After the expedition we returned to Waco. While we were eating in a place in the back of a blacksmith shop everybody was talking about the raid. I didn't say anything because I didn't want to talk about it. But when I got outside the door I met John Parker and he asked me about the woman we had taken. I told him to walk a piece away with me, as I didn't want to talk to the crowd. She's a blonde and a German, I told him, and she's 27 years old.

"That's her, then," Parker said. "She is my niece, captured when she was a baby." When he saw her and asked her name she remembered and they both recognized their relationship.

People seem to think that there were only a few Indian tribes in Texas in the sixties. There were warriors of all the known Indian tribes. The Comanches were the most warlike and the Tonkaways were friends of the white man. The Kiowas and the Apaches were numerous, but there were many other tribes. The Comanches completely annihilated a tribe of Indians and I am inclined to think that stack of bones recently found on the road out of Victoria is the remains of that Indian tribe cut down with one swoop by the barbaric Comanches. I forgot the name of the tribe, but I remember the incident.

"Indians are poor shooters. I reckon I have been shot at and missed more times than any man living," but I would not say so because nobody would believe me and I wouldn't blame them. There is so much hot air shot about the pioneer days. It's a big nuisance to be an old frontiersman." Goodnight related the story of a stampede. About midnight he and his assistants had the cattle quieted. Very tired, they threw buffalo hides on the tall grass and fell asleep. Indians came. Goodnight heard them and lay very still. Arrows began to fly. One of them hit the grass beside his buffalo hide, grazed the hide and went directly under it without touching his body.

The hired man who slept on another hide nearby was not so lucky. An arrow struck him in the back of his neck and went upward toward the brain. Goodnight pulled it out while two men held the injured victim. Jerking the arrow with all his strength, Goodnight lifted the three men clear off the ground. After a persistent struggle that must have resembled a wrestling match in some measure, the arrow was withdrawn. Strange to say, the victim recovered.

"I put good cold mud on the wound," Goodnight said. "There is no better disinfectant than good, cold mud. Bill Peever had the same kind of wound and they put hot mud on him and he died. It takes a cold mud poultice to be effective."

Shot in the eyebrow with an arrow from an Indian's bow, Jim Tackett, a friend of Goodnight's left the protruding steel in his head for two months. The explanation for the unusual procedure was that if the arrow were removed the brain would be injured and the man would go crazy. Left in the flesh until it festered and came out of its own accord, it was harmless. And Goodnight, adds, "Sure enough, it came out after two months' hanging there and old Jim was as healthy as I am."

Picturing Indians as poor shooters, Goodnight upset some traditions laid down by other pioneers. Excited Indians shot wild, according to Goodnight. Corner them and make them afraid and they shiver with excitement, their bows tremble, and their arrows do not hit the mark. W. D. Reynolds told of having the fold of his coat sleeve inside the elbow ripped by an arrow without an injury to his arm. In turn he raised his rifle and shot the Indian's bowstring. Panic stricken the buck threw up his hands and cried "Omega," the Indian cry of peace. Reynolds said the white men failed to hear the cry and a moment later the feather Comanche was dead.

"Somebody up in New York asked me if I didn't take good care of my hair," Goodnight said. "I told him I sure did take good care of it for 10 years to keep the damned Indians from getting it." At 90, the ranchman has abundant snow-white hair.

He told of seeing scalps collected by the Indians piled higher than his head. Among them was the lovely long brown hair of a young girl he had been to church with the Sunday before. On this occasion he complied with a request made by his friends, one of the Lynn brothers. Indian marauders had killed his sister and left her two children. He was bitter and asked all men in the community to watch out for a scalp for him. Goodnight sent him one from the pile.

One of the Lynn brothers asked Goodnight to send him an Indian scalp. The request had vengeance for a motive. Marauders had killed Lynn's sister and left her two children to perish. Their father was out with the cattle. He returned two days later to find his children crying with hunger, the baby nursing its dead mother's breast.

"A few weeks after I sent the Indian scalp to Lynn, I went over to see him," Goodnight related. "It had been raining for a long time and the cabins were damp. When I went in there sat old Lynn over by the fireplace. He had the Indian scalp sizzling it over the fire on the end of an iron rod. Turning it around time after time so that the heat would penetrate every part of the hideous thing; he sat there fascinated at his own occupation. Only the under skin portion was in process of barbecuing, old Lynn was very careful not to scorch the hair. I asked him why he was parching the scalp and he answered, "The weather's so wet and damp I was feared the damn thing would rot." There were Indian barbarism also. At Fort Griffin back in the sixties a prize fight was staged. One Tonkaway Indian and a Comanche engaged in combat. The countryside was amused and excited much as the crowd at a bull or prize fight. Both combatants were killed. The Tonkaways removed both fighters, buried their own with proper ceremony. They roasted and ate the dead Comanche. Tonkaways believed that to eat a portion of their dead enemy made them brave, and they never missed an opportunity to increase their bravery.

Indians stole both cattle and children from the whites and traded them to the Mexicans. Goodnight has frequently made money offers for children as well as cattle. He tried to induce the Mexicans to accept children from Indians so that he could buy them from the Mexicans and return them to their own parents. He was never able to effect such a deal.

Castile, a Tonkaway chief, took revenge one day on an Indian doctor. His baby daughter was very sick. He called the doctor, who administered herbs to her. But the child died. Castile was infuriated and promptly killed the doctor who did not cure her. With all their cannibalism and furious tribal laws, the Tonkaways were friendly. Charles Goodnight regrets that Texas did not give them a permanent home.

"It's a shame Texas didn't give the good Indians a home," he said. "I'm proud that oil has been struck on their land, though I want them to have everything good the white man can give them because they did us no harm but were always good. The Camanches were the ones who killed our white men, stole from us to sell to the Mexicans and a thousand other depredations. "You know the Kiowas were really Eskimos," Goodnight said. They came down in sleds drawn by dogs and once in Texas they joined the Comanches."

An aged white interpreter for whom Goodnight seems to have had an affection froze to death near Wichita Falls. In recalling the death, Goodnight said: "Old McCuster came and asked me for money. The smallest bill I had was $20 so I gave it to him. He went and bought whiskey with it, got drunk and on the way back to camp he fell and froze to death before morning. I always know I contributed to his death, but of course, I didn't do it a purpose."

Only one notch on his gun is the claim of Charles Goodnight. In more Indians fights than he can count or remember he claims only one Indian to his credit. He doesn't object to any man claiming all the dead ones he can carry, but he says a band of men shooting at a band of men, everybody shooting wild and to kill that it is a little difficult to figure out whose shot killed an Indian. He may have killed more, but he is sure of only one and so his claim of one notch only. Notches are the pride of pioneers because those were the days when to kill was honorable and even valorous.

SAND HILL NEWS

Singing was held at Mr. Letpich's home Sunday night. A large crowd attended and many songs were sung. We hardly ever miss a Sunday night singing. Just call up some one in the community and find out where it is and come. Every one is invited, old folks and all.

Grady Moore, who is attending the Tech at Lubbock spent Friday, Saturday and Sunday at home on a sick leave.

Yimmie Yonson's Yob, the P. T. C. Society's latest play was presented at Petersburg last Saturday night in a most laughable fashion. The crowd that attended it seemed to enjoy it more than any play we have presented in a long time.

Remember that tomorrow night is the time set for the free for all contest program at Sand Hill. The boys and girls will each give an hour program. The five judges will then decide whose program was the most enjoyable. The losing side will then entertain. We want you all to see this evening of enjoyment. Some business of the Society will be attended to at this meeting.

Three of the judges have been selected to date. The other two will be selected the night of the program. All judges must be from outside communities. The three judges selected are: Mr. G. L. Snodgrass of Harmony, Mr. E. R. Harris of Pleasant Valley, Mr. Homer Steen of Floydada.

Paris Suits Reveal Chic Elaboration

The French, with their talent for ingenuity, find opportunity for exercising it in all the modes for fall. Here is a formal two-piece suit of smooth faced cloth, embellished with embroidery and fur. Its outstanding features are the huge collar and the short coat length that distinguish the design; in these particulars it is exceptional.

Texas Youth in School.

Reports from all over Texas are that there is everywhere an increased attendance in the schools. Most of the colleges and universities have an increase of from 10 to 20 per cent over last year's attendance. This shows that both parents and children in Texas are awakened to the value of an education. Thousands of parents are making great sacrifices in order that their children may be equipped for better living and better service, and scores of organizations of many kinds are rendering assistance to students who might otherwise have to stay out of school. Say what we will about the frivolity of youth, we must confess that the young people of today are getting a better education than their parents have, and there is every indication that this generation will go far ahead of the last in attainment of every kind. Texas seems determined not to stay behind.

Better Roads in Texas.

From all sections of Texas the newspapers bring reports of increased interest in road building. A session of the State Highway Commission at Austin now draws nearly as many people as a legislative session. These are petitioners for State aid, highway contractors, and politicians who are thought to have some sort of a "pull." Immense sums are being invested in roads, and counties are figuring in terms of million dollar bonds that a few years ago would have been frightened at a $100,000 bond issue.

There is one danger, and only one, in all this good roads movement. Officials and people alike may become extravagant and wasteful. There are already rumors afloat that there is much waste and that Texas roads are costing too much money for the kind of roads that are being constructed. It is up to the people to see that they get full value for their investment in roads and up to the officials in charge of road building to protect the people.

Make Aviation Safe.

Colonel Mitchell, of the aviation service, stationed at San Antonio, has drawn to himself much commendation and criticism by his statements in regard to inefficiency in the aviation service. The people are largely in accord with him, and the officials in aviation say his charges are without foundation, and that Mitchell is just trying to get in the spotlight. Whether Colonel Mitchell is right or wrong in his charges, there is a feeling that there is much unnecessary loss of life in the aviation service, and it is hoped that his criticisms will result in improvement. Every parent who has had or has a son in the service is praying that Mitchell's complaints may secure immediate action looking to safer flying.

Music a Part of Education.

When the parents of today were in school, music was regarded somewhat as a needless acquirement for children. There was a kind of regard for music, for people have always loved melody, but to study it in school was regarded as a waste of time. Those who gave their lives to it were classed, along with poets, as somewhat queer and freakish—hardly responsible citizens. There were a few piano players everywhere, a few fiddlers, a few song leaders, but most people did not think it worth while to study music beyond a few lessons at a "night singing school" and these were largely excuses for the boys and girls to get together in a common meeting place. Music has come into its own, and is a recognized study in the public schools. Children without love for music are the ones now classed as "queer." Every school that can afford it—and most of them can—now employs its music teacher, who is an important member of the faculty.

Cornal River to Furnish Power.

Five dams are to be constructed along the Cornal river from New Braunfels to a point five miles below Reguila and the water will be used for furnishing power to industrial plants. The time will come when all such streams in Texas will be used in manufacturing. In a few years more Texas will become as noted for manufacturing as it now is for agriculture and stock raising, but that will be after Texas comes to appreciate its water and to conserve it.

Texas Technological College.

The Technological College at Lubbock has started with a splendid attendance of students, largely from that part of the State. In time it should become a great school, and if it is made a technological school in fact as well as in name, its influence upon the future of Texas will be immeasurably large. It has a splendid opportunity for leading in the movement to make Texas the greatest textile manufacturing State in the Union.

Paper Issues County History.

The Wellington Leader has set a good example for other papers by issuing a history of Collingsworth county, a neat book of over 200 pages. Texas needs to know more of its history, and the Leader has set a good example that other newspapers should follow. The local paper is in better position than any other agency to gather and print local history. Should this be done in every county, much historical information would be brought to light. The writer thanks the Leader for a copy of this valuable county history and is glad to pass the idea along to other papers.

Caloric Requirements of the Child

DETITANS declare that the average boy or girl of four years should receive about forty calories a pound of body weight per day. The average weight of a child of four years is forty pounds. Therefore the total caloric requirement would be approximately 1,600 calories. Calory is merely the name for a certain measure of heat derived from the burning of food.

Necessarily, the caloric requirement of the child is dependent on his temperament, since a child who plays hard and long requires more nourishment than one who leads a quieter life. Rate of growth also has a bearing on caloric requirements. The child who is growing rapidly should be given more food to meet his caloric needs than the boy or girl whose growth is normal.

Mothers know the daily diet should consist of the essential foodstuffs, protein, carbohydrates, fats, minerals and water. The important thing for her is to learn the foods that contain these essentials in a balanced diet. Below is a well-balanced menu for any child six years old compiled by an authority on home economics.

EXPLANATION OF PROPOSED LOCKNEY FUEL ASSOCIATION

An explanation of what the proposed Consumers Fuel Association, and its probable effect on the Commercial Fuel Association, and its probable effect on the Commercial life of Lockney, is as follows:

The Consumers Fuel Association of Lockney Texas will be a chartered institution, chartered under the laws of the State of Texas.

The capitol stock will be $5000.00 fully paid. Four hundred shares will be issued and sold at the par value of $12.50 per share. Stock now assessable. The object of the association will be to distribute to its members at cost plus a small handling charge, gasoline, coal oil, lubricating oils, and other by products of petroleum. The charter will also provide for the handling of coal but coal will not be handled the first year and probably not for some time, if ever.

Anyone can buy the products handled by the Association, but only members can buy on a cost plus basis. Non members will be charged the prevailing wholesale and retail prices.

It is not the object of the association to come in direct competition with other dealers or to cut prices. As stated before, only members can buy at the cost plus price.

The charter will provide that the association will be non profit sharing, no dividends will be issued, there will be no coupons to clip, share holders will only make by the saving in price.

It has been asserted by some of our citizens that a business operated on the basis as above set out, would be detrimental to the commercial interests of Lockney.

If I had believed that to be a fact I would have never consented to act as chairman of the organization committee.

I take exactly the opposite view, and in as brief way as possible, I will give you the situation as I view it and let you draw your own conclusions as to wether or not it will be a benefit or hindrance to the commercial interests of the town.

On investigation I found that eight hundred shares of stock in the organization almost identical with the one we propose had been sold and paid for in Floyd Co. I also found that a large per cent of the residents in this vicinity were going to nearby towns for all their petroleum products. It is also a fact that when you go ten or fifteen miles to fill the flivver tank or get a few barrels of gas or oil for the tractor you will buy your other supplies. The towns that offer the best inducements get the trade and justify so.

Until the past few days no effort has been made to hold the trade that justly belongs to Lockney or to retrieve that she has lost by reason of not having an association heretofore. I believe that to meet the competition of neighboring towns it is absolutely necessary to form distributing agencies similar to theirs.

It is a fact that at this time association members at Floydada can fill their gas tanks for eight cents less per gallon than in Lockney where there is no association.

It is also a fact that filling station men in Lockney have to pay two cents a gallon more to the wholesaler than filling station men in Floydada. The above were the exact figures when I made the investigation.

It is not my intention to cast any reflection what ever on the Lockney dealers. On the contrary it is a hard problem for them to meet the competition of neighboring towns. The impression seems to be that Lockney gasoline dealers are making more than dealers of other Floyd county towns when in reality they are not.

There is not the remotest probability that petroleum products will ever be sold as cheap in Lockney, in either wholesale or retail lots as it is in neighboring towns unless a distributing agency is formed. Respt, Wm. McGehee.

MUST HAVE HEADLIGHT RECEIPT TO GET LICENSE

The Texas Automobile Headlight Law requires that every motorist, at the time of registration, present to the Tax Collector a headlight certificate which has been issued by a test station within thirty days of the date of registration. If the car or truck to be registered is not equipped with headlamps, the registrant will be permitted to make affidavit to that effect and this affidavit will take the place of a headlight certificate. Early testing and registration will help the test stations and the Tax Collector, and will save time for the motorist. Motorists cannot obtain a headlight certificate for registration purposes on a re-test. The re-test provision of the law permits a retest as any time during the year, but the certificate presented for registration must be a "test" certificate and must be paid for. In other words, headlamps are "tested" at the beginning of each year for registration purposes, and at this time the regular yearly fee of twenty-five cents must be paid. At any time the regular yearly fee of twenty-five cents must be paid. At any time during the year following, a re-test may be had free of charge until the next registration period begins.

After the coming pre-registration tests, there will not be another set test until the 1927 registration period begins. Throughout the year, however, a constant check will be made on the headlighting conditions in the various parts of the State. Enforcement work is in the hands of local officers, and motorists are urged to co-operate with them in reporting bad headlighting conditions. There is no doubt that compliance with the Headlight Law will mean a great saving of property and human lives.
