Hung Jury in Bortz Case Tried Last Week

Next Week Will Be Non-jury Week In District Court—Trying Civil Cases This Week

The Bortz case, in which Mrs. Emma Bortz was charged with assault with intent to murder, took up most of the court's time last week, and after several days of testimony taking the case, was turned over to the jury, and they failed to reach a verdict. The case has been continued until the next term of District court, which will be held in the fall of this year.

Two civil cases have been disposed of up to Tuesday of this week: The First National Bank of Floydada vs. M. F. Husky, judgment for plaintiff with foreclosure proceedings.

Mrs. Emma Bonds was given the guardianship papers for Raymond, Doris, Fred, and Gay Morgan (her children). They formerly lived in this county, but she now resides in Holdenville, Okla.

There will be no jury for the court next week, and non-jury cases will be disposed of.

Mosley Says Bugs Moving

The bugs have been worrying the people considerable in these parts the last few weeks, mostly because they did not know what kinds of bugs they were having to contend with, nor how much damage the bugs would do. Some claim they are wheat bugs, and will lay a good supply of eggs that will hatch out this fall in the shape of "wireworms" and eat up the wheat crop.

They have done some damage by eating off the cotton just as it sprouts above the ground, but so far the farmers we have talked to say they bother the cotton near wheat fields, and not very far into the patch.

C. D. Mosley, one of Floyd county's Cotton Kings, says the bugs are leaving one field and going to the next as will be evidenced by people who are traveling the roads, and see many bugs crawling across the roads. However, Mosley says, (honestly) he doesn't believe that they are going to hurt the cotton very much, for as soon as the cotton gets above the ground the bugs do not bother it any more. Mosley has an optimistic view in regard to the bugs and says "If they eat up the wheat they will be a blessing to the country."

New Doctor At Lockney Drug Co.

Dr. P. C. Anders of Coleman, Texas, Moving to Lockney to Practice Medicine

Dr. P. C. Anders and family, of Coleman, Texas, will arrive in Lockney tomorrow (Friday) to make their home, and the doctor will open offices in the Lockney Drug Co. for the practice of medicine, in the offices formerly occupied by Drs. Henry.

Dr. Anders is a middle-aged man, and has a family of a wife and two sons, and they will be at home in the Watson residence, on South Main Street, their household furnishings having already arrived.

Dr. Anders came to Coleman, Texas, about six years ago from Kansas, so we are informed, having made only one move since he began the practice of medicine, and he comes to Lockney to make his permanent home, after having been here and thoroughly investigated the field. He is a physician and surgeon of known ability, and well known to several residents of the town.

ROOMS FOR PLATEAU VISITORS NEEDED

With everything pointing towards the largest crowd to ever assemble in the City of Lockney, the managers of the Plateau Singing convention are contemplating a shortage of living quarters for these people during the Saturday night that they will remain in this city. A number of people have listed their rooms while a large number are NEEDED to supply the demand.

If you have one room or more, notify Fay Guthrie at the Chamber of Commerce office.

The story-telling hour, which is being conducted every Wednesday and Friday morning by Mrs. C. J. McCollum in the Municipal club room is progressing rapidly. There were twenty-one children present Friday, and all children are invited to attend.

Floyd Huff returned from Floydada Thursday afternoon of last week, where he had been in court since Monday.

METHODIST PEOPLE VISIT METHODIST CAMP GROUND

A number of the members of the Methodist church and Sunday school of Lockney and Sterley joined in a caravan Sunday morning to the Methodist camp grounds, north of Tulla, where they spent the day visiting with Rev. and Mrs. T. B. Hilburn, who are in charge of the camp ground. The cause for the visit was that the friends of Rev. and Mrs. Hilburn from the Lockney and Sterley churches had contributed to the buying of a new oil stove to be presented to the Hilburns, and it was decided that the membership that desired to go for the visit, join in a caravan and spend the day with these good people, while presenting them with the present. The caravan left Lockney about 10:30 Sunday morning, arriving at the camp ground about one o'clock, where they spread a bountiful dinner, that had been provided by each of the families represented on the trip, after which services were held in the pavilion of the camp ground, and Bro. Hilburn preached to the visitors.

Those attending were Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Stephens and family, Mrs. M. E. Stephens, W. H. Fields and family, O. D. Wofford and family, E. R. Harris and family, E. J. Thomas and wife, B. F. Thomas, W. L. Thomas and family, C. H. Rose and family, T. F. Casey and wife, E. C. Cox and family, Hilburn Casey and wife, L. E. Reasonover and family, J. J. Harris and family, Mrs. T. T. Threet, Bryan Wells and wife, Mrs. Shaddix and family, R. E. Paterson and family, Paul Cooper and wife, R. C. McGilvary and family, Geo. Kinyon and wife, H. B. Adams and family, Myrtle Bradford, Jack Spence, Earl Rives and wife, Mrs. M. L. Keys of Mexia, Texas, Miss Annetta Johnson, Mrs. Webb, Olin Harris, Odine Fairly and wife, and Perry Casey and family of Morse, Texas, Mrs. Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Fairrey of Amarillo, Texas, Mr. and Mrs. Eli Lamb and family of Sudan, Texas.

NOTICE TO THOSE INTERESTED IN CEMETERY

The Cemetery Association made an attempt to set days to work the cemetery twice this year, and both times the weather was bad and the people could not respond to the call, so the Association has hired hands to clean up the cemetery, and ask that the people who are interested, and will contribute money to pay for the work, to please leave what money they wish to contribute at the First National Bank for the Cemetery Association. They are in need of funds to carry on this work, and all donations to this cause will be appreciated.

LONE STAR P. T. A. WILL HOLD CANDIDATE MEETING

The candidates of this county and district are asked to be present at a meeting at the Lone Star school house on Friday night, June 13th at eight o'clock of their association. A regular candidate program will be held, and each candidate will be given an opportunity to present his or her claims to the voters that will be present, states Mrs. Ruby Merrick, President of the P. T. A.

Scout Meeting

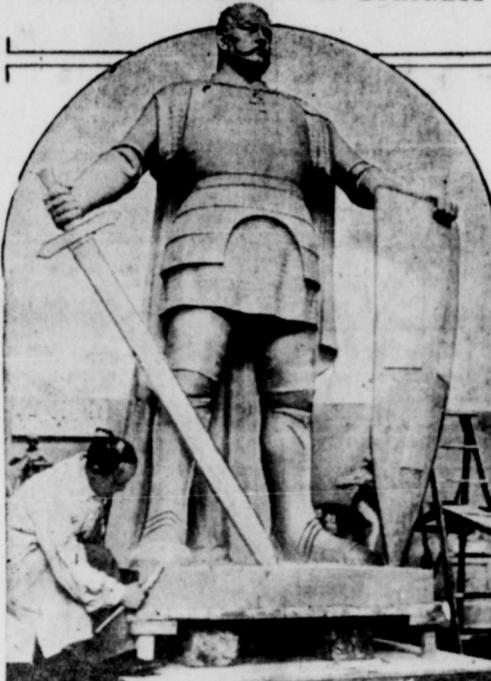

The boy scouts met at the Baptist church last Friday night. There were very few boys there, so we decided to dismiss for that night and meet every night, starting Monday, at 6:30 o'clock to practice for the rally which is to be the thirteenth and fourteenth of this month.

Envoy to Canada

Hanford MacNider, above, assistant secretary of war under Coolidge, has been appointed by President Hoover as minister to Canada. A business man of Mason City, Ia., MacNider was formerly national commander of the American Legion.

German President as Crusader

That posterity might look upon President Paul Von Hindenburg of Germany, as a crusader, this heroic statue, depicting the famed general in coat of armor, will be placed in one of the public squares of Bad Reinerz, in Schleswig. V. H. Seifert, the sculptor, is shown here beside his work.

Condensed Statement of City Financial Affairs As Made by Appointed Committee

On another page of this issue of the Beacon will be found a condensed statement of the financial affairs of the City of Lockney, as compiled by a committee, composed of M. R. Snyder, Leonard Brewster, and Clyde Cummings, appointed by the city council for the purpose.

While the statement is a summary of the collections and disbursements of the city over a period of time, it is not an itemized statement of the affairs, but any question that might arise over any item in the statement can be verified by the books of the city, to any one who wants to get a full and complete statement of any transaction regarding any item.

The statement has been made in an attempt to comply with the desires of the people of the town, by the council.

$8,000 FIRE DAMAGE TO FLOYDADA STORE

Floydada, June 4.—Fire and water last night damaged stock and fixtures of the M-System store here to the extent of $8,000, a preliminary estimate of the damage reveals. The damage has not yet been fully ascertained, pending a more thorough check of the store.

Fire was discovered last night about 8:30 by the manager of the store, Seaborn Teague, who was just ready to close the store up and leave for his home. It is thought that it originated from an open electric switch.

Only slight damage was done to the building.

MRS. JOHN MATTHEWS DIED AT PLAINVIEW FRIDAY

Mrs. Mollie B. (Phillips) Matthews, age 38 years, 2 months, and 26 days died at her home in Plainview Friday morning, May 30th, at 7:30 o'clock. Her baby, born a short time before, also died.

Mrs. Matthews was born in Duncan, Okla., on Nov. 28th, 1892, and was married to John Matthews in Floyd county on April 15th, 1915. She was a daughter of Geo. W. and L. E. Phillips, who have lived in Floyd county for many years, her mother is still living on a farm north of Lockney at this time. She is survived by her husband, and three sons, Clifford, age 14, Max Carl, 13, and James, 11, and the following brothers, Roy Phillips, Plainview; Lester Phillips, Amarillo; and Harley, Clinton, and Ebb, Lakeview, and one sister, Mrs. V. V. McKinney, of Plainview.

Funeral services were conducted at the Baptist church in Lockney Saturday afternoon by Rev. Joe Wilson of Idalou, and interment was in the Lockney cemetery.

Herman King spent Monday in Lubbock.

SUL ROSS STUDENT WINS IN ESSAYS ON "WHY BUY AT HOME"

R. G. Dunlap, a member of Sul Ross sub-college, was awarded first place by the Retail Merchants association for the best article submitted on the subject of "Why I Should Patronize the Home Business Institutions of Alpine." All the papers submitted by the various students were considered very good by the committee and it was a difficult matter to select the winners, according to the R. M. A. Each one showed a comprehensive grasp of the subject, and some of them proved conclusively that these younger citizens are well posted on the problems of the independent merchant as related to those of the chain system, it was stated. The winners in the different divisions were:

First place, all divisions—R. G. Dunlap, Sul Ross Sub-College.

Sul Ross Sub-College—First, R. G. Dunlap; second, Klydie Ballard; third, Lola Bess McCollum.

High school—First, Alice Blankenship; second, Turney Fletcher; third, Juliette Forchheimer.

Grammar School—First, Mary D. Scuday; second, Charles Benton Adams; third, Joyce Phelps.

College—First, Opal Chaffin; second, Virgil Davis.

Housewives—First, Mrs. S. L. Vail. Honorable mention—Grammar school, Melba McMurry, Reuben Allen, Ross Alvin Smith; High school, Elizabeth Baines; Sub-College, Marguerite Matthews.

All these articles written by the above students will be published in the Avalanche, using one or more each week. They contain much food for thought, and the R. M. A. in addition to awarding of the prizes is appreciative of the time and thought put into this contest by the various ones entered—Alpine Avalanche.

Crushed Beneath Wheels At Plainview Elevator

Crushed Beneath Wheels at Local Elevator Plant—Former Resident of Lockney

Plainview, June 1.—S. H. Rogers, 52, was instantly killed when he fell beneath a box car while working at the Harvest Queen Mill & Elevator here at 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Mr. Rogers was riding a loaded car of wheat, which had just been moved by Roy B. Brown, another employe of the elevator. He lost his balance and fell on the track, two wheels of the car passing over one arm and his body.

The body was almost severed by the wheel which struck it about the waist line. The other wheel cut off the left arm. Mr. Brown and other workmen hastened to him but could do nothing. Mr. Rogers has been doing similar work at the elevator the last two years.

He came here five years ago with his family from Lockney. Mrs. Rogers and the following children survive: Mrs. J. C. Davis, Lubbock; Miss Cassie Rogers, Ethrich, and Francis Stanley Rogers of Plainview.

The body was prepared for burial at the Lindsay Funeral Home and was removed to the family home, 1208 Independence.

Mr. Rogers was a member of the Plainview Church of Christ and the funeral services were held there.

CHURCHES

At the Methodist Church

At the Methodist church next Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock Mrs. Ancil Lynn, a returned missionary from Africa, will lecture. The entire church is invited. But the Sunday school children especially are invited to come. We are giving a linen shower for Miss Armstrong, a nurse, returning to Africa. Don't forget the linen.

At the Methodist Church

Regular services at the Methodist church next Sunday. We will observe communion at the 11 o'clock hour.

We wish all our people would attend church regular. Bring your friends, your company, and kinsfolks. The preacher would not saty at home if all his kinfolks came at once, you should do the same. He can't do any things with empty benches.

TEXAS THOUGHT

BY WAYE
(Editor's Note: Opinions expressed in this column do not necessarily constitute the editor's opinion. The column is reproduced as an impartial analysis of the political situation as seen from Austin.)

THE FERGUSON banner will be carried in this year's election by the wife, Jim, the husband, was held disqualified by a special supreme court. He said he wasn't surprised at the court's holding and immediately announced that his wife would enter the Ferguson name.

With one exception Mrs. Ferguson has adopted Jim's platform. Instead of proposing to veto all liquor legislation she would seek a strengthening of prohibition laws. Her announcement contained a scathing rebuke of drinking officials who, in her opinion, are the menaces to attempted enforcement. It, however, is doubtful whether she can marshal the same degree of strength that Jim might have amassed. Nevertheless, her prohibition platform is designed to be appealing.

DELINQUENT taxes owing to the state exceed $20,000,000, it is estimated by George H. Sheppard, comptroller of public accounts. His office staff is making a compilation of all state taxes becoming delinquent since 1885.

Uncollected taxes, he declares, place a burden upon the willing taxpayer—he is forced to pay at a higher rate because others are not paying at all. The Comptroller plans to place the delinquent report before the legislature and hopes for the enactment of laws that will convert the greater portion of the delinquents into current revenue.

POLITICAL conclaves, quiet little gatherings, were in order in Austin last week. Friends of Moody gathered here, presumably to help him reach a decision about entering the gubernatorial race. No announcement was made. It is said that a strong movement is afoot to form a Sterling Love-Moody coalition; but which of the three will be the official standard bearer has not yet been determined.

At another time Clint Small of Wellington and C. N. Mauritz of Gana do, both candidates for the governor's chair, met in Moody's office at the Capitol. Just a coincidence, they said. Small, however, is becoming aggressive; he will open campaign offices in Austin this week.

SIXTY per cent of the state's farmers are tenants, according to Earle B. Mayfield, candidate for governor. He sees in farm tenantry an almost insurmountable handicap to agricultural independence. Co-operative farm relief plans can not be made workable until a large majority of farmers own their homes.

Mayfield proposes a constitutional amendment that would permit the issuance of 35-year 4 per cent bonds, the money to be advanced to farm purchasers at 6 per cent. Four per cent of the interest collected would pay off the interest on the bonds and the remaining 2 per cent would be set aside as a sinking fund to liquidate the entire farm indebtedness within the thirty-five year period. The plan proposed would involve no increase in taxes—the user of the fund would bear the whole load.

STATE officials without announced opposition for re-election are anxiously awaiting the coming of June 2—the last day upon which candidates for state office may file for place on the primary ticket. So far S. M. N. Marrs state superintendent of public instruction, has not been notified of any opposition. But who can tell?—the last day for filing has not passed and some candidates might think it good tactics to wait until the very last minute.

ESCHEAT LAWS of the state provide that property of decedents shall go to the state when no living heirs are known and when no disposition is made by will. It has been estimated that some $40,000 is now in the State Treasury in the escheat fund.

But every now and then an heir turns up to claim a portion of this fund after an escheat has been declared. Several years ago Walter C. Clark, then an employee in the Treasury Department, earned the gratitude of an old man by assisting him to perfect a claim to a portion of an escheated estate. Clark now is seeking the nomination for the Treasurer's office.

THE HIGHWAY fund has received $14,656,451.16 from the four cent gasoline gallonage tax since it became effective on July 16, 1929. The total tax collected amounted to about $20,000,000, but one-fourth goes to the available school fund and about $1,000,000 has been returned to payers of the tax on exemption claims that have been allowed.

But proponents of the state-wide road bond issue still declare that bonds are necessary to insure the completion of an adequate highway system for Texas. Perhaps so! But, be that as it may, the faction favoring the issuance of highway bonds are going to make roads an issue in this campaign.

CONDITIONS at Austin State Hospital, asylum for the insane, are said to represent serious fire hazards. The Austin fire marshal recently made an inspection of the premises and reported the existence of firetraps that he declared were dangerous to the safety of the inmates.

Now it is being talked in Austin that the entire institution should be reconstructed. Several weeks ago Governor Moody told a group of newspaper correspondents it was his opinion that a new asylum should be constructed somewhere in West Texas. Perhaps the Forty-second legislature will do something toward furnishing suitable living conditions for the hopelessly insane, many of whom now are being forced to remain in county jails until such time as room can be found in one of the state hospitals.

KNOW TEXAS

Texas produces one-third of the cottonseed products in the United States and contributes 45 per cent of exports in those commodities.

Texas is among the leading ten salt-producing states in the Union. Nearly all the production is from Grand Saline and Palestine.

Texas is drained by 3,680 rivers, bayous and creeks, including only one of sufficient importance to carry a name. The runoff into the Gulf of Mexico is estimated at 33,000,000 acre-feet annually. Mileage of the 3,680 streams is estimated by the State Board of Water Engineers at 125,000 miles.

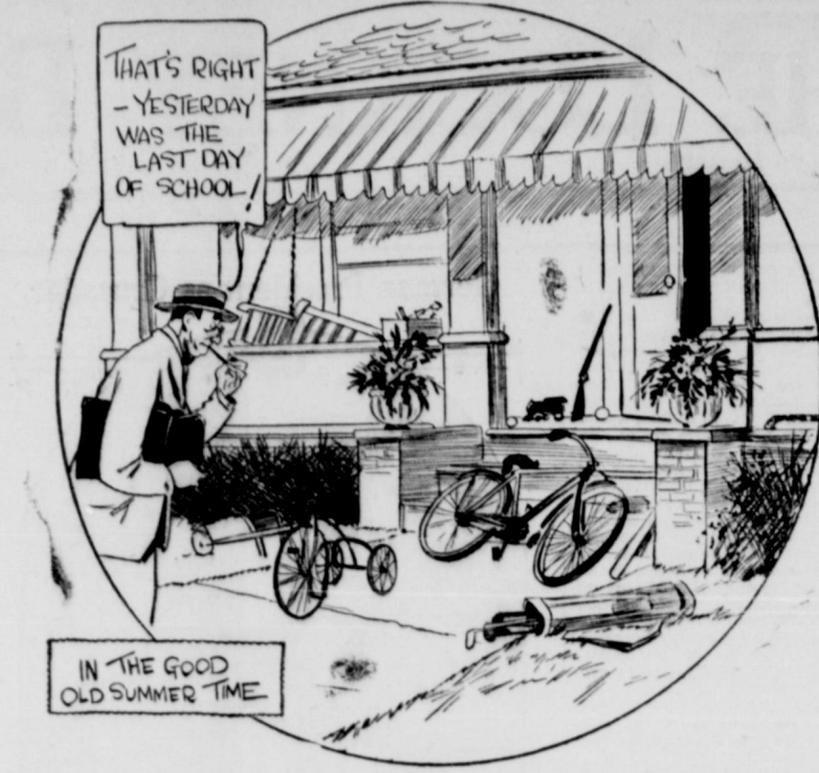

From 1922 to 1929 inclusive Texas increased its electrical output nearly 310 per cent. Between 1927 and 1929 the increase was 53 per cent or in round numbers 962 million kilowatt hours.

HELPING TO BUILD TEXAS

Investors from other states continue to buy up Texas lands. Noted not long ago were the purchase of 3,167 acres of Johnson county land by Kansans and the purchase of 10,000 acres near Harlingen by Chicago men. Comes now announcement of the purchase by Oklahomians of the Neils Esperson 28,000-acre tract between Brownsville and Boca Chica beach for a consideration of a million dollars and that the new owners contemplate expenditure of several millions more on a hotel, playgrounds and other resort improvements.

Although smaller in aggregate capital represented, new corporations organized in Texas in March, 1930, were numerically greater than in that month of last year, according to the Texas Business Review. March of this year saw 237 new companies chartered against 228 in March of 1929. Permits issued to out-of-state concerns were also greater.

When, incident to spring planting and a low river stage, farmers along the lower reaches of Devil's River needed more water, they gave notice of their plight to E. B. Neiswanger, president of the Central Power &

Light Co., who had come to their aid under similar conditions two years ago. The company immediately ordered the release of an additional flow of 300 second-feet from its impoundments, and this will continue indefinitely until the reserve supply is exhausted.

New $375,000 McCartney Hotel at Texarkana will be opened about Aug. 1. Madisonville is to have a new hostelry costing $2,000. McAllen business men are to raise $75,000 toward a $300,000 hotel there.

Quannah is rejoicing at the nearness of securing the Rock Island extension to Shamrock. . . . Sonora is rejoicing that it is at the end of the "inland town" stage and now is an important station on the Santa Fe extension on southward. . . . Towns served by the Gulf, Western & Texas gladly welcomed the ending of the receivership under which the road has long operated. The Texas & Brazos Valley receivership also came to a close recently, and there are few Southwestern roads now operated under that situation. . . . Santa Fe trains over the 76-mile extension from Paisano Pass to Presidio are expected to be running early in the fall. . . . Railroad extensions in Texas during 1930 will be a major contribution to the present and future business conditions of the state.

Miscellaneous things—straws indicating the whitherward of Texas progress! . . . Marshall and Spearman have acquired sites for airports. . . . Southern Pacific shops, Houston, building twelve heavy duty switch engines. Lubbock, Marshall, Spearman planning paving extensions; Lamesa just completed $80,000 worth. . . . Corsicana spending $312,000 on school buildings. Lubbock $550,000, Mercedes $250,000 Sweetwater $112,000, ditto with dozens of other towns projecting or starting school improvements. . . . Water District No. 14, Cameron county, letting contracts for $1,500,000 irrigation improvements and bringing 15,000 more acres under the ditch. Private company seeking permit to prove feasibility of Rio Grande projects that would irrigate 150,000 acres. . . . Wilbrey County News starting new building for its plant. . . . Roberts County spending $300,000. Cottle $230,000 on better roads. Cherokee District No. 1 $400,000 for the same purpose. GETHSEMANE

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for June 8, Gethsemane, Matt. 26:31-46.

GETHSEMANE, which was a garden, has become symbolic of trial, loneliness, and sorrow. Perhaps it is fitting that the agony of our Lord should have been in the environment of a garden, for is not that itself a symbol of life? Human life is strangely blended of joy and sorrow of beauty and suffering, of gain and loss. The pathway of life that is often hard and stony has a glorious sky over its head, a golden sunshine around it, and the fields and flowers at its very edge. It would be too much to say that it were always compensate for the sorrow, though Gethsemane gives a retreat for tears.

Help Comes From Above The real salvation and help of man do not come from his outward environment, even granting all that it has to offer, and the failure of a garden to assuage the sorrow and suffering of Jesus suggests the ultimate inability of nature to heal human wounds. Relief and help must come from some higher source.

In fact, the story of Gethsemane emphasizes something more than the failure of nature to accomplish man's help and salvation. As nature has often given rest and peace to troubled souls, so human nature in its depth of sympathy and kindness has been effective in affording relief. But there is a point, also, where even human sympathy breaks down and where the soul in sorrow stands alone, broken, well-nigh discouraged, with seemingly no response of strength and hope.

It is instructive to recognize that even the Master, the one altogether good and lovely, the one supreme in his strength, was so thoroughly human that this last stage of human trial was real for him. The flowers that he loved and the wealth of nature around him were not sufficient to assuage his pain. The earthly friends whom he had drawn to himself and whom he trusted, those of the inner circle whom he had taken with him to the garden, failed him in that last sad hour. Their eyes were heavy with sleep, and they could not even remain awake to watch and to assure him of their human sympathy.

There in Gethsemane he prayed with agony of soul that the cup might pass, and there in Gethsemane he found that though the cup was not to pass, yet divine strength was given him to go the way to Calvary. In the revelations of that hour and the inspirations of this story, many a soul in Gethsemane has found new strength and life.

From the great sorrow he went forth to the great betrayal, and the betrayal of Judas as he said, "Hail, Master," and kissed his Lord, must have been even more acute than the sorrow of Gethsemane.

But from Gethsemane and from Calvary there come the strength and help of the conquering Christ. Nothing is more sure in the whole history of the universe than the association of sorrow and sacrifice with divine strength and help. And if Gethsemane is still a symbol of human sorrow, it is a symbol, also, of a divine environment, because Jesus went that earthly way.

"Konjola Put Me Back on Road to Good Health"

Dallas Lady Eagerly Endorses New Medicine—Found Relief After Other Medicines Failed

"For four years my system was in a rundown condition and for the past eight months, stomach and kidney disorders have caused me much suffering," said Mrs. F. L. Bethel, 406 Avondale street, Liberty Heights, Dallas. "Gas formed after each meal and I had a burning sensation from my throat to the pit of my stomach. My kidneys were sore and did not function properly. I had pains across my back, and I was steadily losing in weight and strength."

"I finally decided to try Konjola and this medicine has put me back on the road to health. I am no longer troubled with the stomach condition. My vitality and general health have improved immensely, and I am free from those terrible pains in my back. I sleep soundly at night and my whole system has taken on new life."

When taken for six to eight weeks, Konjola, the new and different medicine, will work wonders that will astonish those who suffer from the stubborn ills of the stomach, liver, kidneys, and bowels and of rheumatism, neuritis and nervousness.

Konjola is sold in Lockney, Texas, at the Stewart Drug Co., and by all the leading druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

HORSE DRAGS YOUTH TO DEATH AT HOME NEAR PAMPA

Friona, June 2.—Definite information was received here this morning to the effect that Paul Highfill, 14-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Highfill, living a few miles southeast of town, had been killed by being dragged by a horse.

The boy had gone to the pasture on the horse to bring a cow and calf to the barn, and a short time later the horse came home dragging the boy by the rope. It seemed that Paul had tied one end of the rope around his body, while the other end was attached to the saddle, and had evidently fallen or been thrown from the horse.

Miss Mabel Hardesty of Plainview visited Miss Mary Collier this week-end.

Check Your Home's Physical Condition

The run-down home, like the run-down body, can not give best service. It's the up-to-the-minute, sparkling, cheerful, convenient home that gives greatest satisfaction and has the greatest value. Of course, any owner wants the home modern but heretofore that has meant big outlays of money. But not any longer. There is a new plan whereby the work can be done and the bills paid in easy installments.

Pay out of Income

Get an estimate from local contractors. Have them improve the physical condition and increase the value. Have them paid in full with your payments extended over a long period. Nothing could be simpler—nothing so certain to increase your pride and pleasure in your home.

Here's Relief for... WORK-WEARY WOMEN

AFTER years of back-breaking—exhausting labor with the laundering, ing, what a relief it is to let this efficient servant do all the work electrically! Or, perhaps you are trying to be content with a washer that doesn't give you all you should reasonably expect.

In either event, see this Haag 75. You'll be amazed at its many improvements—its many time- and labor-saving features. Its quickness and thoroughness will delight you. And how comforting it is to know that the Haag safety agitator protects even the daintiest things from injury!

You'll particularly want to see the new, latest-model wringer, with balloon-type rolls of soft rubber. Until you see—and use—this marvelous washing machine, you'll never believe that any washer could combine so many superiorities. Arrange to see the Haag 75 today.

"Peoples Ownership of Power Companies, the Best Ownership"

SAYS THE INDIANAPOLIS UNION

No longer is the control of our public service enterprises an issue between public and private ownership. A more correct term would be, "public versus POLITICAL ownership."

As a result of opening the doors of these companies to the participation of employees, customers, and the investing public generally as shareholders, public service organizations today are becoming in an increasing degree, GREAT COMMUNITY ENTERPRISES.

Capital is being divorced from management, and management left free to devote its best talents to the interests of the public. This is public ownership at its best.

The electric power industry has been a leader in creating investment channels whereby the small investor may enjoy all the benefits heretofore reserved for the capitalist. In no other industry is there such widespread diffusion of ownership.

Only the support of the public, and the splendid zeal of individual initiative, working under those conditions of freedom of opportunity for which America stands, could have made such an achievement possible.

To the extent that this support is maintained in the future, and this freedom protected, may the American people count upon the continuance of that quality of service which has made their standards of working and living the envy of the entire world.

Subject—"Butter Judging." Mrs. Hanna gave a very practical talk on the best and quickest way to churn. Several gave suggestions on supplying the family with milk and butter of first quality.

A great deal of interest was shown by those present in the demonstration on butter judging by Miss Strange.

Plans were made for the program on Friday night, May 23. Home made ice cream and pop corn furnished by club members will be on sale. Committees for receiving visitors, selling cream and pop corn were appointed. Mrs. A. R. Hanna was appointed general manager of the program.

A motion carried unanimously to send our club president, Mrs. Jake Greer to A. & M. short course. A suggestion was made to send a faithful

Old-Fashioned White Satin Gown to Feature June Weddings This Year

BY HARRIET

JUNE brides this year, so far as their costumes are concerned, have foregone the modern and gone 100 per cent old-fashioned. While chiffon, mousseline de soie, organdie, net and other materials are preferred by many, the majority of June brides prefer the white satin of her mother's day.

Many of them are off-white, bordering on the delicate dawn tones of pink or the rich cast of old ivory, but broadly speaking, the white satin wedding gown is the classical, conservative choice of the season's bride.

Lace is found on many of the new gowns. When one has lovely old duchesse or rose point right in the attic, why not use it? Nothing is more feminine nor more bride-like than a touch of lace.

Some of the gowns use a bit for a demure yoke. Others have it outlining the neck and sleeves and running up the sleeves in a deep cuff decoration. Others use it for the cap that fastens the veil, in quaint Dutch fashion, or in the new halo type that stands up from the head, wired with delicate white cording.

Two of the season's best gowns are pictured today, one from this country, the other an import. The Henri Bendel gown, created in New York, uses fine old rose point lace for an ornamental yoke that points down in the front and back and extends over to outline the sleeves. This is an admirable idea for the bride who intends to remove the long sleeves after the ceremony and wear the gown for evening.

The classical white satin gown of Henri Bendel, left, is trimmed with rose point lace for an ornamental yoke. The Jean Patou creation, right, youthful and simple, has a combination of tulle and satin, but no lace decoration.

The back train. The sleeves are long and tight-cuffed, with quaint mitt-cuffs to end them. The sleeves and bodice are cut in one, which gives a graceful shoulder line. The neckline is cut with a cut-out below the round yoke that is very near the base of the neck. It is as though it were simulating a decollete and then placing a yoke in to make it demure. The veil is a cap one, too, with ribbons and orange blossoms for trim.

ful charter member and again a motion carried unanimously to send Mrs. W. M. Knight also.

Next meeting will be June 4 at 2:30 p. m., at the club room.

Hostess, Mrs. Jake Greer assisted by Mrs. Henry Ballman.

Subject, Business meeting of our part in the fair, also Dress Contest and Butter Judging.

Delicious ice cream and cake were served to 21 members, 5 visitors and one new member.—Reporter.

Sand Hill Home Demonstration Club The program sponsored by the Sand Hill Home Demonstration Club on Friday night, May 23, was indeed a success.

A delightful attendance of not only home folks, but neighbors far and near filled the auditorium. Sociability was the keynote of the people as they gathered, general handshaking of old acquaintances, and new ones being made.

The program was well received and the number of candidates present to speak was fine. Several talks just could not be crowded into 5 minutes free time, although not many of the 5 cent minutes were not to complete in.

The club quilt was presented to Mrs. W. H. Bethel of the Campbell club, who gave it back to us to be auctioned and Mr. Sone acting as auctioneer succeeded nicely, the quilt bringing $10, selling to Mr. Stringer of Wichita Falls, Texas.

Proceeds of the program amounted to $33.35.—Reporter.

Pleasant Valley Home Demonstration Club The Pleasant Valley Club met May 28, with Mrs. J. C. Cummings. There were 12 members and one visitor present.

Miss Strange gave a demonstration on "Butter Judging." This was enjoyed by everyone. We were happy to receive the following ladies as new members: Mrs. W. E. Childers, Mrs. Olin Ridings, Mrs. G. W. Newman, and Mrs. Luther Ryan. We extend a heartly welcome to any of the Lockney ladies that wish to join our club.

Our next meeting will be June 11 with Mrs. E. C. Martin. The following program will be given:

They'll Scent Trouble in Senate

Since Senator Harry E. Hawes, above, of Missouri, received these English bloodhounds from a friend in England the other day, you may expect no one will rife his files, as they did Senator Johnson's recently—and get away with it. Named Lord and Lady Ozark, the hounds will soon be sent to the senator's home in the Ozark Mountains of Missouri.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—On a pleasure trip on a liner in eastern waters, made possible by a lucky turn of fortune's wheel, the narrator, Philip Amory, impetuous but well-born young Englishman, World War veteran, now a trader at Daru, on the island of New Guinea, plunges aboard to save the life of a young musical comedy actress known as "Gin-Sling."

She was—one felt it in one's bones—a very reincarnation of that graciously titled dame from historic Verona who had set her mark upon the Lauriers fifty years ago. Pia, like her would be a house-mistress; she would be a mother; she would be, above and beyond all, the supreme, rare lover, pure as springwater, and passionate as a red Verona rose from the balcony of Verona's deathless girl.

It didn't come as a shock—quite the contrary, because I am Twentieth century, almost all—to remember that this modern Juliet could round up cattle with the best of her brothers, and owned a diamond bracelet won on the public race course of Randwick. It made me all the more in love with her. Because, of course, that minute when I met her eyes as I came up the gangway, and knew that my foolish feet had won me Pia's heart.

I suppose one is a little mad, when one is asleep, to judge by the general craziness of dreams. I suppose, therefore, that one is half a little mad, when half awake. It was the arrival of early morning coffee that spoiled half-waking dreams, for me. Once I had drunk it, the clear cold light of reason seemed to mingle, in that cabin, with the red of growing day; to tell me that I had better get up and bathe and dress, and remember, of all things, that I was leaving the ship tomorrow.

"When you are about it," added that chill monitor, "you might as well recollect that you haven't two hundred pounds in the world, no people, now, who matter; no position, and no prospects. Put that in your pipe and smoke it."

I had managed an introduction (no easy ship-made friendships for the daughter of the Lauriers!)—and enjoyed just about five glorious minutes of Pia's company, before the doctor, curse him, came along apologizing and grinning and reminding Pia that it was concert night, and that she was down for Number Two. So we had to break off and hurry into the starting, glittering music saloon, in company with everybody else.

There had been no more talk with Pia Laurier that night; for the concert lasted the usual long time, and when it was over, Pia's relations, somehow, seemed to be everywhere, monopolizing her—maybe by accident, maybe not. And I should have gone very hungry to bed, had it not been for the crust I took with me. That crust was Pia's song. She sang part of Liza Lehmann's exquisite bird-song cycle; sending me to my cabin with the sound in my ears of my lady's lovely little soprano telling the tale of the wood-dove and his mate who had nothing at all on which to start a home, but joyously, they put a few sticks together, and sang—"It'll do!"

I suppose I was vain. I suppose all men of a certain youth and vitality are. At any rate, I thought that Pia meant the song for me.

So, next morning, I was agog to get hold of Mrs. Kipple, good-natured news-monger, and learn from her anything that might help me in making way with Pia. For I recognized, now that the stars in their courses were fighting against me, I had only one day, a night, and half a day left; if I was, in that brief time, to forge a chain that should in some measure link our lives, I needed every possible advantage I could make or steal. By Wednesday noon, the play would be over; the male Cinderella would have lost his pumpkin coach and gone home to sit in the ashes again; and there would be no fairy godmother to find him a second chance.

Mrs. Kipple could talk. She did not confine herself to Laurier biography she stooped to a lower range, and gave me also biography (gingered up till one might almost call it biology) of the actress troupe that had fairly dynamited the peace of the ship.

"My dear boy," she said, knitting till you could hardly see needles or fingers, "everybody thinks you do the bravest—No, I won't if you don't want me to. But it WAS. W. all have the highest opinion."

But you see, Miss Gin-Sling—I think her proper name—if there's anything proper in the question, which is doubtful—I mean, her name on the bills I Genevieve Treacher—well, Gin-Sling or Jinny, or Genevieve, and her two friends, have simply captured all the eligible men; and what, I ask you, what does a respectable parent bring her daughters away from the Sidney winter and up to China for, unless—you know? Do you remember that too charming joke in an old Punch, about the child looking at a picture of the arena in Rome, and telling its mother that there was—"one poor lion that hadn't got a Christian"? My dear boy, there are quite a lot of those poor lions, or lionesses, on the ship, ever since Brisbane, when these—ladies—go on. They haven't had a look in with them. The ship's officers, who are simply meant to flirt with, and the rich planters who ought to marry, and the smart civil service folk—not a chance! Jinny Treacher and her girls have the lot. How can any of the Laurier crowd compete against sea-horse racing? And they don't stop at sea-horse racing; I could tell you a tale—"She proceeded to tell it; I can only say that the biology came in at that point, and made me feel rather fidgety."

But Genevieve, or Gin-Sling, whatever one chose to call her—was not business. I wanted to hear about some one else.

"Are the Lauriers going far?" I asked.

"China and Japan; getting away from the Sydney cold weather. They go somewhere every winter, and always take a daughter with them. It's Pia's turn this time. They married off a daughter last year and I darsay they'll get rid of Pia this time."

Get rid of Pia!

"Is she engaged?" I asked, looking the kindly gossip fair in the face.

"Pia? I suppose more or less; a girl of her sort has always some one on a string. There was some talk of Sir Richard Fanshawe, the flying man, but I imagine the mother was against it. Not enough title. He's fairly rich—promoted a few successful companies in New Guinea, and so on—but he is only a war knight, without much family behind him. Pia ought to be at least a countess. You know, a girl like that simply must marry into the very best set; she would be a fish out of water anywhere else."

"There's the second bell," said Mrs. Kipple, and got up. "If you don't hurry," she added warningly, "you don't get the best of the fruit." But I did not hurry. I didn't care if I never saw fruit again. Pia Laurier and her mother were coming up the promenade deck.

I thought the elder lady looked at me coldly. She was not a scrap like Pia, save in those small resemblances of carriage, shape of head and poise of limbs that run through families. Jinny Treacher had called me "the bravest man in the world," but under that look of Mrs. Laurier's I felt my courage crumble, and my heart turn to water.

The woman of hard-won position may be a snob, but never can be weak; she has sold her soul, and collected the price, and the price is what the devil has offered, from time immemorial—power. She uses it; she sends it like a Matthew's death-ray straight at the "outsider" whom she wishes to destroy, and no armor of self-respect, or conscious value in the things that are not mean, avails against it. It pierces.

Mrs. Laurier pierced me. But a man may fight when wounded. I answered her look by getting up from my seat, and making a step forward. What I meant was to join the morning walk of herself and her daughter. I knew Pia now; I had a right to speak.

And, gods of youth and beauty, but she was ensnaring, that pale-blue morning on the sea!

She was dragging her step; holding, a little, back. I would have been beside her in another moment—

"Good morning, Mr. Amory! Is it possible you don't know me, after saving me from a watery and fishy death no more than yesterday afternoon?"

It was "Gin-Sling." She had gone to her cabin, exhausted, after we reached the ship, and no one had seen her again that evening. Now she appeared, bright as a penny at a show, with her wonderful red hair teased out into a kind of halo, her thin body cased in some painted, vivid rag; eyes and teeth sparkling, glass bracelets clinking, an anklet and a bell on it jingling, feet—dancer's feet they were, small, but too muscular and spread—pointing and springing, as if they moved to invisible music. I think, an old Jinny Treacher through her life; she danced, marched, moved, to music of her own; ruled her days—so far as they were ruled—by laws not made of man. I have my reasons for handling her tenderly; I know what you do not, yet of Jinny.

Naturally, I had to answer her. And naturally, too, the mother and daughter moved on, and I was left alone with Jinny Treacher.

She did not sit down. She put both feet together, and jumped high into the air, two or three times, with incredible vivacity. "That's how I feel," she said. "I always feel like that when the sun shines. Can't live in the dark. I was born in Sydney, where it's daylight when it is daylight, and I've got the sun in me bones. Singapore's where we're bound for; I and my friends. The Chinese Butterfly company number three. One of their girls has married and one died, and another wants to leave. So little me and mine come in, because the managing director of the company's a friend of ours."

I was not interested; I was raging over the loss of my chance of speaking with Pia—but you never knew Gin-Sling, if you think one could stand beside her, see her look into your eyes, and remain indifferent. She went to the head of any man, as swiftly as the drink after which she had, most appropriately been named. She went to mine. But I didn't care. I knew I should be sober again. There was that in the blue eyes of Pia to sober me after a dozen of Jinny's cocktails.

And it came into my mind there and then—I who had never wanted to marry before—that this was what true marriage might mean. Something that could hold a man in spite of himself, in spite of a world of Jinny Treachers. Certainly. Rest.

Gin-Sling, however, had no mind to be neglected. "Take me for a walk," she said, half shutting her eyes and shooting fire at me from under heavily-blackened lashes. She had beautiful sensuous eyelids, round and deep as white shells; they flickered constantly as she looked at you. She was one flicker from head to foot; a human flame.

I marched with her round the decks, and if anything could have made me forget Pia and her mother down below, that progress would have done it. It was like walking with royalty, to walk with Genevieve Treacher. Men shot looks of black envy, women glanced jealously aside. And I realized, what perhaps I had not understood before, that yesterday's incident had made me something of a celebrity; something worth the throw of a handkerchief.

We strolled and talked, I don't know what about. I didn't realize how long we had been walking, till I saw Mrs. Laurier come up from breakfast again. If she had looked at me chillingly before, her eyes were freezing now. She swept Jinny Treacher with a glance that should have turned the girl to a pillar of ice. I think Jinny felt it; but in sheer bravado, she turned her head, stopped almost in Mrs. Laurier's path, and remarked defiantly—"Well, here I am. What do you think of me?"

The main companion doorway was just beside me. Like a coward, I slipped through it, and fled. I don't know to this day what happened; I only know that as I hurried down the staircase, I saw Mrs. Laurier passing on, undisturbed.

What I wanted, what I was prepared to pull the ship in pieces to get, was another talk with Pia. I knew her mother would nose us out before long; still, the dining saloon, between meals, is a good place for quiet on almost any ship, and I hoped she would be there.

She was, lingering over the last of her breakfast, alone at her table. I ordered breakfast, and asked if I might join her. She bowed her head a little coolly, and I remembered that one could see passing figures on deck, from the open scuttles above us. You couldn't curse Gin-Sling—if you were a man like others, but if I had been extraordinary enough to dislike Jinny Treacher, I should certainly have cursed her then, in that she had shorn away a few of my inestimable moments, wasted them for me with the necessity of making explanations.

I don't know what we talked about at first. It was like orchard-robbing—when you run from one tree to another, plucking, eating, cramming, hurrying, intent on getting as much as you can in the few minutes before you are found and chased out by the farmer with the cart whip. You hardly know what you have had, in the end—only that it has been fun.

By and by all the stewards had breakfast and were gone, and somebody was dusting at the far end of the saloon; and bells sounded, of which we took no note. We were too busy orchard-robbing. I remember about this time, that we began to tell each other the story of our lives. Pia had got to the diamond bracelet, and the day she rode for it and won it on Randwick race course; and an interesting incident that had the prince of Wales in it—when suddenly she checked herself, and said—

"It's all such tush, isn't it? You live a real life. Tell me some secrets and adventures in New Guinea."

Now, I don't know—or perhaps I do—what had helped her to read me as she did; but it is a fact that while she was talking, something that was both a secret and an adventure—and a big one of both kinds—had been floating about in my consciousness. I had never spoken of it, never hinted it, to a soul. It was my chief and almost only reason for burying myself on the wild west coast as a trader, beyond call of civilization; and it might be in the end, the means of setting me free to choose between

CHEVROLET'S New Service Policy wins nationwide approval

On January 1st of this year, the Chevrolet Motor Company announced a new service policy—the most liberal ever offered in connection with a low-priced automobile. Immediately it was greeted with enthusiasm by Chevrolet buyers everywhere—because its many unusual features materially add to the economy and lasting satisfaction of Chevrolet ownership. Briefly, it provides—material—including both parts and labor—that may prove defective, within the terms of the standard warranty.—that this replacement will be carried out by any Chevrolet dealer in the United States—regardless of where the owner may have traveled during the warranty period.

Backing this policy is one of the largest service organizations in the automotive industry—consisting of over 10,000 —for free inspection and adjustment at the 500-mile mark, and free inspections every 1000 miles thereafter.

—for free replacement of any

Gangsters, Cruel, Silent
Cheap Money—Bad Sign

Los Angeles.—Two pieces of news here. Bribing jurors spreads from East to the West. Men accused of public robbery through a swindling oil company simply bought their way out of trouble by bribing jurymen.

It would be interesting to know how big a part that system plays in our "justice," and to what extent it accounts for the fact that the rich man is usually not convicted.

A gasoline war cuts prices as low as 13 1/2 cents. Big companies say they know nothing about it.

The real gasoline war is one of service. Standard Oil amazed you by training gasoline station men not to accept a tip, after giving you air and water free, scrubbing your windshield and inquiring for your health even though you bought no gasoline.

Detouring of the Shell company improves even on that. When you drive up to one of his stations, two men spring out, one on each side of you, and if you only want to know where McCadden avenue is, they beam with delight as they give the information, and if you choose will go with you. That's modern gas service.

One item of news will be remembered a million, and ten million, years hence.

Nothing else in our age will be of the slightest consequence, even 100,000 years from now.

The news that will outlast recollection of this age of industrial and financial barbarism is the discovery of another planet in our solar family, sailing around outside the orbit of Neptune.

Earth dwellers in the year one million nineteen hundred and thirty, as they converse in the ozone area, thirty miles above the earth, will wonder how such primitive beings as ourselves could have discovered that planet.

Similarly, we wonder how primitive cave dwellers could have made those interesting pictures of rhinoceroses and horses.

Gangsters are not kind to each other. John ("Billiken") Rito, described by police as "a bootleg racketeer," member of the "Bugs" Moran gang, lies in the morgue. Wires with which his arms, hands and ankles were bound when he was taken out of the Chicago river have been removed. The police wonder who burned the tips of his fingers in the process of torturing him before he was murdered, and why they did it. They will never know. Racketeers kill, and don't talk.

Money is getting cheaper all over the world. The Bank of England has just dropped its rate from 4 to 3 1/2 per cent, reduced last March from 4 1/2 to 4 per cent.

Cheap money is pleasant for borrowers, but not a good sign.

It means little borrowing, therefore little building, industrial and otherwise.

What people think decides what they are. Prosperity is to a considerable extent a matter of psychology.

Once a man was fastened in a chair, his feet put in warm water, and as a practical joke he was shown a razor of which the blunt end was drawn across the soles of his bare feet. He was told, "You will bleed to death painlessly in this warm water." He didn't lose a drop of blood, but he died.

Don't let prosperity die in that fashion, killed by imagination.

In these days of birth control ladies will be interested in Mrs. Chris Back, who lives at Whitesburg, Ky.

She has had six children in eleven months—two sets of triplets, all alive.

All honor to Mrs. Back and congratulations to mothers that are more moderate. If every woman had six children in eleven months the earth would eventually be overpopulated, although not soon.

Mr. Edison is hopeful about a rubber supply from goldenrod. Chemists who think it ought to be done by some synthetic process and victims of hay fever are less optimistic.

The great inventor, eighty-three years old, says he wants only five years more to finish this job, and doesn't ask to live one hundred years.

The death of Primo de Rivera, former Spanish dictator, killed by heart disease, reminds you that being dictator is a wearing job. It takes such a man as Mussolini to stand it for a long time.

The Italian ruler establishes a "minor" class of citizen, not obliged to enter the Italian army.

This is planned to keep Italians in foreign countries interested in Italy. Wise Mussolini.

President Hoover, like a good family doctor for the nation, says nothing or says things that are encouraging. There is a great deal of value in that.

Buy what you want, beginning with a good automobile; buy it now and then enjoy it now. Life does not last forever. Keep it busy, and full.

No machinery . . . no noise to freeze these ICE CUBES

ELECTROLUX works noiselessly and at a cost of only 4¢ to 10¢ a day

HOW would you like to have in your kitchen a magical refrigerator that made all the ice you could use . . . without machinery . . . without a whisper of sound . . . at a fraction of what you pay for ice now?

That describes Electrolux. A tiny gas flame . . . a mere trickle of water . . . freeze pure sparkling ice cubes and desserts quickly, chill salads and drinks perfectly, and provide a constant refrigerating cold that keeps food fresh and wholesome for days and days. And at a cost that is less than the wholesale price of ice. With no machinery . . . no moving parts, science has been able to find no reason why Electrolux should not last a lifetime. Or why it should ever become noisy.

Be fair to yourself by not deciding on your automatic refrigerator until you see Electrolux. Come in and examine the variety of beautiful cabinets in our display. And ask about easy terms.

- QUICK FACTS!
1. Permanently noiseless.
 2. Absolutely safe.
 3. Only a few cents a day to operate.
 4. Lasts indefinitely.
