LOCKNEY, FLOYD COUNTY, TEXAS, THURSDAY, AUGUST 17, 1933

NUMBER 49

Dr. Knapp Advocates Demonstration Agent

Dr. Bradford Knapp, President of Texas Tech at Lubbock was the main speaker Thursday afternoon at the Farmer's Short Course held at the City Auditorium here. He made a splendid talk on why Floyd County farmers need a home demonstration agent. Dr. Knapp's father was the first man to conceive of the idea of the home demonstration agent in America and to put this idea into operation.

He said that there were five hundred farms in Floyd County without any gardens what so ever, and that there were only about 75 head of chickens per farm in the County. How is the farmer ever going to have any ready cash if he has to pay out everything he makes for groceries? He has to pay freight on canned goods from other states, and he has to pay somebody else to raise it. Dr. Knapp, advised, "What this County needs is a good Home Demonstration agent to show these farmers how to cultivate gardens, raise poultry, can vegetables, fruits, and meats so that their wheat and cotton will be cash crops. Money from the crops may be sacked if you raise your own food at home. Much better gardens and fruit trees may be raised if the farmers will build a low dam pond and irrigate. If the farmers have someone to help them much more may be accomplished. The work of the demonstration agent is to show you what you can do with what you have right at home. Floyd County needs an agent to create home living and this is done through raising home products, curing the care of milk and eggs."

Dr. Knapp advises the farmer not to depend on the cotton to feed him for he says that a cotton crop is the most wonderful thing in the world but it is the poorest eating anyone ever tried. He says cotton and wheat crops are the biggest gamble imaginable because you never know what the market is going to be. He advises Floyd County to get a Home Demonstration Agent at once to help the farmers raise their own food at home and make their crops cash.

ACCUSED MAYOR

"I'll run this city from a police cell if necessary," said Mayor William J. Swoboda, janitor chief executive of Lockney, Wis., who was arrested and charged with accepting a bribe to give a gambling syndicate control of the city. He is also alleged to have attempted to bribe the chief of police.

Dr. Knapp was reared in Alabama and received his education in that state and he is tremendously interested in the farmers and their problems. His father before him was a great believer in the farmers and helped them in every way. Dr. Knapp has helped numerous counties in securing home demonstration agents and he is known all over Texas and the southern states for his splendid work for the farmer. He says your job is to get other people in the county to plant gardens, raise chickens, milk cows, and put the farm on a paying basis and get out of the ditch.

City Council Elected

Whereas, More than one million citizens of this state through no fault of their own, are deprived of the opportunity to work and must be furnished with the necessities of life pending such time as they may be able to sustain themselves, and

Whereas, The provision of such necessities of life for this large number of citizens is wholly impossible, either from voluntary contributions or from local tax sources, and

Whereas, The adoption of this amendment by the people on August 26th is necessary in order that Federal aid to the state and to local communities in caring for the destitute unemployed may be continued, therefore

Be It Resolved, by the administrative executives of the City of Lockney, Texas, in emergency executive session here assembled on this 16th day of August, A. D. 1933:

First, that the citizens of the state of Texas be earnestly requested to support and adopt the amendment authorizing the issuance of bonds, and

Second, that the Mayor and city executive constitute themselves committees pledged to inform the citizens of their respective communities of the circumstances requiring the adoption of this amendment, and of the fact that such adoption is necessary for the continuance of Federal aid, and give it their active and wholehearted support.

A motion by Alderman McCollum, seconded by Alderman Jackson unanimously passed that the above resolution be adopted and that a copy be furnished W. Strauss, Chairman, Texas Relief Bond Issue Committee, Austin, Texas, and an additional copy be furnished the Lockney Beacon.

Passed and adopted call session this 16th day of August A. D. 1933.

Farmers Will Get Full Amount Of Cotton Checks

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—The Federal government will pay the full amount of cotton checks to farmers for agreements to curtail their production will be made under a policy made public Tuesday by Henry Morgenthau, Jr., government director of the farm credit administration.

The checks, payments will be made on the basis of the acreage of their growing crops, without requiring deductions for amounts they owe the government for seed and crop production loans.

Also would be included feed loans of the regional agricultural credit corporations which do not bear endorsements by third parties and have not been discounted by federal intermediate credit banks.

Morgenthau said a similar policy will be pursued in the case of payments to be made this fall to wheat farmers for agreements to reduce their acreages planted for harvest in 1934 and '35.

$90,000,000 is scheduled for payment to wheat farmers' and $110,000,000 to cotton farmers' checks for the latter having been held up pending the outline of policy.

Morgenthau said, however, that he is not authorized to waive liens upon crops given the federal land banks and rediscouted by the federal intermediate credit banks, or in cases of loans made by the regional agricultural credit corporations bearing endorsements of third parties and rediscouted by the intermediate credit banks.

He said that a debtor farmer in the case of seed, feed and crop production loans will "be expected, but not compelled" to liquidate "a fair portion of his debt if his circumstances are such that he can do so."

MORTON, TEXAS VISITORS

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Welch and children, Melvina and Tommie Lee of Morton, Texas were here last week visiting Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Roberson.

FT WORTH VISITORS HERE

Misses Brucella and Velma Roberson of Plainview were week end guests of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Cox.

Two More Good Rains Received This Week

Two more good rains were received in the Lockney country and Floyd county this week. On Monday night about a half inch fell here in Lockney. To the east of town it was heavier and a little northeast from two to three inches fell. It extended west to the county line. Some hail accompanied this rain in some sections of the county. From northeast of South Plains down to Roseland school house hail was received in a small strip that did considerable damage to crops. However, it played out by the time it reached Roseland. The extreme northeast corner of the county up about Wednesday, was hailed out, but covered a small spot.

Again Tuesday night additional rains were received. This amounted to about a half an inch. Practically all of Floyd county received beneficial rains either Monday or Tuesday night. Everybody is happy and smiling for it looks as if the harvest this fall will be good. Right at this time it looks as if it would be impossible to cheat us out of a crop, unless a severe hail storm should visit this section, which is not likely at this time of year.

CROPS DRY WEST OF PLAINVIEW

Mr. and Mrs. Phenix and son Guy, were at Plainview Sunday as the guests of Mrs. Phenix's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Waddill. They report that the crops are exceedingly dry west of Plainview.

The Will to Co-operate

A comment on NRA from one of the outlying counties of Texas praises highly the eager desire of the smaller businesses of the country to co-operate with the Government, but adds that the financial strain due to the depression is so great that these can not add to their force nor pay higher wages since bankruptcy is already staring them in the face.

In small communities of that sort public opinion will exonerate those who would but can not, but should blame those that can but will not. The Government is no tyrant and does not intend to force the impossible. It will reserve punishment for those who deliberately pledge compliance but in their hearts plan to violate the spirit of the law whenever possible.

Mr. Schultz of the Dallas Central Labor Council warns that this city is backward in its adherence to the NRA program and charges that in-

Dallas "there have been numerous complaints about chiseling on the code agreements." The Government intends to investigate such charges and will undoubtedly punish those that deliberately violate their pledges. The spirit of the law and its plain intent is to strengthen those businesses that do their best to support the NRA movement and to drive from operation those businesses of the sweat shop order that seek extortionate profits through, prolonged hours of labor and wretched pay.

Business, both big and small, should realize that the Government demands more employment on shorter hours for fair pay. Reasonably higher prices and a greater consumption demand will in due time reward the honest. General Johnson, on the other hand, will see to it that those who knowingly chisel will get their punishment in severe form possibly receiving no license to continue business.—Dallas News

ADVANCED SEPTEMBER STYLES

A new "Economy Ensemble" designed to satisfy the demands of both limited budgets and fashion is Paris' newest offering to advance September styles.

"Chic without great cost" is the essence of it construction, since it is designed as a fresher of late summer wardrobes, intended only to fill the style gap until real fall fashions appear.

A full length coat combined with a frock, or a skirt and blouse is a favorite design for the "economy ensemble." Bright scarfs and novel trims, instead of costly furs and fabrics, are used as accents.

One model combines an olive green wool coat and skirt with a beige crocheted string blouse and a pert scarf of beige and green taffeta tied under the chin. Another unites a grey djalay wool coat lined in grey and green checked wool with a high necked frock of the same check wool. The coats which accompany the dresses are simple models with semi-high necklines.

The hip-length coat and frock of the same wool fabric is another smart design. One dressmaker shows a deep beige wool frock designed on a slender silhouette with a high roll collar, worn with a hip length coat collared in beige shaven lamb. Another displays a dark green wool frock with a matching jacket having epaulettes of black Persian lamb.

Velvet suits of burgundy red, brown or black make other economy ensembles. Most of them are designed with slender skirts about ten inches from the ground, hiplength or three quarter length jackets and peplum blouses of beige faille or plaid taffeta.

A few weeks more and school bells will be ringing again. Start now to plan daughter's wardrobe—select simple, youthful styles that can be smartly fashioned of the cotton prints in vogue. This frock is a winner.

RICH FABRICS LEAD PARIS FASHION PARADE

PARIS, August 12.—It's a caviar and wine year!

The predominating colors at the Paris openings are every conceivable shade of gray and many wine reds. Dull blues, black and dark browns are next in importance.

There's going to be a revival of home sewing in America because exquisite hand ruchings, stiff cordings, chenille fagottin gaud patterned tucks are the paramount decorations on these new fall and winter clothes.

There is a definite trend back to quality and individuality. Rich fabrics such as taffetas, new velvets and novelty wools again come into their own. Clinging materials of last season are conspicuous by their absence.

Wide shoulders are out. Sleeves are sleek will all fullness centered below the elbows.

Daytime skirts are pleated—no circular cuts. Evening skirts have their fullness below the knees via spectacular ornate circular flounces that swish.

Magey Rouff shows split skirts. Lyolene features 1800 bustles.

Lelong has many drop shoulders.

Dikusha shows a tight sleeved dinner gown in wine-red taffeta with a quaint brooch at the throat. A huge cameo brooch at the bustle of the gown is an interesting note. Dikusha also shows those startling Lestex velvet pullover sweaters for evening.

Brita Is the Ideal Girl of Sweden

Miss Brita Jakobsson, who was selected as the most representative girl of her native country in a recent contest in Stockholm.

As an economy step, you can remove last year's fur puffed sleeves and use half for fur strips lengthwise towards the elbow and the other half for fudguards basques over your hips. Magey Rouff shows several models in this make.

If you would have the latest choker collar, tight fitting, buttoned-up-the-front blouse for your suit, visit a remnant counter and get a piece of Persian brocade, satin, lame or novelty wool.

Brilliant velvet, choker collar blouses with dark suits are much in evidence. So are flamboyant striped wool blouses.

Buttons seem to have been left out of the picture this year. Suits and coats are fastened ingeniously with spectacular jeweled swords, long hooks ball fastenings, huge plaques and novelty buckles.

Formal afternoon, evening and day Swager coats be they full or seven-time coats are, for the most part, short eight lengths—have had their day. The princess line predominates.

Many coats and suits have wide leather belts with enormous, decorative fastenings.

Sports things are double breasted with tailored revers and turned down collars. Other suits and coats have collars and basques. There are several occasional fur bows or soft, gathered fur nuffs but few fur cuffs. Separate fur scarfs are shown only with sports clothes.

Stripes, checks, plaids and polka dots are passe except as trimmings or linings for suits and coats.

There are very few long tunic blouses. Luminous satin fashions the glamorous in afternoon suits.

Nothing depends on quality of fabric for interest and decoration. There are few gadgets and practically no separate collar and cuff sets. Bows are rarely part of the dress or suit on which they are worn.

Costly jewelry is restrained in favor of tasteful single pieces. Individual elegance predominates. This is the year to polish up the large family cameos or quaint, imposing brooches. They are exactly what the well dressed lady will wear at her throat.

Offer 2,000 Acres Of Cotton To Government

What is said to be the largest cotton acreage in this area to come under the provisions of the federal cotton acreage reduction program, is the Beasley Brothers farms of 9,000 acres, located west of Ropesville in southeastern Hockley County.

The brothers have 5,200 acres up to a good stand and they have offered 50 per cent of this to the government. Based on an estimated average of $8 per acre for the crop, the total offered the government will bring approximately $20,000.

Some not offered

A large acreage than 5,200 was planted to cotton, but as some was not felt to be up to the standard, it was not offered to the government, George Beasley, one of the brothers explained. In all there are 9,000 acres operated by the two men, with employes. Two thousand acres are in one lot and 7,000 in another. The place is known as the "Old Woodley ranch."

To Plant Feed

It is planned to plant the rest of the crop land in feed. There is a gin operated on the place. Farming operations are said to be about the largest under one single management on the South Plains.

On the farm large scale feeding operations can be conducted with a good feed crop. It is possible these operations will be carried on this fall if a good feed crop is harvested.

The Sunnyvale, Calif., base for the Navy's new dirigible, the Macon, represents an investment by the Navy of $4,500,000.

Chevrolet Assembling, Plan Control Of 1934 Cars At A Century Of Progress

Assembly of new automobiles in the plant operated on A Century of Progress grounds by the Chevrolet Motor Company will pass the 2,000 mark late this month, officials announced here today.

Since the line was set in motion by the light of a cosmic ray just prior to the opening of the Fair, output has been at a steady pace of 24 cars a day, six days a week.

In July exactly 600 new Chevrolet Master six coaches and coupes came off the line; in June 589 were built, and in May 163, bringing the total produced here from the time line started through July 31, to 1324 units.

Present schedules are maintained, and number 2,000 will be completed during the last hour of the last day of this month, officials said.

They estimate that the closing of the Fair upon the 100th anniversary will have a beneficial effect on the figure and the total production of eleven different automobile companies there in business.

An instant has been the demand for new cars carrying the distinction having been built at the World's Fair. Every unit so far produced has been purchased at the end of the line and driven away by its new owner. Color options may be specified in advance and the purchaser is given the pleasure of going into the pit and helping to build his own car.

People have come here from more than a thousand miles distant with the primary object of purchasing a car in the huge assembly room, housed in building at the Fair and driving it home.

The special General Motors exposition building, with wide balcony a fifth of a mile long, completely circling the assembly operations, is attracting nearly half of all the people who visit the Fair.

Farmers' elevators in the United States returned more than $1,000,000 to growers in patronage dividends during 1931-32.

It is estimated that 28,000 out of town automobiles visit the Chicago World Fair daily.

Terminate What Size Crop Will Be Ideal For Next Year

The Government again next year will undertake a cotton production control program, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace told Mississippi farm leaders and extension workers.

Whether the 1933 plan or a new one will be employed next year has not been determined the cabinet official said, much depended on this year's yield.

"It is reasonable to believe," said Secretary Wallace, that despite the acreage reduction program this year the cotton crop will be sufficiently large to create a carryover and make some kind of production control desirable.

"However, the department will be guided by the growers themselves. We are not going to jam anything down their throats, and must know more about conditions before we can

Asked regarding reports from Washington indicating President Roosevelt and members of the Department of Agriculture were considering a proposal not to deduct seed and crop production loans owed the Government from planters' acreage rental checks, which will be forwarded from Wallace as quickly as provisions of the contracts are complied with, Secretary Wallace said he believed such action would be taken.

"I can't help but feel that President Roosevelt will arrive at that conclusion," he said.

About LOCKNEY'S ROTARY CLUB

WHAT IS THE ROTARY CLUB?

The Rotary club is a voluntary association of men meeting once each week at luncheon. But a Rotary club is something more than a luncheon club. The meetings are characterized by wholesome good fellowship and the development of more intensive and more practical fellowship. Its membership is formed on the unique plan of one active and representative man from each line of business and profession in the community. The acceptance of membership in a Rotary Club comprises the acceptance of the ideals of Rotary and the assumption of a responsibility for living and promoting them in all daily contacts of business, civic, and social affairs. The benefits that come to men, or some of them at least, from holding membership in the Making the acquaintance of men you ought to know. Genuine, wholesome good fellowship. Developing true and helpful friends. Enlightenment as to other men's work, problems, and success. Education in methods that increase efficiency. Stimulation of one's desire to be of service to his fellowmen and society in general. Developing a new outlook on one's own business or profession, seeing it more as a service to the community than only an instrument of private gain.

Rotary is not concerned with a man's religious or political affiliations. Rotary ideals and principals are applicable to all men, regardless of religious or political beliefs, and this is the reason why it can be accepted by all men.

Floydada Whipped Our Ears Down

Well folks, it happened, it sure did. The ink had no more than got dry on this column last week about our ball team until the Rotary club of Floydada challenged us for a game of Soft Ball. Guess we were talking when we should have been listening.

The big game was played Tuesday evening about seven o'clock. Great globes of Rotarians were here from Floydada, and they all sure could swing a wicked bat. They whipped our ears down to the tune of 32 to 19.

Art Barker's spit ball didn't spit and Wilford Jones Zig-Zag ball did not Zag. They knocked these boys offerings all over the lot and Lockney Rotarians booted, fumbled and missed the ball at all opportunities. They could not of caught that ball in a fish net. They were butter-fingered, blind, deaf and crippled. They sure were an honorary looking bunch, they sure were. When they would make a tweek in home they all came in limping dragging single legs, holding an arm, one hand on a hip, etc. It looked like they all needed crutches.

Lockney played their worst game of the season. They even did better their first game. But look out for the balance of the season, we have blood in our eye.

Floydada Rotarians sure are ball players, all young fellows, and they sure can step lively. Most of them have just recently been released from the big leagues. Take Bishop, Rutledge, Medlin and Williams, they still had their last pay checks from the league officials in their pockets and the ink was hardly dry on them. But they are going to get old and stiff some of these days like 99 per cent of the Lockney Rotarians and then we will

Then there is Jack Foley, he is in hiding right now, for fear that scouts from the big leagues will pick him up and secure his signature to a contract. Fry has just returned from a trip to Chicago where he went in hopes of securing his release from the Chicago team. Snodgrass had just returned from Dallas and had his release from the Steer manager in his pocket.

Boy, Howdy! We sure did get in fast company, but we are going to talk to them on again right away and then we will have a different story to tell. Come again boys, we sure had fun.

Poultry Topics

TO MAKE HENS LAY IN SUMMER SEASON

Wet Mash Suggested by a New York College Man.

If the poultry flock lays few eggs in late summer, feed a wet mash, advises L. M. Hard of the New York State College of Agriculture. When skimmilk is available, use it to wet the regular mash, or use semisolid buttermilk at the rate of two pounds to the hundred. The crumbly wet mash may be fed late in the afternoon, just before the night grain feeding. The hens should have only what they can eat in twenty minutes.

Another plan is useful when no milk is available. Fill a pail one-half full of dry oats and then fill to the top with water. Let the oats stand overnight and then feed the mash the next morning. The remaining moisture in the mash will be used by the hens.

Wet mash feeding usually begins in late August. Mr. Hard suggests that the mash be made of 10 per cent oat scraps and 5 per cent bone meal, he suggested. This mash should be fed before them all the time.

The mash should be kept in a cool place, and the hens should have fresh water at all times; keep shade; and do not allow red mites to attack the flock. He also suggests adding two pounds of tobacco dust to each one hundred pounds of mash to aid in controlling worms and coccidiosis, which are thought to contribute to paralysis. The tobacco dust should be guaranteed to contain 1 per cent nicotine sulphate.

Hen's Offspring Best Indicator of Ability

A hen may be a good egg layer, but that is no guaranty that her daughters will be good layers, even when she is mated with a sire whose female parent was a heavy layer, a three-year experiment by the United States Department of Agriculture indicates.

Progeny testing—that is, the testing of the laying ability of a hen's daughters is the most reliable guide to that hen's ability to produce good layers, the department found. The common practice of attempting to improve egg production by selecting breeding stock on the basis of egg production cannot be depended upon to bring the desired results, the experiment, made by Dr. Morley A. Jull, department poultry specialist, shows.

The department tested 799 single-comb White Leghorn hens, the daughters of 19 selected sires and 135 selected dams, at its animal husbandry experiment farm at Beltsville, Md. The tests showed: That the egg production of a sire's dam had little significance in determining his ability to produce good progeny; that a given sire mated to a given dam may produce good progeny, but that the same sire mated to another dam may produce poor progeny; that the same was true for differing sires and a given dam; that full sisters mated to the same sire frequently produced diverse results; that the average egg production of a group of full sisters could not be used as a basis for judging any one of the sisters for breeding possibilities.

Lice on Poultry

Lice do not feed on blood like red mites, but eat dried skin or bits of feather, writes a correspondent in the Indiana Farmer's Guide. They may eat blood from small skin wounds but do not suck the blood like red mites. The lice are constantly crawling over the skin both day and night and cause much discomfort to the hens. Hens are nervous sensitive birds and probably suffer more from lice than if commonly realized.

Eggs Must Be Eggs

Eggs, it seems, just have to be eggs. In Connecticut, under a bill passed in the house of the general assembly, under the terms of the measure, eggs must be designated as "fresh," "cold storage eggs," "preserved," or "incubated eggs." However, the bill adds, if an egg does not conform to any of these classifications, but is wholesome and edible, it may be designated merely as "egg."

Poultry Gleanings

Ohio ranks fourth in poultry production with 24,954,000 chickens.

Pullets lay about 20 per cent more eggs a year than do yearling hens.

Seneca county (Ohio) poultry raisers had a record of 1,800,000 eggs marketed last year.

Pecky, Rhode Island hen owned by Ernest Rahr, at Pomeroy, Ohio, laid an egg 9 3/4 inches in circumference.

Income from farm poultry in the United States as a whole is exceeded only by that from cattle, cotton, hogs and milk.

The first exhibit of poultry at a fair in America was of Emden geese, by Mr. Sison, at the Rhode Island state fair at Pawtucket in 1829.

A Tyrrell county (N. C.) farmer reports building a brick brooder for his baby chicks at a total cost of 60 cents for stove piping and 20 cents for lime. He says it works fine.

FORCED PULLET IS NOT BEST PRODUCER

Should Have Time to Develop Necessary Stamina.

"Pullets should be given every opportunity to develop normally without being forced to lay eggs that they may have the body vigor to withstand a long and continuous period of heavy egg production," says O. C. Efford, extension poultryman for the Colorado Agricultural college.

"It is not good practice," he adds, "to force the growth by the use of a heavy ration diet over the entire growing period."

Birds that have received such a diet will start laying a month or three weeks earlier than the normal maturity period for the breed, but they will not have the body growth that enables them to stand up under heavy egg production over a long period of time.

Efford suggests that pullets on a summer range, a mash of ground grains containing 10 per cent oat scraps and 5 per cent bone meal, is suggested. This mash should be fed before them all the time.

This growing mash may be kept before the pullets until they are three or four months old, depending on their development. Then, in order to prevent too rapid development, the percentage of meat scraps may be greatly reduced by adding ground oats or barley, corn meal or bran to the growing mash mixture. Reduction of the animal food allows the pullets to grow and develop without stimulating the growth of the egg-producing organs.

"This method of handling pullets enables them to put on body weight and fat, and when they come into winter production they will be able to produce steadily because of their vigor and vitality," Efford explains.

Too Much Sunshine Is Not Good for Chickens

While sunshine is necessary in the development of chicks, one should not overlook the fact that during the hot summer months protection from the hot sun is absolutely necessary. One reason why late hatched chicks fail to thrive is because of failure to keep them supplied with shade.

Chickens are compelled to remain in a close, hot coop in the heat of summer because of no other protection are not getting the best possible treatment. The air under shade trees is fresher and cooler; there is less danger from mites and they are closer to green food and insect life.

If summer shade is not provided by trees and bushes the next best thing to do is to plant patches of sunflowers or corn. It is of course necessary to keep the chicks away from it until it gets a fair start. After the plants have grown to a sufficient height, chickens can run in them with practically no injury to the crop. In fact, there is no objection to growing a crop of chickens and corn on the same piece of ground. This can be easily done by erecting temporary fences and confining the chicks to a portion of the yard or it may mean the removal of the chickens to new yards more suitable for summer growth. On the farm this latter method can usually be employed.—Missouri Farmer.

Feather Pulling

Feather pulling is usually caused by the taste of blood, which may result from accident or disease. When hens and especially roosters taste blood they become part cannibal. Feather pulling is the natural result for the birds soon find that there is a drop of blood at the bottom of the quill they pull, and they have been known to practically eat a weak member of the flock alive. The best remedy is to kill the cannibals and segregate the victims as soon as it is seen that they cannot protect themselves. Out of door exercise and change of feed will do much to stop the trouble. —Montreal Herald.

Curing Scaly Leg

The shanks and upper surfaces of the toes of fowls are protected by horny overlapping scales. A little mite, called by scientists sarcoptes mutans, has a habit of burrowing under these scales, causing an irritation and making the feet sore. Its presence is detected by the loosening of the scales and accumulation of crusty matter under them. The condition is corrected by dipping the feet in a mixture of linsseed and kerosene oils, equal parts, or by anointing with vasoline.

Rhode Island Red Bantam

The general rules and practices applied to the raising of "large" poultry hold good in handling the Bantams, also. The Rhode Island Red Bantam is coming to the front as a popular member of the midwest groups and some good specimens of these birds are to be seen occasionally in showrooms. They have not been admitted to the American Standard, but it is likely that in course of time they will be recognized. The males weigh about two pounds.
