

You may not like this week's issue, but the make-up is exactly as I wish it with the exception of a few things that slipped in while I wasn't looking. The assistant editor and I have been wanting a free rein on this publication for sometime, and now it has arrived. With practically all of the Beacon force angling in the Gunnison River, we take make-up rule in hand to fulfill a few cherished wishes. You've never really lived until you get a swipe of printer's ink on your face and hands. And we've lived plenty this week.

If there is anything more embarrassing than the squeak of a shoe, it's the squeak of two shoes. For the past few weeks, I have been cursed with the twin annoyance. Why such an insignificant noise should be so humiliating has never been analyzed but has been jotted down as just one of those things.

When I hear such a disturbing noise emitting from the feet, some how it always reminds me of the mail order house. Such is not always the case for mine were not purchased there but they act like it. Nevertheless, I immediately think of that section of the catalog filled with a picture display of various shoes from rubber boots to dainty dancing slippers and back to gaiters. From thence my thoughts travel to the scale printed on pink or yellow paper at the end of the shoe section for measuring the foot inaccurately.

The next thing I begin to wonder what home remedy the owner has already used to rid himself of such red-faced embarrassment. Maybe he soaked them in water one night and then squeezed them well. He could have driven a tack in the arch or heel. But the only way to be absolutely sure of no further disturbance is to not even let your feet touch anything more to do with shoes. In other words, leave them in the closet. Some people may think some flat, soft-soled shoes, such as a heel slipper, might be all right, but you've got your own soul and peace of mind to think about.

I saw my first copy of the "Police Gazette" yesterday. I don't know whether I should be ashamed for not ever having seen it before or because I did. In the gay nineties, I understand it was considered the most notorious and obscene literature in the world. But it is very tame in comparison to some of the modern day magazines.

A man here in town related his early experience with the publication which involved a spanking by mama. His brother came home from college and brought a picture of a girl from the Gazette. Fully clad, her dress was raised just a bit to reveal a portion of her garter. The brother placed the picture in the bottom of his locked trunk. Not having ever been exposed to college and its worldliness the relater of this story and his younger brother decided they wanted to see the vile picture. They broke the lock on the trunk; their mother gave them a thrashing; she tore up the too, too shocking picture, and threatened to whip the college brother. Time Marches on!

4-H BOYS SELECTED WINNER DISTRICT COTTON CONTEST

Four 4-H Club Members To Attend Short Course and Make Two Day Trip to Galveston

H. Schacht Sponsor

Won Contest On One Variety Cotton Program, Which Was Also Tried Last Year

Four Floyd County 4-H Club boys from the Aiken Community and their sponsor, Henry Schacht, were selected this week as winners of the George Sealy Contest which was conducted in each district of the state. The winners from district, No. 2, will attend the short course conducted at College Station August 16 to 19.

The four boys selected from the Aiken Community were: Percy Tate, Lloyd Marshall, Reginal Perkins, and Paul Kropp. Bob Boyd and Marvin Glenn Marshall were chosen as alternates.

This group of boys will also enter the cotton classing contest at the short course. They will then go on to Galveston where they will be entertained by the Galveston Wharf Corp. Entertainment will include a trip out on the Gulf of Mexico and two days tour of Galveston.

These winners were selected because of the cotton program which they chose to undertake for this year. They are following the one variety program begun by many of their fathers three years ago. They have been assisted in their work by their sponsors and the county agent, D. F. Bredthauer.

The club selected the Paymaster variety of cotton at the annual 4-H Club rally held here in June. The members studied the records sent out by the experiment station.

They each planted a small acreage to this one variety and plan upon pooling it in one lot and ginning it together that the seed will not be mixed. This plan was tried by the group last year and they met with excellent success.

One of the commendable features of the program was that the fathers of the club members had also entered a like program and could work with their sons. Record books are being kept by each individual to ascertain the results when the plan has been completed.

Plains Has Own Water System Independent of Any Outside Source, Assert Experts

The Plains of Northwest Texas have their own water system. It is probably wholly independent of outside sources.

The moisture provided by rain and snow seeps into storage in sands underground. Experts say these sands hold enough water to supply the region for thousands of years—if no more water were added.

The storage is sealed below by impervious earth. The water can't escape and mineralized water can't get in.

There couldn't be any simpler natural water system than the area south of the Canadian River and east of the Pecos. Sandhills in the west part of the vicinity of Melrose and Portales, New Mexico, and in other sections including vicinities of Dimmitt and Hale Center are the so-called catchment areas. Rainfall on the sand and loose soils goes into the ground to the water bearing sands below. The water sands are some 200 feet thick, from 50 to 150 feet from the surface. They hold water in amounts varying from 20 to 40 per cent of their volume. On the edges of the underground sea, the sands are "pinched out".

On the North Plains, the water situation is similar. However, D. L. McDonald, veteran water well driller, allows for the possibility that some mountain water flows into this area. He says he doesn't know.

He is sure that no foreign water comes into the area south of the Canadian. The river is below the water sands; thus cutting the area off from the outside water.

In addition to the catchment areas, the underground reservoir gets water from draws and surface lakes.

The surface lakes are valuable in maintaining the ground water level.

Windmill wells first tapped the underground sea, thereby opening the way to a great cattle industry and farming development that followed. In 1910, Mr. McDonald drilled the first Plains irrigation well at Hereford. In that shallow water area and a somewhat larger one around Plainview, the water is only 50 feet from the surface. Other sections have water at approximately the same depth, and a few have it closer to the ground.

For the remainder of the region, the water is too deep for profitable irrigation. It is down about 160 feet on the average.—Amarillo News.

PANHANDLE WHEAT CROP $28,000,000 SELLING FAST

Floyd County tops production for entire Panhandle-Plains area with close to 5,000,000 bushels.

As price of the golden grain soars, last portions of the $28,000,000 Panhandle-Plains wheat crop is being transported to elevators and sold. A few are still holding out for still higher prices but a majority seemed to be satisfied with what they called a "fair" profit.

Probably 28,000,000 bushels of wheat will be produced by the Panhandle area this year. In May only 17,000,000 bushels were forecast.

To production of the entire

The Healthy Loan Grows Smaller

A banker should never make a loan, regardless of how good it might be, that he could not reasonably expect to be paid when due. To do this, it is sometimes necessary to ask the borrower to cut down their loan by means of regular payments, before the remainder of the debt is finally discharged.

THERE ARE THREE MAIN REASONS FOR THIS REQUIREMENT

FIRST, as you know, there is the banker's responsibility for his depositors funds. Loans paid when due or by regular curtailments, supply funds with which to meet the reasonable demand from the depositors. Loans paid in this manner lessen the likely hood of a banks assets becoming frozen.

SECOND, regular curtailments protects the borrower by rendering him less likely to over-expand and give him greater incentive to operate conservatively. When values are declining the borrower liquidates sufficient assets to pay his debts while these assets have a marketable value. If loans are permitted to run without curtailment the borrower's assets are apt to become frozen while his debts remain unpaid.

THIRD, regular curtailment of loans make available a supply of funds from which new loans can be made.

Plains Has Own Water System Independent of Any Outside Source, Assert Experts

The Plains of Northwest Texas have their own water system.

It is probably wholly independent of outside sources.

The moisture provided by rain and snow seeps into storage in sands underground. Experts say these sands hold enough water to supply the region for thousands of years—if no more water were added.

The storage is sealed below by impervious earth. The water can't escape and mineralized water can't get in.

There couldn't be any simpler natural water system than the area south of the Canadian River and east of the Pecos. Sandhills in the west part of the vicinity of Melrose and Portales, New Mexico, and in other sections including vicinities of Dimmitt and Hale Center are the so-called catchment areas. Rainfall on the sand and loose soils goes into the ground to the water bearing sands below.

Any erroneous reflection upon the character, standing or reputation of any person, firm or corporation which may appear in the columns of The Beacon will be corrected gladly upon its being brought to the attention of the publisher.

Selected From The Exchanges

The News Editor made a trip to Lockney, the land of the "Great Wheat Harvest," over the last week-end, and it would take columns to tell of the many interesting things we saw and the many happy experiences we enjoyed.

Contrary to the idea of many, we saw great fields of shocked wheat, which was cut with binders, on account of not wanting to leave it standing till ripe enough to head, because of the danger of hail, and it's a beautiful sight in the fields—the long rows of shocks—wheat that will thresh 30 or 35 bushels to the acre. And then there were the irrigation pumps running, putting the water on the thirsty land which is planted in cotton—and many other interesting things.

But the main purpose of our trip was to see our aged father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Jones, both more than 80 years young, but in the enjoyment of unusual good health for people of that age—bouyant with a spirit of cheer and optimism and helpfulness toward others, and vibrant with the thought of another life soon to dawn after the setting of this life's sun, which they realize is getting low in the western horizon.

And this fact was demonstrated very forcibly even Saturday by the departure from this life of almost a life-long friend, C. W. Smith, who was also two years over four score years, leaving behind him a record of service to his fellow man and devotion to God, having preached the "unsearchable riches of Christ" over West Texas for about fifty years. And then there were our sister, Mrs. G. T. Meriwether, and her family, our two sons, J. Wilford Jones, Superintendent of the Lockney schools, Wesley W. Jones, Principal of the Sterley school and their families, and many, many friends of former years, with whom we enjoyed being again, and the thrill of walking around the old haunts of our younger days, where we went to school courted and married—and that was 37 years ago this fall.

Pleasant associations! Hallow-er memories! —R. W. Jones, editor of the Whiteface News.

Dr. Irvin Abell of Louisville, Ky., former president of the Southern Medical association and leader in Southern medical activities, who was elected unanimously by the American Medical association as its president-elect for 1938 at its Atlantic City convention. This action means that next year Dr. Abell becomes head of the 103,400 organized American physicians.

Governor Landon had just been nominated by the Republicans and was telling the voters what a terrible mess the President was making.

The Liberty Leaguers were going full blast, taking a walk with Al Smith, just like it was the respectable thing to do.

Congressman Lempke was tearing his hair and showing how foolish a pretty good man can be under political excitement.

Father Coughlin was buzzing and roaring up and down the radio world, showing what a good priest should not be.

Dr. Townsend was showing how a good man, devoted to an ambitious cause, could be woefully mistaken in thinking that millions of followers would go politically, wherever he told them to go.

What a merry furor it was. And here, in just a few short months, these colorful leaders, with, all of their ballyhoo, are gone out of a man's memory.

Life surely is a cat play, and we all are actors in it.

"This is the prescription for I don't know what," said the doctor. "Take it, I don't know how many times a day for I can't think how long and you will feel better. I don't know when."—Anonymous.

The Republican papers of Texas, large and small, like to speak of Roosevelt "packing" the court. A better word might be "unpacking" it for it has been dominated by the standpat variety of Republicans since we knew anything. No one else has had much chance to pack or unpack. Yes, we admit the old gentleman are honest in their convictions, but their convictions are that the rich should be allowed to do just about as they wish, unmolested, and that the middle and lower brackets of humans should be allowed to root hog or die.—Terry County Herald

GIBB GILCHRIST WILL TAKE DEANSHIP

Highway Engineer to Resign and Accept Position At State A. & M. College

Gibb Gilchrist, state highway engineer for nine years, announced Monday that he had decided to resign and accept the engineering deanship at Texas A & M College, tendered him recently by the board of directors.

Gilchrist said his resignation had not been given the Highway Commission which will appoint his successor. Names of several engineers were discussed in unofficial circles, among them E. P. Arneson of San Antonio, developer of master highway plans for several counties and who recently resigned as a district director for the Works Progress Administration.

Gilchrist has served in the administrations of Governor Moody, Sterling, Miriam A Ferguson and Allred, the incumbent.

He is a former president of the American Association of State Highway Officials and is now serving on the executive board.

During his term as chief engineer, the commission has constructed and maintained roads at a cost of more than $300,000,000 to the State and Federal Governments.

His administration included a change from partial financing of highways by counties to a program of state and federal financing and during the period huge unmatched federal appropriations have been spent on roads as job-creating emergency relief measures.

Law provides that the Highway Commission shall name the engineer. Members are Chairman Robert Lee Bobbitt, appointed by Governor Allred this year; Harry Hines, former chairman, appointed two years ago by Allred, and John Wood, named four years ago by Governor Miriam Ferguson.

Gilchrist's present salary is $6,900 and would have been hiked to $7,750 beginning Sept. 1 under a recent legislative appropriation.

National Youth Administration boys working on a project at Spindle Top Park at Beaumont are constructing two shelter houses, a drive way, a base ball diamond, picnic ovens, barbecue pits, a horseshoe court, and a parking area, J. C. Kellan, Texas NYA Director, announced.

T. W. Dodson Tells Of Plane Crash

The following is a letter from T. W. Dodson of the U. S. Navy written to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Dodson.
U. S. S. Lambertson
San Diego, Calif.
July 14, 1937
Dear Mother,
At last something has happened that I can write about although it isn't so very pleasant. Yesterday while lying at anchor off Santa Barbara Island we received a message from the battleship Mississippi that one of her seaplanes had crashed a short distance from the island and that we were to proceed at once to the scene of the accident for relief. Within fifteen minutes we were under way to look for the wreck but after about two hours we had found nothing then we learned that we had gone in exactly the opposite direction due to an error in reporting our course. After proceeding in the right direction for about an hour we sighted the wreckage floating upside down with no sign of any survivors on it. Drawing alongside we hoisted the wreckage aboard and found the two aviators, the pilot and observer, still secure in the cockpits with their safety belts still fastened about them. They were dead alright after being horribly crushed and mangled and then being held under water for about three hours. The crash must have been terrific as the plane was splintered and bent until there was hardly a piece left that could be used again. The speedometer showed an airspeed of one hundred and eighty-five miles an hour; however, this registration may have been caused by a severe jar. It took about an hour each to hack, chop, and saw the men out of their respective cockpits. Several members of the crew stripped small articles from the demolished fuselage for souvenirs. The Mississippi sent over three motor launches to get the corpses and the remains of the wrecked plane. One of the officers that came from the Mississippi commended the Lambertson crew on their excellent seamanship in retrieving the wreckage. The cause of the crash will probably remain another of the unsolved mysteries of the sea.
