GENERAL DICKMAN SAYS AEROPLANE FIRED UPON WAS ON AMERICAN SIDE

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—The American army airplane fired upon by Mexicans Tuesday "was at no time over Mexican territory," the war department was informed today by Major General Dickman, commanding the Southern department.
Mexican officials claim that the machine crossed the international boundary line before the Mexicans opened fire, wounding Captain D. W. McNabb.
The Mexican government has expressed regret over the attack and has promised satisfactory adjustment.

BELL WILL END VACATION DAYS SEPTEMBER 15

Ranger schools will be open September 15, a week from next Monday, with a teaching force of thirty-eight, five buildings, free text books and educational equipment to care for 2,000 pupils, or 700 more than were in attendance at the close of the school year last spring.
This is the announcement of M. H. Smith, former superintendent of schools, who is still acting in that capacity until his successor, P. E. McDonald, takes full charge with the opening of the school year. Mr. Smith will continue to serve the Ranger school system as business manager.
Domestic science and art, and business administration are new courses offered in the Ranger high school, which will give all high school work and qualify its students for entrance to the University of Texas and all colleges of the state without examination. The Ranger high school is classed as a first-class high school by the state board of education.
The buildings which will be used at the opening of school are the brick high school, the five-room temporary grammar school adjoining, seven-room primary school just completed, the six-room school in Cooper addition, a four-room school in Young addition and a two-room school at Tiffin. New buildings are in course of construction in Tiffin, Young addition and a two-room school ready for use by Christmas, enlarging the present capacity to 3,500 pupils.
Of the thirty-eight teachers, more than half hold college degrees and all are graduates of accredited colleges and normal schools.

SECTION HANDS ALSO ASK FOR WAGE INCREASE

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—Representatives of 600,000 members of the United Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way and Railroad Shop laborers today asked the wage board to adjust their wages in accordance with the principles laid down by President Wilson in approving the adjustments of last week. The men asked that their wages be increased as soon as the economic conditions be overcome, and stated that they felt that the inequalities of pay existing between employees of the different railroads should be corrected.

CORRESPONDENT TELLS OF LIFE IN MONTEZUMA

By Associated Press.
AUSTIN, TEXAS, Sept. 4.—A newspaper correspondent who accompanied the recent United States punitive expedition into Mexico has just returned to the state capital.
The correspondent says he conducted his part of the invasion on a discarded cavalry horse. He knows that the horse had been discarded, he says, because "all of his springs were worn out." This animal, with the correspondent astride him, hit the trail from Marfa to the border like a trolley car going over a railroad crossing. The motion incident left the correspondent with a sore back and a bruise on the bottom of the trousers of the correspondent, who was not equipped with leggings, up where garters are ordinarily worn. As the cavalry cleared the international boundary line, a grizzled cavalry sergeant politely but firmly requested the correspondent to lower his trousers.
"We don't want them bandits to think we are bringing a boy over to fight them," he explained.
All was well until the line was crossed and then the correspondent developed a thirst. In answer to an inquiry concerning something to drink, a Mexican answered "nolol." The correspondent considered this an excellent stab at "soda," and he put in his order.
The liquor brought was as mild and inoffensive looking as a mid-summer moon, says the correspondent. "But believe me," he confided, "that stuff was made of red pepper and barbed wire, and brewed in the place where snowballs flourish not."
The correspondent found only one Mexican bandit, who he says, evidently served his apprenticeship in the United States, as he charged $2.60 for a dinner of goat meat. The bill of fare posted in the cafe presided over by this Mexican also brought comment from the correspondent. It read: "Ham and one egg, 50 cents; ham and two eggs, 65 cents; ham and three eggs, 75 cents; and on up, ten cents an egg until six eggs were associated with the lone piece of ham."
The correspondent says he found lots of good stories down on the border, but he could reach neither telegraph or telephone to get them out. But on the whole, he considers that he made a successful trip, as he learned to pronounce "Mexican" in approved army style.

Seed from one bale sold for $65 a ton. Very little cotton is expected until ten days or two weeks. Local ginners say the cotton is green and very difficult to handle. ### WILSON STARTS TODAY MAKING TOUR OF 10,000 MILES FOR RATIFICATION

By Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 4.—President Wilson, opening the country-wide speaking tour for the peace treaty, declared in an address here today that his purpose "was to go out and report to my fellow men."

"The only people I owed any report are you and the other citizens of the United States," he said.

The President said it also seemed "necessary" should make such a report because he had read many about the treaty and was unable to gather from them what the treaty contained.

Speaking to a crowd jamming the city auditorium seating capacity is 4,000, the President's declaration frequently interrupted by cheers.

The President appealed to his hearers to exert force for the acceptance of the treaty. When it is said, soldiers would never again have to cross the sea.

The meeting was presided over by President of Ohio State university and the President was introduced by former Governor Campbell as "the first citizen."

Wilson began by saying that he had "chafed" at the "finement at Washington" and was glad to get out report to the people.

In the first place, he said, the treaty under Germany, but there was no thought to overwhelm any people.

"Restraint has been exercised," he said. He said there was no provision for making it any greater than Germany could pay.

"Not to establish a league of nations," he said, "would be unfaithful to those who have died in this war," to the end that there be no treaty American traditions.

He said he was proud he belonged to "the primary school" and he was following the purposes of the fathers had seen.

"The treaty also contains," the President said, "a magna charta of labor, which has been set up in national labor organization. This organization will meet in Washington in October, whether the treaty is ratified by then or not."

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 4.—President Wilson, one of the hardest days on the 10,000-mile speaking trip, appeared in good trim today. His physician said that his health was excellent.

Aboard his special train speeding westward, the President retired last night after talking with Secretary Tumulty regarding his speech here, the opening gun of the series of addresses supporting the immediate ratification of the treaty.

Columbus was garbed in her showiest fashion to the President. The strike of the motormen and conductors of the street railway, which is now entering its second day did not interfere with the plans and welcome of President Wilson.

WHY LABOR IS FOR LEAGUE IS SUCCINCTLY TOLD

(San Francisco Bulletin)

Why organized labor is for the League of Nations is forcibly and succinctly set forth in a monograph by John H. Walker, formerly president of the Illinois State Federation of Labor and of the Illinois District of United Mine Workers. This article, explaining the attitude of the American Federation of Labor at its recent convention in Atlantic City, N. J., amplifies the reasons advanced at the meeting in the resolutions adopted.

Mr. Walker, who is the accredited spokesman for the Federation, declares labor is for the League of Nations because every normal-minded person is opposed to war particularly to the thinkers of all classes. Conscience he says:

"And it is because they believe that a permanent imperial tribunal, selected from the ablest men in the world, cannot pass judgment on questions involving humanity without making progress from conditions obtaining today that they are strongly in favor of a League of Nations a tribunal through which, by peaceful means, disputes between nations can be settled without resort to wars such as we have just come through. Every mother's heart has been ached with pain; millions of children have been made fatherless and motherless; billions of property has been destroyed, and a burden of taxation has been levied on the human race under which it will stagger for generations."

Labor makes a point in the next declaration in which it calls attention to the fact that every person in our own country who openly or secretly supported the Central Powers in the recent war oppose the plan; that every enemy this government had during the war, who was obstructing and hindering the government in its efforts to win, and who tried to harass the President, is against it; that every profiteer who got rich by betraying the nation and exploiting the dependents of the men who fought the battles is against it; that every employing corporation refusing recognition to unions is against it. Labor charges that those men believe in war and want further opportunities to exploit the national resources for their own benefit.

While admitting that there may be defects in the covenant, labor insists that they are not of sufficient gravity to warrant rejection of the plan, and that corrections will be made as time progresses; that the covenant does not take away any of the rights we now have, as is contended, and, finally, that it is the only means by which wars in future may be averted.

Mr. Walker's monograph is one of the most convincing arguments yet advanced in favor of the League of Nations.

FRANKLIN LANE ADDRESSES THE PRESBYTERIANS

LAKE GENEVA, WIS., Sept. 3.—Greater interest by the church in social and economic questions was suggested today by Franklin K. Lane, Secretary of the Interior, in a message to the New Era Conference of the Presbyterian Church of the U. S. A., which is discussing a five-year program to meet after-the-war problems and conditions. These questions the Secretary of the Interior said he hoped would be studied "neither from the standpoint of justifying conditions which exist nor from the standpoint of creating an ideal society."

How far should workers be entrusted with control of managerial policies? Cannot a movement be started to remove large industries and small from cities into towns and villages where the workers could have their own homes? How may the social advantages of the city be provided in the country? How may illiteracy be stamped out? How may our people be given a sense of identity with the government and a consciousness of the living value of its principles?

RUBE GOLDBERG'S BOOBS—You May Not Know It, but This Is a Serious Cartoon

By R. L. Goldberg

THIS SOUNDS VERY MUCH LIKE RANGER

SARATOGA, N. Y., Sept. 4.—The cheapest thing in Saratoga is money. Everybody has it in abundance off and on and spends it with the abandon of the drunken sailor in the old song.

Clerks bet $1,000 on a horse at the race tracks. Newly made rich pile up checks and counters on carls dice and the elusive roulette ball in the spinning wheel. Men throw dollars around as they used to toss dimes.

Wome accustomed to gingham and rhinestones gladden the eye and stimulate the sense of humor in their efforts to carry with grace silks and diamonds. The most suitable is discarded for the most expensive.

Extravagance and a contempt for money values intrudes itself at every turn on the picturesque streets of the famous American resort.

Never in the history of the Spa to which the southern planter used to come by diligence in ante-bellum days to gamble away the profits of his cotton and sugar crops, have the thrifty natives seen such a display of money and the things that money will buy. And anybody who knows the ruling passion of Saratoga doesn't need to be told that the prudent native is getting his.

Huge Sums Wagered

That people want racing is amply demonstrated by the enormous attendance every day. That the same people want to bet is further established by the popularity of the commissions and the eagerness of the crowds that fight for attention. One lawyer told me today that he had worked until nearly daylight "getting his accounts straightened out." I asked him if business was good or bad.

"Business," he repeated, "business is almost too good. Most of us are worked to death. I never saw such playing. Everybody is loaded with money."

"A fellow who used to make $5 a day told me he'd been making $30 and $40 while the war was going on. And he's here spending it like a sport. He's beaten me out of $15,000 this week. You ought to see the elad toes and junk his wife's wearing." She dressed up like a circus horse.

He had asked a seasoned veteran if he had heard of any unusually large wagers approximating those for which the late John W. Gates was famed.

"Plenty of them," he replied; "plenty of them. I've heard of dozens of bets as high as $50,000 on a single race and some of them were made by men you never heard of before. fellows who have got rich in the war."

I asked another expert if he had any idea of the gross amount of money wagered on the six races the day before.

"Of course there's no way of actually telling," said he, "but if I had the money I'd give two million dollars for it."

Where Women May Play

The number of resorts where women are admitted to the gaming tables is probably no less than four. I heard of that many. In the other small places where the wagers range

WOMAN PLEADS GUILTY TO VAGRANCY AGAIN

In the city court this morning there were two pleas of guilty for drunkenness and two for violation of a traffic ordinance. A woman pleaded guilty to vagrancy and was fined fifteen dollars and costs, this being the third time she has been picked up in the last several days.

I'll Praise It the Longest Day I Live Says Mrs. Cannon

"I'll praise Orgatone the longest day I live, for the good health I now enjoy," said Mrs. Ada E. Cannon, residing at 605 East Second Street, Fort Worth, recently in an interview with the Orgatone representative.

"I haven't been able to eat a hearty meal for over a year without suffering with stomach trouble afterwards," she continued. "My appetite was never good, because I was afraid of the pain I would have to go through with digesting what I might eat. My food would just turn as sour as vinegar and form gas that made my stomach so full and uncomfortable that sometimes I would almost cry."

"It is impossible to describe the dreadful headaches that would come on me and last for hours at a time, not getting easy for a minute. It just seemed like my head would split open with those terrible pains and there was nothing for me to do but just suffer right on through these spells, for I couldn't get anything to relieve me."

"I read so many statements in the papers of well known Fort Worth people who were receiving such good results from the Orgatone treatment I decided to try it myself."

"Well, sir, my friends are telling me that they never saw me look so well since they have known me, and when they ask me, I talk Orgatone as long as they will listen. I am gaining in weight every day, and my appetite is just fine. What I eat does not give me the least bit of trouble, and I am always glad when meal time comes, for I am hungry all the time. The gas that used to bother me so has stopped altogether, for my food digests readily and I haven't had a spell of headache since I took the first bottle of Orgatone."

"I haven't felt so well before in the last twelve months and am just building up and getting stronger and healthier all the time. I don't know how many people I have recommended Orgatone to, for I tell about the good it has done me every chance I get."

Orgatone is not a so-called secret or secret remedy, but a new scientific treatment absolutely free from alcohol in any form and is sold in Ranger exclusively by the Ranger Dispensary, under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative.—(Adv.)

THE SPOKE ON DUTCH

'Dutch' Reuther

Federal Officer Works "Combination" on Steel Safe and Secures 1920 Quarts of Whiskey; Works as Freight Trucker too

Scotland Yards has nothing on the United States Department of Justice in the matter of fearlessness and uniquely ferreting out criminals, as was evidenced Tuesday when a special agent took into custody at Eastland three men alleged to be connected with one of the most unique bootlegging schemes even concocted in the oil fields. How a department of justice officer worked as freight trucker for a railroad in order to get evidence against persons suspected of "bootlegging," followed up the alleged bootleggers to their trying places and nabbed them as they were waiting for the combination of a safe containing 200 quarts of Old Crow to be turned so that they could fill their hides, reads like the days of Old Sleuth, Diamond Dick, and a lot of other mystic "pussycats."

Only a Jew implicated in the deal remains to be found to make the capture complete, according to the government detective, who was in Ranger Wednesday afternoon.

The d. p. j. officer sometime ago smelt a mouse. It was a mouse with its hide full of booze moving scathingly across the country in freight cars and peddling out the draught that gives pipe dreams and the morning-after headaches. He was conscious of the fact that considerable booze was circulating in the oil fields. It was not only circulating on the exterior, but it was flushing the cheeks

BLOOMER BATHING SUIT. A NEW FAD. BOASTS POCKETS

Dainty miss snapped on beach at Atlantic City with bloomer bathing suit.

Atlantic City has set a style in bathing suits that is expected to spread rapidly. It's none other than the bloomer bathing suit. The bloomers are roomy and have two pockets—which make an extra hit with the fair bathers.

Since then he has ascertained that such shipments have been moving through Gorman, Cisco, Eastland, and Ranger. In August two safes were brought across country from Eastland to Ranger and disposal of much of the whiskey made here.

The safes were described as being about six feet tall and of the filing cabinet type. They are said to be ideal ways of shipping booze where officers are "not on." The shipper of the booze to this section is said to be a Jew, a former saloon keeper. He is said to have been in Eastland at # plodding the oil-field city streets.

The officer believed the booze was finding an outlet at the quiet town of Eastland, because sleuthing had been too accurate in Ranger for much of the liquid to pass without giving its secret away. The government officer decided to find it. He set out for Eastland. Suspecting that the shipments were coming through the freight house there, he attempted by subterfuge to gain entrance into the freight house in order to see if it contained a number of steel safes in which he suspected the booze was moving. He told the agent that he was looking for household goods that had been shipped a considerable period. He was dressed in overalls. Digging around in the plunder and boxes and jumble of the station, he saw that there was a safe there, that looked suspicious. Here was his chance.

He went to the foreman of the truckers and told him that inasmuch as his household goods had not arrived and he had a sick wife and children and needed work until they should arrive, he wanted a place as trucker. The foreman accepted his services and he immediately took up his new employment. It was two days that he had watched the safe when a man with a big truck drove up to the platform showing trepidation and caution and proceeded to take out the expense bill for the shipment and entered the freight house for the safe. The d. p. j. officer assisted in loading the safe. When the dray started off with the six-foot steel safe, the d. p. j. officer slunk out of the freight house and cautiously followed on a parallel street the way as it made for a building on the Leon river in east Eastland.

The dray stopped at a large building near the stream. Under the platform dived the d. p. j. officer and crouched to a point immediately under where the safe was placed. Through the floor he could hear a number of inmates talking refreshingly and enthusiastically. He heard one or two of them declare with bated breath that they wished the would come on so they could work the combination and get some of the Old Crow which it so securely held.

Further cryptic maneuvers further strengthened the evidence against the men and they were arrested and marched to the court house and turned over to the county officers and will later be transferred to the United States marshal for transportation to the federal prison at Abilene until the law takes its course.

The safe in question contained around 200 quarts of Old Crow. Four other safes and the contents of almost all were found by the d. p. j. officer, there being in all 1920 quarts of the popular brand. The value placed on it by bootleggers would run into the thousands of dollars.

The d. p. j. officer declares that he was under the impression booze was moving through safes for some time. He had some intimation of this previously, but had not been able to find the whereabouts of the shipments.

the time the shipment was taken out, but smelling a mouse, made his escape. The receiver of the booze is said to have been a former traveling salesman for one of the largest brewing companies that operated in the United States a few years ago, and carries as a souvenir of those "good old days" a memento of recognition showing that he had sold more than a million dollars worth of beer in territory."

THE TIMES' DAILY SHORTS

TURKEY RED

By Dora Mollan.

The new doctor and his young bride excited much interest in the small town of Carrington. After a week's inspection, the consensus of opinion, even among the women, was favorable toward Mrs. Loring. "She's quite pretty," said Mrs. Pettierow, describing one of the new arrivals to her next door neighbor. "She has wavy black hair and black eyes; the type that can wear red, you know."

The minister's wife gave a luncheon. Loretta Loring was very charming in a pale yellow gown. Her manner was naturally bright and vivacious, but when the little group had filed into the dining room and were seated around the table, which was decorated with red carnations, she became quiet and ill at ease. The talk turned on childhood days. The hostess, with the good intention of bringing the stranger into the conversation, asked "Were you city or country bred, Mrs. Loring?"

Against her will the color flooded Loretta's cheeks as she replied: "Scarcely either, Mrs. Atherton. My childhood days were spent in an orphan asylum. There were murmurs of sympathy then the subject was changed, and Mrs. Loring's subsistent demeanor was attributed by the hostess and guests to the unfortunate question.

"No one dreamed that the young doctor's wife had told a direct lie in that reply, or that the color of the table decorations was the real cause of her changed manner. As there was Dr. Loring had noticed this "strange antipathy before. There had been the time when Loretta had been and him never to wear a red necktie if he loved her; and the incident of a set of O. Henry, heard in red morocco. Therefore, though he was somewhat astonished, on returning home that afternoon, to find his wife in tears, the doctor was not surprised when she told him the reason. Leaning down, he lifted Loretta in his arms. With a nuzzled frown, he said: "That horror of red is a strange thing. Did you ever try to overcome it, dear?" As there was no reply he continued, "Did it ever occur to you that it might be a birthmark?"

Mrs. Loring sat up. "Why, I never thought of that," she said, excitedly. "It sounds plausible, doesn't it? Why, I can't help showing it would believe—"

"I stopped about to send that a quick glance at her husband.

"Dear," the latter answered "there are times when I think you know the real reason for that strange dislike and are keeping it from me." Loretta tried to look him straight in the eye, but she failed. How ever, she shook her head. "Why, of course not, Hal. My past is an open book to you, just as yours is to me."

The doctor seemed about to make some reply, but he closed his lips tight for a moment, then changed the subject.

The Lorings were apparently very happy in their new home. As time went on the doctor built up a lucrative practice in Carrington. Loretta made many friends. But it came to be generally understood among them that the subject of her past life was one to be avoided.

As the minister's wife expressed it, "The poor girl seems so sensitive on the subject. Probably she led an unhappy life in that asylum, and the thought of it unsets her."

But Dr. Loring was worried about his wife. He had faith in her love and tried to believe her repeated assurances that she was honest. But there were times when Loretta thought herself unobserved. Then her expression changed; it became strange, almost desperate. There were nights when she couldn't sleep, or had horrible dreams.

During the influenza epidemic Mrs. Loring was one of the number of victims. The doctor, coming in one evening after an unusually hard day, offered to relieve the nurse for a while. As he sat down by the bedside Loretta said, with a trace of hysteria in her voice, "Hal, I've been thinking. Suppose I should die. Why—"

"Nonsense!" said her husband; "you must put those morbid ideas right out of your head. You're coming along all right." The patient looked at him sternly. "But I do," she persisted; "if I should go with this awful lie on my conscience—I must tell you."

Stroking his wife's head, Dr. Loring hushed her not to talk then. "Tell me some other time," he said. "Here, dear, take this—" and he gave her a sedative tablet and a little water. But Loretta was not to be so easily lulled. "I know I will have to give up your love if I tell you what I hate red—"

Her face flushed, her eyes wide.

She pushed aside the restraining hand on her shoulder. "Hal," she said, "I lied to you the first time we met. I never saw the inside of an orphan asylum—and I know all about my parents. They drank themselves to death soon after I was sent to the reform school for theft. I was kept there for four years, and once I tried to escape. They found me and took me back—and put a forty red dress on me as a badge of disgrace and made me wear it for months. The very sight of the color brings it all back." Mrs. Loring's voice died away in a weak sob.

She was exhausted and lay with her eyes closed, so she did not see the expression of her husband's face as he asked, "Why did you tell me that?" Without realizing how she had replied, "Because my mother beat me. She wanted something to grieve for in Dr. Loring pained for in thoughtfully. Then he said were better than I Loretta because I was too rebel work." His wife opened wide and looked at him. "Hal!" she exclaimed "are you looking at what I mean?"

"You thought your confession to me dear. I felt I knew it before I inferred mother told me."
"It best for me to know."
"And you married me that!" Loretta seemed to be lying mostly to herself. "You think I was utterly disgraced ever? Oh, Hal!"

"How could I think that you were willing to think it of too! And, Loretta, I don't think it was the best thing that ever happened to me when I was in the state industrial school, came under the influence of a thorn who made me what I am now."

"Hal!" sobbed the wife. "I told you I was sorry. It would save me so many unhappy hours. But you never going to any more of them, dear; at least shamelessly run away from first glint of red. I wish those memories brought you."

"But I won't mind that," said Loretta, drowsily—it was taking effect. "You love me just the same. You matters."

And the doctor sat lost in his peacefully sleeping him who is without sin," in his thoughts. The moment as he straightened in his chair and squared his ears, he added quietly aloud—and at me."

TURKISH WAR IN GREAT SOON RELIEF

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 3.—The grain stored in Turkish warehouses, millions of bushels made available for the American Commission relief in the Near East by the Sultan of Turkey an audience that nominally granted to Major David C. Providence, R. I., director of the relief work.

The Sultan, according to a reliable source, expressed his appreciation of the American effort to relieve the Turkish people and upon the occasion of the interview, issued an order to the Grand Vizier to co-operate with the American Commission, which now has about 450 American workers in Turkey, by several thousand tons of supplies, including a large quantity of flour for the relief work. The supplies, which are scattered from Smyrna to the Caucasus, Major Arnold received less than two months ago, who has established headquarters here, formerly of the Rainbow Division in France, for the war service when troops in Mexico. He is a former professor. The work of the Commission includes the relief of the Armenian refugees, a monthly expenditure of $2,500,000. Forty-two thousand tons of supplies, including a large quantity of flour for the relief work, have already been prepared. In addition, the organization has distributed several tons of flour for the relief work. The supplies, which are shipped to Turkey direct from the United States, are being distributed to the relief work.

The chief problem that the relief work faces is the lack of transportation. The relief work is being hampered by the lack of transportation. The relief work is being hampered by the lack of transportation. The relief work is being hampered by the lack of transportation.

R LINES TIED IN DOWN TOWN

In connection of four of sewer lines Wednesday two of Main street, in alleys Main, and more being today, Ranger is taking a cityward.

U. S. EXPERT INVESTIGATES SALT WATER

Investigation of the encroachment of salt water in the Ranger field, a matter that operators have felt deserves attention, and a preliminary survey of the Deadendoma, pool, are purposes of the visit to Ranger of J. L. Mildren, commissioner of oil and gas conservation of the United States railroad commission.

Mr. Mildren's headquarters are in Wichita Falls and that highly developed field demands much of his attention.

"Conditions are satisfactory in the Deadendoma field," Mr. Mildren said, "though potential production is much greater than facilities for handling it. In the Ranger field, there has been much question lately as to the source of salt water in some of the northern wells. The conservation authorities mean to determine whether this comes from shooting or improper casing and to take steps against its growth.

"In the Wichita field, production in the county is 100,000 barrels and potential production is 200,000 or double the present capacity of the pipe lines. We expect the pipe lines will be caught up with production in November."

NURSES FORCED TO QUIT TASKS IN MASSACRES

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 4.—Two American nurses, Miss Margaret Mack of Hillburn, N. Y., and Miss Ruth Stuart of New York City, working for the American Commission for relief in the Near East, declined to abandon the sick and wounded at Shusha, Armenia, after having themselves survived a massacre by Tartars of 700 of the Christian inhabitants of the town, according to a letter just received here by Major David G. Arnold, of Providence, R. I., director of the Commission. The letter read:

"Our doctor and nurses were in the midst of the fight but were unharmed. On advice from General Reach I recalled the two nurses. They came reluctantly and begged to remain at their station as there was an urgent need for them among the survivors. The spirit Miss Mack and Miss Stuart have shown has been splendid and I felt that they should be allowed to return if they went as volunteers, understanding the serious situation. They signed papers to the effect that they knew the danger and that they were returning to their work at their own request."

A humorous touch to an otherwise tragic situation is related by a relief worker at Oulou Kishla who writes:

"The men working out from Oulou Kishla are covering a large territory and obtaining a large experience. Their chief outdoor sport is dodging camel trains and leaping culverts. Convincing the missing sparkplug from its hiding place vies with mending magnetos with thread as the chief form of recreation. There are ninety-nine mountains between Oulou Kishla and Haroot, each one intersected by four valleys and a precipice. It is a rule that after the explosion of the twelfth tire each day the flivver knocks off and its riders camp for the night, sharing their pillows with any roving dromeday in the vicinity and giving a treat to the predatory mobulooses that infest the country. There is a warm box car in Oulou Kishla, and a cook loaned to the commission by Mr. Oscar of the Waldorf. His yawort and chourba are inimitable, but no one can have his name or address because the world is full of quills. On your way through, stop off and sample the chow. But remember, don't talk to the cook."

During the last four months the commission has lost three members, by death, Paul D. Peltier, of New York City, the Rev. R. S. M. Emrich and Miss Edith M. Winchester of Philadelphia, a nurse, who was among the first to volunteer for work in the typhus ridden caucases.

Just before her death Miss Winchester, in a letter from Tiflis wrote:

"The sights about us are heartrending. A refugee two blocks from our office yesterday fed 1800 starving children. We have been feeding them once a day. And once a day the cart goes around to collect the eight or ten little corpses that have accumulated. Refugees are eating grass and alfalfa. The alfalfa they eat raw; one can always see children nibbling at a bunch of it like rabbits."

From various points in Armenia, the Caucasus and Anatolia, reports have been received from the American field workers. From Batoum comes word that "there are 150,000 Greek refugees back of the city who are gradually being pushed out by the Russians. Many of them went to Samson. Thousands of whom fed at an American soup kitchen. Adana has 12,000 refugees and 18,000 more are in nearby villages."

CONTRAST IN WOMEN

"Thunderbolts of Fate," co-starring Hiccup Peters and Anna Lehr and showing at the Opera House today, presents a strong contrast between two women. One—the role portrayed by Anna Lehr—is lovely and unselfish; the other, enacted by Corinne Uzzel, is utterly selfish and unscrupulous.

To satisfy her social ambition, the selfish woman has trapped the candidate for Governor into an engagement, out of which he might extricate himself when he meets the unselfish woman and recognizes her as his ideal. But to do this would be to shatter the faith of the public that is supporting his fight against graft. The choice is not his, for Fate leads his path to duty, but later deals out justice with a mighty crash.

"Thunderbolts of Fate" is an Edward Warren production, written by Winifred Dunn from the original play by Harry S. Sheldon. A modern story of love and politics, it is one of the strongest film dramas of the day.

JOHN SUNDERLAND, VETERAN AVIATOR, SCREEN ACTOR NOW

Playing the part of Geoffrey Ware, in support of William Faversham in the Paramount-Artcraft Special picture, "The Silver King," which will be shown at the Liberty Theatre today and Friday, is a young actor who has a unique claim to distinction. The name which he has chosen for his motion picture advent is John Sunderland, and he is a veteran of the Great War, having served nearly three years in the aviation service of the Belgian army.

After receiving no fewer than thirteen wounds he was honorably discharged. He could not go back to his former occupation for he had no business left to go to. Both he and his father lost all they had in worldly goods to help save Belgium from destruction, and that was nearly twelve million dollars. Their business was freight transportation between East African ports. Their ships were sunk and their business entirely wiped out.

Mr. Sunderland came to this country and soon was attracted by the appeal offered by a career in motion pictures. Because he is exceptionally good looking and has demonstrated that he can act, and because he can fly, he was chosen as leading man for Clara Kimball Young in "Shirley Kay" and prominent parts followed. He has the distinction of being the only actor who ever posed in a photoplay with President Wilson. This was in a propaganda film on coal conservation.

Other prizes of $1 each were given to the following: W. Carl Dandy, Evelyn Cleamack, Mrs. A. S. Red-Fay Davenport, Mrs. S. E. B. Rossing, Sylvia Barley, Perkins, Mrs. Bob Dandy, W. Nims, Helen Frances, E. C. Calhoun, and Mrs. Sewell.

For all the above prizes have been given to the winners. In all that yours does not reach out to call by Miller's Quality Market and tell them of its failure

When We Say It's A "Special" We Speak Webster's Language

When we use the word "special" we mean just what Webster's New International Dictionary means, namely: "Distinguished by some unusual quality; uncommon, extraordinary; especially distinguished by superior excellence, importance, power or the like."

That describes "THE SILVER KING." The production as a whole is distinguished by unusual quality. William Faversham is an extraordinary actor. His supporting cast is distinguished by superior excellence. The story is of so much importance that it has been produced for stage-goers again and again during the last two generations. It is difficult to describe in words the charm of this melo drama, it is so vivid and tense. The man who ran away from a crime he did not commit is of so extraordinary a type, and the action is so fast that mere words in cold type cannot convey even an idea of the tremendous power of "THE SILVER KING."

It has to be seen and felt—Yes! It's so big you'll actually FEEL it! It's on
