Food Profiteering Is Being Stamped Out in England

By FLOYD MAC GRIFF, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—Food profiteering is being stamped out in England. The fight, which has been waged several years, is growing more and more determined. Where there are legal lacks or obstacles parliament straightway is given a prod and these quickly issues forth necessary legal powers to cope with the profiteers.

The chief aim of the food ministry has been to eliminate the food speculator. Unless a person has been a recognized dealer in foodstuffs he is not allowed to do business.

When the armistice was signed certain powers of the food ministry were curtailed; prices rose; now the ministry is getting back its former power, while parliament is putting through a drastic anti-profiteering measure.

Maximum price setting by the ministry of food on staple foodstuffs, with graduated allowances to certain portions of the trade—the importer, wholesaler and retailer—has been the chief means of preventing even higher prices than those which rule today. Quantity buying by the government, which acted as importer of certain necessities, also has tended to keep prices somewhat lower here than in other European countries.

"While checking profiteering has been our aim," said Crocker Smith of the food ministry, "it has been impossible to fix a price to the public which will give the small retailer a proper remuneration for capital outlay and labor and at the same time not afford excessive profit to the large multiple shops, which are operated far more efficiently. In most foodstuffs the ministry has fixed the profit at every stage from the importer or the producer to the public. In several trades we have adopted the system of licensing and forbidding anyone else to operate.

"The licensing system has brought good results. We recognized only those who had become known as reliable and honest food dealers. These included importers, wholesalers, second-hand dealers and the retailer. That eliminated the speculator, who simply came in for a gamble. He can no longer operate.

"As regards maximum prices, the food controller is always impressing upon people that such prices are maximum and not fixed prices and that where supplies are in abundance the cost to the consumer frequently should be well below the maximum price. For example, apples are 8-pence a pound, maximum price, but in many parts of the country they are selling for 4 and 5-pence a pound, owing to large local supplies."

Mr. Smith explained how the food ministry was operated.

"Although it would be impossible for all the petty administrative details to be carried out from headquarters except by employing an unmanageable staff, the country was divided into sixteen divisions with a divisional food commissioner at the head of each. In each division food committees were appointed corresponding to the ordinary local government units. There are nearly 1,000 local food committees, to whom is entrusted in a large measure the administration of the various orders made from headquarters. If the local committees get into difficulties they appeal to the divisional food commissioner, who, if necessary, reports to the food minister. The food committees are entrusted with power in many cases of varying the food controller's maximum prices downward according to local circumstances.

The defense of the realm act enables us to inflict a maximum penalty of 100 pounds ($500) fine and six months in prison for each violation of any food order.

There is a further act of parliament whereby anyone who makes illegal profit can be made to disgorge the whole amount as well as suffer a penalty of fine and imprisonment. Recently a firm was fined 9,000 for taking illegal profits in its sales.

Mr. Smith related how the food ministry checked rising prices in the case of tea after control was removed. Prices jumped from 2 shillings 4 pence a pound to 3 shillings 2 pence. The ministry still held large stocks of tea. It began dumping tea onto the market, and prices are back to normal, although not controlled. This attempt at "flooding" the market led to the enactment of the illegal profits bill. Wholesalers were mainly to blame.

There has been much loss recently reported foods, owing to delay in loading ships. The different railway facilities have been added to the inefficient operation of docks and quays, which have been affected by labor troubles. G. H. C. food minister, cited the demurrage on a 5,000-ton cargo of hard, urgently needed goods as $75,000. All such cases are added to the court's cleaning stores. The case of the generally timely cargo had the only meager delay to keep it from being lost.

SMOKED AND SALT MEATS

Bacon of the higher grades is prepared with the same care given delicately cured ham, and a connoisseur can tell the difference in flavor between the delicious product made from selected clear bellies of the barrow hog and the crude, too fat and more or less unsanitary sides of bacon displayed in the old-time country store.

With hot biscuits or waffles, or buckwheat cakes, a breakfast of this select bacon will start the day with joy and cheer the tired business man or woman on the road to success.

There are many other smoked meats that are simple and appetizing which are prepared for modern housewives and if we could see the care with which the sausage meats are selected, and the sanitary measures taken to insure a wholesome and pure product, we would feel that the "white woman's burden" had been taken off her shoulders by the commercial food products.

Bacon has a high food value and supplies heat and energy. Sausages of the smoked variety, such as wieners and frankfurters, are highly concentrated food at a lower cost than fresh meats. Such care is taken that certain casings only are used, carefully cleaned and sterilized. For instance, the smaller wieners are placed in very thin casings of sheep guts, far more desirable than tougher kinds.

RECIPES

ROILED BACON.

Place thin slices of bacon on a hot frying pan; place over the fire; cook at a moderate heat, turning the slices frequently and pouring off the grease as it accumulates; serve hot. Do not get too hot as it will cause the bacon to cook unevenly and scorch in places.

STEAMED FRANKFURTERS.

Place frankfurters in a saucepan of hot (not boiling) water; cook twenty minutes at a temperature just below the simmering point, in sufficient water to cover. Too much heat in cooking frankfurters causes them to break and lose the juices.

FRIZZED FRANKFURTERS.

Cut the frankfurters in two, lengthwise; place on a hot frying pan or cook until browned on both sides, giving sufficient time to heat through. Serve with buttered toast for breakfast or luncheon.

Salad Dressing

"Not long ago a chef was heard to remark: 'I always have excellent results in making mayonnaise with this oil, but if I use any other the dressing curdles.' Do you think the fault was with the oil? Are you ever careless in making mayonnaise and do you find that one time it is richer than tougher kinds.

MAYONNAISE DRESSING.

Two teaspoonfuls each mustard, salt and sugar. A few grains of cayenne pepper. Yolks of two eggs. Two teaspoonfuls each of vinegar and lemon juice; 1 1/4-cups oil. Mix dry ingredients; add yolks and when well mixed add oil gradually, drop by drop at first; stir constantly. As the mixture thickens, thin with vinegar or lemon juice; add oil and acid alternately until all is used, beating constantly.

FOOD RATIONS IN BRITAIN ARE DECLARED LOW

By FLOYD MAC GRIFF, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LONDON, Oct. 10.—A broad survey of England's pantry shows that though the country is in a far better position as regards supplies than last year, the situation does not call for any joy bells, while the outlook as regards prices in several food essentials is decidedly ominous.

Fresh vegetables, except potatoes, are not controlled in price. In small lots potatoes may be had for one and two pence a pound; in larger quantities for less.

The Englishman will pay one shilling a quart for rather low-grade milk this winter. In some rural communities it may be less, but that is the average town price.

There is a three months' supply of bacon. Prices are controlled. No more stocks can be brought in, because all cold storage warehouses are full.

There will be very little butter until January, when imports may come in from Holland and Denmark.

There are several months' supply of sugar on hand, which retails at about 15 cents a pound, including the government tax of 5 cents a pound.

The price of undressed wool is up after a long period of exhaustion. Dried fruits are more difficult to obtain.

Supplies of cheese are far below normal. Surplus milk is being made into cheese, but the production is away in the rear of demand.

The Indian government has forbidden the exportation of rice, now retailed here at the controlled price of about 8 cents a pound.

The price of bread will continue at the low wartime rate, owing to the continuance of the government's subsidy, no matter how high wheat may go.

Jam will have to be rationed this winter, but the supplies are not sufficient to permit Great Britain to resume her place as the world's leading exporter of jams and marmalade.

Attempts have been made by big tea dealers, since government control was removed, to force up the price of tea, formerly set at 2 shillings 4 pence a pound.

Eggs will be scarce and dear. Most of the country's eggs are imported. Fresh supplies are cut off.

Twenty-five per cent of the country's fresh meat—beef and lamb, for little pork is obtainable—is home grown.

Therefore British prices, which are controlled, will largely depend upon American, Argentine and Australian prices.

MAN DRIVEN TO MURDER BY A MERE DREAM

International News Service LIVERPOOL, Oct. 9.—"I had a dream in which I saw my dead mother, grandmother and God. They told me if I went into the street and saw a desperate burglar I was to shoot him and I would go to heaven."

"I thought he was a desperate burglar and I shot him. This was very much to my regret."

With these words Harry Theman, chief engineer of the American steamer Victorious, calmly "explained" his murder of Samuel Emmett, a dock laborer, whom he had never seen before.

The coroner read a statement which Theman wrote while in a cell at the Bridewell, in which he said: "I wish to give an account of the shooting. Leaving the saloon soap after supper at about 6 p. m., with the first assistant engineer, I thought I heard music across the basin. God was standing about fifteen feet from the ship. He said I would have to die as I was wicked and cruel, and the devil would get me."

"I begged for mercy, and His face softened, and He said all who repented should have mercy. I begged forgiveness for my sins and was told I should enter heaven. I was told by a female to go to sleep, which I did."

"As I did so I seemed to slip down, a center of attraction for everybody. A huge multitude was there. I was put through a large number of 'attractions' which were tests for my courage, such as a den of beasts, a large wagon falling on me and all kinds of other things."

"I had to say 'Amen' and make the face of God in my mind, and at the last minute I got by the dangers."

"Finally I was led into a large hall, where much dancing was going on. There was music, and this kept up until 7:30 a. m."

"After breakfast I heard a terrible pounding on the decks and a voice at my side, that was my friend, seemed to put all the advice in my ear. Where were two different factions, and the one I was with was the leading."

"The first test I had to do was to get a spirit in a room, and I had to stare at the mast steady, which I tried, but could not. I was then told I could not get back to heaven, but was eventually given another chance. Then my friend said I would have to shoot a bad burglar. I tried to argue, but he won out. If I did not I would die instantly, as I was half mortal and half man."

"I went to the place stated and started to avoid it. But he said I would not make heaven and would die instantly. When he said the word I shot the man. This was very much to my regret. The case is a great misfortune to me."

AUSTIN, Oct. 9.—When Phillips university of Enid, Okla., appears on Clark field here Saturday, Texas university will measure strength with a new foe in football.

The Phillips university squad became prominent in football two years ago when they succeeded in scoring against the strong Henry Kendrick college team after that aggregation had swept the West without allowing the ball to cross their goal line.

The date selected for their appearance was left open by the athletic council while an endeavor was made to select a strong out-of-state team.

The schedule of Texas university football games, already published, is now completed. A change was made in the date with the Haskell Indians here upon the recommendation of President Vinson and they will meet Friday, Nov. 14, instead of the following day. The change was made on account of local conditions.

STAMFORD TO GET SWITCH ENGINE SOON. Special to The Times. STAMFORD, Oct. 10.—J. W. Evans, division superintendent of the M. K. & F. Railroad of Waco, has advised the Chamber of Commerce that a switch engine and switching crew will be assigned to Stamford yards immediately.

The handling of local freight has been very unsatisfactory for the past summer and much of this was due to lack of switching facilities.

Stamford shippers will be represented at the hearing of the Railroad Commission at Austin next Monday. A strong plea will be made to have railroads accept shipments at wharves and deliver inbound goods at the warehouse.

RAINS DAMAGE LAKE ABILENE; 12-INCH FALL

ABILENE, Oct. 10.—When Big Elm creek overflowed last Sunday night, due to tremendous rains on its watersheds, considerable damage was done to Lake Abilene, now building, but not enough to cause any great delay.

City Engineer Riney said enough water passed the dam during the present freshet to have filled the big lake several times, had it been completed. As the lake will have a capacity of 5,000,000,000 gallons (which will be increased to fifteen billion gallons later) the size of the flood may be gauged.

The engineer declared he had not changed his original estimate that the underflow of the creek at the dam would range as high as 500,000 gallons a day, giving the lake the maximum capacity of water the year round.

The flood did considerable damage in the mountain sections of southwest Tarrant county. A party of engineers lost their teams and wagons and barely escaped with their lives when the flood came down. Part of the dirt dam at Lake Abilene was destroyed and other damage was done to the property there. The estimated fall of 12 inches at Oval has given credence here.

Many Wealthy Farmers Buying Homes at Cisco

CISCO, Oct. 10.—Many well-to-do farmers from the Gunsight community in Stephens county have leased out for big sums of money. Some having recently had oil-producing wells drilled in on their farms are desirous to Cisco and buying homes and otherwise investing in Cisco property.

The Cisco Chamber of Commerce is endeavoring to locate as many of these newcomers as possible. A well-to-do Stephens county farmer last week purchased a beautiful residence on West Broadway, paying $15,000 for the property.

DALLAS, Oct. 9.—When a note was found pinned to the porch of an East Dallas home recently threatening death to its occupants through the medium of hand grenades and bombs, investigation disclosed the originators of the plot were boys ranging in age from 6 to 9 years.

The note itself led to the undoing of the youthful band, known as the "Smith Street Gang." The letter was artistically decorated with skull and crossbones, a black hand, pools of blood, dripping daggers and objects which looked like Bologna sandwiches, but which to avoid any mistake were carefully labeled "hand grenades."

"Beware! Your house will be blown up at 12 tonic with hand grenades and bombs," the note warned.

FT. WORTH AD CLUB TO VISIT RANGER OCT. 15

FORT WORTH, Oct. 10.—First-hand knowledge of the gospel of the oil fields will be secured next week by members of the Fort Worth Ad club, when about one hundred members of the club, accompanied by their wives, will leave Fort Worth Tuesday night over the Texas & Pacific in special cars. The cars will leave Ranger Wednesday night, the party arriving in Fort Worth Thursday morning. While in Ranger the party probably will be entertained by the Ranger Chamber of Commerce.

Plans for the Ranger trip were decided upon Wednesday, following the regular luncheon of the club.

The recent trip of the club to New Orleans was fully discussed at the luncheon. It is in the hope that every member of the club may obtain first-hand information of the oil fields against future trips into foreign territory, that next week's invasion of Ranger was planned.

"We have been calling these fields Fort Worth fields," said Hubb Diggs, president of the local club, "and we must let more of the members see them. There is no doubt that Ranger people will be more than glad to see us. They are very glad to have us feel assured of a hearty welcome from Ranger."

Will Take Musicians.
The plan has the approval of William Monnie, Jr., president of the Chamber of Commerce. He will accompany the Fort Worth party, and a number of other prominent members of the Ad club have said they will go. It is the hope of the club that some musical organization will accompany them. If the T. C. U. jazz band can get away the boys will be taken. If not, some other local music will be secured for the trip. It is planned to make the trip entertaining as well as educational. Cars probably will be secured in Ranger for those who wish to visit other points in the oil field region.

A number of those who were in the Fort Worth party in New Orleans attended the Wednesday luncheon of the club. Each one was called upon for a brief talk, the responses ranging from amusing incidents told at the expense of other delegates to reports of the work of the convention.

Discussion was given to the cordial attitude of the New Orleans press toward Fort Worth, and the liberality of their publicity for the local delegation.

"The trip was worth every cent it cost," said Roscoe Ady, secretary of the local club, "and I am sure ten dollars' worth of advertising will return from every dollar spent in New Orleans. The corporations represented by the spenders of the money will be benefited and the town as a whole will get a world of publicity from it which will last for a long time."

Reservations for 1920.
A. L. Shuman, who was honored by the only national office given to a Texas delegate this year—that of a director of the department of newspaper advertising—spoke of the work of the convention from a serious standpoint.

"I have already taken the privilege of underwriting local accommodations for fifty persons from Fort Worth at the Indianapolis convention next year," said Mr. Shuman, who was chairman of the "On-to-New-Orleans" committee this year. "I believe we will find Indianapolis as a delightful a convention city as we found New Orleans to be."

Mention was made of the remarkable manner in which the Fort Worth party secured publicity by staying together in New Orleans, and of the work of various persons in the department sessions.

Stratagem.
"Some portions of your last speech were a trifle ungrammatical."

"Made 'em that way on purpose," replied Senator Sorghum. "There is no possible advantage in being mistaken for an uncompromising high-brow."—Washington Star.

“DRIVE A SPIKE” SLOGAN OF R. R. MASS MEETING

tribute to this fund, for it is an investment which will bring back a great return in the way of relieving congestion and building up the city.

Railroad Needed. We have studied the railway situation. We were told that Ranger did not need another railroad—that it would damage us, create towns north and south of us, and cause our teamsters and others to move to these new villages. But after we studied the situation clearly we came to the conclusion that several railroads are projected into various parts of the oil fields, which would give them a territory exclusively to themselves. It was here we balked against any thought of spurting offers of railroads.

H. C. L. Here. I must say that at present it costs from 25 to 50 per cent more to build structures and residences in Ranger than anywhere else except in the oil fields, because of the congestion of the railroad and the inability to command the material when it is most needed. This great additional cost can be eliminated by the new railroad, which will give us an additional outlet and inlet for the materials we need. Therefore, I consider it the greatest investment which can accrue to Ranger.

The mayor asserted that he was willing to do his share, that he was willing to place his residence and that he intends to remain here and become a part of its development.

World Looks at Us. Contingent upon the construction of this road, perhaps, is the acquisition of a number of large factories which now are studying the oil field towns and biding their time to see which would offer the best facilities. One of these large establishments would erect a factory here, investing many thousands of dollars, and employing between 200 and 300 men. One of the greatest electrical power companies in the country is figuring on locating its central power station somewhere in the oil fields—preferably in Ranger, supplying electricity and power for a radius of 100 miles. It would generate not less than 35,000 horsepower. This industry would practically be sealed for Ranger if the new road were procured.

Superintendent Smith Speaks. M. H. Smith, former superintendent of Ranger public schools, was the next speaker. Mr. Smith said his interests are bound up in this city and that he is willing to give his part toward any enterprise which was for the upbuilding of the city. He said the hour of Ranger's golden opportunity had arrived and that it was up to the citizenship to grasp it. He told of some of the things which would result in Ranger's loss if it failed to accept the diamond and Kell line. It was for the citizenship to go either forward or backward, for Ranger to become a mammoth city on a basis comparable with the largest in the state, or to revert to the cotton patch of a few years ago. He appealed to the audience to think on these important things and to take the necessary action.

Melvin Enthusiastic. F. W. Melvin, president of the First National bank, expressed himself as progressive in everything looking to the upbuilding of Ranger. He declared he had exemplified this by investing heavily in a "monument" at Main and Rusk streets to be the home of his banking institution, by constructing a home and by making various other concessions here. He declared he was for Ranger all the time, with his money and with his service.

He exhorted those who come to Ranger with the sole intent to gather the shekels and to leave without having done any good. He declared such people were not desirable citizens of any town and not even a credit to the American nation. He rapped those who were continually discrediting the city officials and speaking slightly of the streets and the lack of progress on building construction, declaring they did not realize the fact that it was not the fault of officials and local citizens, but because of the failure of the railroad to get material here, the bad weather and other conditions over which man held no power.

All Dependent Upon Line. "If this railroad is not put over—if your citizenship shows no interest in the upbuilding of Ranger—I want to say right here that all of my property in Ranger is for sale. By sale I do not mean that I should receive a profit on my investments here, but I do mean that it can be obtained at what I actually paid for it. I have lived in Ranger many years. I see in the audience prominent Ranger men whom I knew as little chaps. We must invest not only in the upbuilding of Ranger materially, but also morally. We must make this a desirable town in which to live, famous for its schools, its churches and its morality. We must be unselfish in our efforts for the city and we must sweat the man who, having no interest in our town, wants to get the easy money to be made here and spend it somewhere else—inigrate of the supremest type."

Bright Visions. Superintendent Smith stressed the fact that Ranger must not be content to be the center of the oil activity of a territory immediately contiguous to it, but it must build into a large city with varied interests and thereby become the center of all the oil industry which is to be developed for a hundred miles in every direction. The question of supremacy in the oil fields at the present time lay, he declared, in every citizen in Ranger being interested in the city, showing faith by his work, and by all means putting over the present railroad. The railroad, it was said, had put out the opportunity of Ranger to stand on the outskirts of the

"They have been liberal in their subscriptions; but we must have every citizen of Ranger to contribute his part to this fund. It will be the greatest investment we can make. We do not ask the man of small means for sums above that which he is able to contribute, but for the amount which he can reasonably contribute."

Committees Set Out. The various committees will set about their task within a few days. They propose to give Ranger a thorough combing in order that every business man and citizen may have an opportunity to share in the honor of cinching the railroad and starting Ranger toward the goal to which she has been set apart. Persons who do not contribute will be listed, together with the reason which they may give for their refusal, and names and excuses may be printed in the newspapers. It was even considered that those persons who are "here to get the money and to take out the good things, but who expect to leave and take away those good things without contributing to the aid of the city," would be gently boycotted by the best citizens for their unprofitableness in a crisis such as that which now is said to face Ranger and the successful solution of which means all to Ranger and the unsuccessful meeting of the issue the dart that would pierce its heart of supremacy.

"Drive a Spike." The slogan is, "Every person in Ranger must help to put a spike into the railroad." It was announced this afternoon that the two teams selected for canvassing the city will start Monday morning combing all streets and business blocks. In the meantime they will report at the Chamber of Commerce and receive territorial designations.

The teams have been distributed in city territory as follows:

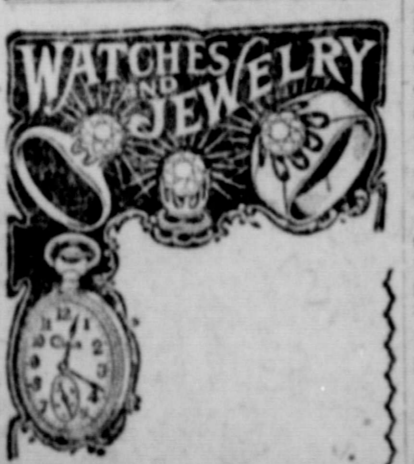

- Team No. 1—First two blocks west from the depot north of Main street.
- Team No. 2—The block north of Main street and west of Austin, also side of North Marston street.
- Team No. 3—West side of South Marston street and the McCleskey hotel block.
- Team No. 4—First National and Russell blocks.
- Team No. 5—Two blocks surrounded by Pine, Commerce, Elm and Austin streets.
- Team No. 6—Walnut street and the entire area north between the railway and Marston streets.
- Team No. 7—All of Hunt street.
- Team No. 8—Entire area south of Hunt and east of the railway, with the exception of the supply houses.
- Team No. 9—Entire area south from Elm street between the railway tracks and Marston street.
- Team No. 10—Entire area south from Main street and west from Marston street.
- Team No. 11—Flying Squadron, to cover any and all special districts.
- Team No. 12—Flying Squadron, to canvass the supply houses.

The designation of the territories of each captain has not been perfected. Those who will captain and assist in the work, partly compiled, are:

- W. A. Hyatt, captain; J. W. Barber, E. W. Allen.
- A. L. Duffer, captain; Frank McNelly, and another to be designated.
- M. R. Newman, captain; P. Larned, and C. E. May.

WEST TEXAS IN LAP OF LUXURY, SAYS WHALEY

"West Texas is enjoying its greatest prosperity," declared Porter A. Whaley, secretary and general manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, Thursday when he came to Ranger to see the vast improvements that are being made, to study the local traffic situation and to otherwise familiarize himself with oil field conditions, which are identical with the organization which he represents.

Mr. Whaley declared that an effort will be made to obtain for Ranger a traffic supervisor who will be able to expedite the movement of traffic and the proper distribution and placement of loaded cars. He declared that his observation is that Ranger is the worst congested place in the state and while he admitted that the railroad has done a wonderful transformation here there were little things which it had overlooked and could improve.

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce is moving along strongly and making strides to help every community regardless of affiliation with the organization. Many of the towns are coming into the fold where help can be obtained in the time of need," he said. "El Paso is now contemplating affiliating with the organization in which case the organization's power will be extended appreciably and its resources enhanced. El Paso is a good town and is moving along with rapid strides."

Writers of These Love Letters Are Deep Mystery

International News Service. LONDON, Oct. 9.—Suppose you were just out of the army, walked into the hallway of your home and opened a letter addressed to your wife and the second sentence stared at you like this:

"Well, dear, I was pleased to hear you are going to get a divorce from your 'hubby' and I shall not be sorry."

And the note concluded: "Your ever loving sweetheart, Walter."

What would you do? Walter Buck of Whiteford, started suit for divorce.

His wife swore she knew no one by the name of Walter except her husband and hadn't any sweetheart.

BOB MITCHELL SAYS HE NOW FEELS LIKE OLD SELF AGAIN

Nearly everybody in Wichita Falls is either personally acquainted with or has heard of Bob Mitchell, the well known salesman in the Gents' Furnishing Department of the P. B. M. Company, of Wichita Falls, Texas.

Something over a year ago Mr. Mitchell began suffering from stomach trouble and nervous indigestion, and in telling the Orgatone representative of his remarkable restoration to health by the use of Orgatone Mr. Mitchell said:

"About a year ago, I began suffering from stomach trouble and what most people call nervous indigestion. I had to be very careful of everything I ate and then sometimes I would suffer agony and the very lightest of food would sour on my stomach. I was badly constipated all the time and was almost a nervous and physical wreck. To tell the truth, it began to look like it was impossible for me to gain relief. I had tried so many things without getting results."

"I did everything a man could think of trying to get relief, but medicine, or dieting, or anything else didn't seem to do any good, and I just kept going from bad to worse. No matter how carefully I dieted myself, I would suffer terribly with heartburn and gas on my stomach after eating. I would also have severe headaches. At other times I would have burning pains in my stomach. I was also nervous and restless and could not sleep and sometimes when I would lay down it would be hours before I could close my eyes."

"About this time friends of mine told me that Orgatone had helped them and advised me to try it, so I got a bottle and commenced taking it. I got relief right from the first and by the time I had finished my third bottle I felt so much better I was not like the same person."

"I can now eat anything and have actually gained in weight and strength. I can also sleep well. In fact, I feel like a new man and am 100 per cent better than a few weeks ago. If I keep on gaining weight I will have for the last few weeks. I will soon be back to my old self again. The change in my condition is so remarkable, and although I have had publicity Orgatone has surely given me credit. I know it is one medicine all and more than that, therefore, I don't think of the world that Orgatone has done when everything else has failed. Orgatone is not a secret remedy but a treatment which is held in a and the letter wasn't for her. Then her attorney said he'd produce a letter concerning Buck's character. The pertinent part read: "I have not seen you for a long time, but we will make up for lost time when we meet. I will close with fondest love, May." Twenty kisses were duly inclosed.

Buck swore he didn't know any girl named May and the letter was in his wife's handwriting. A befuddled magistrate mused his papers about, wished he was Solomon, remembered the shootings such cases have caused recently, then sent them home together, with the authority of the love letters still a mystery.

POLICE COULDN'T POSSIBLY GET THERE UNTIL NEXT DAY

International News Service. SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 10.—Police of metropolitan cities may be rather speedy when burglar alarms are sounded, but a Sacramento man expected too much. He asked the telephone operator for police headquarters. She was a long distance operator and gave him the station in San Francisco—200 miles from where he was phoning. When the police informed him they'd come up he next day, if necessary, he grew indignant—until he found he had the wrong city.

GRASSHOPPER INVASION OF OKLAHOMA CITY

International News Service. OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 10.—Grasshopper days of Kansas and Oklahoma were recalled here one day recently when Grand avenue and many streets south were literally swarming with "hoppers." The entire downtown section seemed to be "on the hop." The unwelcome visitors made themselves at home as a bunch of visiting Rotarians at a convention. Needless to say, when the hoppers suddenly took their departure the city heaved a sigh of relief.

SPEEDING JUDGE ARRESTED; TAKES CASE TO OWN COURT

WABASH, Ind., Oct. 9.—Arrested for speeding, John H. Sayre, justice of the peace, had his case transferred to his own court, swore out an affidavit against himself, had his own constable serve the warrant and agreed to appear in court before himself. He said that when his case came to trial he would levy a fine of $10 and costs against himself and pay it to himself. A part of the fine and costs paid by defendant Sayre would then revert to Justice Sayre, as he will collect a fee for hearing his own case. He admitted he believes in keeping the fines in his own family.

PROF. TODD WILL ATTEMPT TO COMMUNICATE WITH MARS

International News Service. OMAHA, Oct. 10.—According to an announcement made by Leo Stephens, balloon instructor at Fort Omaha, an attempt will be made by Prof. David Todd to communicate with the planet Mars in a balloon made and piloted by Stephens this fall. The gas bag will be the largest ever constructed, it is said, and will ascend to an altitude of about 50,000 feet. Its capacity will be approximately 140,000 feet.

WIFE REBELLED AGAINST SHINING HUSBAND'S SHOES

International News Service. AURORA, Ill., Oct. 8.—Dominick Desmond, mechanic, has some ideas as to what a wife is for. He believes, besides mending his socks, cooking his meals, doing his laundry and caring for two babies, his wife should shine his shoes. "A man marries a woman to have her wait upon him," says Dominick. Mrs. Dominick rebelled. She was severely beaten. Dominick was arrested and fined $15.

WY RAINS OLD UP WORK ABOUT CISCO

Special to The Times. CISCO, Oct. 10.—The torrential rains which fell here Sunday, Monday and Tuesday have completely put an end to work out of commission. Contractors on all jobs were obliged to lay off their laborers, and the companies ordered their trucks and wagons to be loaded with all needs of horses, etc. Roads leading to oil fields have been closed by the weather conditions, which have caused a week's worth of work to be impossible to do. Conditions are getting to be the same as were experienced in this section during the fall and winter of 1914, when several months of rainy weather was had, which demoralized every kind of business in this territory.

ABILENE, Oct. 10.—A shortage of fuel caused by heavy rains and railroad service is holding up drilling operations in the Abilene field, it is stated here. Great difficulty is experienced in obtaining shipment of fuel oil into Abilene now, according to local operators. Some of the local tests are shut down pending arrival of oil or awaiting road improvement.

Our Choice of Tires For Critical Motorists

When our tire investigation ended and all the facts were compiled and compared, The Brunswick won first place. We bought and tested dozens of different tires of varied makes. We know them all, and we have never found one among them an equal to The Brunswick. If a better tire were possible, we could not have been satisfied. But The Brunswick combines the superiorities of the many, in a way hitherto unavailable.

BRUNSWICK TIRES

Tire building has no secrets. It is entirely a matter of ideals; and different makers have different ideals. The famous Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, makers of The Brunswick, have stood in the forefront for over 74 years. The Brunswick idea is to pay perfection's price and produce an article which will sustain and increase the reputation of this great old institution.

THE TIMES' DAILY SHORT STORY

SLIPPERY FOG

By Dora Mollan

If you had been unceremoniously hustled out of a beloved city and deposited in a furnished seashore cottage, left in a most drearily untidy condition by its previous occupants; if for the first three days after your arrival it had fogged so persistently, insistently and consistently that the windows might as well have been blank walls; if you had nothing more interesting to read than a month before last's magazine, and nothing more inspiring to look at than a framed print of a G. rgantuan mosquito biting the elephantine leg of an amazingly corpulent lady; if at intervals of thirty seconds the damp silence was broken by the dismal, prolonged wailing of a fog siren; and if, to top it all, you but just returned and beloved mammoth pavilion she had not the day of her arrival, where a great sign read, "Dancing Every Evening."

A long flight of steps led toward circles of bluish light, from beyond which came the fog-muffled sounds of music. Half way up a ticket booth challenged. The tone of the man behind the grating was firm: "No ladies without escorts admitted."

A long arm reached over Sally Anne's shoulder, a bill was thrust through the opening, a deep voice said "Two." A hand grasped her elbow lightly and the same voice remarked pleasantly, "I'm so glad you came. Hurry and we can make this wait."

Sally Anne loved to dance—and could. So could her partner, as she soon discovered. He was taller, much but in the creeping mist which lifted in at doorway and windows and through which the half hundred couples circled steadily, it was difficult to get a clear impression of his features. That the tall man was a courteous gentleman was self-evident; the floor and the music were good. Aside from a few weeks of conscience just at first, Sally Anne thoroughly enjoyed the evening. They danced much, sat out and talked some. The strange man, without giving a ghost of a hint as to his identity, mentioned his service overseas. He told some amusing experiences, incidentally referring to his top sergeant and often to his first lieutenant, but never calling them by name.

A couple nearby spoke of the hour, which was late. Hurriedly Sally Anne started up, saying she must go at once. Suddenly a full realization of what she had done came to her. Her escort walked silently down the steps beside her. At the bottom Sally Anne suggested nervously that he leave her there; she could get home safely. The tall man whistled sharply, a couple appeared out of the mist. "Take the lady to the address she gives you, Henry," he ordered. Then he assisted Sally into the car, thanked her for a very pleasant evening, lifted his hat and drove off.

The new and sunny day of her departure her dear old home. She had a check of her pocket and found a card which she had not appeared to be any more than with the place than herself.

Jerry's cheerful signal whistle rang down the street interrupted by the thoughts before Sally had decided just how long when to fix up to his own tale. Of course she would do it sooner or later; she had never kept anything from Jerry yet, and she wasn't going to begin now.

Almost before the first bug and kind were over Jerry sprung the news. His beloved captain was spending the summer nearby. It seemed they had just met at the station. "Black's wife isn't here yet," Jerry explained; "she stayed in town to go to some social business—though she was going to take a fine chance to show him off. Black hates that sort of thing, so he skipped. They had some sort of tiff, I imagine. Guess that, or the fog or something got the old boy's goat, because he told me about going up to full regulation a ball last night. Picked up some fair mystery and danced will her all evening—said she wore a wedding ring and didn't act as though she were used to being out alone. That sort of thing isn't in Black's line usually. Sally Anne thanked her lucky stars that Jerry couldn't see her face. She didn't reply. "How would you like it if I did a thing like that," Jerry asked.

"How would you like it if I did?" counter-questioned Sally.

"That's a proposition I refuse to consider because it's inconceivable," replied Jerry in a voice he seldom used. "By the way, dear, I asked Capt. Blake to lunch tomorrow—is it all right?"

"Is he a tall, dark man with a deep voice, Jerry?" Sally Anne's head was pressed close to her husband's coat lapel.

"Why, yes," answered Jerry, puzzled.

"Then I think, Jerry, it's up to you to decide whether you want him or not."

"I don't quite get you, Sally," Jerry said to lift the little head from his shoulder, but didn't succeed. "I want you to like my captain; he's a mighty fine man."

"I do," half laughed, Sally. "Oh Jerry, you have got a how lonesome I was here all that winter fog. I was so lonely, I didn't care last night, I should go mad with Ranger is talk to. And Jerry and Dub about his first two weeks you, though I did lots in this time; so it wasn't to the number, it was impossible, expecting that was it? And he's completed Jerry—and I love ranches here take me."

"Sally! Aren't you immediate that you were with me?"

"Yes," replied Jerry. "Can you forgive and last time?"

"I forgive you," Jerry said. "I forgive you."

"I forgive you," Jerry said. "I forgive you."

BACKACHE AND HEAVY FEELING

Weak, Nervous, Restless Woman in Arkansas Healed of Cardui, Tries It and is Greatly Benefited. Now Recommends It To Others.

Peach Orchard, Ark.—Mrs. Nonie High, who lives near here, states: "Sometime ago I began to have trouble with my back. I would ache and I couldn't hardly get up when down. I was so weak I would just drag around and did not feel like doing anything at all. I was so nervous I felt I could scream, and such a heavy feeling I could not rest at all. It looked like I was going to get down in bed."

I heard of Cardui and thought I would try it and see what it would do for my case. After taking a few bottles I grew stronger. The bloated, heavy feeling left me. I wasn't so nervous, in fact, felt better all over. I took twelve bottles and certainly was greatly benefited and can recommend it to any one as a tonic or builder. I often tell others how it helped and strengthened me."

Cardui is a mild vegetable tonic, with no bad after-effects. Its ingredients act in a helping, building way, on the womanly constitution.

Ask your druggist. He knows about Cardui. Some druggists have sold it for forty years.—Advertisement.

RAINS DELAY WORK ON WELLS IN THE COUNTY

Special to The Times.

EASTLAND, Oct. 10.—There has been nothing startling in the past few days in this field because of the heavy rains which have been falling here and delaying all of the work. Most of the big stuff which is expected in within the next week is on the inside and mostly in the Pleasant Grove district.

Tract No. 3, of Root, Hupp & Duff, is now drilling at 3100 feet with good showings of oil. No. 6, is drilling at 2820 feet. A location has been made on No. 15. This stuff is all in the proven territory.

Perkins No. 3, of the porter Wirtz, has been pulling 8 1/2 inch casing at 3345 feet this week and only has another hundred feet to go to the big pay.

The Hanks No. 1, of the Royal Duke is now 3075 feet and has splendid showing at all depths. This is on the tract adjoining the Barber well which came in during the latter part of the week.

S. F. Balentine's wildcat well is now 308 feet deep. This well is on the Watson tract.

The development is moving south from Eastland now with the building of a rig on the Joe Burkett farm, a mile and a half south of town, by the Lint Oil Co. This is on the Leon river and geologists claim that the outcroppings on the river indicate that a good well will be had.

A location has been made on the Hill farm, adjoining the Burkett place.

One of the most peculiar shaped leases in the Ranger-Eastland field is that of the Royal Duke Oil Co., shaped like the letter "L". The lease which is only 8 1/2 acres will accommodate 11 wells on account of the way it is situated. It is only 60 feet wide and extends across the Hanks farm. It was formerly a lone and cow trail on the farm. The well on this tract is now 3075 feet deep and with splendid showings of oil.

This company has production in the Deedemona field and is paying a two per cent monthly dividend. It also has a wildcat drilling in San Saba county at 500 feet.

$1,000 Burglary Committed on Local Tailors

The Right Way Tailor Shop, located on Rusk street, between Pine and Main, was robbed of twenty suits of clothes, valued at somewhere around a thousand dollars last night, according to a report turned in at police headquarters this morning.

The manager of the shop told officers that he employed a man yesterday, a stranger claiming to be from Oklahoma, and turned the keys over to him last night, telling him to lock the shop when he was through work and unlock it this morning. As a result of this blind confidence in his fellow man the manager is chert a set of keys and several other articles to the value of a thousand dollars.

An effort is being made by the police to locate the missing "tailor". The manager of the shop stated that he looked like a "dopehead," but he had even forgotten the man's name.

Officers, conducting on the case, agreed that half the thieves were going on in Ranger is the result of inexcusable carelessness such as was displayed in the case. They say that it is better to use reasonable precautions to guard property than to invite theft through gross neglect.

COUNTY MEDICAL SOCIETY TO MEET AT CISCO OCT. 21

CISCO, Oct. 10.—The Eastland county Medical society will hold its bi-monthly meeting in this city Tuesday, October 14, at 3:30 p. m. The committee has issued the following invitation and program:

Every physician in the county is urgently requested to be present and help to make this the most instructive and pleasant meeting ever held in the history of the society. The social profession of Cisco will strive to make your visit one of pleasure. Any member who has an interesting case is urged to bring same as a clinic.

Each of the following named physicians will be expected to read a paper upon some subject of his choice: Dr. F. E. Clark, Cisco; Truman C. Terrell, Fort Worth; Holman Taylor, secretary State Medical association, Fort Worth; Harry A. Loggion, Ranger; Dr. G. W. Griswold, Cisco.

Program.
Address of welcome, Mayor J. M. Williamson.
Response to welcoming address, Maj. G. S. Murphy, Eastland.
"The Doctor in Court," Judge B. W. Patterson.
Luncheon and smoker by Cisco Chamber of Commerce at 6 p. m.

STATE BANKING BOARD SPENDS DAY IN RANGER

The three members of the state banking board of Texas were in Ranger yesterday. They are the attorney general, the state treasurer, and the commissioner of banking and insurance. This board visited Eastland and Cisco this week and will visit Jukehamon tomorrow.

They are interested in discovering for themselves the source of the great demand for added banking facilities in the oil fields hereabouts. The number of new banks that have been organized in the oil fields of Texas during the past six months has added much to the duties of the board and to the burden on the state bank examiners.

The number of applications for charters is growing every day and the board has a curiosity to see the situation in the oil fields and discuss the probable permanence of the business situation that makes for this demand.

There are seven applications pending before the board for banks in Jukehamon alone. The board will look into that new town in the Hog Creek oil fields with a view to determining how many banks to allow there. They will find a new bank at Jukehamon with $140,000 in deposits at the end of the first fortnight of its life and of the existence of the town.

Members of the board visited the oil field and tried to get a vision of the situation that has set them so much work and argued for so much expansion in the banking facilities in the oil producing region. While in Ranger they talked with local bankers and seemed much interested in the great volume of money that is in circulation here and in the gigantic sums that are being paid out each day in wages and for material's.

Vags Who Can't Pay Fines Are Cleaning Streets

In the city court this morning eleven men pleaded guilty to vagrancy and were fined five dollars and costs in each case. Two cases against alleged vagrants were postponed until tomorrow.

A Mexican woman pleaded guilty to disturbing the peace and a fine of ten dollars and costs was entered against her. Two "drunks" were fined five dollars and costs each.

Nine of the defendants were unable to pay the fines and they were put to work cleaning mud from Main street. This is the city's first attempt to work prisoners, but it is planned to do something useful to do hereafter, when they cannot pay. They will receive all a day allowance on their debit to the city from their work. The police department is making a determined effort to rid the city of idle character, or make them go to work. The police patrol wagon, which arrived yesterday, will prove a great help in rounding up gangs of idlers.

THEATERS

AUTHOR OF "WESTERNERS" BIG GAME HUNTER

Major Stewart Edward White, author of "The Westerners," the famous which is at the Liberty Theater, is not only famed as a great writer, but as an explorer, big game hunter and sportsman as well. Indeed, it is difficult to say in just which of these lines he has scored his greatest success. In the eyes of the general public, however, his novels and stories stand foremost. Not Major White is better known in Africa as the man who holds the world's lion-shooting record, the man who captured German East Africa for sporting purposes, and then turned over his data to the British Government at the outbreak of the war, and like performances.

From the far North—Alaska, Canada, the lands of long, dark winter, the New Continent—to the torrid jungles of Central Africa, White has visited, prospected, surveyed and sketched the wonderfully accurate color and atmosphere for his books.

REX BEACH STORY BASED ON GOLD RUSH

Realism in motion pictures has always been a prime requisite, and in "The Girl From Outside," Rex Beach's new Goldwyn Picture which is to open at the Queen theater starting today, this point will be noticed at once as being particularly striking. Director Reginald Barker, under whose careful supervision this production was made, has injected the utmost in realism into this story.

For instance, the Seattle boat is seen being unladen on the bleak shores of Nome, Alaska, where "The Girl From Outside" plays her part. The date is 1909, and the characters alone are worthy of praise. The atmosphere is interesting, and recalls to mind those days of the Klondike rush. Barrels, boxes, crates, cases—groceries of all kinds, clothing, implements, mining tools, and all equipment necessary for the camp, are unloaded, and much of the act on take place during this procedure. Even a cow is slowly brought ashore, but ere the fragile boat reaches the sandy shore, she is precipitated into the water and has to get to Nome under her own power.

Every foot of this Rex Beach production is full of interest, thrills or
