Manning No. 2 Lucky Strike For Sinclair

Though it is a new well of surprising strength, in the south Caddo field, Sinclair Gulf Oil Company's Manning No. 2 may be regarded as a lucky strike for that company, having no material effect on the regular operators of that section.

The Manning has been the week's sensation, and other completions are poor reason to this day. On the range, for the first thirteen hours, it showed 2,510 barrels. It is estimated at 4,200 barrels now.

WASHINGTON SAYS NEXT MOVE IS UP TO MINERS; NO DISORDERS REPORTED

(By The Associated Press.) CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—The 400,000 mark was topped today in union claims of the number of bituminous miners out on strike. Allowing for a few claims of operators the total early this afternoon stood just short of 400,000 men.

THURBER, Texas, Nov. 1.—Mine union officials here claimed that approximately 4,000 miners went on strike in Texas at midnight last night, closing down the bituminous mines at Thurber, Strawn, Bridgeport and Newcastle.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 1.—Mine operators' headquarters gave out a statement today in which it was stated that the mine, which have been closed down in the state as a result of the nation-wide strike of miners, will not be reopened.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Approximately 394,000 bituminous coal miners throughout the nation, out of a total of 615,000 employed in that industry, today are on strike, according to reports to union leaders despite the injunction of the United States Government at Indianapolis against the strike.

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 1.—The headquarters of the United Mine Workers of America here are inactive as a result of the injunction restraining officials from taking part in conducting or encouraging the strike.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The miners must make the next move in the soft coal strike in the opinion of government officials. Should any considerable number of miners desire to continue work, the government is prepared to furnish them protection and is prepared to quell disorders.

Guam Boys Accept Airplane in Stoic Manner; Are Greatly Thrilled by Lift

STILLWATER, Okla., Nov. 1.—The native boys from the island of Guam, one of Uncle Sam's wards, who sailed 7,000 miles southwest of San Francisco, are now students at Oklahoma A. & M. College. They arrived this week in charge of Glenn Briggs, a 1916 graduate of A. & M. College, for two and one-half years has been an economist in the United States cultural experiment station on the island.

The island government of Guam paid four of the boys and is paying the other two. The fifth boy, a rich native merchant, is being sent to a private school on his own expense. Two of the boys, Juan Rosario and Jose L. G. Rios, were appointed teachers and were appointed by the government to take a normal course for one year at Oklahoma A. & M. college, after which they will return to the island and resume teaching. Two students, Remon M. Cruz and Antonio L. Cruz, were appointed by competitive examination to a four-year course here in preparation for teaching on the island. There are no snakes or insects fatal to man in Guam. But ty-

CENTENARIANS DIFFER AS TO HOW 'CAME IT'

San Francisco Bulletin: The Centenarian ought to be an expert in the art of life. Older men may have their theories of longevity, but he is a practical demonstration of the truth of his own. His advice should be worth more than that of the youthful or even middle-aged physician and, of course, infinitely better than the health hints furnished by juvenile or dyspeptic contributors to the Sunday supplements.

But the trouble with centenarians is that no two of them are agreed. The older they get the more they differ as to the causes of their vitality. You can prove any old habit by a centenarian. Do almost anything you like short of committing suicide and some one who has passed the century mark will say that he attained his years by just that means.

Last week there were two veterans who furnished the secret of long living. The first, Henry E. Stier of Stockton, celebrated his hundredth birthday and said that only by a life of temperate habits may the century mark be passed. He was a joy to the moralists. But imagine the shock to other portraich, James Read, an iron worker of Alameda, who attributed his fine old age of 104 to his daily drink of whisky and complained that he had not suffered ill-health until prohibition cut off his supply of the elixir of life.

When centenarians differ who will then decide?

TERMINAL HERE EXTENDED MILE BY NEW TRACK

The alley track promised by officials of the Texas & Pacific railroad some time ago will soon be a reality. A number of teams and men are at work making grades and cuts for the track, and according to C. R. Jonz, passenger and freight agent, the steel will probably be laid within the next two weeks.

The track runs up the alley between Oak street and the railroad from the light plant to the Prairie company's offices. It is three-quarters of a mile in length and will add a great deal to the present track facilities and be of benefit to a number of big concerns located up and down the alley.

BRYANT WASHBURN TIPS OFF HUSBANDS IN LATEST PICTURE

Bryant Washburn and Lois Wilson in Paramount-Astercraft picture, "Why Smith Left Home," which is to be shown at the Lone Star theater today, offers husbands a novel procedure to follow if their wives become incensed at something and carry out a threat to "go home to mother."

Mr. Washburn, as Smith, is in a much interested position. Weeks, first a parrot's aunt, and finally an earthquake are besieged against him. A pretty serving maid inveigles him into rather a compromising situation, and his young bride, annoyed, starts to leave in an automobile with her aunt. Smith quickly disarms himself as a footpad and, holding up the machine at the revolver point, kidnaps his wife.

This is the laughable climax to what is declared to be a thoroughly enjoyable picture, crowded with novel situations and mirth. Lois Wilson is again Mr. Washburn's leading woman, and others in the cast are Walter Hiers, Maym Kelso, Margaret Lorenis, Winter Hall and Carrie Clark Ward. Donald Crisp was the director.

IS SACCHARIN POISON, ASKS NEWS EDITOR

St. Louis Post-Dispatch: What about saccharin? Is its use injurious to the health? Were sugar selling at 20 pounds for the dollar the question would interest only the pure-foodists. But with the present sugar shortage and with prices straining to break into new figures despite the government's vigilant efforts, the use of saccharin as a food ingredient is a live issue.

That weighty opinion is adverse to saccharin is well known. But authoritative opinion is by no means overwhelmingly against it; on the contrary, there is such a division of professional opinion that the layman is in doubt, and under the present sugar circumstances is naturally disposed to give saccharin benefit of the doubt.

Quite apart from opinion, and decidedly more convincing is the actual extensive and prolonged use of sugar in Europe during the latter part of the war. In France saccharin had practically supplanted sugar, as a sweetener, for two years, and as the French are a "sweet-toothed" people, their consumption of this product presumably was large. If they were injured by it the fact has not been reported.

The head of a local chemical house, said to be the pioneer American manufacturer of saccharin, has sketched the history of the difficulties with certain departments of the government as to the wholesomeness of the product. He weakens the statement somewhat, we think, by impugning the motives of government officials by intimating an alliance with the sugar interests, but he contends that his company has been anxious to fight the question out squarely and asserts the government officials have dodged the test. To be sure, as an interested party, his version is subject to some discount, but on the other hand, if saccharin were so deleterious, a commodity as Dr. Wiley, its hardest critic, has alleged, it does seem as if that fact could have been established in the 16 years of the controversy. It has not been established.

The comforting assurance remains to the public, however, that if not saccharin, something else will be found. The sugar people may be able to devise a substitute which they cannot satisfactorily explain and send prices kiting, but there is a limit to the prices they may collect. Ingenuity will find a substitute for sugar, if it has not already been found.

Editor's note: Saccharin is a coal-tar crystalline product several hundred times sweeter than cane sugar.

CLOTHES NEARLY DISAPPEAR FROM FRENCH WOMEN

NEW YORK—As varied a coterie of notables as ever arrived at the port of New York is that peaceful yet busy time before the war was carried up the river recently by the liner Rotterdam.

Among the 1,013 passengers was a Belgian lady in waiting to the queen, a Swiss industrial commission, the widow and two children of a German submarine officer, a grand opera singer, three American officers, a Supreme court justice, a German steamship line officer, a Belgian soldier and a Fifth avenue milliner.

Probably the most startling tale brought home by any of these voyagers was that of the milliner, Charles Kurzman of 383 Fifth avenue, who had been in France and England looking over the styles. His story was that costumes are almost vanishing in France.

"The lovely women of France are going almost nude," he said. "Dresses are cut low both in front and back, and are of a decidedly filmy nature. This style, he declared, is already catching on in staid England. He predicted that it would spread to the United States.

WOMEN PURCHASE ROCK CANDY IN PLACE OF SUGAR

(By International News Service.) WILLIAMSPORT, Pa.—Williamstown, mostly women, who "just can't drink coffee without sugar," are paying fifty cents a pound for their sweetening.

During the past few weeks since the sugar shortage, rock candy sales have been unusually large. Rock candy, except for "rock and rye," was small. Hence, the present run raised some suspicion in the minds of some of the dealers. In answer to their queries in some of the newspapers they were informed that it was being used instead of sugar in tea and coffee.

THE LONE WORKER IN NEED OF A RETINUE

Spokane Spokesman-Review: Some Spokane contractors have objected to the idea of sending a boss, at $9 a day, to supervise one man who has to go out of town to get a job of work done. They think that while the man who is to do the work is entitled to reasonable comforts, and perhaps a luxury or two on his trip, sending along a traveling companion would be filling the lily.

This is taking the wrong view of things. For with union rules as they are, it is incredible that a man should be allowed to go out on a one-man job with only a boss by way of retinue. This practice, if continued, would lead to overproduction and might in time bring us to the dangerous reactionary principle of one man doing all the work he could in a day, instead of taking it easy so as to make places for a lot more men.

The worker should be sent out to his job with a boss, and then some. He should have a helper or two, a chaplain, an accompanist, and a private secretary. These things may as well be done right.
