Water Board Sets New Rules For Boats On Lake Leon At Meeting

The official board of Eastland county water supply district met in the Chamber of Commerce office at Ranger Thursday, Aug. 14, 4:30 p.m. Felton Brasher, president, presided.

It was decided by the directors that all boats issued annual permits to operate on Lake Leon, in the future, must pass approval of the water board. The annual permits, inspection and permanent boat numbers will be issued by the lake patrolman, it was decided. The permanent numbers must be stenciled or painted on all boats on the lake. All life preservers must pass the patrol's inspection, the board declared.

All trot line, daily or annual permits, will be numbered, these numbers will be entered on the permit. Agents selling daily permits will issue tags at time of permit purchase; these tags are to be returned.

In the case of annual permits, for a man and wife, two tags will be issued at the time of permit purchase, if only one person is issued an annual permit, he or she will be entitled to only one tag, it was stated. In the event a permit holder, or holders, should lose trot line tags, they will be required to purchase a replacement at 50 cents each, before putting out such lines.

Sgt. First Class Pete Mansker, son of C. J. Mansker, received over $1,900 in Austin last week as he re-enlisted for six years in the Army.

Mansker was cited for "devotion to duty and continued service to country" by Major General Lewis S. Griffing, chief of the Texas Military District.

ALL RIGHT, OUTLAWS!

(An Editorial)

If this applies to you, you are an outlaw! And, the funny part, or irony of it—it applies to a lot of citizens of Ranger.

There is a city ordinance, and a state law, on the books and STILL in force, making it against the law to BLOCK, CHASE OR FOLLOW, any emergency apparatus, such as an ambulance, police patrol car, or fire fighting equipment of any nature, or form, when said apparatus or equipment is progressing on any city street or highway in response to an alarm, call or any manner of emergency.

The fire marshal has authority under the statutes, to issue summons, for any and ALL persons violating this ordinance or state law, his assistants may be empowered to hold any person violating said ordinance or law, until the arrival of civil authorities.

Fire Marshal Bill Ewing and Chief of Police W. G. Pounds, stated Thursday, that beginning on this date, and every succeeding date hereafter, that their departments will cooperate in causing the arrest, detention and possible conviction for any and ALL persons found in violation of these statutes.

After all, what do you care, you are on your way home, it's not your life, property, or lives of your kiddies at stake—YOU HOPE.

Obey the law—save LIVES and property.

Williamson To Worry About Fish In Future

For the past four years Frank Williamson has had what probably amounts to one of the most ticklish jobs in Eastland county, but from now on out all he plans to worry about is why the fish aren't biting.

Williamson has just retired as Democratic chairman, leaving the job to Jay Blevins.

During the four years he has held the job, he has seen the fight between conservatives and liberals at its highest point. And he is one of few men who came out of it still admired by both sides. Frank has an honest knack for doing the right thing at the right time. He didn't claim to know all the answers, and when he got stumped, he didn't mind seeking advice.

But no one could claim he didn't get a fair shake at any of the conventions Williamson presided over. Until he turned the meeting over to the chairman elected by the delegates, he ran the convention "by the book."

"It's been a great honor for me to have served as county chairman," Williamson said. "I thank the Democrats of this county for the privilege."

Duties of the county chairmen include presiding over the executive board meetings, seeing that the ballots are printed and numerous other jobs.

Frank plans to devote all of his time to running his boat dock at Lake Leon in the future.

"I'll worry about the fish and Jay can worry about the Democrats," he said with a smile.

Hey! No Water

Lee Crossley, city manager, stated Thursday that the water service would be interrupted in the Hodges Oak Park section of the city from 1:30 p.m. Friday, Aug. 17. Service will be restored at the earliest moment, Crossley said.

Fire Call

A grass fire was reported at 8:30 a.m. Wednesday at Austin and Cypress streets. No damage resulted.

At 6:45 p.m. an alarm was sounded for a fire at 501 Terrell St., the residence of Dalton Hatten.

Fire of undetermined origin, but believed to have started in a short circuit from a TV set, resulted in negligible damage.

seemed to be getting the better of the precipitation, however the gauge at the local fire department showed a fall of .50.

While that will not be considered much by some, it is UNRELIABLY reported that certain barbers are not increasing the price of shaves in the city to twice the amount that is being charged.

The report was that because of the lack of moisture the tonorial emporiums were considering doubling the price of shaving.

Reason: Farmers and ranchers faces were so long that they had twice the work to do.

No report could be obtained from Lake Leon, or the filtration plant, Thursday.

Suez Canal Seizure Illustrates Dangers Of Oil Importation

WASHINGTON (Special) — Seizure of the Suez canal "illustrates the dangers involved in unrestricted oil imports and increasing dependency on such sources for essential strategic materials."

This was one of 26 points covered in a statement by domestic oil producers urging a special cabinet committee on energy fuels to reaffirm and strengthen the present "national defense policy" of holding oil imports in a statement by domestic oil producers urging a special cabinet committee on energy fuels to reaffirm and strengthen the present "national defense policy" of holding oil imports in line.

The statement, supplemented with exhaustive statistical tables covering all phases of the import problem, was filed by 19 associations of independent domestic oil and gas producers with the president's cabinet committee on energy supplies and resources policy, now conducting a re-examination of the oil import problem.

In February 1955, the cabinet committee recommended that petroleum imports should be held to their 1954 relationship to domestic crude oil production, and that if imports exceeded that ratio they could endanger the national security.

This standard, based on a stable relationship between imports and domestic production, "provides the only practical means of determining the point at which, and the extent to which, oil imports are impairing or threatening national security," the domestic producers contend.

The statement by the 19 oil groups maintains any review of the relationship of U.S. oil imports to domestic oil supplies, from the standpoint of national defense, support, the following recommendations:

1. That the cabinet committee's 1955 finding that imports should not exceed their 1954 ratio to U.S. production should be reaffirmed, 2. any special consideration or preferential treatment of imports from any country, or into any U.S. area, should be made within the overall standard, and 3. the 1954 relationship should apply to all imports, including some refined products not previously considered by the cabinet group.

Despite the cabinet committee's recommendations, the statement said, imported oil has "displaced available domestic production to an increasing extent." The result is that shut in domestic oil producing capacity in 1956 will average over 2,000,000 barrels a day.

At the same time, the domestic producers contend, "U.S. imports of crude oil are scheduled to increase from 1954 to 1956 at a faster rate than during any two year period since World War II."

Total imports this year will exceed 20 per cent of U.S. production, as compared to the 16.6 per cent in 1954. Imports are scheduled to exceed the cabinet committee's recommended level by 370,000 barrels daily during the last six months of 1956. Crude oil will account for 59 per cent of this excess, the statement said.

"The relationship of scheduled crude oil imports to domestic crude oil production is expected to average 13.5 per cent in 1956 as compared with 10.3 per cent in 1954 — the largest increase in this ratio during any two year period since World War II," the statement pointed out.

It declared the increasing trend of U.S. oil imports — both in total and in relation to domestic production — "has continued and has been accelerated since 1954."

Some of the results, the statement observes, have been inadequate drilling, inadequate development of domestic petroleum reserves, deterioration of domestic oil prices, substantial increases in abandonments of domestic oil wells, and an increasing number of wells without pipeline connections or subject to "pipeline production."

Other points emphasized by the statement include:

1. Recent modifications of the cabinet committee's 1955 recommendations resulted in excluding 75.6 per cent of total oil imports from consideration. Any special consideration or preferential treatment as to imports by countries of origin, for defense purposes, should be provided "within" the overall standard. Excessive or exclusion of imports "out side" the overall standard "conflict with basic defense policy."
2. Foreign oil would have enjoyed an expansion of "substantially in excess" of increase in market for oil, even if U.S. oil imports not increased since 1954. These increases in oil imports (Continued on Page Two)

Rotary Club In Regular Meet

The Ranger Rotary club met for the regular Wednesday luncheon meeting at Gholson hotel coffee shop, in the dining room.

It was announced that Sid Gaines, district governor, would pay an official visit to the club next Wednesday, Aug. 22.

Program chairman, Felton Brasher, introduced Judge L. K. Pearson, who brought the program.

The judge, in his talk, highlighted some of the local confronting laymen, lawyers and judges.

A note, according to the judge, is barred after four years; an open account after two years. He stated that it is not necessary for anyone making a will to leave property or money to all children or relatives, and that such children or relatives, could not contest such a will, merely because they did not inherit money or property therefrom.

He also stated that money loaned on homesteads, was for homestead improvements and repairs, not for other usage and that homesteads are subject to taxation.

A board of directors meeting was held after the luncheon.

Drouth Stricken Farmers To Get Some Tax Relief

Drouth stricken farmers have been provided income tax relief on the sale of livestock by public law 629 approved June 29, 1956. When a farmer has to sell his livestock, in excess of the number that he usually sells in his ordinary business, due to a drouth, he can consider the sale as an involuntary conversion. The tax relief provisions relating to involuntary conversions have in the past applied to such things as the burning of your house, losses by flood, etc. on which insurance is collected. No tax is due on the sale of property due to an involuntary conversion if the property is replaced with like kind within a specified period, generally before the end of the following year.

A. E. Fogle, Jr., administrative officer of the Abilene office stated that farmers who are having to sell livestock due to drouth conditions will qualify. He pointed out that the farmers tax guide for 1955, internal revenue service publication 225, sets out the procedures the farmers should follow in chapter 13. Publication 225 is available at internal revenue service offices and at county agents' offices. Thousands of farmers used this publication in preparing their 1955 tax returns.

"It is the responsibility of government to affirm and enforce whatever oil import policy is necessary to the national security, and individual private enterprise organizations — which necessarily are guided in part by economics — should not be relied upon to decide at what point to disregard business economics in the interest of our national security objective," the statement concluded.

Poison Feed May Result From Drought

Now that many cultivated grasses and plants are dry and feed is scarce they are unpalatable. But when animals are hungry, they will feed on almost anything that is available.

Under normal conditions, says the foundation, animals will stay away from poisonous plants because they are unpalatable. But when animals are hungry, they will feed on almost anything that is available.

Losses from plant poisoning in livestock are common in many areas of the country, especially in some of the western range states, the eastern mountain areas and localities where drought cuts down normal feed sources.

Locoweed is the most important trouble maker in this respect in the western and mountain areas. In other sections, deadly nightshade, laurel and water hemlock are dangerous. Larkspurs also cause a large number of losses and the lupines likewise can cause trouble.

A large number of plants are deadly because they develop hydrocyanic or prussic acid. Included in this group are wild choke-cherry, sorghum, sudan grass, Johnson grass, flax and arrow grass. Some of these plants, when grown under normal conditions, are considered very good feed.

Only when the normal growth is interrupted by drought, frost or some other cause, do they tend to become poisonous. Forage crops grown on soils containing a high nitrate content may result in costly cattle and sheep losses under certain adverse conditions of growth, and the symptoms picture is easily confused with prussic acid poisoning.

Farmers should be alert for suspicious symptoms of plant poisonings at this time of year and obtain a veterinarian's diagnosis promptly if trouble develops, as time is a vital factor in such cases, the foundation says.

USS Alamo Commissioning to be At Pascagoula, Miss., Aug. 24; Skipper Invites People of Texas

The skipper of the USS Alamo, first U. S. Navy ship named for the shrine of Texas liberty, issued an open invitation Tuesday "to the people of Texas and all Americans in the world" to attend Aug. 24 commissioning ceremonies at Pascagoula, Miss.

In a message submitted to the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce, Capt. J. L. Semmes, USN, prospective commanding officer of the ship, declared:

"Tremendous response to our appeal to Texans who hold the famed Alamo in great reverence and esteem to assist us in a Texas-style commissioning dictates a broader invitation assuring that all are welcome.

"We are sending a special call across the country to descendants of heroes who died in defense of the Alamo.

(A band of 180-odd men under Col. Wm. Travis—including frontiersmen Jim Bowie and David Crockett—perished in the Alamo, a fortified Spanish mission in San Antonio, Tex., attacked and overwhelmed by a 4,000-man army under Mexican President - Dictator Gen. Santa Anna in the spring of 1836.

(The delaying action welded scattered Texans into a united army under Gen. Sam Houston which smashed Santa Anna's forces two months later with the cry "Remember the Alamo!" and won Texas' independence.)

In addressing his appeal "to the people of Texas and all Americans in the world," Capt. Semmes said he purposely used the opening lines of Travis' last ("I shall never surrender or retreat") message.

"I use it with great respect and humility and with the expectation that it will strike a responsive chord in the hearts of true Texans and Americans everywhere," the Navy officer said.

"May as many as possible attend the commissioning of the USS Alamo and help imbue this ship and its company with the same spirit of courage and sacrifice as the gallant defenders of the Alamo displayed 120 years ago," he said.

The Navy hopes to man the USS Alamo with as many native Texas sons as possible, Capt. Semmes said.

Ceremonies at the Ingalls Shipbuilding Corp. in Pascagoula, starting at 3 p.m., will see delegations from San Antonio, Austin, Corpus Christi and other Texas cities present Texana and other gifts for display aboard the USS Alamo.

Principal speaker will be Mayor J. Edwin Kaykendall of San Antonio. Navy jets and elements of San Antonio's "Alamo wing" (433rd troop carrier) will execute a flyover.

The presentations include Texas and Confederate flags, a bronze plaque from the Daughters of the Republic of Texas, silver tray, oldtime pistols and rifle, Civil War sabre, sets of Texas longhorns and Santa Gertrudis horns, stone from the Alamo and Texas Heritage medal.

Statewide efforts for a first-class Texas send-off for the USS Alamo have been coordinated by a special committee of the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce.

Chairman Jim Battersby said the committee has also arranged for paintings and photographic murals, depicting the Alamo and appropriate scenes, to decorate the wardrooms and messes (dining areas) of the USS Alamo.

Battersby said "the commissioning of a ship is the ship's 'birthday' and we want every citizen of the Lone Star State to assist in making this a Texas birthday that will be long remembered."

The 12,100-ton, 510-foot USS Alamo (LSD 33) is a landing ship-dock, the largest and fastest ship of the amphibious and auxiliary fleets.

Capable of speeds in excess of 23 knots, the USS Alamo is designed principally to carry smaller amphibious craft fully loaded for beach assault (such as three, 120-foot LCT's) across ocean stretches which the smaller craft cannot navigate.

The smaller craft are carried in a long well that extends through three-quarters of the ship. They are loaded through the stern of the LSD after the larger ship "sinks" to where there is sufficient water in the well for the smaller craft to enter. Then the LSD "de-ballasts" or rises again for the voyage.

It has a ship's complement of 15 officers and 350 enlisted men; anti-aircraft armament consisting of 16 3-inch and 20 20-millimeter barrels; a helicopter landing deck.

"Its armament, electronics and speed make it the top performer in the amphibious forces," Capt. Semmes reported, "its versatility and efficiency embracing a multitude of amphibious tasks."

Capt. Semmes, of Memphis, Tenn., is a great-great-nephew of

There is a story of a railroad telegraph operator at a tiny station in West Texas who got so lonesome that he made friends with a rattlesnake who became quite a pet. In fact, the telegrapher taught it to rattle out the Morse code.

Stewart Rivers in Plain Talk—Maybe you've heard the little jingle: "The pleasant little rivers with the drifting folks are crammed; the easy roads are crowded, and the level roads are jammed; where the going's smooth and pleasant you'll always find the throng, for the many, more's the pity, seem to like to drift along."

Most men drift. It is easier, and saves responsibility—until they strike a rock in the sea of life. Only those who have a port in view, and steer straight toward it, will ever arrive.

Just drifting along requires no effort and that is the reason the "pleasant little rivers with the drifting folks are crammed." Why are there so many people drifting, just drifting, on the sea of life?

You know the answer: they have only a dim idea of what they want. They give no thought of how they are going to get it. They fancy that the tide in their affairs will come to the flood some day and bear them on to fortune.

Nothing worthwhile can ever come to the man who sits and dreams. Anything a man really wants will come to him if he plans for it and works for it.

The two most common questions in a household are, what time is it, and what does the thermometer read?

The answer to the first question varies with each watch and lock, not in seconds, but in minutes. The answer to the second question, assuming the thermometers are accurate, varies with their location. In a test we have repeated many times, a wall thermometer at one end of the living room reads three degrees lower than the thermometer at the other end. Lamps, windows, doorways, and perhaps the nature of the human character near by affect the mercury.

The longest battle for a tuna was in 1934. It lasted 62 hours. The tuna was hook-fouled off f Liverpool, Nova Scotia. Six men worked in relays before the 792-pound fish was finally brought to gaff.

Duck Flights To Storm Texas Skies

AUSTIN — Reports direct from a symposium of federal and state water fowl authorities indicate that substantial duck flights will storm the Texas skies again this fall, according to the executive secretary of the Game and Fish commission.

He said only early fall rains are needed to provide "a very good duck and goose season for Texas hunters."

J. R. Singleton, wildlife biologist specializing in waterfowl, returned from a Central Flyway council meeting, with assurances from authorities on the nesting ground scene that "the excellent migration of last fall apparently will be repeated this year."

"The fine population that moved northward to the breeding areas last spring, reported Singleton, "has produced a satisfactory hatch when considering the outlook in its entirety."

Horned Frogs Are Picked By Writers

Nineteen of the sports writers attending the Texas high school coaches clinic at Lubbock, picked Texas Christian university to win the 1956 Southwest Conference football championship.

The writers picked the way they thought the teams would finish after a conference with coaches of six of the seven schools in the conference. TCU won the title last year.

Here's how the writers placed the schools in the race: TCU, first; A&M, second; Baylor, third; Texas, fourth; Arkansas, fifth; Rice, sixth, and Southern Methodist, seventh.

Non-Residents to Receive Licenses For Antelope

AUSTIN — The chief clerk of the Game and Fish commission said non-residents may qualify for the fall antelope season providing resident Texans do not use the estimated 1100 special permits to be issued.

He said several persons, mainly service personnel, have asked. These inquirers are in the state only temporarily or have been here less than the six months minimum residence period required under state law.

The chief clerk held out some hope for this special group of applicants since requests for actual special licenses have lagged. The non-residents will be notified promptly after the Aug. 31 deadline.

Earlier, he had urged persons interested in the antelope hunts to be held West of the Pecos and in the Panhandle to write for standard detailed information.

If there are more applicants than permits available, public drawings will be held in the commission's Austin office to determine the special licenses.

The special shoots will be held West of the Pecos in two three-day periods from Oct. 1 through Oct. 7, and in three three-day periods in the Panhandle from Oct. 11 through Oct. 19.

AUSTIN — University of Texas engineers have designed a new teaching-aid — a portable bleacher useful in laboratory demonstrations and in school auditoriums.

The new bleacher was designed by Dr. B. H. Amstede, associate professor of mechanical engineering, and Edward M. Wright, research engineer. The units were first tested in mechanical engineering laboratories at the university.

Designed to pass through regulation size schoolroom doors, the bleachers can easily be erected by one person. When not in use, they can be dismantled and stored compactly against hall walls. The portable seats accommodate 15 college size students and as many as 25 children.

Parks says he would like to call attention to the fact that this business does actually belong to those people who receive electric service and that this is a meeting where the owners should come to take care of their business.

In addition to the business there will be lots of fun and entertainment for all. Hoffman the magician has entertained crowds from coast-to-coast with his magic — making bouquets or bowls of fire appear from nowhere.

Singing Adds to Picnic Fun

After a hearty picnic in the woods, at the lake or seashore, or a cookout at home, there is nothing that tops off the meal better than to sit around the campfire roasting marshmallows or nibbling other sweets and singing old favorite songs.

For top enjoyment, plan a simple picnic with nourishing foods that everyone enjoys. A variety of foods including hot dogs, hamburgers, cold meats or even some home fried chicken, sandwiches, salads, fruits and any number of many types of sweets for dessert can provide as balanced a meal as may be served from the dining room.

After your meal and picnic games such as croquet, baseball and horseshoe pitching you will find that young and old alike will enjoy relaxing and singing together well known songs such as Stephen Foster Melodies, Auld Lang Syne and other favorites.

Song sheets will help to make your group singing a success. You can get them for the asking by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to National Confectioners' Association, 221 N. LaSalle Street, Chicago 1, Illinois. The song sheets contain the words of over forty well known refrains.

Well-Dressed Windows

More attention is being given to window treatments in today's decorating schemes. New curtain and drapery hardware and rods, improved fibres, fabrics, and special finishes help you turn even the most "impossible" window into a lovely addition to a room.

When buying curtains, look for quality, says the April issues of Better Homes & Gardens magazine. Even "miracle" fabrics go through many processes — twisting, weaving, finishing, cutting, and sewing — which can add or detract from their qualities as a curtain. Price is a yardstick when comparing curtains of the same style and fibre.

Plan your curtains to blend with the style and color of the room, to control light, view, and privacy. Measure the windows carefully and take the measurements with you to the store.

Look for guarantees, new fabrics, and quality. Hank the curtains properly and give them correct care, the magazine says.

Curved bay windows presented a window treatment problem in the past, but with new curved traverse rods available, a solution is easy. The curved rods are also excellent to round off the corner of a room with draperies.

Glamour can be added to valance boards without ruining the budget by covering the boards with an expensive print fabric. The cost is low since very little fabric is used.

Pamphlet pull-up shades and folding, sliding, or swinging shutters can also be excellent window treatments for many rooms, the magazine says.

Gourmet Instinct Gets Top Rating At Lake Picnic

It doesn't take the instincts of a gourmet to feel that food served out of doors is somehow more mouth-watering than the most elaborately cooked indoor menu. Whether it's the fresh air or the back-to-nature atmosphere that induces appetites comparable to those of a herd of boy scouts on a field trip, no family outing is complete without a full-to-the-brim picnic hamper.

After an afternoon's exercise on the lake, boating or simply reaching up occasionally to swat a pesky sand fly, what better way to top off the fun than a lake picnic? Later on toward sundown, when the air begins to turn chill, nothing tastes better than a "skinless" frankfurter, roasted over an open grill. "Skinless" franks need to be heated, having been cooked, with all the nutritive meat juices and flavor retained. Try charcoal grilled, "skinless" franks with plenty of mustard or relish on a buttered, toasted roll. Pack a batch of potato salad, soft drinks or a thermos of hot coffee, and a dessert that's easy to bake and carry — like fresh brownies or, even more fun on an eating outing, toasted marshmallows. Don't forget, the best dressed picnic hamper boasts a good supply of paper plates, napkins and salt and pepper shakers for super-civilized nature-lovers.

Advertisement for U.S. Savings Bonds. Text: Proudest title in the world! housewife. A tribute to the American housewife. "Just a housewife" is a term we hear too often. That's about like saying "just a doctor" or "just a company president." The job you're doing as a housewife is one of the most important anybody is doing in America today. Who is mainly responsible for your family's health? It's you — the housewife. And our fine national health record testifies to the good job you're doing on this score. Who sets your family's standing in your community? You do. You not only create an attractive home for your family and plan the entertaining, but also make most of the outside social contacts in church, club and community. How far would the charitable operations of these groups get without your help? And your family's financial standing depends as much upon your ability to manage money as it does your husband's ability to earn it. Your family savings program is as much your responsibility as it is your husband's. That's why so many women today are urging their husbands to invest in U. S. Series E Savings Bonds. They know that the principal invested in Bonds is safe — not subject to market fluctuations. And the returns are sure — an average 3% interest, compounded semi-annually when held to maturity (9 years and 8 months). With the automatic extension privilege, Bonds will continue to pay that same high interest for 10 years more. That means $1.80 in returns for every $1.00 invested. Remember, you can help your family win financial security tomorrow — by encouraging your husband to invest regularly in Savings Bonds today. And the next time you hear someone say "just a housewife," stick up your chin and speak up for the job you're doing. Where would your family or your country be without you? For the big things in your life, be ready with U. S. Savings Bonds. The U.S. Government does not pay for this advertising. The Treasury Department thanks for their patriotic donation.

Golden Esso Extra is first of three great Humble gasolines. It costs more to make, and those whose cars require its quality will profit by paying more for it. Others will not.

PREMIUM

Famous Esso Extra Gasoline is No. 1 in Texas, first in sales among "premium" gasolines because it's first in quality. Esso Extra gives peak performance to most cars with high compression engines. This famous gasoline will continue to be the quality leader in its field.

REGULAR

Humble Motor Fuel is for cars that perform well on regular gasoline. It sets the pace for performance and mileage among the "regulars." It is the only regular gasoline in Texas that contains a patented solvent oil to keep engines clean.

Well-Dressed Windows

More attention is being given to window treatments in today's decorating schemes. New curtain and drapery hardware and rods, improved fibres, fabrics, and special finishes help you turn even the most "impossible" window into a lovely addition to a room.

When buying curtains, look for quality, says the April issues of Better Homes & Gardens magazine. Even "miracle" fabrics go through many processes — twisting, weaving, finishing, cutting, and sewing — which can add or detract from their qualities as a curtain. Price is a yardstick when comparing curtains of the same style and fibre.

Plan your curtains to blend with the style and color of the room, to control light, view, and privacy. Measure the windows carefully and take the measurements with you to the store.

Look for guarantees, new fabrics, and quality. Hank the curtains properly and give them correct care, the magazine says.

Curved bay windows presented a window treatment problem in the past, but with new curved traverse rods available, a solution is easy. The curved rods are also excellent to round off the corner of a room with draperies.

Glamour can be added to valance boards without ruining the budget by covering the boards with an expensive print fabric. The cost is low since very little fabric is used.

Bamboo pull-up shades and folding, sliding, or swinging shutters can also be excellent window treatments for many rooms, the magazine says.

Gourmet Instinct Gets Top Rating At Lake Picnic

It doesn't take the instincts of a gourmet to feel that food served out of doors is somehow more mouth-watering than the most elaborately cooked indoor menu. Whether it's the fresh air or the back-to-nature atmosphere that induces appetites comparable to those of a herd of boy scouts on a field trip, no family outing is complete without a full-to-the-brim picnic hamper.

After an afternoon's exercise on the lake, boating or simply reaching up occasionally to swat a pesky sand fly, what better way to top off the fun than a lake picnic? Later on toward sundown, when the air begins to turn chill, nothing tastes better than a "skinless" frankfurter, roasted over an open grill. "Skinless" franks need only to be heated, having been pre-cooked, with all the nutritious meat juices and flavor retained.

Try charcoal grilled, "skinless" franks with plenty of mustard or relish on a buttered, toasted roll. Pack a batch of potato salad, soft drinks or a thermos of hot coffee, and a dessert that's easy to bake and carry — like fresh brownies or, even more fun on an eating outing, toasted marshmallows.

Don't forget, the best dressed picnic hamper boasts a good supply of paper plates, napkins and cup, a few eating utensils, and salt and pepper shakers for super-civilized nature-lovers.

THANKS FOLKS, WE GOT ELECTED —

... and it's a nice tribute to be favored with the confidence and good-will of one's neighbors and friends. Getting elected, however, may apply to business as well as politics. I doubt if we could get very far in a political race, but when it comes to making quality abstracts a host of customers far and near have for more than 33 years favored us with a vote of confidence, and still do. And for that we are deeply grateful.
