

THE DRIVER'S SEAT

The reporter was polite, but dubious. He's heard the man's story and was afraid his city editor might fire him for hoisting a few if he tried to turn in a yarn like this to the news desk.

"Would you mind going over it again, sir?" the reporter asked. "Take it slow this time and just give me the facts."

"Well," the man said, "it's just as I told you before. I don't blame you for being skeptical, because I don't believe it myself. But it really happened—unless, of course, my wife and I and our two kids were dreaming."

"Dreams," said the reporter, "are strictly from hunger at the city desk. Just give me the facts."

"We started out from Center City," the man began, "driving down the same crowded, poorly marked, and narrow highway we always have to use when we visit my parents up-state. About an hour out of town, just about dusk, we saw this side road none of us had ever noticed before."

"There was a sign by it that said: 'direct route to Springville.' We were headed for Springville, so I turned off and took this strange road."

"And, believe me, it was really strange. . . in a pretty wonderful way. This road was wide and perfectly surfaced. The curves were properly banked, there were no narrow bridges, and all warning signs were expertly placed. Our headlights picked up the reflective signs on curves and hills, and the stop signs also flashed back their signal when our lights hit them."

"But that isn't all," the man continued. "There were lots of other cars on this road and, believe it or not, every driver was obviously doing his best to be careful. There were no insane drivers, no maniacs cutting in and out of traffic, not even any noisy horn-honking. Each of these motorists behaved as if he knew he was not the only driver on the road."

"The reporter asked you, 'you been reading much science fiction?'"

"No," the man replied, "none."

"How about your return trip?" the reporter queried.

"Did you find that road again?"

"Couldn't find it at all," replied the man, "and we had to come back on the same old car-jammed highway, and over some back roads that gave us a terrific beating."

"Well," said the reporter, "I guess it must have been a dream, but it was a nice one while it lasted."

"Yes," the man agreed, nodding. "A wonderful dream. Imagine . . . a perfect road, perfectly marked and signed, careful drivers. Oh well, it could be."

"Maybe someday," the reporter said, pocketing his pencil, "it will be."

Bulldogs Put Bite On De Leon, 28-12

A growling, snarling, biting pack of Bulldogs roared out on the DeLeon gridiron Friday night and ripped their way to a 28-12 victory over the Bearcats.

In the "Cat and Dog" fight Ranger snarled and clawed and once they got a "neck-hold," never could they be pried loose. It was the first taste of victory for the local school in four games this season. And for them, it was "sweeter than honey" for the "Dogs were victory hungry."

As early as the first quarter, on play number 20 Paul Hinds, Ranger's triple-threat, crashed over for the first marker on the one, the inevitable seemed in the books for the locals.

The Bearcat in Lamb's clothing Wayne Lamb, was effectively "bottled-up and corked" for the night. C. M. Caraway, who was fast becoming famous for "feeding" Lamb, proved more of a threat to Ranger than the halfback.

In the first quarter, Paul Hinds, the man down under, crashed over for the first TD from the one. With Lee King holding Hinds split the uprights for the seventh point of the evening. Score Ranger 7, DeLeon 0.

In the second quarter, Paul Hinds wound up and let fly a high, hard one to Jerry Cantrell, Ran-

Again in the second period, Hole Wharton, with the aid of a hole opened by the line, tore down the field for 20 yards and pay dirt.

For the third straight shot of the evening, the fearful dust-to-the 'Cats, at least—added t h e

Railroads are Asked To Reduce Freight Rates

WACO — The Texas farm bureau has asked the railroads serving drought-stricken areas to reduce freight rates on shipments of drought-relief hay and grain.

J. Walter Hammond, president of the state farm organization, told H. C. Barron, chairman of the executive committee of the Western Traffic association, that the drought situation has become so critical many farmers and ranchers are being forced to liquidate their foundation herds.

"Unless immediate relief is forthcoming, there will be a mass exodus from the farms and ranches throughout the drought areas," Hammond said. "I know that I need not remind you of the impact that such a situation will have, not only on the business of the railroads, but on the economy of the nation as a whole."

The interstate commerce commission recently authorized railroads to grant a reduction in rates to drought-stricken areas.

New Inmate Events; Added Attractions For Prison Rodeo

HUNTSVILLE — Plans for the silver jubilee of the Texas prison rodeo include several extra inmate events plus a number of added attractions from outside the walls. Inmates, performers, and fans alike, are determined to make this silver anniversary of their big show the best in its colorful history.

More than two million fans have witnessed the justly famed prison rodeo since the first chute was opened before a handful of spectators back in 1931. During the past five years the "Biggest Show of its Kind on Earth" has won honors in broken attendance records. Over 120,000 spectators enjoyed the 1955 version of this big fall event.

The main purpose of this annual event is to raise money for the education and recreation of the inmates of the Texas prison system. These and other necessary phases of the penitentiary rehabilitation program have never been provided by the state. All proceeds go to the prisoners' educational and recreational fund which pays for all the rehabilitative activities carried on under the guidance of the Texas prison board and prison management.

These worthwhile programs, returning better men to society, have grown apace with the rodeo.

"Most people who attend the rodeo year after year already know of the good quality of the entertainment," states Gov. Allan Shivers, "but we want them to know also that by their support, each person attending contributes a special part to the building of a better rehabilitation program within the prison system. All inmates of the system receive physical, mental, and spiritual benefits from this program, which is the prison's most vital function."

Most contests in each thrill-packed performance, bears the same names as those staged at professional rodeos. However, convict riders have invented hair-raising such as the "Mad Scramble" in which 10 chutes open simultaneously, spewing forth 10 mad Brashall bulls. This event is unparalleled in rodeo shows the world over.

Bull riding is filled with hazards. Being thrown under the flying hooves is just one of the many possibilities. For our undaunted excitement this event is unsurpassed.

Take equal quantities of range wild stock and rough and tough convict riders with more guts than sense, buck out 80 head of stock in about 35 minutes and most anything can happen, and usually does. Each performance adds to the fame of the Texas prison rodeo as the fastest, roughest, ruggedest rodeo, unmatched anywhere for the rough recklessness of the convict riders, and the wild, savage, unbroken, untamed temper of the stock.

This year's event and the many to follow will continue to provide good fun, good will, and good fellowship for all enthusiastic Texans who love a rodeo.

Rangers Scalp Papooses In Good Game

Before a "shamefully small" crowd of frenzied spectators, what will probably turn out to be the "game of the year" was played at Bulldog stadium Thursday night.

Rearing "Shorty" McLearn, the 190-pound quarterback from Graham, led RJC's Rangers to a 20-13 victory over McMurry's Papooses in a football thriller. It was the locals first win of the year in three games and served notice that they were not to be counted out in the Pioneer conference ratings.

Billy Beebe, Douglas Jordan and Joe Karkoska flamed across the stripes as they ground out yardage behind a forward wall that, on several occasions rose to supreme heights as they tightened against the Papooses of offense—or fore gaping holes in the line for the "leather toters" to rip through.

Terry Ohrian, the 185-pound quarterback of McMurry, tore off a 27-yard hunk of turf and put the first TD across the payoff line to send the "Little Indians" into the lead in the first quarter. The try for point was no good.

In the second period Karkoska bulled through from the three to tie up the ball game, 6-6. Butch Kallines, a 222-pound tackle, with a fiendish look upon his face, split the uprights for the extra point to send the Rangers into the lead, 7-6. That's how the score stood at half-time.

In the third quarter, "Roaring" McLearn, on a beautifully-executed roll-out, chucked up 36 yards of turf to the glory hole to give the Rangers a 13-6 advantage. Jug Rutledge, 174-pound, fullback, jerk in his toe and sent the outer-clothing of the stout sailing between the posts, and over the cross-bar for the extra point. Ranger was leading, 14-6. Tom Hestand was as easy as a drop of cold water on a hot, greased griddle, along about then. Fred Weir wasn't exactly shopping for a topcoat, by-the-way.

Again, in the same period, McLearn roared out again, this time on a 24-yard scamper for the third TD of the Rangers, to wrap up the ball game, score, Rangers 20, McMurry 6. Henderson couldn't get enough foot into the football and missed the extra point.

In the fourth quarter, Dewayne Patton, the 165-pound seat back of McMurry went over from two yards out for the final TD of the evening. Patton then proceeded to add the extra point. Final score Rangers 20, Papooses 13.

GOODBYE, BABE

BY ED JOHNSON

The world's greatest woman athlete, Babe Didrikson Zaharias is dead—the victim of cancer at the age of 42.

When one has known so great a person, it is hard to write about their passing — for death is so permanent. There will never be space enough to pass on to the public the accomplishments of the fabulous Babe. Of the times we have talked with her and the times—some when she was rather put out over something—Babe always had a smile for the press and never did she complain of being too busy to talk to newsmen.

To show the fighting spirit of this great woman, nothing could prove her indomitable will more than her last words to her husband: "I ain't gonna die, honey."

It had been a long fight, and Babe had fought it the way she knew how to fight, giving ground reluctantly and then only an inch at a time. She died in her sleep—it was peaceful, peaceful as a baby. She just floated away.

Though dread cancer wasted her body to where she weighed a mere 80 pounds at the time the death angel paid his visit, the insidious killer could not erode her spirit.

Six times this famed girl was named "woman athlete of the year" by sports writers and was named on the 1950 ballot as "woman athlete of the past half century."

Cancer was widespread in her body but her last few months were relatively free of pain—surgeons severed a nerve to relieve sensation.

One of the great things that will remain with the public throughout the years is the love that her husband, George Zaharias, proved for his famed wife in the greatest battle the Babe ever fought—and lost.

Yes, death finally conquered her body. But Babe locked death squarely in the eye and mocked it—days, weeks and years, she fought as only Babe could fight. Her body was laid to rest Friday at 4 p.m.

It was a good fight—the kind that only she could make. May she rest in peace.

Crossed Eyes Serious Defect To Children

AUSTIN — Don't assume that a child will outgrow crossed eyes, warns Dr. Henry A. Holle, commissioner of health. Crossed eyes are a serious defect. Vision in the crossed eye may fail to develop and the child will grow up without useful sight in that eye. In later years, the eye may straighten and appear normal, yet the person will be partially blind—often without knowing it.

Various factors may be responsible for crossed eyes: near- or far-sightedness, faulty muscles and excessive nervous incoordination; a blow on the head; heredity or disease. Any one of these may affect the ability of the two eyes to work together, causing one of the eyes to turn in, out or upward. As a result, the two eyes are unable to focus on the same object at the same time. The youngster sees double, because his crossed eyes view an object from widely different angles. The child is disturbed, but often too young to explain his difficulty. He squints his eyes and tilts his head, unconsciously trying either to combine the two images into one, or simply to ignore one image altogether. But neither attempt succeeds. So he finally gives up trying to see with both eyes. He subconsciously eliminates the image in one eye, now sees only one image, and actually becomes accustomed to "one-eyed" sight.

The longer a child is cross-eyed, the more difficult it is to improve his vision. If treated early—preferably before the age of four—crossed eyes can usually be corrected. Some forms of treatment can be started as early as the age of one year. And even cross-eyed children up to nine or later can occasionally regain normal sight if they receive competent medical treatment. The specialist may first recommend glasses if the youngster is near- or far-sighted; in some few cases that alone will do the job.

Exercises for the eye muscles may be used to teach the two eyes to work together again as a team. These do not take the place of surgery or glasses, but are valuable. Sometimes an operation is necessary to line up the crossed eye with the normal one. One operation may be all that's needed, but it sometimes takes two or three before the eyes are exactly straight, since several eye muscles may be involved. Complete correction may take a year or more.

One set of eyes can last a lifetime but it takes responsible care by parents during the years of childhood. Habits formed then will carry over to adulthood.

TELEPHONE TALK

by W. H. McNally, Manager

VISIT AGAIN BY TELEPHONE At this time of year, vacations are over for most of us. And I suppose if you're like me, you are already looking forward to next year's. But it's a good thing to remember that those miles that took you hours to cover on your trip can melt away in seconds with a Long Distance call.

That way, you can thank your friends or relatives by telephone for all the fun you had during your vacation visit. They'll appreciate it, and will enjoy hearing your voice again.

Or maybe you met friends on vacation. There's really no better way of keeping in touch with them than by a friendly Long Distance call.

Rates are lower after 6 p.m. every weekday, and all day Sunday. This makes it easier to recall the happy vacation days all year long. Remember, too—call by number... it's twice as fast.

WHY RUN? JUST REACH Some time ago, I heard a good slogan for extension telephones. It was, "Why run for the telephone when you can reach for it?" It makes sense, too. You arrange furniture and appliances in your house so that they'll be convenient for you. Why not carry this convenience over to your telephone service?

Most homes could use an additional telephone. The kitchen and bedroom seem to be the most popular spots for families now enjoying life with two telephones.

The cost is small for an extension. An installation charge of $1.75, and the monthly rate of $1.10 can make you a two telephone family.

LOOKING UP WORDS You know, people sometimes use words for years before finding out exactly what they mean. Usually, they're pretty close, but it never hurts to dust off the old dictionary and look up a word. I did it the other day to find the definition of "Value." We talk about value of service a lot in the telephone business, and I wanted to know once and for all just exactly what "value" meant.

In simple terms, it means "real worth." So if you stop and think a minute about how much the telephone does for you, we think you'll agree we're not misusing the word "value" when we talk about telephone service.

For, you see, a good part of the "real worth" of telephone service is the telephone's ability to help you do more things easier day after day.

Antelope Hunt Is Filled With Suspense Now

AUSTIN — Part of the suspense preceding the fall antelope hunts will carry right on into the actual harvest dates, reports the chief clerk for the game and fish commission.

This is because some of the more than 1200 persons taking out the special permits will be unable to make the shoots. The licenses have been alerted so that if they cannot qualify at the last minute, they notify the game and fish commission. Then alertness are notified in the order in which the names are listed from the public drawing held at commission headquarters in Austin.

The premium for persons turning back their permits at the earliest possible time, is receiving the highest priority for the next antelope season.

This fall 36 persons were automatically granted 1955 antelope hunting permits because they turned back their 1955 licenses early enough for them to be re-assigned.

By the law of averages, according to the chief clerk, a similar number of permits will be left dangling right up until the shoots begin. Season West of the Pecos will be held in two three-day periods from Oct. 1 through Oct. 7. The Panhandle shoot comprises three three-day periods from Oct. 11 through Oct. 19.

Successful permit holders have been notified of the extraordinary regulations governing the closely supervised hunts. For example, binoculars and telescope sights are considered standard equipment to determine sex of the animals since both males and females have antlers. Seventy-two doe antelope have been earmarked for harvest West of the Pecos to reduce overpopulation and restore herd balance.

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

UNORDERED MERCHANDISE

Suppose the mailman delivers to you a package containing a necktie—or a book, key-ring tags or a phonograph record—that you didn't order. Either with it, or by later mail, is a bill or request to remit the price.

What are your obligations, assuming you don't want the merchandise? Must you return it? Can you use it and not pay for it? Must you keep it, or can you throw it away?

Generally speaking, recipients of unordered merchandise are under no obligation (a) to return it; (b) to acknowledge its receipt; (c) to pay for it unless used; (d) to give it particular care; or (e) to keep it beyond a reasonable time.

You are obligated to surrender the merchandise if called for in person by the shipper or his agent within a reasonable time. But you can demand storage charges before surrendering the item. If you mail it back at your own expense, you very likely will stay on the sender's mailing list and will receive other shipments in the future.

There are no postal regulations governing unordered merchandise, except where fraud is involved.

Congress is trying to draft some legislation that will cover this situation. However, if you know what is in the envelope or package, you can write "refused" across the face of the piece of mail and hand it back unopened to the mailman. No further explanation is required. You don't have to accept any class of mail. Further, your refusal probably will result in the sender having to pay return postage.

A ruling by the federal trade act for a sender of unordered merchandise is under obligation... to pay for or return the merchandise. Hence, if you don't use the merchandise, you are within your rights to refusing to pay for it.

In summary, unless you want to use the item, in which case you should pay for it, you should keep it for a while and then may throw it away.

If another person's mail is improperly delivered to you, do not open it, as such action might make you liable to severe legal penalties. Such mail should promptly be re-deposited in a postal box with an appropriate notation thereon, such
