"Bargain Days" Merchants Plan Fall

Along about this season of the year as the dog days come to settle and abide with us, we usually turn over to the Women's Section of the big newspapers and take a quick glance what's cooking in the French and Italian "Openings."

We are therefore prepared at this time to give our annual report on what you will look like this coming fall and winter, and the information is extended through the courtesy of the Times Public Service Department.

This Fall you will look like a wet potato sack. If you are one of the fortunate few who will step out in a $3,500 Pierre Balmain original, or even a pretty fair copy of the same at $4.98, you will be in the highest circles of fashion looking like a cross between an Oakie right out of The Grapes of Wrath and Tugboat Annie in a cotton sack. If you happen to have on onof Lanvin's svelt creations, nobody will be able to tell where you start and where you end, or which s your middle, your front or your behind. You will look the same all up and down, very much on th order of an un-cut stuffing o bologna, and you will have as much shape north and south as you do east and west, and that will be none in any direction. It is the worst thing that has happened siace Dior abolished busts. have lived for the past two years on reducing pills and spent hours doing your exercises in an effort to relocate your curves and transfer them from one place to another, you are as out of fashion as a high-top buttoned shoe because what curves you have left are destined to become like the poet's rose that was born to blush unseen on the desert air. Nobody is going to know you've got 'em in these new things you're supposed to wear. On e fashion editor wiring parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. breathless communiques back to her newspaper described the new psey, over the week-end. fashions as having a "slightly sloppy look" and opined that the Italian creations were simply out of this world and too, too divine, flowing in straight lines from the

If you are one of the many who has spent long hours in the beauty shlon and lots of money experimenting with one hairdo after another trying to find a coiffure that becomes you, all of that money has gone down the drain as your hair is now supposed to have a frowsy, gnawed off look as if you had been iun over by your husband's power

Rather than to have your hair immaculately groomed and styled to bring out all the best features of your face and neck and shoulders, you are supposed to have some of the neighbor's kids or the handyman whack it up with the hedge clippers, leaving huge gaps all over the top (Continued On Page Four)

Contractors save construction time, and motorists avoid detours that often plague drivers for months.
Uniformly made with highstrength concrete, the bridge decks are manufactured under closely controlled factory conditions. First step in American-

Marietta's process is the stringing of high tensile steel in a pouring bed, formed to the required dimen-sions. These cables are the unseen sinews of the bridge.

Tension of the cables after they are released increases the span strength by exerting pressure inward on the finished concrete. A favorite engi-neering comparison is a row of books. When pressed in-ward at each end, the row becomes so strong it can be moved, for the books' strength has been multiplied. So it is with steel cable and concrete for a modern bridge.
