Surplus Foods To Benefit Hundreds

By NORMAN WRIGHT

Enter the vaulted, marble halls of the Library of Congress in Washington, D. C., and there in a sacred, dedicated spot in one of the great foyers, where people speak in hushed and awed voices, one may see the original copy of the Constitution of the United States.

This document, ranked with the Sermon on the Mount and the Magna Carta, is considered to be one of the three greatest documents of all time.

It is contained in a golden case that is fire-proof, theft-proof, bomb-proof, and even proofed against the damaging effects of light rays. It is guarded and protected against every onslaught of man and nature to prevent its being damaged or destroyed, but the great and noble document upon which the greatest country on earth was founded is rapidly becoming a worthless scrap of paper due to the onslaughts against it from the minds of some men who are enacting their brief roles today upon what Shakespeare called the Stage of Life.

This week, beginning with Sept. 17 and continuing through Sept. 23, has been designated as "Constitution Week" and is being sponsored in this area by the Charles Crawford Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Cisco.

During this week, it is hoped that as many people as possible will take the time to visit their Public Libraries, or otherwise secure a copy of the Constitution of the United States and READ IT. Not one person in many thousands has ever actually read the Constitution of the United States, a document that affects their own individual lives almost every minute out of every day. This would be a good time to actually read it and to become acquainted with the things it contains.

Since the Grand Old Document was ratified, together with its first 10 Amendments which have come to be known as the Bill of Rights, the Constitution has weathered many a storm and guided this nation through many a crisis, but the present Supreme Court of the United States has already all but wrecked it and what the Court hasn't destroyed already, they're working hard on the rest of it.

For the millions of people in America who believe in constitutional government, it is hard to stand idly by and see a handful of men warp and wreck the true meaning of the Constitution, but it is being done, and in this case by a group of Supreme Court Justices that cannot be touched by the people.

It is truly a time where there should be great National concern, and perhaps the observance of Constitution Week all over the Nation will bring an awakening among the people that will be felt.

Abilene Lions Plan Reception for Pony And Ranger Escort

Word received this week from Walter S. Pope Jr., president of the Abilene Lions Club, is to the effect that Abilene is preparing a rousing reception for Ranger Lions who will escort the pony "Reindeer" into the Key City tomorrow, Wednesday, afternoon.

"Reindeer" is the pony belonging to a little blind girl in El Paso that is being shipped across country to join its young mistress, and is being pulled from town to town by the Nation's Lions Clubs from Frederick, Md., to Fort Bliss, Texas.

In a letter to Ranger Lions, Lion Pope says, "I have arranged with Sgt. Hurst of the Traffic Division of the Abilene Police Department to have a motorcycle patrol on the highway across from Thunderbird Lodge to meet you. Also at that point will be an automobile occupied by Abilene Lions. The Lions and the police patrol will then guide you into town where a place for parking will be roped off in front of the Paramount Theatre."

Coaches Pleased With Paris Showing Despite Rangers 20-0 Loss In Opener

With one good ball game under their belts, even though it was a 20-0 loss to Paris Junior College, the Cameron crew is known as the Aggies and they hail from Lawton, Oklahoma, home town of Fort Sill, the Army's great artillery base.

Ranger College coaches contributed the 20-0 defeat at Paris Saturday night to the fact that Paris had worked out for a full two weeks longer than the Rangers, and also to the fact that Ranger College Rangers are preparing with enthusiasm for their first home game of the season with Cameron next Saturday night in Fuldlog Stadium.

Cameron is the newest member in the Pioneer Conference, playing its first schedule this year, and is said to be a power house. The Cameron crew is known as the Aggies and they hail from Lawton, Oklahoma, home town of Fort Sill, the Army's great artillery base.

Constitution W'k Sept. 17-23 Is Proclaimed

The week of September 17-23 is being observed in Ranger as "Constitution Week" according to a proclamation issued by Mayor W. F. Creager. The week is being sponsored by the Charles Crawford Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

WHEREAS, the basic need in our nation today is the preservation of constitutional government, and, WHEREAS, in order to protect our priceless heritage under our unique form of government it is essential that we support our government, and, WHEREAS, for its proper support, it is necessary that our citizens understand its provisions and principles and appreciate its value and benefits, and to this end the Daughters of the American Revolution are sponsoring the observance of Constitution Week September 17th through September 23rd, 1957, in commemoration of the 170th anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution, now,

THEREFORE, I, W. F. Creager, by virtue of the authority vested in me as Mayor of the City of Ranger, do proclaim the week of September 17th through September 23rd, 1957, as "Constitution Week" and respectfully suggest that we all rededicate ourselves to the wonderful principles contained in the Constitution of the United States of America.

Ranger C C Helping With Applications

The surplus foods program, which is scheduled to get underway in Eastland County shortly after the first of October, is going to be a boon for hundreds of low income families, and it is estimated that about 3,000 people in all will benefit from the program each month.

Surplus food commodities which are owned by the government, and on which the government is paying millions of dollars in storage fees each month, will be given away free of charge to all Eastland County families who are eligible to receive them, and it will give these families an opportunity to spend what little money they do have for other needed necessities of life.

File Application Here The Ranger Chamber of Commerce is taking applications right now from all people in this area eligible for the program, and more than 100 families have already signed up through the Ranger Chamber of Commerce office alone.

The Ranger Chamber of Commerce wishes it understood that it has nothing on earth to do with the distribution of food, nor with any part of the program as far as eligibility is concerned. It is merely acting as an office in which applications can be made, and the Chamber will see that the applications are turned in to the proper authorities and will give assistance in filling them out.

County authorities wish to stress the fact that a person does not have to be an "old age pensioner" to receive the surplus foods. They are available to all low-income families on the following basis:

One person in a family may receive up to $60 a month income and still be eligible for the surplus foods.

Turkey Growers To Meet Thurs. Night In Ranger

The Central Texas Turkey Growers Association will meet Thursday night, September 19, at 7:30, at the Chamber of Commerce office in Ranger, it is announced by Mrs. Aubrey Kincaid, secretary.

Among other things on the program, a colored movie of the crowning of the Queen at the convention held in Dallas on August 21 will be shown. A discussion will also be held regarding the radio program being aired each day over the radio station in Eastland.

Bulldogs Point For Jacksboro Friday

The Ranger High School Bulldogs, after proving to themselves last Friday night that they could move the football and score regardless of how big a team they were playing against, have turned their eyes toward the Jacksboro Tigers this week who got walloped 59-0 by AAA Graham last week.

Whether such a drubbing as this left the Tigers in a gentle mood is doubtful, and the chances are they will be out to recover some of their lost glory at the expense of the Bulldogs.

Both Jacksboro and Ranger were playing AAA Clubs last week and will at least be in their own AA class playing each other Friday. Compared to Jacksboro's 29-0 loss to Graham, Ranger's 28-14 loss to Mineral Wells doesn't look so bad. Graham had Jacksboro 39-0 at halftime. At Mineral Wells it was 19-7 at the half in favor of the Rangers.

Playing against the mountainous Mountshiners, who stacked up with Southwest Conference eleven as far as weight goes, the Bulldogs managed to escape with no injuries. One of their ownfalls

First Baptists To Honor Students Wednesday Eve.

As it's part in the Ranger Ministerial Alliance's program to be held at Ranger College Students on "All Church Student Night," the First Baptist Church will serve a barbecue chicken supper with all the trimmings Wednesday night to all students visiting the church, and "they're all invited," according to Rev. Ralph Perkins, pastor.

The supper will be held at 7 p. m. in the lower auditorium at the church and the Sunday School, Training Union and B.S.U. groups will be on hand to greet new students and welcome the old ones back for another year.

Rev. Perkins said this was to be an All Church Affair, and the adults were also invited and urged to attend. The pastor said the young people of the church were furnishing the barbecue chicken and the adults were furnishing the trimmings.

J. N. Sutton is to be in charge of the affair, assisted by Mrs. James Eaton, Mrs. Glenn West and Mrs. Sutton. Mrs. Wilson Guest is in charge of general arrangements.

An interesting and entertaining get-acquainted program will be held following the supper.

Students needing transportation are asked to phone 179 and a car will call for them.

All Church Student Night Is Wednesday

The Ranger Ministerial Alliance has planned an "All Church Student Night" for tomorrow evening, Wednesday, and individual churches all over Ranger will have their individual programs honoring students and members of the faculty of Ranger College, it is announced.

Faculty and student members are urged to attend their own churches Wednesday evening for the special programs, and those who are not affiliated with any church at present are urged to attend some church of their choice.

Ranger churches have cooperated with the College through the years in helping to maintain a high spiritual level for students away from home, and have sponsored such activities as Youth Week, Saturday Night Crusades, B.S.U., Vesper Services, Training Unions, Young People's Fellowship, and many others.

During the year members of all churches invite students into their homes for Sunday dinners, and all churches have gone all out to make students feel at home while here.

College students are asked to check their bulletin boards for their local church announcements for Wednesday night.

Molasses Cake Takes Pudding Form

The person who likes gingerbread will be an enthusiastic sponsor of Colonial Molasses Pudding. The dessert, while having the same wonderful flavor mingling of unsulphured molasses and spices, is velvety of texture and feathery light. Served warm with a topping of cream cheese and lemon sauce, this pudding takes dessert honors. This dessert can be made a day or two ahead of use and be reheated to serve warm.

Colonial Molasses Pudding
2 1/4 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 1/2 teaspoons cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup shortening
1/2 cup finely chopped nuts
1 cup unsulphured molasses
1 cup cold water
1 teaspoon soda
2 3-ounce packages cream cheese
2 tablespoons milk

Sift together flour, sugar, nutmeg, cinnamon and salt. Add shortening; cut with two knives or pastry blender, to resemble coarse crumbs. Stir in nuts. Combine unsulphured molasses, water and soda. Alternate crumbs and liquid in a greased 8 x 8 x 2-inch square pan, beginning and ending with crumbs. Stir gently only 2 or 3 times with a fork. Bake in a moderate oven, (350° F.) 1 hour. When ready to serve, blend together cream cheese and milk. Cut cake into squares; place spoonful cream cheese on top of each square. Top each serving with "Lemon Sauce."

Lemon Sauce
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cups boiling water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
1/4 cup butter or margarine

Mix together cornstarch, sugar and salt in saucepan. Gradually stir in boiling water. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and is thickened and clear. Remove from heat; stir in remaining ingredients. Serve warm.
YIELD: 2 1/2 cups.

Compare Baby's
Growth Against
Self, Not Others

Your baby's weight and body length were among the first facts recorded when he was born, but most parents, during the following months, compare him against his friends and playmates.

It's well to remember, however, that while your baby's growth will proceed along a general pattern similar to other infants' he will have individual differences in this just as in any other phase of development, says an article in the September issue of Better Homes & Gardens magazine.

All through his "growing" years, your child's height and weight should be measured only against his own record.

Chart your baby's height and weight each month, and consult his doctor if it appears he is not developing normally.

Rate of growth is very rapid in early infancy, especially weight increase. Most babies double their birth weight by the fourth or fifth month. Generally, they have tripled it by the end of the first year.

The majority of the healthy, full-term babies weigh between six and nine pounds at birth. Their body length is from 19 to 22 inches. There is about a 50 percent increase in height in the first year, according to the article.

Growth may slow down during the hot, summer months, and speed up in the fall. Rate of weight gain is less rapid between four and eight months of age, and slows still more between eight and 12 months. Appetite, too, will slacken as the need for food is less than in the early months.

The height of parents and ancestors mainly will determine the baby's height, rather than the food he eats. However, good nutrition is necessary if he is to achieve what is called his "optimum" (best) growth.

A newborn baby's proportions are quite different from an adult's. His head, which is one-fourth of his body length, looks too large. His shoulders seem narrow as his torso tapers to even narrower hips, though his abdomen protrudes. His legs are shorter than his arms.

His head will be about four inches bigger around by the end of his first year. And his shoulders will be broader. But the most noticeable growth will be in the lower part of his body, his trunk, and legs.

There is an inexact rule that says a two-year-old has reached half his adult height. This isn't quite so, the magazine says. Research has shown that at two years of age girls, on the average, have reached 52 percent of their adult height and boys have reached only 48.5 percent. There is, of course, a chance for these predictions to be in error because so much can happen between this age and adulthood to change the course of growth.

Today's boy babies are likely, when fully grown, to be two or more inches taller than their fathers and the girls that much taller than their mothers. Improved nutrition, vitamin supplements, and plenty of sun and fresh air are thought to be the reasons for increased height of young people in the United States during the past 40 years. These things, plus plenty of exercise, will mean sturdy, good health for your child and the assurance of his attaining his "best" growth. This is a great

Ant Invasion
Laying Waste
To Southland

A formidable army of South American fire ants has captured much of the South's best farmland, writes Allen Rankin in the September Reader's Digest in an article, "The Great Fire-Ant Invasion," condensed from Farm and Ranch.

If this armada of voracious, fiercely stinging insects is not checked it may reach California and Canada, damaging practically all edible plants on the way. The fiery sting which gives the quarter-inch, reddish ant its name "can" kill small animals and even roots of hard hands harvesting row-crops.

The first fire ants to come to this country are believed to have landed from a South American fruit boat at Mobile, Alabama, in 1918. They disappeared for a while but were actually tunneling into new areas. When they popped up again it was to cover rangeland in Alabama with ugly, yellow, 18-inch mounds, 100 to an acre.

The fire ant attacks plants by sucking the juice from roots, stems, seeds and tender shoots. It wars on human beings by first chewing a slit in the skin, then plunging its stinger into the open wound. The two forms of attack make an insect blitz that is hard to stop.

Up to now Alabama has been the hardest hit state with 50 of its 67 counties infested at a cost of $25,000,000. Ant armies now team over 157 counties in nine Southern states, ranging from eastern Texas to South Carolina. They have infested 27 million acres.

Can anything be done about it? Yes, the counter-attack against the fire ant is getting under way. The pest can be wiped off any given piece of ground for three years by any of three deadly poison compounds: chlordane, dieldrin or leptachlor.

The Pest Control Branch of the United States Department of Agriculture is helping. The fight has called for cooperative efforts among farmers, and certain sections of the south have made great progress.

W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, has sounded the keynote of the battle:

"No insect has even taken the country away from us yet, and this one's not going to set a precedent."

The question has been raised as to whether the President has the power to federalize the National Guard, as in the case with Arkansas, in order to call it away from that school building. The Dallas Morning News, in an editorial, doesn't think so. Quoting the United States Code, Title 32, Chapter 5, Section 81a, which deals with the President's calling out the National Guard, the News states it can be done only in one, or all, of the following cases:

- 1. Invasion
2. Danger of Invasion
3. Rebellion
4. Lack of other forces to enforce the laws of the Union.

In the case of No. 1, there is certainly no invasion from Arkansas. In the case of No. 2 there is no danger or threat of invasion. In the case of No. 3 Governor Faubus says there is no rebellion against the authority of the United States. As a matter of fact there is no law of the Union prescribing integration in the State of Arkansas or anywhere else. That is to say, Congress has never enacted such a statute.

The naked edict of the Supreme Court reversing what was the supreme law of the land until the Court discovered Gunnar Myrdal, leaves a big question open as to how permanent or certain is the Supreme Court's edict.

And as for No. 4, the President doesn't lack any other forces because he still has the Army and Navy and Marine Corps and Coast Guard and the Air Corps. So if he doesn't federalize the National Guard in this case, don't put it down to goodness of his heart—he MAY not have a clear authority.

Big Crowd-

(Continued from Page One) However, it was evident from workouts this week that it will be a much-improved line that will bombard the Ranger Bulldogs Friday night.

Expected to Pass
The Index continued: "An explosive and smoothly coordinated backfield, with ace blocking back Bill Watson calling the shots, will take to the airways as well as the ground in the Ram's Friday night encounter with the Bulldogs. Assisting the lanky blocking back with the backfield chores will be wing back Charles Pratt, two-year veteran; tail back Crockett Trimes, another two-year letterman, and fullback Bud Frazier, a three-year letterman."

Coach Johnson was quoted as saying the team's morale was at a tip-top peak and every player "as anxious to get out on the field Friday night and make it two in a row over the Bulldogs. "The Bulldogs always give us a good fight, but the Rams will be doing everything in their power to give the Bulldogs a better fight," the coach said.

This is Ranger's third year in a row to play at Mineral Wells instead of swapping visits each year because of the fact that such a hectic crowd turns out for the games in the mountain city due to the Army base there.

Ensiling methods have a lot of effect on the quality of the silage, says A. M. Meekma, extension dairy husbandman. The immediate exclusion of air is important in controlling heating and encouraging proper fermentation. But, he adds, the type of plant used also plays a big part in determining the quality of the silage.

Surplus Foods To Benefit Hundreds

By NORMAN WRIGHT

Enter the vaulted, marble halls of the Library of Congress in Washington, D. C., and there in a sacred, dedicated spot in one of the great foyers, where people speak in hushed and awed voices, one may see the original copy of the Constitution of the United States.

This document, ranked with the Sermon on the Mount and the Magna Carta, is considered to be one of the three greatest documents of all time.

It is contained in a golden case that is fire-proof, theft-proof, bomb proof, and even protected against the damaging effects of light rays. It is guarded and protected against every onslaught of man and nature to prevent its being damaged or destroyed, but the great and noble document upon which the greatest country on earth was founded is rapidly becoming a worthless scrap of paper due to the onslaughts against it from the minds of some men that are enacting their brief roles today upon what Shakespeare called "The Stage of Life."

This week, beginning with Sept. 17 and continuing through Sept. 23, has been designated as "Constitution Week" and is being sponsored in this area by the Charles Crawford Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, Cisco.

During this week, it is hoped that as many people as possible will take the time to visit their Public Libraries, or otherwise secure a copy of the Constitution of the United States and READ IT. Not one person in many thousands has ever actually read the Constitution of the United States, a document that effects their own individual lives almost every minute of every day. This would be a good time to actually read it and to become acquainted with the things it contains.

Since the Grand Old Document was ratified, together with its first 10 Amendments which have come to be known as the Bill of Rights, the Constitution has weathered many a storm and guided this nation through many a crisis, but the present Supreme Court of the United States has already all but wrecked it and what the Court hasn't destroyed already, they're working hard on the rest of it.

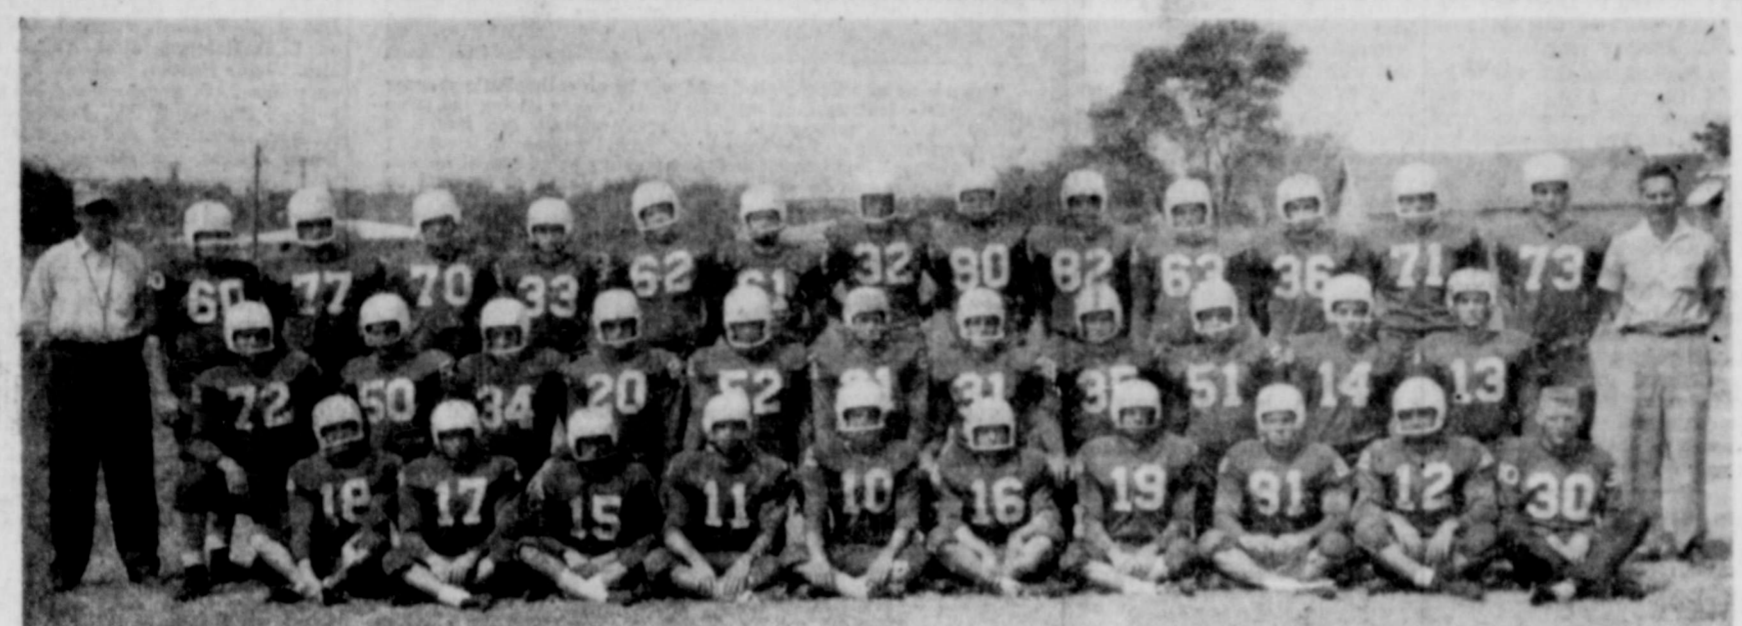

For the millions of people in America who believe in constitutional government, it is hard to stand idly by and see a handful of men warp and wreck the true meaning of the Constitution, and it is being done, and in this case by a group of Supreme Court Justices that cannot be touched by the people.

It is truly a time where there should be great National concern, and perhaps the observance of Constitution Week all over the Nation will bring an awakening among the people that will be felt (Continued on Page Four)

First Baptists To Honor Students Wednesday Eve.

As it's part in the Ranger Ministerial Alliance's program to be host to Ranger College Students on "All Church Student Night," the First Baptist Church will serve a barbecue chicken supper with all the trimmings Wednesday night to all students visiting the church, and "they're all invited", according to Rev. Ralph Perkins, pastor. The supper will be held at 7 p. m. in the lower auditorium at the church and the Sunday School, Training Union and B.S.U. groups will be on hand to greet new students and welcome the old ones back for another year.

Rev. Perkins said this was to be an All Church Affair, and the adults were also invited and urged to attend. The pastor said the young people of the church were furnishing the barbecue chicken and the adults were furnishing the trimmings.

J. N. Sutton is to be in charge of the affair, assisted by Mrs. James Eaton, Mrs. Glenn West and Mrs. Fulton. Mrs. Glenn West is in charge of general arrangements.

An interesting and entertaining get-acquainted program will be held following the supper. Students needing transportation are asked to phone 179 and a car will call for them.

Ranger Band Gives Marching Show At Mineral Wells

The 62-piece Ranger High School Band, led by the two drum majors, Glenda Webb and Mollie Mitchell, and the four majorettes, Patsy Halliday, Mary Kay Rush, Carol Phillips, and Sarah Johnson, presented a number of precision drills, originating from a company front formation, last Friday night in Mineral Wells, during half-time activities at the Bulldog-Mountaineer game.

The band saluted the visitors from Ranger by playing the Ranger fight song, "Bulldogs." Marching to the other side of the field, the band saluted the Mineral Wells stands with the familiar football tune, "Victory March." The band then proceeded into a diamond formation as they took up positions to re-form the company front before leaving the field.

All Church Student Night Is Wednesday

The Ranger Ministerial Alliance has planned an "All Church Student Night" for tomorrow evening, Wednesday, and individual churches all over Ranger will have their individual programs honoring students and members of the faculty of Ranger College, it is announced.

Faculty and student members are urged to attend their own churches Wednesday evening for the special programs, and those who are not affiliated with any church at present are urged to attend some church of their choice.

Ranger churches have cooperated with the College through the years in helping to maintain a high spiritual level for students away from home, and have sponsored such activities as Youth Week, Saturday Night Crusades, B.S.U., Vesper Services, Training Unions, Young People's Fellowship, and many others.

During the year members of all churches invite students into their homes for Sunday dinners, and all churches have gone all out to make students feel at home while here.

College students are asked to check their bulletin boards for their local church announcements for Wednesday night.

1/2 cup finely chopped nuts
1 cup unsulphured molasses
1 cup cold water
1 teaspoon soda
2 3-ounce packages cream cheese
2 tablespoons milk

Sift together flour, sugar, nutmeg, cinnamon and salt. Add shortening, cut with two knives or pastry blender, to resemble coarse crumbs. Stir in nuts. Combine unsulphured molasses, water and soda. Alternate crumbs and liquid in a greased 8 x 8 x 2-inch square pan, beginning and ending with crumbs. Stir gently only 2 or 3 times with a fork. Bake in a moderate oven, (350° F.) 1 hour. When ready to serve, blend together cream cheese and milk. Cut cake into squares; place spoonful cream cheese on top of each square. Top each serving with *Lemon Sauce.

Lemon Sauce
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 cups boiling water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 tablespoon grated lemon rind
1/4 cup butter or margarine

Mix together cornstarch, sugar and salt in saucepan. Gradually stir in boiling water. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture boils and is thickened and clear. Remove from heat; stir in remaining ingredients. Serve warm.
YIELD: 2 1/2 cups.

Compare Baby's
Growth Against

Your baby's weight and body length were among the first facts recorded when he was born, but most parents, during the following months, compare him against his friends and playmates.

It's well to remember, however, that while your baby's growth will proceed along a general pattern similar to other infants' he will have individual differences in this just as in any other phase of development, says an article in the September issue of Better Homes & Gardens magazine.

All through his "growing" years, your child's height and weight should be measured only against his own record.

Chart your baby's height and weight each month, and consult his doctor if it appears he is not developing normally.

Rate of growth is very rapid in early infancy, especially weight increase. Most babies double their birth weight by the fourth or fifth month. Generally, they have tripled it by the end of the first year.

The majority of the healthy, full-term babies weigh between six and nine pounds at birth. Their body length is from 19 to 22 inches. There is about a 50 percent increase in height in the first year, according to the article.

Growth may slow down during the hot, summer months, and speed up in the fall. Rate of weight gain is less rapid between four and eight months of age, and slows still more between eight and 12 months. Appetite, too, will slacken as the need for food is less than in the early months.

The height of parents and ancestors mainly will determine the baby's height, rather than the food he eats. However, good nutrition is necessary if he is to achieve what is called his "optimum" (best) growth.

A newborn baby's proportions are quite different from an adult's. His head, which is one-fourth of his body length, looks too large. His shoulders seem narrow and his torso tapers to even narrower hips, though his abdomen protrudes. His legs are shorter than his arms.

His head will be about four inches bigger around by the end of his first year. And his shoulders will be broader. But the most noticeable growth will be in the lower part of his body, his trunk, and legs.

There is an inexact rule that says a two-year-old has reached half his adult height. This isn't quite so, the magazine says. Research has shown that at two years of age girls, on the average, have reached 52 percent of their adult height and boys have reached only 48.5 percent. There is, of course, a chance for these predictions to be in error because so much can happen between this age and adulthood to change the course of growth.

Today's boy babies are likely, when fully grown, to be two or more inches taller than their fathers and the girls that much taller than their mothers. Improved nutrition, vitamin supplements, and plenty of sun and fresh air are thought to be the reasons for increased height of young people in the United States during the past 40 years. These things, plus plenty of exercise, will mean sturdy, good health for your child and the assurance of his attaining his "best" growth. This is a great

Laying Waste
To Southland

A formidable army of South American fire ants has captured much of the South's best farmland, writes Allen Rankin in the September Reader's Digest in an article, "The Great Fire-Ant Invasion," condensed from Farm and Ranch.

If this armada of voracious, fiercely stinging insects is not checked it may reach California and Canada, damaging practically all edible plants on the way. The fiery sting gives the quarter-inch, reddish ant its name "can kill small animals and even rout field hands harvesting row crops."

The first fire ants to come to this country are believed to have landed from a South American fruit boat at Mobile, Alabama, in 1918. They disappeared for a while but were actually tunneling into new areas. When they popped up again it was to cover rangeland in Alabama with ugly, yellow, 18-inch mounds, 100 to an acre.

The fire ant attacks plants by sucking the juice from roots, stems, seeds and tender shoots. It wars on human beings by first cleaving a slit in the skin, then plunging its stinger into the open wound. The two forms of attack make an insect blitz that is hard to stop.

Up to now Alabama has been the hardest hit state with 56 of its 67 counties infested at a cost of $25,000,000. Ant armies now team over 157 counties in nine Southern states, ranging from eastern Texas to South Carolina. They have infested 27 million acres.

Can anything be done about it? Yes, the counter-attack against the fire ant is getting under way. The pest can be wiped off any given piece of ground for three years by any of three deadly poison compounds: chlordane, dieldrin or heptachlor.

The Pest Control Branch of the United States Department of Agriculture is helping. The fight has called for cooperative efforts among farmers, and certain sections of the south have made great progress.

W. A. Ruffin, extension entomologist at Alabama Polytechnic Institute, has sounded the keynote of the battle:

"No insect from us yet, and this one's not going to set a precedent."

Ranger Citizens have but a few days in which to check with City Hall and find out about their new property evaluations and whether or not they wish to appear before the Board of Equalization to discuss them further.

Tax statements are due to go out on October 1, which means that their actual preparation must begin at least a week before that time.

The City Commission asks that everyone either go by the City Hall, or call the City Hall, and check up on their new evaluations. The Commission asks that all citizens who feel they have been dealt with fairly to place their o. k. on the new appraisals, and for those who feel otherwise, they want to discuss the matter with them as quickly as possible. Joseph Peter Davidson was born Nov. 5, 1828, and was reared in Giles County, Tenn. He moved to Texas in 1853 and stopped two years in Bosque County. In 1855 he settled permanently in Eastland—"Davidson's Ranch" is one of the old landmarks of the county.

Until the year 1870 he engaged in the cattle business and farming, when he was appointed District Surveyor of the Palo Pinto Land District, which included Eastland. In 1873, when Eastland was organized, he was not heard from either way, the Commission will consider as being satisfied.

All citizens should cooperate in this matter this week, if possible. Certainly, after laboring over the tax rolls for the past six weeks or more, the Commission is going to consider the next few days.

Now is the time to speak up and be heard from if anyone ever intends to, and this week is the best time to do it. Preparation of the new tax statements will begin next week.

ected County Surveyor and held the office until 1878, when he declined to serve longer. Many old settlers testify that he helped them in locating good surveys without a thought or remuneration.

Mr. Davidson was member of the Methodist Church, South, and a Royal Arch Mason. His chief characteristics were his patience, integrity, purity of life and boundless hospitality. Hospitality on the frontier has always cast a sheen and glamour of dignified nobility, but few carried that virtue so far as "Uncle Peter."

For nearly 20 years on his ranch he kept "open house" for all who came or went—traveller, prospector, homemaker, stranger, all were loyally entertained.

He died at Strawn, 1897, and was buried by the Eastland Masonic Lodge, of which he was a charter member.

J. R. Higgins
In the fall of 1872 Mr. Higgins settled on the farm where he now lives, six miles southeast of Eastland on the Leon River. One year later he married.

"In those days we lived in log cabins, usually with one door, no windows, roof weighted on, and puncheon floor. We went in ox wagons to Stephenville or Comanche to mill. Stephenville was my postoffice."

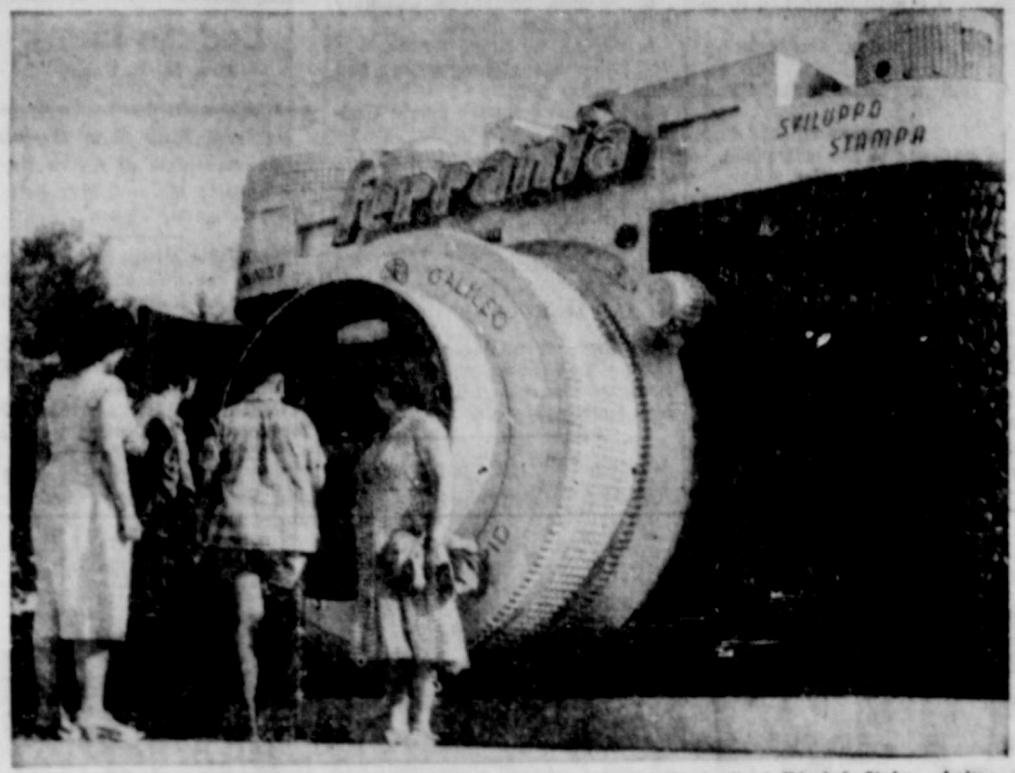

Mr. Higgins owns a fine farm with a good home and plenty of stock. His wife is a daughter of W. C. McCough.
