College Homecoming to Draw Hundreds to City

By NORMAN WRIGHT

There is a lot of talk these days about sending a rocket to the moon, and we don't suppose it's as impossible as it sounds. As a matter of fact, by utilizing what has already been developed, and what is in common use now, it should be possible to send a rocket to the moon, and back, with a whole raft of people in it. It should be possible any day from now on!

Take, for example, our own atomic powered submarine, the Nautilus. Following its launching the Nautilus ran for a 16 months before the Navy called it in for refueling and it was discovered that the sub could have gone on and on for any number of years with the original atomic fuel in it, and no need for replacement.

So, as far as motivation is concerned, and that is the main thing, some sort of atomic engine might very well make it to the moon and back considering that it can go for months without refueling, as they've already proved.

As far as pressurizing the vehicle goes, so as to make it habitable and safe for human beings, that ought not to present such a problem because our big trans-oceanic airlines are already doing that now, today, as they fly their passengers through the stratosphere. It ought not to be such a job to carry the pressurizing a little further and fix the rockets so they could support life in the rarified atmosphere around the moon and in the space enroute.

For a long time it was thought that the greatest problem of survival facing a human being taking off from the earth to outer space would be the terrific thrust he would have to endure in the initial propulsion as the rocket was "shot" from the earth. But that little curly haired Russian dog dispelled this theory because it got away from the gravitational pull of the earth with apparently no trouble at all, and from all accounts was still doing good five or six days after it had got into space. And it didn't have any kind of human attention, either.

These is no reason why it should not be possible for human beings to actually get out of their space ships and walk around on the moon, again using what we already have on hand today. They have developed apparatuses that can be worn in the deepest depths of the ocean by human beings, at spots where it would be impossible for life to exist without them, and they might just as easily come up with space suits that would sustain life in outer space, and do it much easier than at the bottom of the ocean.

Of course, human beings would have to take their own "breathing air" along with them, but that would be the simplest part of it, along with other such things as food and water and heat.

Those little old sputniks have already proved that man-made satellites can travel in outer space at speeds up to 17,000 miles an hour, and scientists tell us there is no sense of motion at all once you get up there, and are traveling at that speed. Booster Banquet To Start Events Thursday Night

Hundreds of Ranger College Ex-Students are again due to converge upon the city this coming weekend for their Annual Homecoming Celebration at the College which will get under way this year with a Boosters Banquet to be held Thursday night at Ranger Hall, followed by a dance in the Union Building.

The banquet will be a barbecued chicken dinner and all that goes with it and will begin at 8 p.m. in the college cafeteria. Tickets to the "Boosters Banquet" are on sale now for $1.00, and all ex-students and boosters of the college are invited, according to Dewey Cox, president of the Ex-Students Association.

"Ex-Students and Boosters includes just about everybody there," Cox said, "and that is who we want to attend—just everybody."

No Solicitations
Cox said there would be one big outstanding feature to this banquet. Nobody would be solicited for a donation, he said, and no fees of any kind would be collected from anybody at any of the Homecoming events this year.

That is a promise, Cox said, and most of the ex-students have it in writing, as Cox mailed a letter to that effect to everyone whose address he has on file.

Committees Named
On the decorations committee for the banquet are Judson Hardy, Miss Vivian Simmons, Mrs. Don Elliott, George A'ord and Mrs. Thelma Theberge.

The menu committee consists of Dr. Price Ashton, Mrs. Mildred Bonney and Roy Crawley. Serving on the publicity committee is Mrs. Price Ashton, R. F. Webb and Haydn Morgan.

The dance at the Union Building, following the banquet, will be under the direction of Al Lotzspeich, Tom Hestand and Roy Barrett.

UNDER THE "BIG STEEL TOP"—at Fort Worth's Will Rogers Coliseum, the Moslah Shrine Circus will open on November 22 for a 10 day stand, winding up on December 1. There will be matinees on November 23, 24, 28, 29 and 30, and December 1. Among the outstanding acts of this all-professional show—the world's greatest indoor circus—will be: Dick Clemens and his Capistrano Lions; Willie Necker and his performing Dalmatians; Lalage, world's greatest trapeze artist; Miss Mara, death defying act high in the air; The Flying Malik; The Royal Llamas, and, direct from Broadway, 24 beautiful Manhattan Rockettes. Sproesser Wynn, Circus chairman, says this year's show will be the best circus of them all. He added that reserve seats will be on sale at Fort Worth's Hotel Texas and Will Rogers Coliseum. There are acres of free parking space.

Were You Around When Wallis Warfield Lived In Thurber?

By NORMAN WRIGHT
From every section of the state this week, envelopes have come to our desk with the clipping of Frank X. Tolbert's piece in the Dallas News a few days ago about the time when the Duchess of Windsor, now Wallis Warfield, lived in Thurber.

Mr. Tolbert had held an interview with Mrs. Hazel Miller of Stephenville, who, as a young girl named Hazel Foster, had lived in Thurber, then a walled industrial city of about 10,000, and had known and played with Wallis Warfield as her best friend.

"We were both around 14 at the time," Mrs. Miller had told Mr. Tolbert.

We have been trying to puzzle out just how long ago that was, since Mr. Tolbert's piece says nothing about any dates. But as well as we can remember, just taking a wild guess at it, the Duchess of Windsor is now about 55 years of age. If she was 14 when she lived in Thurber, that would have made the date "around 1916 or 1917, and that would fit in just about right.

Ghostly Village Today
Few people driving through the country today, would ever know that Thurber, which Tolbert described as "a ghostly village set in Old Testament-looking country of olive-colored mesas," was one of the leading industrial towns of the state back in those days.

King, in his book, Ghost Towns of Texas, says that Thurber opened its opera house in 1896. It was described as a beautiful building, seating 655, and had a 30 by 50-foot stage lighted by electric lights. Thurber, he said, was one of the first towns in the whole world to have electric power.

King pointed out that hundreds of Italians worked in the Thurber mines and for the Thurber brick factory, so the city was run over with opera patrons. All of the traveling opera companies made Thurber a regular stop.

The Maroon and White Bulldogs of Ranger High School, picked for the cellar, are the proud Champions of District 7-AA today following their stunning up-set victory over the Coleman Bluecats Friday night in Bulldog Stadium by the decisive score of 21-6.

Again the Bulldogs' victory was not a fluke because the Bluecats were roundly outplayed in every department of the game as the highly favored Coleman eleven never managed to go through or around Ranger's line in which every man played like an All-American.

Hutchings, Jowers, Vende, Yarbrough, Ford, Veal and Russell were tearing into the Bluecats with a fury, and if Coleman had a backfield full of all-stars they must have left them at home because they didn't appear to show up in Bulldog stadium for the contest Friday night.

To Represent District

The victory left the Bulldogs in full possession of the District 7-AA title because they will represent the District in the State playoffs regardless of the outcome of their game with Winters Friday night, and they will also be considered District champs by reason of their defeat of Coleman, even if they should lose to Winters which is extremely unlikely.

Quarterback Lee King ran such a confusing show for the benefit of the Bluecats they never knew which way was up as they tried to figure out what was going to happen next. King had his choice of any number of good pass receivers, plus Wharton, Basham and Underwood to alternate at the ball carrying, and they never knew whether King, himself, was going to pass or run once the ball was snapped. It was an almost impossible combination to defend against, and the Bluecats never managed to figure it out.

Like Charlie Massagee

David Wharton, whom the Star Telegram compares with Charlie Massagee, racked up almost 200 yards single handedly and scored all three touchdowns on runs of 30, 5, and 14 yards. Charles Wolford kicked all three extra points in spite of the fact that the Abilene Reporter-News got their numbers mixed up and gave Underwood (Continued On Page Four)

GERALD RIDDELL

Missionary to Address Workers At Rising Star

Missionary Gerald Riddell of Columbia, South America, will be the speaker and will show pictures of Baptist work being done in that area, at the Cisco Baptist Association Workers Conference which will be held next Tuesday night, Nov. 12, in the First Baptist Church of Rising Star.

Missionary Riddell has spent 12 years in South America and his church and his people were once stoned by an angry mob of people and their new church building shattered.

District Missions Secretary L. L. Trotter will also appear on the program, as will a distinguished visitor, the Rev. Mr. Zimmerman of Knosho, Wisconsin, who will bring greetings from Baptists of that area and tell of work being sponsored by the Baptist General Convention of Texas. There are a number of churches in the Cisco Association who plan to render aid to the Knosho Baptist Church of which Brother Zimmerman is pastor, it is said.

Musical Director John Dickey of the First Baptist Church of Eastland, will provide music for the evening.

Sputnik Due Over Area Early Sunday

Sputnik No. 11 is due over Dallas at 4:44 a.m. Sunday morning. If the sky is clear and if you're up that early, you can see it in all probability, because at that height, what goes for Dallas goes also for Ranger. It will be traveling from the Northwest to the Southeast. It will require about five minutes to circle the entire arc of the heavens from horizon to horizon. It will therefore be moving faster than anything in the sky, and easy to distinguish for that reason. Call us if you see it.

Prowlers Break Into Coke Boxes

Two outside cold drink boxes were broken into by prowlers in Ranger Thursday night, but nothing much was taken.

The money box was pried off the cold drink dispenser at Campbell's Humble Service Station but no money was taken because the box had been previously emptied at closing time.

The same thing happened to the cold drink money box at Browder's Premier Station, and 35c was the extent of the prowler's loot.

Police have no lead as to who might have been involved.

Chest Drive Barely Moves; $44 Turned In

Ranger's Community Chest drive barely did move since the last report Thursday, but it moved some—$44 worth, bringing the total now to $3,953.50.

But that little lick got us off of the 900's and down into the 300's, as the remaining amount to be raised now is $856.50, to make out the budget of $4,840.

It has been a hard go since the drive started, and workers are to be congratulated for the time and energy they have put into the drive, and heartfelt thanks are due to all those who have given to it. If only everybody would give that should give, it would be an easy matter to meet the budget each year.

Legion Banquet Is Monday Night

Members of the Carl Barnes Post No. 69, American Legion, and their families, will hold their annual Veterans Day Banquet at the Legion Hall Monday evening at 6:30.

A full grown turkey dinner with all the trimmings will be served, and it is said that all Legion families had better be there if they don't want to miss something.

It has also been announced that the regular meeting time of the Legion has been changed from 7:30 to 7 o'clock, and everybody please take note. Next regular meeting is Nov. 18.

First Baptist Pastor Makes Announcements

The theme of the Sunday morning sermon at the First Baptist Church is "Using God's Provisions to Provide for God's Kingdom." The Rev. Ralph Perkins, pastor, said, "The Bible is filled with God's blessings, provisions, a n d bountiful gifts to mankind. Man's seldom grateful. The same Bible is likewise filled with requests that should awaken within the slumbering cords of the human heart the desire to really do something for the Lord Jesus. Attend services and bring your family to Sunday School."
The Sanctuary choir will sing, "Wonderful Peace of My Saviour." There will be wonderful music by the choir, special arrangements, and the congregation attending singing. Sunday school departments and classes will be looking for an increased attendance over last Sunday, when due to the weather and illness, the number present was very small. Help make a great day by bringing the family to Sunday school. Then stay for the rest of the services. Sunday evening will find the Training Union Department looking ahead with plans, programs, and people who are interested in the Lord's work.
The special music for the evening will be a solo, "What Shall I Give the Master?" The pastor will bring the message from the third chapter of Philippians beginning with the tenth verse and going through the chapter. The theme will be "I Surrendered Life." "There is nothing in life that is worth while that does not fit into the Christian scheme of life," said Rev. Perkins.

What's Cooking-

(Continued from Page One) From the two Sputniks already circling the earth, it is said to have confirmed the theory. The fact that the dog has lived for a week, now, almost proves it beyond question. Even Einstein proved that long ago in his theory of relativity. There is no motion unless you have something standing still to compare yourself against. Try the inside of a closed elevator sometime. At its closest distance to the earth, the moon is only 238,857 miles away. A rocket traveling at the relatively slow speed of 10,000 miles an hour could get there in less than a day and a night.

No longer can a rocket to the moon be considered as something like a skyrocket shot off into the air and flying through space on a wild goose chase going nowhere. They're getting this thing down pretty close to a reality, and we're going to quit laughing and po-pooping when somebody talks about it from now on.

This "shouting off like a skyrocket" is probably going to be dead stuff, anyway, before very long. With a powerful, atomic-powered engine capable of generating a quarter-million horsepower, more or less, we might be able to take off from this old earth in low gear and pull right on out of the earth's gravity while grandmother sat there and knitted on her first trip to the moon with stops enroute at other lesser planets. And if we can get to the moon, we can get to Mars and Jupiter and Saturn.

However, don't come around trying to sell us the first ticket. We definitely ain't interested. Many a time growing up, though, we could have used one of those planets as a likely place to park.

Wallis Warfield-

day and age was Col. Robert Dickey Hunter, and Col. Hunter was Wallis Warfield's own grandfather. He was surrounded by wealth and influence and splendor, things the young girl loved, and she spent all the time she could with him.

"The Colonel called her Wildcat," Mrs. Miller told Mr. Tolbert in their interview. "And that was a good name for her," Mrs. Miller said. "We all loved her, yet she was a curiosity to us. She would do things like go out in the yard and sleep in a tree all night. When she was in Thurber she lived both at the Colonel's house on what they called New York Hill, or at his cottage on Gopher Lake."

"Here Goes Nothing" Mrs. Miller said that Wildcat Wallis was a "very nice-looking girl and an amusing playmate. When she would go out in a boat on Lake Thurber she would strike a dramatic pose and say, 'Well, here goes nothing.' That was a favorite phrase of her's. When we would come to play with her she would say: 'Well, here comes nothing.' It wasn't mean the way she said it—it was just a lot of fun. She never went to a n y parties in Thurber as far as I knew, and I don't believe she ever went to the Thurber opera house."

From the number of people who sent us clippings of the Dallas News piece, it occurred to us there must have been a lot of them around when the Duchess was here, back during the hey-day of Thurber.

We're you around in those days, and did you know the Duchess? Might work up a homecoming around here one of these days.

Ranger Police-

Clem Luddington, 17, doing time for burglary, walked away from the Gatesville prison farm last Saturday, stole an ice cream truck in Gatesville and drove to Stephenville.

There they stole a pick-up truck which they drove to Thurber, and in Thurber they swapped the pick-up for an automobile which they drove to the intersection of U. S. Highway 80 and State Highway 16. From there the boys hitchhiked into Ranger, arriving sometime last Sunday.

Acting on the state-wide police alert, Ranger officers thought they recognized two of the boys Tuesday and picked them up on suspicion. A check by telephone with Gatesville authorities confirmed that they were two of the wanted lads, but they refused to implicate the third boy or tell officers anything about him.

It was subsequently discovered Thursday that the third boy had managed to get a job working on a truck with the Ranger Poultry Processing Plant, and that all three boys had been rooming at a house owned by Lola Harris. A later search of the boys' room revealed all their prison clothing which they had discarded for other clothes.

Bulldogs-

wood credit for the kicking. But after picking the Bulldogs to finish in the cellar, and after picking them to lose practically every game they have played this year, it is a wonder the Abilene Reporter-News even got the score right in their account of the game.

In addition to the stalwart play of Ranger's line, and the brilliant pass-catching and running of the ball carriers, the entire team played heads-up football, by not losing a fumble all night, intercepting two passes and being penalized only a very minimum. Most of Ranger's penalties came after the "B" team went in during the closing minutes of the game.

Struck Like Lightning The Bulldogs went after their championship victory with determination and struck like lightning from the beginning. Taking the original kick-off on their own 27, Wharton ripped off 34 yards on the second play of the game and climaxed a touchdowns drive with another 15 yards around left end for a touchdown, and following Wolford's conversion it was 7-0 before the game was three minutes old.

The Bulldogs threw terror into them again on the following kick-off when Wharton blasted out an outside kick that hit a Bearcat and bounced right back into the Bulldogs' hands and it was their ball again. This time the Dogs snatched to the Coleman 5 before the ball went over on downs.

The next Bulldog score, which came in the second period, was set up by a fourth down gamble by Coleman that failed to click. Jake Hasbun broke through the Bluecat backfield to toss quarterback Dale Byerly from the Ranger 36 back to the Coleman 43 and Ranger took over on downs.

Wharton Scores Again On the ensuing drive, King passed to Underwood for 4 yards, and to Wolford for 13, Wharton picked up 12 around end and when the ball was finally resting on the 5-yard line, Wharton blasted over for another score a n 7 Wolford converted.

Following this touchdown, Ranger kicked off to Coleman and the Bluecats set up shop on their own 44. They picked up a first and ten working the ball down to the Ranger 44, and from there Byerly passed to halfback Jim Norris for the distance and that was all the Bluecats did all night. They tried to run the ball across for the conversion and failed, thus they chalked up their lone six points.

There was no scoring in the third quarter, which belonged entirely to Ranger Coleman had the ball only twice and managed to rake up one first down and 30 yards rushing, but that was it.

Ranger's last score came with a minute-and-a-half left in the game when Wharton went over from the 13.

B-Team Takes Over Following Ranger's kickoff after this score, Coleman ran two plays before the Bulldogs intercepted a pass, and at this point, with about a minute left, the entire Ranger bench full of "B's" took the field and played out the game.

The crowd, estimated at 3,500, gave the Bulldogs a rousing cheer of congratulations as they left the field.

Future games in the playoffs will not be announced until the end of all District contests.

County History-

the postmaster a week.

When application was made for a postoffice, Osborne was suggested as a name, but the authorities sent Rising Star instead.

In the Fall of 1879 Uncle Tommies Anderson bought from Dave McKinley the tract of land on which the town has been built.

In the Spring of 1880 he moved the postoffice to his home and put up a small storehouse. Here he kept the postoffice, groceries and farm supplies. In 1883 a larger store was built near by. Since then the town has grown steadily, and now numbers about 700 souls.

The people early evidenced a strong desire for enlightenment by raising a 10x12 log school house and electing a Bill Welch as teacher. Mr. Welch was thoroughly in harmony with his environment often teaching under the branches of the trees, and not infrequently going to school barefooted. This small, floorless, log school house stood one and one-half miles east of the present town. A few years later a better and a larger log house was built near the cemetery, and here many of the substantial citizens of this County were educated. James Irby, who came here in 1877, was one of the pioneer teachers.

The business interests of the town are represented by loyal citizens. There are several large dry goods and grocery firms, drug and hardware stores, a bank, hotel, and the usual number of smaller shops and eating houses. There are two newspapers, five church buildings with as many organizations, and a handsome school building with seven teachers and 350 pupils.

The town is supported by a very rich farming and truck growing district of 15 miles radius. The soil is a light sand with a red clay subsoil and is especially adapted to the drouthy climate. Corn, cotton, maize, cane and oats luxuriantly; berries, apples, peaches, plums, apricots, grapes, and all kinds of fruits are easy and prolific producers. As a truck growing section it has no superior. Cabbages, without irrigation, have produced heads weighing thirteen and half pounds, beets have weighed twenty-five pounds, onions two; tomatoes, and potatoes of both varieties, grow easily and are heavy bearers.

The nearest railroad point is about 20 miles. Carloads of fruit and vegetables rot on the ground for lack of convenient shipping points.

In 1903 4500 bales of cotton were marketed and forty-two hundred were ginned by the two plants here. This same year 18,000 bales were ginned at the ten plants within the neighborhood of the Star country.

This section of the county is especially free from grasshoppers, boll weevil and all crop and garden pests.
