JUNIOR CLASS SUDAN HIGH NEWS NOTES

Interest in our visitors' registers continues to grow. Since last Monday there have been 28 registrations in the office. Of number six were out-of-town visitors, the others being local people. This displays a remarkable interest in the school. Certainly, many visitors come and go without registering, but there is a growing interest in the "register" for itself.

We junior boys report with regret that one of the visitors in the boys waiting room last week drew a match for a distance of over two feet across one of the newly finished surfaces of a door, leaving a bad blot on our furniture and breaking our record for perfect waiting room conditions. Help us, boys, to prevent this from occurring again, as we are very proud of the record and are working hard at it.

The football game last Friday with Olton was satisfactory to us even if we did lose by a top-heavy score of 33-0. It was our first scrimmage, and many of the boys received their initiation in football. We have too few boys out for practice scrimmage, and must depend on games for this greatly important feature of play. Olton made their points early in the game while we were still busy trying to wear off stage fright. During the last half of the game we played the stronger, more experienced team to a show down. Scott did some wonderful defensive work for us, and with every play he figured in, Olton realized that they were up against it. The football squad was very proud of the spirit displayed by the pep squad who would not say "give up". They were a source of wonderful encouragement to us while we were the under-dog. Let us add this in favor of our opponents, they gave us a square deal, never tried anything that showed lack of sportsmanship. The refreshments served us were much appreciated. On Friday of this week we play Littlefield at Littlefield. This is another strong team, but we will be in better condition for them, as all our men went through the last game without injury that will keep a man out. Let us remember that local men and women have promised a banquet to the team when it wins a game and try to make them feed us next week.

The home economics and agriculture classes have just completed a subscription contest sponsored by the Curtis Publishing Company by whom they were given a percentage of the subscriptions for some farm and home journals. The team led by Katherine Findley defeated that led by Donald Robertson. Donald's team will now have to entertain Katherine's team. The premiums received will be divided equally between the boys' and girls' classes.

The home economics club is much elated by the rumor that Mr. Wilkins and Mrs. Franks are going to Lubbock to buy furniture for the home economics dining room. They say they have heard such rumors for three or four years and they always believe them. This time Mrs. Franks smiles like she believes them also, so there must be some certainty in the rumor.

The junior class held their picnic last Saturday evening, and were honored by the presence of Mesdames Hunt and Young as guests. Coach Brown was also a guest, while Miss Rannels as sponsor, directed our activities. Weenies, pickles, marshmallows, cookies, and bananas were the order of the eats. After the trip was finished, the whole crowd had an enjoyable time playing games on the lawn in front of Miss Rannels' apartment. About nine o'clock all went home reporting their visitors and guests great sports, and expressing themselves as delighted with their evening.

Dr. Ford, city health officer, at the request of Mr. Wilkins, made the two school buildings an official visit last week. Here is given a copy of his criticisms: "The teachers and students of Sudan Schools deserve credit for

James Lawson Pennington Died Oct. 4th

James Pennington, of Amherst, died Thursday, October 4th. Mr. Pennington was 83 years old at the time of his death, and had been a member of the church 63 years. He also belonged to the Masonic Lodge, and had been a member of this organization, 50 years.

Funeral services were conducted by the Masonic Lodge and interment was made in the Amherst Cemetery.

The sanitary conditions. I called upon them this morning unexpectedly (too late for a nice luncheon) and found every department clean and tidy. The kiddoes and kiddes were neat and clean and were a very fine looking bunch. The parents should visit the school often and note the improvement of the children. The teachers will appreciate your visits and will be encouraged by your comments, if kindly made. Look for me again some time and with more comments."

The sophomore class gave the seniors an honored picnic last Saturday evening. They went to the sand hills for their refreshments. Mr. and Mrs. Newton were chaperons, and Miss Bond as sponsor of the entertainment. Over thirty people were present at the feast.

Monday of this week, was Freshman day at Chapel. Among the other features, worthy of comment, was a reading by Nora Liston and a one act play. These, together with the reading by Mitchel Simpson, were enjoyed by all. The many visitors at these programs attest to their growing popularity. The joyment of the pupils show that a need is being filled in the development of dramatics at least one period a week. The seventh grade will have charge of this public feature of school work next week. Always try to be present at 3:00 o'clock for these functions, for we begin on time.

Monday of this week, Mr. Wilkins spent a short time visiting the Muleshoe and Fairview schools. He reports splendid conditions at each place, but we view with regret the closing of the Fairview school next Friday for cotton picking. This always means so much loss of time in having to reorganize again within a few weeks.

The juniors have been told of the organization of a college class at Sudan High, this class meeting once a week, a teacher coming to them from Texas Technological College, and at the end of the term each successful student receiving credit for attendance at the college. This seems to us boys and girls a fine thing for both the college and our teachers. We understand there will probably be 20 students in this class by next Tuesday evening when it meets again. All people in reach of the school, who can qualify for this work should enroll in the class.

Special Grammar School Report.

We smaller people in grammar school feel glad of the fact that we, too, may have a share in our newsie notes. We know we are smaller than the high school folks, but there are some more of us. Mr. Smallwood is just as important as anybody, and our teachers are as good as those anywhere, so we are glad to tell of them.

We are sorry that one of our primary teachers, Mrs. Wilkins, is still sick. Her little ones are missing her, but Mrs. Talbott is giving them good work.

The high school seems to have beaten us in one thing. Some one of our own boys has injured one of the paper containers in our waiting room. This is something we hoped would not occur. The first six grades now have an attendance of 323, and still new pupils are coming. Several rooms have over 40 pupils now. With all this crowd we are glad that our building grows more orderly every day. Miss Jackson reports ten pupils with an average grade of not less than 93. Miss Jackson gives a fake picture show in her room occasionally, and these little affairs are all enjoyed by her folks. The rest of us wonder just exactly what they are.

It seemed to us last week that nearly everybody but school teachers visited the South Plains Fair. Pupils who went from this building had a pleasure trip and learned many things, but we wished for our teachers there.

Miss Love is working her Volleyball team hard. We believe that our team can beat the High school team, if Mr. Smallwood will let us try them.

Mr. Smallwood has been giving us a special lesson in the care of our pencils, and we believe we will learn to take care of them if he just keeps us at it long enough.

Mr. Wilkins had his sister and her husband from Clauene as guests over the last week-end. His own children from Lubbock, Mrs. B. C. Wells and her husband, and George Wilkins came home to see their mother who is confined to her bed. Miss Eunice Norris also visited Neal Wilkins at the same time the others were here. All of them visited our school plants while they were here.

Rid of Constipation Improved Both Health and Looks

"I suffered from stomach and bowel trouble for a number of years. I finally got so bad that I had no life or energy left, and felt that there was no help for me. I was completely worn out all the time, had a distressed, haggard look on my face. My mind was dull, my eyes blurred, and I was unable to take an interest in anything. I commenced using Milk's Emulsion in May. It occurred to me that the best way to let you see the wonderful improvement Milk's Emulsion has made in my health and appearance, would be to send you the picture that I happened to have taken a few weeks before I started using your Milk's Emulsion, and to have another picture taken now, and send both to you. I am still taking your Milk's Emulsion and improving each day. I know I would have been in my grave had it not been for your Emulsion. I love to take it. It is so pleasant and agreeable.

"I only weighed 108 pounds when I began to use Milk's Emulsion, and now I weigh 138 pounds. It has cleared up my complexion, made my eyes bright and a difference in my looks, as you will see by the two pictures. I don't look like the same woman. To my mind it is Nature's beautifier. I try to get everyone that I meet to take Milk's Emulsion as it is the most wonderful medicine in the world. Yours truly, MISS SARAH KATE KNIGHT, 722 Anderson St., Bristol, Tenn.

"And Julia won't be alone, either, now," said I brilliantly. "She has her uncle—"

"She wouldn't be alone long, anyhow," observed Nancy, demurely.

A faint flush mounted to Peter's serene brow, but he offered no rebuke. So we all smiled with highly spontaneous cheerfulness, and he observed modestly:

"Well, I'm not likely to start anything I can't finish!" Nancy snorted.

But here came a fortunate interruption. Outside, a motor rolled up to the curb, and in walked Mr. Darrow, wearing a portentous expression; something important was impending, to bring him to the shop at this hour. Being one of the employees he spoke to, I said, carefully, however, not to be too forward or unconventional:

"Good morning."

"Good morning, Mr. Darrow," said Nancy, sweetly. "Isn't it lovely out so early?"

"Delightful, indeed," murmured Mr. Darrow, with slightly uncertain overcordiality.

"You don't know me," said Nancy. "I am Miss Burton. Miss Wilkes is kindly giving me special training to become Miss Fuller's private secretary. This is my brother."

"Ah-h-h!" observed Darrow. "Back are you, Burton?"

"Yes, sir, answered Peter. Then, emboldened by our having survived Nancy's coup, he added: "I got a full set of the broadsides. Mr. Darrow; at a bargain."

"Ah!" observed Mr. Darrow. "You might come and tell me about it." "He's a perfect dear, but he needs a lot of help!" sighed Nancy, viewing the retreating forms of the two gentlemen.

"Mr. Darrow needs help?"

"All men do, but I was referring to Peter. He's going to marry Julia."

"Is he?"

"Well, can't you see that? It is always necessary to say everything right out? Aren't you glad?"

"If it proves to be true, I shall be very glad."

"Especially because you helped make it happen. Of course I did most of it; but you certainly helped."

"Do tell me how you did most of it, Nancy!" I begged.

"Well," began Nancy, with intense satisfaction, "the first night we were at Normandy terrace, the most terrible noise woke me up. It was Peter singing in his sleep; he does that sometimes, when he's very tired. I knew that trip to Richmond had the fuss about Malvina and his warty about me had just worn him out, and I certainly felt the pangs of remorse. But if he had gone on, Ernesto would have put us on the street; so I went to the keyhole and moaned like a banshee until he turned over very loud and was quiet. But that was not before I had made out what he was singing; a love song and a slushy one at that! Peter—fancy! Then first thing next morning he nearly swooned when he saw the paper, and tried to explain it by just mentioning casually that 'the young lady who fainted in the shop yesterday lives downstairs!'"

"You thought there was more to it than that?"

"Rather, when I heard that that young lady wanted Virginia books, that her grandfather collected them, that he was attacked in the law-book alcove; especially when I remembered that my old friend Brandon Tower had been after a book in Peter's suitcase which was an old Virginia law book. I couldn't relate all these facts. I admit, until dear Daisy Abbott helped me. She caught me in the hall one day, and chatted lovingly, and asked me quite incidentally how Peter had met Miss Grosvenor before!"

"She had detective aspirations, I'll tell you about them some time."

"She had matrimonial aspirations, too. I fixed them. I'll tell you how some time."

"I told Julia about my elopement, so she would never be surprised at hearing of it indirectly, or think it was at all important, or that I cared a bit for him, ever. And she said I was a good sister, and rewarded me."

But here even Nancy had to stop a minute. Mr. Case arrived as vanguard of the staff, greeting us affably and passing on to his office with all the pleasant courtesy which had never deserted him during that past trying week, except once when old associations had been too poignantly aroused.

"Nice, notta?" murmured Nancy. "Some would say dull, but I say good."

"Correct," I affirmed. "How did Julia reward you?"

"She lent me this to bring here today," answered Nancy.

From her pocket she drew a small copper plaque, which she laid on my desk just as Captain Ashland, who had the moment before stepped out of a taxi, appeared in the doorway. One look, and with a shriek I bounded toward him, brandishing the plaque.

"The original!" I cried. "Colfax's own copperplate!"

He seized it, stared at it speechless. "I say!" he ejaculated finally. "Yes, here's the circled serpent quite in form . . . and the ship . . . and the pillars . . . and the instruments. Where did you get this?"

"I got it," announced Nancy, loud and clear; "I got it out of the little sewing-table in Julia Grosvenor's . . . I mean Julia Harrington's . . . house."

I glanced nervously at the captain, sorry for the allusion, in his presence, to the Grosvenor mystery; but to my amazement, he looked more interested than ever. I stammered:

"Out of the sewing-table? But it was a dummy; it didn't open—"

"That's what everybody thought," returned Nancy, ignoring the captain temporarily, for it was no time to explain to him about sewing-tables; but Julia's mother must have discovered otherwise. And I suspected that table all along, myself; it was so curious and striking. Julia thinks her mother probably hid the copperplate there to safeguard her copy of the bookplate—that is, so that her copy would never be shown up from the copperplate; she must have realized that, with every body thinking the table was a dummy, the copperplate would almost certainly never be disturbed, especially if she hid the key, too. I tried the sewing table yesterday after I'd tried Julia's boxes, and given her the chance she wanted to talk to you and Peter. And there was this copperplate, all carefully packed into the little drawer, so it would never rattle, with this paper!"

Dramatically she produced an old, stained, yellow sheet. Bending over it, she showed it to the captain and I deciphered the following legend:

"To Dr. Charles Grosvenor from Hugh Colfax."

"this bookplate, in profound gratitude. In his peaceful home, may he recall the great days of the Macedonian and the Esmeralda."

This was pure Greek to me, but the captain started back in amazed recollection.

"The Esmeralda?" he cried. "Why, that ship's one of the most famous prizes in England's nava. history! She was captured off Callao by the British fleet that went to the aid of the revolutionists of Chile in 1820. We've got it at last, I believe! Colfax's son must have been there!"

"He was!" I cried. "Never mind how I know; that can wait. But afterward he fell a victim to yellow fever, and his life was saved by Doctor Grosvenor, then an American naval surgeon. Though just how he happened to be on the spot I don't know—"

"I do!" broke in Nancy, determinedly. "Julia told me. That ship on the bookplate is the Macedonian, the doctor's ship, which was on a voyage and lying off Callao at the time of the action between the Esmeralda and the British fleet."

"But," I objected—I had been examining the copperplate closely again—"the Macedonian was a very famous American ship, Nancy, and Captain Ashland says this is a British-built frigate—Oh, my gosh!"

Just too late I perceived that my wonderful memory had not been quite wonderful enough. The sincerity of

"No," didn't know her 't all," declared Ulysses. "We all knew Professor Harrington, of course."

"You mean, down in Virginia."

Fortune favored the bold. Ulysses proffered a single confidence:

"Yas'm; my old father, he lived with the Harringtons. They had elegant big white house all full of red-satin furniture. I loves grand furniture."

Then he was gone with his snapshots, leaving me with my thoughts and catalogue proof, which lasted me until late that afternoon, when, true to form, Mr. Roberts interrupted on the telephone.

"Are you busy?"

"No," I answered, also true to form. Then I was kindly to come to Mr. Darrow's office. Not once before in nine years had I been summoned to the Presence. I wondered why Mr. Darrow should take the trouble to fire me personally, but marched into his cherrywood headquarters and faced him and Mr. Roberts with all the composure I could muster.

"Ah! Miss Fuller?" said Mr. Darrow, as if he wasn't quite sure. "Sit down. Now, in reference to that bookplate—You know what I mean?"

"I think so," I murmured.

"Miss Fuller showed considerable intelligence in that connection," interrupted Mr. Roberts.

"All Almy's efforts seem to have been crowned with success," said Mr. Darrow, hastily. "I have been glad to exert my poor influence to obtain for him the vacation he has long desired to spend with his worthy aged parents on their picturesque Maine island. I would not see one who has exerted himself in behalf of the cause of justice and my house remain unwelcomed."

"Then don't forget Ulysses!" said I. And, swearing both my astonished hearers to secrecy, I outlined Ulysses' epic of devotion, for such his whole course of conduct during the previous week had to be accounted. Without analyzing too closely the ethical aspects of his delay in identifying Mr. Grosvenor, it could be seen that it had won a certain advantage for Julia, by giving Ulysses time to sound Mr. Case and win his friendship for Mary Grosvenor's daughter. For he knew that Julia was also the daughter of Miles Harrington, without doubt. If the Harringtons had been his father's family, if, thirty-odd years before, he had seen the professor, then a boy, down in Virginia, he must have known Miles, too; and an old colored nurse, long years a Grosvenor retainer, who had tended both Mary Grosvenor and her little daughter, had been sent home to Virginia for giving that child information that was to be kept from her. Far more important information, confided by that dying mother to her old nurse, must have gone the rounds of the log cabins in Elliot's Crossing, and found its way north again to one who secretly knew the gray-haired professor as more than one of the details of life in Darrow's.

And finally, Ulysses, seeing the spring-lancet under my desk that Thursday, had undoubtedly recognized it in some way. Exactly how, would never be known. Yet it might be safely assumed that his old father, with the interest in bodily ills characteristic of his race and class, had told Ulysses over and over again of the fine young naval surgeon who once, long ago, by means of a strange little brass box full of knives, had cured him of pleurisy. And it was more likely that Ulysses had heard this story frequently because this admir-

"Yes, I'm staying indefinitely. My uncle always urged me to come, but my first morning here I wasn't very keen on it, I must admit. I felt put off a bit; safer in the war, what? But then you—and Miss Fuller, of course—drew my attention to—the bookplate, and so I've decided to stay and help in the business on this side. I telephoned my uncle my decision last night and I must be off now to see him, for he said he'd be here early to welcome me. I believe I'll have time to learn the business and do some other things I want to, now that Almy says he's through with me."

"Mr. Almy is through with you?" I ejaculated. "Why, what do you mean Captain Ashland? You weren't helping solve the Grosvenor mystery, all this time? And I never knew it!"

"Helping?" repeated the captain, dazedly. "I say, were you in it, too? I had no idea!"

"Oh, I didn't do much," I demurred feebly.

"Nor I! Just made a nuisance of myself soothing my uncle, and begging for tea, and insisting on an original for that copy of the bookplate, and what not."

"See here," said I, severely; "how long has Mr. Almy known, anyhow, that that book was an object of interest to the Grosvenor connection?"

The captain chuckled delightedly.

"Good joke on all of us, what? Why, you know, his interest in the case started when he heard Professor Harrington was among those present; of course, he knew about him personally, but he also remembered that the police had been called in when Harrington's library was robbed some years back. So he reads that case over, to refresh his mind; and then, when he walks into my uncle's office, last Monday noon, there's one of the very books that was stolen, lying on the desk! And then, with all the Grosvenor clan rushing hither and yon for Virginia, the rest was easy."

"Oh, was it?" said I.

"Of course it was, when he had so much help from experts!"

"Mr. Almy," observed Nancy, irrelevantly, "told me one day to take care of my fine brother. So I did."

"We were puppets in his hands!" I murmured.

"Positive puppets," beamed the captain. "Going up, are you, Miss Burton? Do tell me how you took care of your brother!"

So young England and young America departed, each with a prize, or perhaps America had two, for Nancy bore off the Colfax copperplate, Miss Fuller, you see the paper this morn'g! A dark hand held out Daily Snapshots, "Bookshop Mystery," ran the largest caption: "Clew's Denouement," above an enlarged reproduction of the spring-lancet.

"Is that there a clew, Miss Fuller?" inquired Ulysses, indicating the instrument.

"Yes, Ulysses." With sudden determination I resolved to ask him one question; he seemed communicative, for him. "Have you ever seen Miss Harrington, too? I mean, as well as her grandfather?"

"No," didn't know her 't all," declared Ulysses. "We all knew Professor Harrington, of course."

"You mean, down in Virginia."

Fortune favored the bold. Ulysses proffered a single confidence:

And it was more likely that Ulysses had heard this story frequently because this admir-

"Yes, I'm staying indefinitely. My uncle always urged me to come, but my first morning here I wasn't very keen on it, I must admit. I felt put off a bit; safer in the war, what? But then you—and Miss Fuller, of course—drew my attention to—the bookplate, and so I've decided to stay and help in the business on this side. I telephoned my uncle my decision last night and I must be off now to see him, for he said he'd be here early to welcome me. I believe I'll have time to learn the business and do some other things I want to, now that Almy says he's through with me."

"Mr. Almy is through with you?" I ejaculated. "Why, what do you mean Captain Ashland? You weren't helping solve the Grosvenor mystery, all this time? And I never knew it!"

"Helping?" repeated the captain, dazedly. "I say, were you in it, too? I had no idea!"

"Oh, I didn't do much," I demurred feebly.

"Nor I! Just made a nuisance of myself soothing my uncle, and begging for tea, and insisting on an original for that copy of the bookplate, and what not."

"See here," said I, severely; "how long has Mr. Almy known, anyhow, that that book was an object of interest to the Grosvenor connection?"

The captain chuckled delightedly.

"Good joke on all of us, what? Why, you know, his interest in the case started when he heard Professor Harrington was among those present; of course, he knew about him personally, but he also remembered that the police had been called in when Harrington's library was robbed some years back. So he reads that case over, to refresh his mind; and then, when he walks into my uncle's office, last Monday noon, there's one of the very books that was stolen, lying on the desk! And then, with all the Grosvenor clan rushing hither and yon for Virginia, the rest was easy."

"Oh, was it?" said I.

"Of course it was, when he had so much help from experts!"

"Mr. Almy," observed Nancy, irrelevantly, "told me one day to take care of my fine brother. So I did."

"We were puppets in his hands!" I murmured.

"Positive puppets," beamed the captain. "Going up, are you, Miss Burton? Do tell me how you took care of your brother!"

So young England and young America departed, each with a prize, or perhaps America had two, for Nancy bore off the Colfax copperplate, Miss Fuller, you see the paper this morn'g! A dark hand held out Daily Snapshots, "Bookshop Mystery," ran the largest caption: "Clew's Denouement," above an enlarged reproduction of the spring-lancet.

"Is that there a clew, Miss Fuller?" inquired Ulysses, indicating the instrument.

"Yes, Ulysses." With sudden determination I resolved to ask him one question; he seemed communicative, for him. "Have you ever seen Miss Harrington, too? I mean, as well as her grandfather?"

"No," didn't know her 't all," declared Ulysses. "We all knew Professor Harrington, of course."

"You mean, down in Virginia."

Fortune favored the bold. Ulysses proffered a single confidence:

"Yas'm; my old father, he lived with the Harringtons. They had elegant big white house all full of red-satin furniture. I loves grand furniture."

Then he was gone with his snapshots, leaving me with my thoughts and catalogue proof, which lasted me until late that afternoon, when, true to form, Mr. Roberts interrupted on the telephone.

"Are you busy?"

"No," I answered, also true to form. Then I was kindly to come to Mr. Darrow's office. Not once before in nine years had I been summoned to the Presence. I wondered why Mr. Darrow should take the trouble to fire me personally, but marched into his cherrywood headquarters and faced him and Mr. Roberts with all the composure I could muster.

"Ah! Miss Fuller?" said Mr. Darrow, as if he wasn't quite sure. "Sit down. Now, in reference to that bookplate—You know what I mean?"

"I think so," I murmured.

"Miss Fuller showed considerable intelligence in that connection," interrupted Mr. Roberts.

"All Almy's efforts seem to have been crowned with success," said Mr. Darrow, hastily. "I have been glad to exert my poor influence to obtain for him the vacation he has long desired to spend with his worthy aged parents on their picturesque Maine island. I would not see one who has exerted himself in behalf of the cause of justice and my house remain unwelcomed."

"Then don't forget Ulysses!" said I. And, swearing both my astonished hearers to secrecy, I outlined Ulysses' epic of devotion, for such his whole course of conduct during the previous week had to be accounted. Without analyzing too closely the ethical aspects of his delay in identifying Mr. Grosvenor, it could be seen that it had won a certain advantage for Julia, by giving Ulysses time to sound Mr. Case and win his friendship for Mary Grosvenor's daughter. For he knew that Julia was also the daughter of Miles Harrington, without doubt. If the Harringtons had been his father's family, if, thirty-odd years before,

DR. CALDWELL'S THREE RULES

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not habit forming.

The Doctor never did approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Get a bottle today, at any druggist and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open. For a free trial bottle, just write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. "Why, son, I can't; they're decorations," remonstrated the mother.

"Well, get me one for Decoration day then," rejoined the five-year-old, as his parents made wary faces and others within hearing distance laughed heartily.—Indianapolis News.

Magistrate Judges will give six hundred dollars for it. I let him have it for that figure; he desires it for a special purpose. He was particularly attracted to it by the significance of the substitute bookplate which you so astutely inserted, that bearing the motto 'Invictus,' most appropriate for his political purpose. You understand me?"

"Quite."

"I think, Miss Fuller, you do ordinary things rather well."

Honors Boys Birthday

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Willis who reside several miles south of town entertained a host of friends and young folks in honor of Messers Neal and Alvin Webb and J. W. Willis' birthdays, on Saturday evening of last week. Miss Vanda Young won the prize for the prettiest girl present, with Miss Laddie Ellis a close second. The cake contained symbols of marriage, wealth and blessed single life. Miss Pansy Webb is the first to enter matrimony, Jack Lenderson is to be immensely wealthy. Alvin Webb will have the pleasure of enjoying bachelorhood. Music and games were enjoyed throughout the entire evening. The hostess, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Roy Ballard, of Amherst, served delicious refreshments of cake and punch. The young folks departed at a late hour, thanking the hostess for the delightful evening, and wishing the boys many more happy birthdays.---A Guest.

Over a Billion Deadly Germs in a Single Drop of Water

Germs are so small that there may be as many as one billion, seven hundred million of them in a drop of water. And just a few of these tiny germs, if they get into your blood through a cut in your skin, may make you so sick you will be in bed for weeks—may cause the loss of a limb through blood poisoning—may even infect you with that most dreadful and fatal of diseases, lockjaw.

Just because you can see no dirt in a cut does not mean that it is clean. You cannot see germs. The only safe and sane thing to do, is to thoroughly wash every cut, no matter how small, with Liquid Borozone, to kill the germs, and then dust it with Borozone Powder, to hasten the healing. Liquid Borozone costs 30 cents, 60 cents, $1.20 and $1.50; Borozone Powder, 30 cents and 60 cents, and can be had at

ARE YOU SUPERSTITIOUS ???

By FRANK ELLIS, JR.

Numbers in Buddhism

IN BUDDHISM the three causes of demerits are: Lust, anger and ignorance. The first has for its destroying agent fire; anger has water; and ignorance, wind. The three precious things are Buddha, the law, and the assembly. There are three great divisions in the sacred books. The images of Buddha are only represented in three positions; sitting cross-legged, standing, as if ready to advance, and reclining on his side with his head resting on a pillow.

The superstition respecting climacterics, or critical periods of life, was very strong during the Middle Ages; and even down to recent times. The mystic numbers seven and nine so frequently occurring in the Bible had their influence with many persons.

It was believed that the constitution of man changes every seven years; that the whole of the solids and fluids of the body changes during that time, the old cast off and new matter formed. At seven years of age a child had left infancy, at fourteen he had attained puberty, at twenty-one he had reached manhood, and so on.

The power of the seventh son of the seventh son to heal diseases is believed.

The Scotch spawwife (fortune teller) generally pretended that she was the seventh daughter of the seventh daughter, and was supposed, in consequence, by the lower orders, to possess second sight.

What is Luck?

THERE are few words in our language of such unlimited application as that of luck, a word influencing to a large degree the thought, speech and actions of individuals generally. How many men are there who laugh at the idea of being considered superstitious who often carry such trinkets as a coin with a hole in it for "luck," a rabbit's foot, a lost key, a tooth and other similar rubbish? If found out, the only reason for carrying such trinkets in their pockets, they will be candid enough to confess it.

that it has become a sort of a pocket-piece, or a habit, they have carried it so long. But they will not confess their weakness or admit that they are the least bit superstitious.

Many who smile at the superstitions of their own. Superstition has played a great part in the lives of some of the great peoples of antiquity. Some of the older superstitions have been supplanted by more modern ones. People will continue to allow superstition to play a great part in their lives and destiny.

Even Steven

"The altruist can always find a balance in the scheme of life," said George Bernard Shaw. "A throng of idle rich, idly draped over the luxurious furniture of a fashionable London hotel caused a friend of mine to remark scornfully: "These rich people make me sick, just sitting around doing nothing. What is the use of having money if you don't know how to enjoy it?" "But why fret about it, old chap?" I replied. "Are you any better off? What is the use of knowing how to enjoy money if you haven't any?"

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Prof. H. L. Shantz of the University of Illinois recently told the National Academy of Sciences that the earth is capable of supporting 8,000,000,000 people if all the land is fully utilized. This, says Popular Science Magazine, would be nearly five times the present population of the world.

Verdict of Woman Who Tried Pinkham's Compound

SCIENCE SEEKING ABORTION REMEDY

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

More than $50,000,000 a year is a conservative estimate of the losses from the great animal plague of abortion. Dr. John R. Mohler of the United States Department of Agriculture points out that ten years ago the losses from tuberculosis and abortion were approximately equal. In ten years the tuberculosis losses have been halved and the abortion losses doubled.

In advising live stock growers in regard to the abortion problem Doctor Mohler, who is chief of the bureau of animal industry, does not minimize the seriousness of the condition, but he holds out hope for eventual solution, reports marked progress in the understanding of the disease, gives suggestions for identification and control of the disease, and warns farmers, stockmen, and dairymen against medicinal agents for the "cure" of abortion. "Up to the present no medicine for the cure of abortion has proved an effective agent. The variable activity of the disease in a given herd has made it difficult to measure the value of remedies and has led to giving undeserved credit to substances of no value."

"Abortion," says Doctor Mohler, "strikes directly at the source of our cattle supply, and at the very organ, the udder, upon which the functioning of our whole dairy industry depends. The heavy toll of the disease includes not only the loss of calves, loss of milk flow directly incident to the abortion, temporary and permanent sterility and other breeding troubles, but also the reduced milk flow due to the presence and activity of abortion bacilli within the udder."

The bacillus that causes the disease was discovered about thirty years ago by Professor Bang of Denmark. Subsequent study has revealed many facts about the disease and the organism. The bacillus may live for months in dead animal tissue; it may be killed by careful pasteurization and by ordinary disinfectants; its favorite habitat is the pregnant uterus and it does not remain long as a rule in the non-pregnant one; but it may reach the udders of infected cows and there maintain itself for long periods and continue to infect the milk.

One misconception popularly held, says Doctor Mohler, is the belief in the importance of the genital organs of the bull as a means of spreading the infection. This may at times be of importance, but it is not considered an important agency of the spread of infection. Calves are rarely infected. Two types of the bacillus are recognized, one affecting hogs and one cows, and the strains of bovine bacilli differ widely in virulence.

"The principal channel of infection," Doctor Mohler says, "is the digestive tract. This is contrary to the early belief which incriminated the genital tract as the principal portal of infection. Infection is spread by the aborting cow through the products of abortion and the discharge which follow in enormous amounts." Doctor Mohler emphasizes particularly the danger of infection from an infected cow that has given birth to a calf in a seemingly normal manner. "Cases of apparently normal birth, accompanied by infection in the placenta and discharges, are grave dangers because they are unsuspected."

Discovery of these facts and the fact of the bacillus maintaining itself in the udder for long periods have thrown light on the problem and point the way to better control methods.

Alfalfa Pasture Ideal for All Farm Animals

It is a well recognized fact that alfalfa is the best hog pasture crop we have. Every hog producer should have a patch of it for that purpose. He should have more than that; he should also provide alfalfa hay for his brood sows, as well as for his fall pigs. The fact is that alfalfa hay should be provided for all farm live stock. It can be grown on practically every farm, though in most cases liming of the soil will be necessary in order to get a stand.

Mature brood sows that are being fed one pound of corn per 100 pounds live weight, per day, and one-fourth of a pound of tankage per head per day in addition, will eat half to three-fourths of a pound of alfalfa hay daily. The great value derived from the feeding of it lies in the fact that it gives bulk to the ration and because it furnishes protein, mineral matter and vitamins. Its vitamin content seems to be extremely valuable.

Legume Roughage

It is impossible to say too much in favor of legume roughage as compared with timothy hay as a feed for live stock. It is invaluable for dairy cows, for growing cattle and sheep, and, in fact, for all classes of live stock on the farm. It is even of great value for wintering brood sows. Nor is the high feeding value of legumes the reason for urging a greater acreage of these crops. They are, as every farmer knows, important soil improvers and builda.

Long-Forgotten Light Burned On Steadily

How a light in an unknown room in a theater at Glasgow, Scotland, burned unquenched for 22 years, has just been reported. When electrical engineers were asked to give quotations on overhauling the lighting system a certain line of conduit disappeared in a wall, and the trail ended. Nearby was a locked door, the key to which had been lost. No one from the manager to the call boy could remember that the door had ever been opened. It was forced. The unknown room had been used by billposters, and according to a poster lying there the place had not been used since 1906. A 16 candle-power carbon lamp was burning brightly just as it had evidently been left by the last occupant of the room. The report adds that when the manager estimated the cost of the wasted light of 60 watts for 22 years, he fainted.

The Gospel of Reform.
Sometimes, in addressing men who seriously desire the betterment of our public affairs, but who have not taken active part in directing them, I feel tempted to tell them that there are two gospels which should be preached to every reformer--the first is the gospel of morality, the second is the gospel of efficiency. -- Theodore Roosevelt.

An Unpleasant Subject
All of the functions of life are not pleasant to consider. Perhaps this is why some mothers refuse to think that such symptoms as restless sleep, loss of caused by round or pin worms. Many mothers have proven, however, that a few doses of White's Cream Vermifuge, that sure and harmless worm disappear. You can get White's Cream Vermifuge for 35 cents per bottle from
