SECOND EDITION SOPHOMORE CLASS SCHOOL NEWS

Events have come fast since last issue. Pupils have come and gone, a football game has been won, we have had a distinguished lecturer with us, an election has been held in the high school building, our grammar school principal has returned to the fold, a Parent Teacher Meeting has been held, and we have lived through a terrific rainy spell. That is enough to ruin forever the brain of any poor soph. Still, here are some of the more important matters.

During the rainy spell of last week some of the school trucks failed to get back into town. Mr. Linton missed one day. Another day he froze his radiator and was late. Grover Cra in missed two days, causing some of his pupils to be thrown behind in their work. Oren Neal joined the ranks of the absent by sticking in the mud one day. He says if he had had chains on his truck he would have been here, but he NEVER had them. Mr. Brothers stuck in a bar pit where it had been improperly filled and caused him to be tardy over an hour one day. Weren't these calamities enough for one spell of rain?

Most of the pupils who have been out with diphtheria are coming back again now. Pupils who stopped to help work in harvesting crops are getting back and school is about up to standard again. Tuesday of this week the trucks carried in about 260 pupils. These lead us to judge that farmers will depend principally on hired labor for crop gathering the remainder of the season. We folks in school are glad that Amherst fate was not ours, for had we stopped two weeks we should have accomplished little except a good chance to lose a nice lot of our affiliation. As it is we feel more nearly sure of retaining what we have and gaining more than we have felt at any time in the past.

Artie Lee Hicks, one of our junior boys, had the misfortune to break a bone in his left fore arm last Friday while cranking up a school truck. It appears that cranking cars is as dangerous as playing football. We hope that Artie Lee may have his arm back in use as early as is possible.

There have been several new pupils this week. Our total enrollment is now nearing 600 and we have not nearly reached Christmas. It is probable that we shall far exceed that number before midterm.

Mr. Smallwood, principal of the grammar school, has returned to work after an absence of nearly three weeks. He has spent most of this time gathering some cattle he had over near Tatum. We are glad to have him back even if Mrs. Talbott is a good teacher.

Miss Jackson reports 15 volumes in her school library, these being contributed by friends of her room during the past week.

The Parent Teachers Association is meeting this afternoon, Tuesday, as news is being gathered. However, it will be too late to make a report of their work this week.

Mr. Newton, in charge of the vocational agriculture work, reports ordering a car of pure bred dairy cattle. He was assisted in this by D. A. Adams, county agriculture agent. These cattle are being bought by farmers in an effort to raise the grade of dairy cattle of the vicinity with the great supply of feed always available on the West plains and its great distance from market, it is much more profitable to turn this feed into dairy and beef products than to sell it in bulk. Feed sold in bulk is only shipped to feeders elsewhere. They make money on it after paying the freight and the cost of distribution. If this is true and we all grant that it is, why should it not be profitable to utilize it at home, and ship the results in butter, cream and beef? By cooperating with each other and buying car load lots of these fine animals it is possible to secure much more advantageous freight rates. Any farmer who has not given his name to Mr. Newton is invited by the ninth grade class of the high school to add his name to the list of those desiring good stock.

The Home Economics club reports some admirable facts. They are formulating plans for craft work in their club meetings have set a date for these meetings, and have received permission to have a room for their work. They will also give a portion of their meeting dates to music, art, literature, etc. A regular series of meetings will be devoted to the history of home economics work. At one of the recent meetings the following story was told on Mrs. Franks. Accept it or reject it. In a lecture she is reported to have told her girls that one of the best means to grow a beautiful nose is for a girl to be careful that she always keeps it out of other people's business.

Because of the resignation of Ted Holden, junior class president, and that Clem Scott, junior vice-president, the class was forced into another election of these officers. Jack Lender-son was elected president, and Marvin Thomas, vice-president. Holden and Scott were splendid football men and their loss will be severely felt.

Last Friday the football team defeated Spring Lake by a score of 19-0. After the first quarter Coach Brown began throwing his light reserves into the game to give them some practical experience to aid them another year. Among these light men were the following: Rex Ham-mock, age fifteen, weight 119, playing left field; Leonard Payne fourteen years old, weight 128, playing left half; Walter Wayne Wilkins, age twelve, weight 115, playing center. These boys were probably too immature and too light for good work, but they helped the line and backfield to stand against assault by heavier men and gained valuable information for another year. Holden and Scott are far on their way to California, but Sudan still has a team, even if they are missed.

The sophomore class sponsored by Mr. Newton, and accompanied by Miss Lucille Carmack, of Tohoka, went to see Heroes of the Wild at the picture show last Saturday night. They report a jolly time and an educational event.

The senior class accompanied and sponsored by Miss Bond went to the sand hills on a steak fry last Saturday. We have not heard what kind of steak they had, how they cooked, nor whom the steak made sick, but we are of the opinion that Miss Bond was one of the latter, as she was cross Monday and threatened some of the seniors. However she explained it that buttered apples are worse than steak.

Not long ago, Mr. Talbott asked his biology class to name the kind of bird usually found in captivity. Venda Young told him they were jail birds, and Mr. Talbott grew angry over it.

Walter Wayne Wilkins is having something to worry over since his papa told him a man can't marry two wives. He is engaged to Lenora Payne and Lilina Hunt.

When Shorty Hamilton started to ask Pauline Dent if she could take a joke, Pauline asked him to please not propose again.

The election results will have been known before this goes to press, and we ninth graders venture the assertion that all the old neighbors will still go on just as before, and that the income of none of them will have been bettered nor decreased regardless of who is elected president. When that date has passed, we may be able to tell you something new in the way of school life.

Ninth Grade,
R. J. Newton, Sponsor.

Armistic Day

November 11, 1918, was the greatest day the world has ever known. For many--far too many, November 11, 1928, will just be Sunday.

How can one forget in ten short years? Ten short years for some, perhaps nine hundred years for others who have lived without life since they were left maimed by a youth sapping war.

And are we to forget the dead? Those whom we called martyrs to the cause" and about whom we said they "had given their all for us." What of them? Do we no longer think of them or is it that we are letting time make us forget?

Ten years ago on November 11 the whole world joined in rejoicing because of the Armistice between the central powers and the allies by which the world war was brought to a close.

In the years that have followed France and Belgium, the physical theatre of the four years' war, have been completely rehabilitated, and are on strong economic foundations.

Germany has made marked economic and industrial progress and is at peace with the world.

Practically all the scars of the battle have healed. The hope of the world is that wars are over, and certainly that such conflict as existed in 1914-18 may never occur again.

Armistic is a day we can never forget and would not if we could. A day when all America salutes once again those virtues that mean most to mature manhood--honor, courage, liberty and right.

Fly the flag Sunday. And every true American should pause for a silent commemoration of the day.

F. F. T. Meeting

The first regular meeting of the F. F. T. was called to order promptly at seven o'clock Monday November 5, 1928 by the president Arnold Purtell.

The roll was called and nineteen of the twenty-three were present at roll call.

At the call for old business the members of the club voted to hold their regular meetings on the first and third Mondays on every month at seven-thirty o'clock. The club also adopted as their aims the follows:

1. Buy Vocational Agriculture Truck.
2. Annual Camping trip.
3. Send judging teams to A and M.
4. Sponsor cow, sow, and hen show.
5. Hold father and son banquet.
5. Conduct agricultural program in Chapel.
7. Form Cooperative marketing and buying association.
8. Ship a carloae of purebred dairy calves into community.
9. Get 85 per cent of the members to start a saving account.
- 10 Building a Farm Shop building.
11. To assist farmers with farm problems.
- 12 Test cows to make this community free of T. B.
13. Put up Agriculture Booth at all community, county and district fairs.
14. 100 per cent Membership of eligible students.
15. Each member take part in the program when asked to do so.
16. To put on play.

To The Tax Payers and Voters of the City of Sudan

At a regular meeting of the Commission of the City of Sudan, held Monday night, Oct. 8, 1928. Acting upon a petition of more than 50 percent of the qualified voters of said City, for a Water-Works Bond Election, and after due consideration and conservative estimates of the cost of such installation of said Water-Works System, it was determined that said Water-Work System, without fire-fighting apparatus, would cost $47,000.00 and an election for the aforesaid purpose was ordered to be held at the City Hall in the City of Sudan on Wednesday, Nov. 14, 1928.

The present valuation of all taxable property in said City, as shown by the Assessors Rolls of 1928, is $431,040.00.

If $47,000.00 of 40 year 5 1/2 per cent Bonds be issued as proposed, the annual interest, will be $2,585.00, and the law demands that 1-40 of the principal shall be paid, or deposited in sinking fund, each year for redemption of said Bonds. One Fortieth of $47,000.00 would be $1,175.00 plus the annual interest of $2,585.00 --$3,760.00 the necessary amount annually--to take care of said Bonds. With the value of taxable property as above stated, this would require an annual tax of 88 cents on the $100.00 valuation for principal and interest of the Bonds alone, which with the present rate of 75 cents (which is insufficient) for general running expenses, would make a total annual City Tax of $1.63 on the $100.00 valuation; and it will be remembered that this $47,000.00 for Water-Works will not include any fire-fighting equipment.

This information is published by order of the Mayor, that the voters may be in a position to vote intelligently at the above mentioned Water-Works Bond Election to be held at the City Hall next Wednesday, Nov. 14th.

Respectfully,

W. W. Carpenter, City Sec'y.

SAME PRESCRIPTION HE WROTE IN 1892

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as today. People lived normal lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air. But even that early there were drastic physios and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings. The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe bowel stimulant. This prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative. It has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds, fevers. At your druggist, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Monticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

If Kidneys Act Bad Take Salts

Says Backache Often Means You Have Not Been Drinking Enough Water

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and leggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness. Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink. Drink lots of good water.

Locate Nation's Mineral Wealth

Government Geologists and Aviators Unearth Vast Hidden Resources.

Washington.—Records of the United States geological survey tell the story of millions of dollars in mineral wealth uncovered by government geologists in recent years. The finds include rich gold deposits in Alaska, potash fields in New Mexico, phosphates in Idaho, Wyoming and Utah and oil in Colorado.

These discoveries have led to huge commercial development projects such as the Isles and Moffat oil domes in northwest Colorado, the purchase of large areas of oil shale lands to be held in reserve against a dwindling oil supply and the working of almost limitless deposits of phosphate.

Geologists of the survey are engaged now in a search for ore bodies in Colorado, where many of the great mining camps are reported to be on the decline because of the exhaustion of known metal-bearing fields. The mineral belt of the state is being mapped in detail, beginning with the better known areas. These topographic maps, made by airplane photography and ground methods, will serve as a basis for further work by the geologist.

Extensive Field Work.
About 100 groups of government geologists and topographic engineers are in the field annually, from Alaska to the Gulf, from the west coast to the Alleghenies, in search of oil, copper, coal and other minerals and metals. Each year the geological survey sends flyers, surveyors and geologists into remote regions of Alaska to investigate areas for the exploration of valuable minerals and to supply fundamental geographic information for development enterprises. These investigations include also study, mapping and reports covering already developed mineral deposits in or adjacent to the settlements and in the more accessible and better known parts of the country.

The Alaskan explorations are conducted in extremely wild and difficult country, where the explorers are cut off from all communication with the outside world and are thrown on their own resources. Most of the chiefs of the Alaskan parties—geologists and topographic engineers—are veterans in Alaskan work. During the summer there have been six parties in widely scattered areas of the territory, in the Ketchikan region of southeastern Alaska, Admiralty Island, the Nizina district of the Copper River region, Upper Tanana and Yukon regions west of the international boundary and in the Alaska Range region of the Southwest.

Among the survey records is the story of a geologist long in the service who discovered a prehistoric beach in Alaska that later yielded much gold. At the time of his discovery more than $7,000,000 a year was being garnered along the Nome beaches in gold which, it was locally believed, was washed up by the sea. The geologist was laughed at for his theory that the gold was being washed out to sea from inland, and his later announcement of the discovery of the source of the metal on an inland prehistoric beach received scant attention. Several years later commercial interests rediscovered the older beach and worked it for its valuable deposits.

The story of the discovery of phosphate in the West by government geologists is similar. The phosphate deposits in Florida were petering out and alarm was expressed over the dwindling supply of this necessary agricultural fertilizer. Following President Roosevelt's conservation conference in 1907 two geologists were sent West to investigate deposits which had been discovered accidentally some years previous but never worked. The geologists found phosphate in Idaho, Wyoming and Utah in quantities ample to supply agricultural needs for many decades. Other valuable deposits were found later in the Tonopah area by the geologists.

The Potash Deposits.
More recently the discovery of potash in New Mexico has completed the trinity of phosphate, nitrate and potash, so necessary to the fertility of farm lands, and has made possible the independence of the United States of foreign sources of potash supply. The survey recently completed analyses of samples of potash selected from the core of a well drilled in Eddy county N. M., which show that within 1,500 feet of the surface fine beds or groups of beds of possible commercial interest were encountered. One of these, at a depth of 1,465 feet, is 8 feet 10 inches thick and contains 11.08 per cent of potash according to sample.

During the half century of development that followed the discovery of gold in California one great bonanza after another was discovered in the West. Gold in many cases was exposed at the surface of the earth and merely awaited the touch of the miner's pick. Later it became necessary to mine the enriched sulphides at greater depth and then the lean primary ores at lower levels, where costs of recovery, even with the best modern methods, may soon exceed the market value of the product.

As time has passed fewer deposits have been found. An occasional strike has been made within the last generation—Cripple Creek in 1891,

ELECTED PRESIDENT

Emilio Portes Gil, who was elected provisional President of Mexico by the congress, to take office on December 1.

Tonopah and other Nevada camps in 1900 and later, but by far the greater number of the big gold mines of the United States were in operation by the opening of the present century.

Leaders in the mineral industry are acutely aware of the necessity of finding more ore, and are calling upon the flyer, the trained geologist and the mining engineer to help solve their problem. Old-time methods of prospecting are regarded as too slow.

Air Service Helps.
Army air service flyers accompanied by geologists and camera experts have flown over approximately 10,000 square miles in eight states during the past season in search of prospective ore deposits. Base maps are made which show every physical as well as every artificial feature of a region. These maps are in effect picture models which indicate the shapes and the heights of mountains, hills and slopes and the location and gradient of rivers and creeks. The government program calls for surveying in this way of 17,000 square miles a year.

Oil shale is receiving increasing attention by the government geologists as a source of the nation's future oil supply. As it has been demonstrated that a ton of shale will yield a barrel or more of oil, several commercial organizations have set aside millions of acres of shale for possible use later. And the federal bureau of mines has recently established an experimental plant in Colorado with a view to developing a commercially practicable method of extracting oil from shale.

Uncle Sam Wins

Washington.—The United States has won 83 per cent of the cases it has taken to the Supreme court this year, the Department of Justice has announced.

FARM POULTRY

CHICKEN THIEVES ARE REAL PIKERS

"Chicken thieves, which long have been the target for rather drastic action in Illinois, have been shown up as pikers by disease, a henhouse 'bandit' that too often plunders without even being noticed, much less caught, says H. H. Alp, poultry extension specialist of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois. Farmers in this state last year lost 3,000 chickens from disease for every 50 that they lost by chicken thieves," he said.

"The lesson in this for the farm flock owner is to see that the colony or brooder house and the young chickens are on clean ground that is kept clean," Alp says. "Last year a number of poultry men lost chickens from disease and parasites even after moving the house and chicks to clean ground. In most cases these losses were due to the ground within a radius of 10 to 15 feet of the house getting badly contaminated with droppings and filth. Good clean range will be of little value in preventing disease trouble as long as the ground adjoining the house is dirty."

"To prevent this, move the house a few feet every month, plow or spade the ground around the house, or what may be the simplest and best way, sweep the ground weekly with a good stiff broom and do away with the sweepings. Such a cleaning will help prevent both round worm and coccidiosis organisms from completing their life cycles."

"Like that around the colony house, the ground around the mash hopper and the drinking dish soon become contaminated with droppings. To overcome this, hoppers and drinking dishes may be placed on platforms with a one-quarter or one-half inch mesh wire top. "House flies should be guarded against for they are an intermediate host for tapeworms. All filth and rubbish which breeds flies should be destroyed. Using rock phosphate and gypsum on chicken manure will check fly breeding."

Proper Feed for Flock During Winter Season

On the feeding of the flock depends to a large extent not only the general health of the birds, but also the economy which promotes success. It is a subject, however, which should be studied with a large amount of common sense, for there are no hard and fast rules which can be laid down as applying to every case. The price of feeds and the general environment should be considered in determining the right rations.

For the largest profit a good proportion of the eggs should be secured during the winter. If two extra eggs a week can be obtained from each hen a good profit will be made, while if the product is increased by only one egg a week in winter, this one egg will pay for all the feed the hen eats. To obtain this greater production not only should the fowls be young and of a good laying breed, but the feeder should have full knowledge of the proper feed and its preparation. The nutriment in the feed of laying hens serves a two-fold purpose—to repair waste and furnish heat to the fowl.

Geese Thrive Best if They Are Given Range

Unlike other fowls, geese are by nature more like sheep or cattle, as they are grazing fowls and should have access to good pasture, and will thrive best on free range which they should have both winter and summer. Even when the ground is covered with snow, geese will find plenty of grass along a stream of water. Clover hay and corn stover are fine for them to pick at during the winter months, and if they have a good supply they will need but a very small amount of grain. In the summer, when they can get plenty of grass, they do not need a single kernel of grain and will thrive and keep in fine condition without it.

Poultry Business

Poultry is now the sixth agricultural commodity in value in the United States, amounting to $1,181,000,000 in poultry and eggs during the past year. Harry R. Lewis, of Rhode Island, president of the National Poultry council, called on General Lord, director of the budget bureau recently, in company with several members of the organization to ask for larger appropriations for the fiscal year 1930, to solve new problems arising in the poultry industry.

Storing Poultry

During some periods of the year large quantities of dressed birds of different kinds are put into storage. The heavy packing season is during the fall and winter months. The broiler season comes on during the late spring and summer months. The rapid changes which are taking place in the production of poultry makes the marketing more of a year-round business than was the case five or ten years ago. This reduces the number put into storage.

FARM GIRL WINS $850,000 DOCTOR LEFT HER IN WILL

Climax to Romance That Might Have Been Taken From Book of Fairy Tales

Baltimore.—Signing a decree ratifying an agreement by all the parties in the case, Judge Robert F. Duer, sitting in the Chancery court of Wilkeson county, has brought to a climax a romance that might well have been taken from a child's book of fairy tales.

By the decree, Edna Davy, fifteen years old, daughter of a humble Worcester county family, comes into the possession of an estate estimated to be worth between $750,000 and $850,000 devised to her by Dr. Edward E. Tull, a retired New York surgeon, who chose to pass his declining years on a beautiful 2,400-acre tract he had bought in Somerset county. While rambling about his estate, Doctor Tull met Edna Davy, who, young as she was, was also a lover of nature in its primal beauty. Together they day after day rambled along brooks and rills, often joined by Ruth Davy, whom Doctor Tull also remembered in his will with an annuity of $3,000.

The venerable surgeon was charmed with the naive simplicity of the country girl. Upon the surgeon's death in April 1927, it was found that he had willed nearly his entire estate to Edna and a yearly income of $3,000 to Ruth, none were more surprised than the Davys themselves.

Mrs. Louise Tull, Baker, wife of J. Henry Baker, a Baltimore attorney, a sister, and Robert H. Jones of Fairmount Somerset county, a half-brother of Doctor Tull, charged that the will was not the last will and testament of Doctor Tull, but that the document was procured by undue influence, that Doctor Tull did not possess the mental faculty to execute a valid will at the time he was said to have done so.

A brilliant array of legal talent was engaged by both sides to make the fight; depositions were taken in New York, Virginia and other states.

All was primed for the legal battle, when announcement was made that a compromise had been arranged out of court. The caveators had agreed to accept $75,000 and yield all further claims upon the estate.

Since the death of Doctor Tull, an allowance of $250 a month from the estate having been awarded to them for that purpose, Edna and Ruth have been attending Bryn Mawr school in Baltimore.

Is That All?

London.—There has been much ado in the sporting pages about the number of clubs carried by Stewart Scheffel, American, living at Le Touquet, France, who recently won the English boys' golf championship. In his box ordinarily are only 20 clubs, 15 irons, 4 woods and 1 putter.

Mrs. James A. McClintock's Appeal For Her Child

"My little girl, 2 1/4 years old, has trouble with her stomach and bowels. She runs a fever and her passages are green—just acts like a bilious attack. I am thinking of giving her Milks Emulsion. Please send me special directions for children. March 22, 1923."

—LATER—
"My little girl has not had any more of those attacks since I started giving her Milks Emulsion, and she didn't have but one cold all last winter and played out every day. "She is 3 1/4 years old now and just getting along fine. Emulsion has built her up in every way, and I want to thank you for your advice. I will always talk for Milks Emulsion whenever I can." ## Los Angeles Boy Needed Help

Leroy Young, 1116 Georgia St., Los Angeles, is a "regular fellow," active in sports, and at the top in his classes at school. To look at him now, you'd think he never had a day's sickness but his mother says: "When Leroy was just a little fellow, we found his stomach and bowels were weak. He kept suffering from constipation. Nothing he ate agreed with him. He was fretful, feverish and puny."

"When we started giving him California Fig Syrup his condition improved quickly. His constipation and biliousness stopped and he has had no more trouble of that kind. I have since used California Fig Syrup with him for colds and upset spells. He likes it because it tastes so good and I like it because it helps him so wonderfully!"

California Fig Syrup has been the trusted standby of mothers for over 50 years. Leading physicians recommend it. It is purely vegetable and works with Nature to regulate, tone and strengthen the stomach and bowels of children so they get full nourishment from their food and waste is eliminated in a normal way. Four million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it. Always look for the word "California" on the carton to be sure of getting the genuine.

England's Prime Ministers.
The title of prime minister in England was first used by Sir Robert Walpole, who was in office from 1721 to 1742. By this time ministers were being chosen from one political party, and they had begun to act together, so that they obtained the name of the ministry. Their leader was then called the premier or prime minister. This title was not recognized by law until 1805.

Dangerous Business

Our stomach and digestive systems are lined with membrane which is delicate, sensitive and easily injured. It is dangerous business, then, to use medicines containing harsh drugs, salts or minerals, when we are congested. In addition to the possibility of injuring the linings of our digestive system, these medicines give only temporary relief and may prove habit forming. The safe way to relieve constipation is with Herbine, the cathartic that is made from herbs, and acts in the way nature intended. You can get Herbine at

All of the functions of life are not pleasant to consider. # DINSMORE'S FOLLY

By CRITTENDEN MARRIOTT
Illustrations by IRWIN MYERS

SYNOPSIS
That her grandfather left her the architectural monastery known as "Dinsmore's Folly" is, for esthetic reasons, by no means pleasing to Ethel Dinsmore, modern "dapper." She would refuse the bequest, but her father, millionaire head of Consolidated Trust, will not allow it. Edith visits the place. Perkins, the caretaker, is the victim of a matrimonial mishap, his wife having left him. Fred James, newspaper reporter, comes. Mr. Paul, Dinsmore's right-hand man, proposes to Edith and is rejected. He takes the rejection in a melodramatic manner. Edith sees a connection between Perkins' runaway wife and Mr. Paul. Edith's horse bolts. The runaway is stopped by a stranger who does not give his name. Edith hereafter calls him M. P. (My Preserver). With her sister, Josephine, and Fred James, Edith attends a prize fight.

CHAPTER III—Continued

I am not going to describe the fight. I don't know how to describe it, for one thing; and it didn't last long, for another. Besides, you probably read about it in the papers. It was very secret, of course, until the second round, and then the police broke in and tried to arrest everybody. They didn't succeed, of course. The place was arranged with plenty of exits for escape in case of a raid—Fred called it a raid—and as soon as the police began to hammer down the doors the crowd began to run. They swept right over the place where we were sitting and carried us away with them just as an extra big wave carries away bathers at the seashore. Fred and Josephine simply disappeared and I was left all alone in the midst of a crowd of "fired" business men who were crazy to keep their names out of the papers.

Of course, I was scared to death, but luckily I didn't lose my head. Probably I would have lost it if the crowd hadn't flung me up against a big, fine, tall man who promptly tucked me behind him and prevented the crowd from crushing me until the first rush was over. By that time the police had broken in at the door and about half the audience had vanished out of the windows. The other half was rounded up under guard.
Some of the men protested strenuously, but it didn't seem to do them any good. I heard some one say that the chief had passed the word not to let anyone go and that the officers didn't dare take a chance, no matter how hard a man begged or how important he was.
But imagine my feelings! I knew what Father would say if I were arrested for being at a prize fight. But somehow I didn't feel as much frightened as I might have been. I was still behind the man who had saved me and I took a lot of comfort in the set of his broad shoulders. Every minute I expected him to turn around. But he didn't. And he didn't say a word.

So I plucked him by the shoulder. Time was flying and I had none to lose. "Can't you get me out of this?" I implored. "My father doesn't know I'm here and he'll go crazy if I'm arrested. Please get me out."
The man turned around and I saw that it was M. P. (My Preserver)—the man who had saved me when Gypsy ran away with me that day, and who had refused to tell his name I nearly dropped through the floor. He didn't seem at all surprised, however. I guessed afterward that he had recognized me as the crowd swept me toward him.
"I'm trying to figure out some way to do that very thing," he said. "I'm acquainted with a good many policemen, and if you'll wait a minute I'll probably see one I can appeal to."
I waited, of course, but I didn't wait in silence. Why should I? I have never found that silence gets a girl any where. Besides, I was beginning to feel pretty safe. I felt somehow that M. P. would save me. He had done it once before. So I smiled up at him. "This is the second time you've rescued me," I began.

"I haven't rescued you yet, this time."
"No, but you will," I said. "And just to think that I don't know your name! Do please tell me what it is, before I die of curiosity."
He smiled again. "My name is Braxton," he said, "if you really care to know. I've been wondering ever since that day whether I should see you again. But I never guessed it would be here." He glanced around the hall.
"I didn't, either," I returned. "But then I don't know much about such places. Maybe meeting your friends at them is the regular thing. I wanted to see what it was like and I made Fred bring me and my sister. It was Fred who was with me that day, you know. They were with me when the police broke in, but I don't know what's become of them. I don't see them anywhere. If you—"
"I beg pardon," Mr. Braxton broke in. "There's a sergeant that I know."

held out his hand. "I will thank you," he said. "Good night."
If he had been pretty nearly anybody else in all the wide world I would have known how to prevent his going. But somehow, with him, I was stupid. I couldn't think of a thing to say. I just shook hands dumbly and watched him fade away. And all the time I was just crazy to keep him.

Two minutes after Mr. Braxton had gone, Josephine and Fred turned up in a taxi, driving like mad. They had been released by an officer who knew Fred and they had searched and searched for me. They hadn't found me, of course, and equally of course they hadn't dared to tell anyone who I was. So, at last Fred had brought Josephine home, on the chance that I might have gotten there first somehow, intending to go back and hunt some more if I hadn't turned up. Josephine nearly fainted when she saw me. She must have been under an awful strain. And Fred had been, too, for the matter of that.
Anyhow, they both said "Never again" when they traced up at last. And never again it was. Even I was satisfied.
I didn't explain about Mr. Braxton. My meeting him was pure coincidence, of course. But it looked amazingly like pure fate; and I didn't dare to tell about it. I just said that a kind policeman had turned me loose and let it go at that.
But I thought about him a lot and kept hoping that he would call. But he didn't. The days dragged by without my seeing a sign of him. Come to think of it, so very many of them didn't drag by, after all; it was their dragginess and not their number that troubled me. I wanted to see Mr. Braxton so bad that a day seemed a week, especially as I couldn't help fearing that he had found me or had found out that I wasn't a poor relation—and that he didn't intend to come back at all. As I had told Fred, this business of really worthwhile poor men fighting shy of rich girls is pretty hard to do. Look at the kind of chaps most of them have to put up with just because real men keep away. But the matter of that, there's a lot of nonsense in all that talk about rich men wanting other rich men for their daughters. They don't want sons-in-law who look on marriage as a lifeboat, or who can't make good in one way or another; but I never heard of a single father—and I've had mighty good chances to hear—who would have hesitated to welcome a would-be-son-in-law just because he was poor. I know Dad wouldn't.
Meanwhile, Mr. Paul was in and out, talking with dad, mostly about that missing one thousand shares, which he seemed unable to trace. He said very little to me; but what he did say was nice and friendly. It made me feel pretty mean. But, goodness, I couldn't marry the man just because he was taking my refusal to marry him so nicely! At last, however, he got in bad with me, and after that I felt better. He came to the house one evening while Josephine and I were entertaining Fred in the parlor. I was looking in the big glass over the fireplace (which served as a very good periscope), and I saw him pass the door, on his way to Dad's room. An hour later, after he had gone, Dad sent for Josephine, and she left me and Fred in the parlor and went to the library. She was gone so long that Fred grew restless and wanted to leave. He thought, poor boy, that Father was keeping Josephine away as a hint that it was time to close up the house for the night; and I could scarcely persuade him to stay. I succeeded, however; and it was well that I did for by and by Josephine came back and said that Father wanted to see Fred.
When Fred had gone to the library I put Josephine through the third degree; and after a lot of hard work, I found out what it was all about. Father had told her not to tell me, but I got it out of her. That is, I got some of it out of her. I thought I got it all, but in that I was fooled. Josephine played it low down on me that time—and it wasn't the first time, either, as I discovered later.
No! Josephine did not tell me all that father had said but she told me enough to make me very angry.

River Changes Bed
The Druceat river in France, a small tributary to the Somme, did the unusual thing of reverting back to its original bed of prehistoric times, which meant the lengthening of its course from three to nine miles. In the operation it flooded the country, fields, farms and gardens, cut the highways in two points and surrounded a number of houses. When the flood subsided the river was running in the ancient course which had been previously traced by geologists. It was believed that the heavy rains had revived the ancient springs which were the original sources of the Druceat.

Entirely New Angle to Payment of Bills

The smart young man approached the hotel proprietor.
"Look here," he said, "I want you to settle a little argument that has arisen between me and my friend here. I said I was coming to you to pay my bill."
"Very glad to hear it," said the proprietor. "But what is wrong with that?"
"Well, my friend says I ought to have said your bill. That's the point."
"Come to that, I suppose it is my bill."
"But you said it was my bill just now."
"So it is—your bill and my bill, too."

"In fact, then, you contend that it's our bill?"
"Of course it is!"
"Well, that suits me all right. If it's our bill, of course, we divide it. Just make out my half, will you? There's nothing like getting things straight."

Electing a President

The president and vice president are not chosen by direct vote of the people but by "electors." Each state is entitled to as many electors as it has senators and representatives in Congress. In the general election this week the voter cast his ballot for the set of electors representing the party or ticket he wanted to support. All the electors in all the states, numbering 531, constitute the "electoral college."

On the second Monday of next January, the electors of Texas, and the other states, will meet and cast their ballots for president and vice president.

On the second Monday in February the votes from all the states are publicly opened by the president of the Senate and counted by Congress in joint session. The persons who are found to have the highest number of electoral votes are then declared to be president and vice president, provided they have a majority of all the votes.

Automobile Etiquette.

Authorities on etiquette agree that when a man and woman are riding together in a carriage or automobile the woman should be seated on the right. If the vehicle is not so placed that the woman, in stepping in, can easily move over to the right side, good form permits her to take her seat and allow the man to step across to his seat. Some authorities regard it as extreme for a man to walk to the left side of the car to enter. In case there is no door man in attendance the man can close the door as he steps into the car.

Cheer Up

People who are prone to bewail their lot! who complain of no opportunities, high food prices, unemployment, should be in China now where in the Tientsin-Peking area people are so hungry that they are eating grasshoppers. They have no job, nor opportunities but have a very definite gnawing at their vitals that an American hasn't. In this country every person can at least eat. In China they are lucky if they can. In discovering our assets we should compare ourselves with those more unfortunate.

Soft Drinks

Twelve billion bottles of soft drinks are included in America's take-off for human refreshment this year. The absence of beer has not impaired the national capacity for curbing its thirst. We are hard drinkers, no matter that we lap up.

Over a Billion Deadly Germs in a Single Drop of Water

Germs are so small that there may be as many as one billion, seven hundred million of them in a drop of water. And just a few of these tiny germs, if they get into your blood through a cut in your skin, may make you so sick you will be in bed for weeks—may cause the loss of a limb through blood poisoning—may even infect you with that most dreadful and fatal of diseases, lockjaw.

Just because you can see no dirt in a cut does not mean that it is clean. You cannot see germs. The only safe and sane thing to do, is to thoroughly wash every cut, no matter how small, with Liquid Borozone, to kill the germs, and then dust it with Borozone Powder, to hasten the healing. Liquid Borozone costs 30 cents, 60 cents, $1.20 and $1.50; Borozone Powder, 30 cents and 60 cents, and can be had at H. G. Ramby Drug Store
