AGENT PUSHING TERRACING AND DAIRYING

City Lets Contract For Installation Sudan Waterworks

ALL-DAY TERRACING SCHOOL, MARCH 19, 1929

On Albert Parks' Farm, 1 Mile South of Amherst.

The objects of these schools are to teach more men and boys the use of the farm level and to run terrace lines; to impress upon farmers and business men the importance of soil and plant food conservation; and to demonstrate the building of adequate terraces.

There are 465,000 farms in Texas. There are more than 200,000 that would be benefited by terracing. The majority of these farms must be terraced within the next few years or they will become so depleted of soil fertility that they cannot support the farm families. At the same time the farmers' purchasing power will be lowered and as a consequence business will suffer.

There are 165 county agents in Texas with all other duties, and owing to the short terracing period, it is hardly probable that these agents can average more than 50 farms per year. At this rate, it would take more than 35 years for the farms of Texas to be terraced.

Most all agencies have realized that land security can practically be made worthless in less than 10 years from erosion. Throughout the entire state, farms are being washed away and deserted every year. This is an economic loss and a destruction of our capital stock.

So in order to get more farms terraced these terracing schools are being held to train more men and boys to run terrace lines in conjunction with the county agent's program.

Everyone is urged to attend, and do not forget the place for Lamb county's terracing school, Albert Parks' farm, one mile south of Amherst March 19 1929. Everyone invited to attend.

Newspaper Sponsors Oratorical Contest

Entries in the oratorical contest which the Fort Worth Star-Telegram is sponsoring in North and West Texas are being made rapidly in the majority of eligible counties. Each school which will participate will select its own contestant for the county tests, the latter in turn to pick the district contestant.

Each of the district winners will go to Fort Worth in April for the state finals. The winner of the state final will be sent to Kansas City for the national semifinal, preliminary to the international final in Washington, D. C.

Entries in the county contests, as well as the school contests, are urged to send their photos to the Star-Telegram, Fort Worth, at once.

In the schedule of district competitions, No. 2 is as follows:

Lamb, Lubbock, Hockley, Cochran, Yoakum, Gaines, Dawson, Terry, Lynn, Andrews and Martin at Lubbock, April 19.

Here is a chance for any budding orator of Lamb county to show his metal. And, incidentally, have a try at a very nice trip.

BAND REHEARSING FOR BIG CONCERT

Six rehearsals per week. That is a lot of rehearsals, but the Lamb County Band is doing just that in preparation for its public appearance here March 8. Two of the practices are held here, while the neighboring towns of Amherst and Littlefield come in for their share the other four nights. The class of music the band intends to play on that date necessitates much intensive preparation.

In fact, this program will be the culmination of a period of work of longer than three months. The calibre of this concert will be readily understood when it is noted that the band plays such marches as Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever," and Wagner's "Under the Double

On Monday of this week, at a meeting of the City Council, a contract was let for installing Sudan's water system.

The contractors will first drill a test well and guarantee an abundant supply for the town. It is understood that work will start on the well within 15 days, and when that is down the work of laying mains and laterals will follow in order.

Cowmen Have Big Program for Meet

AMARILLO.—On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 4, 5 and 6, cattlemen of the Southwest will meet in Amarillo for the 13th annual convention of the Panhandle Livestock association.

In addition to the regular convention features, other attractions will be a show and sale of 100 baby beavers fed by Four-H club boys and girls of the Panhandle, a big wrestling match, banquet and the customary dances.

The Panhandle Hereford Breeders' association will meet at the same time and on Tuesday, March 5, will have their annual spring show and sale of registered Herefords. Forty selected bulls and cows from the leading herds of this section will be offered in this sale.

The business sessions of the convention will be held on Monday and Tuesday mornings.

SEVERAL TEACHERS OUT OF TOWN OVER THE WEEK-END

Mr. and Mrs. Newton spent the week-end with Mr. Newton's parents at Crosscut, near Brownwood. Mr. Brown accompanying them to Lubbock where he took train for Abilene and spent the week-end on the campus of the Abilene Christian College.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilkins left Sudan Saturday morning to spend the time with their son at Colorado, but we understand Mrs. Wilkins was taken ill with an attack of acute indigestion, stopping them at Lubbock where she remained under the care of a physician until Sunday afternoon when they returned home. Mrs. Wilkins is able to be back in school Monday, however.

Misses Love and Jackson motored over to Lubbock and spent the interim with Miss Jackson's parents. While in Lubbock they visited Mrs. Eroyles who is in a sanitarium there.

Miss Bond did not visit anywhere due to an attack of laryngitis, but her mother came down from Texico and spent Saturday and Sunday with her, returning to her work Sunday afternoon. Miss Bond was in school part of the day Monday, but was compelled to seek her bed in the afternoon.

Band to Play Saturday in Sudan

The Sudan Municipal Band, assisted by players from Amherst and Littlefield, will give a short concert on the streets of Sudan Saturday afternoon, at 4:30 o'clock. The purpose of the music is to provide some good entertainment for the Saturday shoppers and incidentally advertise the big Band Concert by the Lamb County Consolidated Band here on March 8.

SENIOR SWEATERS BEING WORN NOW

To the uninformed it may seem that his Satanic Majesty is a visitor in Sudan now, but that would be an erroneous assumption. It is only the Seniors wearing their new sweaters. The sweaters bear as an emblem a picture of a smiling Mephistopheles. We wonder why this emblem!

and when that is down the work of laying mains and laterals will follow in order. It is the hope of the authorities that within the next ninety days the city will be supplied with water from its own plant, which will give a big impetus to business of all kinds.

Storm Sweeps Northeast Texas; 26 People Killed in Storms in South

AMARILLO, Feb. 25.—An associated Press dispatch from Dallas to The News says:

Wind, rain and hail hurled down on northeast Texas today, leaving in their wake four dead, six seriously injured, and property loss estimated at more than $250,000. The storm was the first seasonal disturbance of any consequence in Texas this spring.

Shortly after Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Jones had been killed at Cooper, 60 miles northeast of Dallas, when their home collapsed, two negroes, Alfred Gibson and his wife, were battered to death as the wind wrecked their house at Grand Prairie, 13 miles west of Dallas.

At Cooper, three persons, Troy Young, 21, Mrs. Wakefield, a tourist, and Mrs. William Duncan, 60, were seriously injured. Wm. D. Duncan, was badly bruised and lacerated. Three others, Mr. and Mrs. John Trigg and their daughter, Leona, 12, were injured at Grand Prairie. Mrs. Trigg and her daughter may die, it was said at a Dallas hospital where they were brought for treatment.

The wind played its usual quota of tricks on its victims. Joe Clark, who was milking a cow in a barn at Cooper, saw his house torn from its foundations, and his daughter, who was running to him, tossed through the door into the barn. The girl was unhurt.

Buddie Trigg, 17, who was asleep when the storm struck, escaped injury although he was thrown from his bed into the yard. In his underclothing he worked for some time before he could extricate his mother from a section of the wall which had plumed her down.

Most of the damage was at the Printex Refinery at Grand Prairie, where huge iron storage tanks were crumpled like paper, the wind sprinkling the countryside with oil. The management of the company estimated the loss at $150,000.

High winds also were reported at Mesquite, 14 miles east of here, and at Rowlett.

The loss of life and property damage at Cooper occurred in a narrow space about 100 feet wide and two blocks long. Fifteen residences were demolished and others damaged.

A mother and daughter were killed and the father seriously injured in a tornado which struck the community of Van, Ark. Considerable property damage was done.

A heavy windstorm swept through Duncan, Miss., killed at least 20 persons and left the business section in ruins. Estimates of the injured ranged as high as 100.

Six Chinese were killed in the collapse of a store, and the other victims met death in the collapse of buildings. Two blocks of the business district, about fifteen residences and four cotton gins were razed.

Only three white persons were known to have been among the dead.

Sudanites Enjoy Musical Treat

The Benefit Concert given Monday night by Mrs. Otis Truelove in aid of the Methodist Woman's Missionary Society was an unusual treat to the music lovers so fortunate as to be present. Mrs. Truelove is a finished soprano, and her rendering of the program was most satisfying.

Among the most appreciated numbers were "Trees," "Indian Love Call," "Kiss Me Again," "Danny Boy," and "Grandmother's Patchwork Quilt," a musical reading.

"The Holy City" rendered by Rev. C. R. Hooton, was greatly enjoyed. Mrs. C. R. Hooton gave a number of beautiful instrumental selections. The proceeds—$40.00—will go to the aid of the Woman's Missionary Society.

NOTICE

The following business houses agree to close their doors at 7:00 o'clock except Saturdays, beginning March 4: Hokus Pokus, "M" System, A. Stuart, Sudan Mercantile, Everybody's Store, Holt & Sons' Cash Grocery, Higginbotham-Bartlett Co., J. O. Cooper, L. R. Wood, G. C. Holden.

PAYNE IN CHARGE OF CONTINENTAL OIL STATION

F. Z. Payne closed a deal with J. M. Slaughter last week for the Continental Oil agency at this place and took charge of the station Monday. Mr. Payne is well and favorably known in this territory and says he is anxious to have his friends and old customers call on him when in need of Continental Products.

Messrs. Jeff and Lester Webb were called Wednesday to Haskell, Texas, where a son of Alf Webb, brother and uncle of Jeff and Lester had accidentally shot himself while out hunting. The young man died a few hours after the accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Dube Slate and Mr. and Mrs. Lester LaGrange of Amherst attended the concert given by Mrs. Otis Truelove and Rev. and Mrs. C. R. Hooton, Monday evening.

and when that is down the work of laying mains and laterals will follow in order. It is the hope of the authorities that within the next ninety days the city will be supplied with water from its own plant, which will give a big impetus to business of all kinds.

Excellent Plumbing in Old Roman Homes

SAALBURG, Feb. 23.—A Roman country squire's estate has been excavated here which throws an interesting light upon the luxury in which the wealthy Romans in the provinces lived.

The excavations comprise a luxurious country home with all comforts, including excellent plumbing arrangements and central heating plant, a bath house with hot and cold water, several well appointed barns and numerous utensils, urns and weapons.

NEW TEACHER ADDED TO GRAMMAR SCHOOL FACULTY

The continued increase in the enrollment of the school has made necessary the addition of a member to its faculty. The new teacher is Mrs. B. C. Wells of Lubbock. Mrs. Wells is a graduate of John Tarleton College and has since then studied in Howard Payne College and Texas Technological College. She has had three years' experience as a teacher in Central and North Texas, and comes to us well recommended.

TEXAS DECLARES WAR ON SNAKES

Sheep and goat ranchers of the western section of Texas have declared relentless war on rattlesnakes, which take a heavy annual toll of herds grazing on the plains. In efforts to control, if not to exterminate the dangerous reptiles, the ranchers seek out rocky caverns where the rattlers hibernate during the cold period and when such hiding places are located, sticks of dynamite are inserted in convenient crevices and the varmints are blown up. Any reptiles that escape the blasts are speedily dispatched with bullets from six-shooters, or killed with clubs or forks—a process easy of accomplishment because of the torpid state of snakes in cold seasons. Stock raisers report that an appreciable decrease in the rattler population has resulted from the warfare being waged—Hockley County Herald.

PRAIRIE DOG AND GROUND SQUIRREL POISON

A few weeks back the county agent with the assistance of the U. S. Biological Survey mixed a few hundred pounds of poison grain for the use of the farmers in this county in the control of prairie dogs and ground squirrels as well as other rodents they might have bothering them. From now on until spring comes is the ideal time to put out this poison for rodent control, and it should be put out by all means to get maximum results. This poison grain is available at the county agent's office, at the exact cost of the grain and poison which is about 6c per pound. Not much is needed for each grain of strychnine that it takes only two or three grains to affect a kill. Gopher control is also being taken up.

Governor Signs New Marriage License Law

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 23.—Governor Dan Moody this morning signed Senator Julien Hyer's marriage license publicity bill. It will become effective in 90 days from the end of the present session of the legislature. This will be between June 8 and 15, depending on the date of adjournment.

Push for the Gretna Greens is expected to make May for once outrank June as a bride's month.

Under the bill three days notice must be given before a marriage license can be issued. Before its issuance the man must present a hygienic certificate.

JUNIOR CLASS PLAY

"The Bride Breezes In." This little farce, to be presented Thursday night of this week by the Junior class, is a well-balanced play devoid of sex appeal, clean and amusing, full of charm and freshness, will give all who see it a period of rest and laughter. Miss Evelyn Kunnels of the high school faculty and sponsor of the Junior class is coaching it. Its characters are chosen from the ranks of the Junior class, and are matching the spirit of the play. The following compose the cast:

Gregg Neal.....Jack Lenderson
Mrs. Neal.....Nannie Lee
Alfred Cotrex (Al).....Doyle Terrell
Freddie Burke.....Marvin Thomas
Goldie Mandel (Peg).....
.....Ida Ruth Carruth
Lolly Gray.....Elsie Carpenter
Sam Cotrex.....Arthur Shuttlesworth

Price of Admission, 20c and 35c.

MRS. HUTTO HOSTESS TO BIBLE CLASS

The ladies of the Church of Christ met at the home of Mrs. J. A. Hutto for their weekly Bible study, with fourteen present.

Mrs. John Briscoe was back as leader, after illness of two weeks. Mrs. R. C. Iretton, a member of the class, is very ill at this time. This we regret very much and hope for her speedy recovery.

The class will meet at the home of Mrs. L. T. Hunt, Tuesday, March the 5th. Reporter.

German Makes Water Pure With Silver

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—A special dispatch from Munich to the Mittag Zeitung says Dr. Georg Krause, an engineer, has invented a process for purifying water by the introduction of specially treated silver. The dispatch says Prof. Rudolf Dekwitz, an authority on hygienics at Greifswald University, has certified Dr. Krause's results.

By injecting one and one-half grams of prepared silver it is stated that about 2,500,000,000 gallons of water can be disinfected. The process costs little and can be applied to any quantity of water. It also is described as functioning independent of temperature.

It is claimed the process lasts for years while others are short lived comparatively.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh Appointed To Pose in Government Aviation Dept.

"Eagle" Appointed Technical Adviser to the Aeronautics Branch of the Commerce Department. Accepts Post.

Washington, D. C.—Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh has been appointed technical adviser to the aeronautics branch of the Commerce Department.

Secretary Whiting, in announcing the appointment and Lindbergh's acceptance, said that the flier's entrance into the government service would not keep him permanently in Washington. Under the arrangement Lindbergh will be at the call of William P. McCracken, Jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, to give his advice and personal

ALL-DAY DAIRY SHORT COURSE LITTLEFIELD MARCH 1

During the day of March 1, at the theatre in Littlefield, an all-day short course will be in progress for the purpose of studying and discussing dairying, announces D. A. Adam, County Agent.

Men will be on hand to discuss feeding, the cow-testing situation, importance of pure bred and high producing animals for the farms of this county. This short course cannot be a success without the farmers of this county present, and everyone is urged to come, and bring someone with you in order to put this over.

Everyone interested in importing some pure bred animals to the farm this year is especially asked to be present, for work is going to be done to arrange for the first carload of pure bred animals to be shipped in, and it is hoped that a carload might be placed.

County agents from neighboring counties have been invited in to help discuss these subjects, as well as other specialists on the dairy subject.

Come! and do not forget the place—Theatre building, Littlefield, Texas, Friday, March 1, beginning about 9:30 in the morning and lasting throughout the day.

To Poultry Raisers:

The time is here when all who contemplate raising poultry this year should make careful preparations for securing just the right kind of chicks, and providing everything needed for their successful raising. Chicks should not only be of approved breeds, and approved strains of their particular breed, but they should be produced under conditions to guarantee the very best of their kind. Even a highly bred chick, produced under unfavorable conditions, is unsatisfactory and a disappointment to the grower. Producing conditions must be absolutely right in order to assure Cert-O-Culled chicks. Too many hatcheries seem to ignore this plain fact, with the result that their chicks are apt to prove a great disappointment to the purchaser.

These hatcheries are usually situated at a distance, and when their output is proven faulty, the purchaser has no recourse, but must grin and bear his disappointment.

But there is a hatchery located in Sudan, that is equipped to give satisfactory service. This plant is owned and operated by home people, men who are always here, are responsible in every particular, and who will stand squarely behind every statement they make. They will absolutely guarantee every chick sold to be just as represented. They will go further. They are always ready to advise as to the care of poultry, to suggest any improvement in caring for the flock, in preparing eggs for hatching, in the care of the young chicks—in fact, in any and all of the many problems that confront the poultry raiser.

Why go away from home to be disappointed? Patronize your home hatchery and be safe.

KENNEDY-MABEN

A wedding of much interest to a large circle of friends was consummated last Friday evening at the Methodist parsonage when Miss Loreta Mablen became the bride of Mr. Dwan Kennedy, Rev. C. R. Hooton performing the ceremony.

The bride is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Mablen, and with her parents has been a resident of Sudan for the past two years. She is popular among a large circle of friends, especially in the schools, where she has been a student since her advent in Sudan.

Mr. Kennedy has been in the employ of the "M" System store, and is an industrious young man, universally liked and respected for his upright conduct and painstaking application to business.

The young couple will make their home in Sudan.

Eastern States Under Snow Blanket; Heaviest Fall of Many Years in South

Heaviest Snowfall in Three Years in New York. Tennessee and the Carolinas Under Deep Blanket of White.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—From Canada to the Carolinas and westward in an almost unbroken blanket to the Mississippi, snow piled up today in the most widespread storm of the winter.

It was the worst storm in three years in New York City, and Manhattan's snowfall was far below that of many other places.

Ten counties in Pennsylvania reported 17 inches of snow when New York had 7; Nashville, Tenn., had 14 inches; Charleston, W. Va., had 12 and many other towns were near the one foot mark.

More than 15,000 shovelers worked all day to keep New York's streets open to their congested traffic and throughout the snowy band across the Eastern states the snow removal forces were marshalled in a great offensive against the drifts that threatened to paralyze transportation.

THE AMERICAN CREED

"I believe in the United States of America and the principles of freedom, justice, equality and humanity upon which it was founded and for which American Patriots have given their lives and fortunes.

"I believe it is my duty towards my country to love it; to support its constitution; to obey its laws; and to defend it against all enemies."

Any erroneous reflection upon the character or reputation of any person, company or corporation which may appear in these columns will be gladly corrected upon its being brought to the attention of the management.

"BOOST OR MOVE."

PRESIDENT HOOVER.

Herbert Hoover, thirty-first President of the United States, will take the oath of office at Washington next Monday, March 4. He succeeds Calvin Coolidge who has occupied the White House for five and a half years. The oath of office will be administered by Ex-President Taft who is now Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. Thus our only living ex-President has a part in the momentous event next week.

No stranger story has been unfolded by the political fates than that of the rise of Herbert Hoover to the presidency. But a short ten years ago nothing was farther from his thoughts than the possibility that he would be President in 1929. He has advised more presidents on more questions of public policy than any other man. He was a commanding figure in the administrations of Presidents Wilson, Harding and Coolidge. Under each administration he administered an important department. For the past eight years he has been Secretary of Commerce.

Mr. Hoover was born at West Branch, Iowa, August 10, 1874, descendant of a French colonist. His father was a blacksmith. He was an orphan at seven; an office boy at fourteen; and then a freshman working his way through college. He is shy, intensely sensitive, modest. But the world is coming to see that this great mining engineer and man of business is also warm and responsive.

From a boy, Herbert Hoover has been busy. His life has been built on work. He has made good on every job he has undertaken, and his jobs have been of increasing responsibility.

If Mr. Hoover continues to run true to form, we shall see an active, achieving administration while he is in the White House.

GREAT HOOK-UP MARCH 4.

The greatest radio hook-up in history is planned for the Hoover-Curtis inauguration ceremonies at Washington March 4. Description of the ceremonies will be carried all over the civilized world.

All of the 58 stations of the National Broadcasting Company and the 46 stations of the Columbia Broadcasting System will carry the event, this alone insuring the greatest hook-up in history of a single event. A most comprehensive and interesting word picture of this momentous event will be given radio listeners.

Chief Justice Taft will administer the oath of office to President-elect Hoover. The inaugural address will also go on the air.

So get your battery recharged and your radio in working order and tune in March 4 on Washington.

THE SKY PILOT.

The first flying mail was due in Panama at 4 o'clock on a certain afternoon and, therefore, right on the stroke of the hour Col. Lindbergh dropped from the skies on the chosen field and royally opened a new chapter in the realm of service and progress.

The prince of pilots had covered his 2200-mile schedule with absolute fidelity at every point, and it is up to the flying colonel's successors to follow his smoke to have a perfect functioning air mail. If we only had about a thousand Lindberghs we could do a lot of business on time.

DOESN'T CHOOSE TO TELL.

Gossip is busy with President Coolidge's future. What is he to do after March 4? Is he to become a college president? Is he to be appointed a justice of the Supreme Court? Is he to devote himself to the production of a book? All of these possibilities have been suggested. As a matter of fact, probably nobody knows what Mr. Coolidge is going to do after March 4 besides Mr. Coolidge himself. Perhaps he does not know. He will probably welcome a chance to rest, to be free of all cares. Ex-Presidents have gone into all lines of endeavor.

THE TALLEST BUILDING.

New Yorkers expect to put up a building 110 stories high. Naturally this would overlap all other structures reared to date or presently contemplated. Maybe they will have to use the rocket system to shoot up the elevators so that they will get back the same day. Seems that a structure more than 1,000 feet tall would be more of a monument than a beehive.

A DEVICE THAT IS NEEDED.

A device which automatically lowers crossing gates on the approach of a train is being demonstrated in Toronto. What is wanted more than this we think is a gadget that will automatically shove in the clutch and jam on the brakes.

THE YOUNG TURKS.

Henry Ford has secured a 25-year franchise or concession to permit the assembling of his cars in Turkey. The Turkish matrons are emerging from the harems, throwing away their veils and bowling pedestrians over with their Ferris. The new Turkey is something that can hardly be recognized in the light of the old.

EARLY DATE OF EASTER.

March 31 is the date of Easter Sunday this year the earliest in several years.

Easter Sunday cannot be earlier than March 22 or later than April 25. Easter Sunday fell on March 2 in 1818. This is the only time since 1891.

These snappy mornings, it is a little difficult to jump lightly to the floor where your trousers are moored, and walk sedately to the kindling pile, and return to the stove with a smile. There's something in this air that makes one hustle about.

These snappy mornings make one long for the beautiful sunlit bathing beaches which we see in the funnie syde. But then there is an objection to them for the reason that our physical architecture prohibits the wearing of a one-piece bathing suit.

It surely is irritating to have a wad of wrapping paper come whisking out from behind some store wrap itself about your leg, and, too, just as you go to enter your car enroute to a religious service.

She flicked the ash from her cigarette as she inquired: "What makes your jaws crack when you chew gum," and he answered, "It's the rebound baby."

With a man wrapping himself about home grown bacon and eggs and corn cakes, these snappy mornings, there is little to worry about.

All winters are open to criticism.

Soon be time to "spadeupthegarden."

How to Raise Poultry
By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S.
St. Louis, Mo.
Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Osborn Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Finest authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Food and her industries.

Layers or Liars?

Scientific Culling Out of Drones the Key to Real Poultry Profit, Says Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis, Mo.

"Chicken, is you layin' or is you lyin'?" exclaimed Hastus as his one-hen poultry flock burst forth into loud exclamations of alleged performance. That's an old joke, it's true, but it suggests with graphic good humor one of the basic principles of success in poultry raising. Any poultryman who persistently eliminates the liars from his flock will increase his profits from the flock to an almost unbelievable degree.

The value of a regular scientific culling out of drones from a poultry flock is vividly illustrated in the results of a survey conducted not long ago by the College of Agriculture of the University of Illinois and their farm advisors. The average profit on 264 flocks averaging 161 hens each was 86 cents per hen, but the average of the best two-thirds was $2.23 per hen. Of course, not all of the least productive one-third deserved to be eliminated, but there certainly must have been an astonishingly large number that were getting food and attention without giving an adequate return on what it cost to keep them. Culling out and marketing such hens can only result in a decreased expense account and a vastly increased average profit for each hen remaining.

There is nothing difficult or mysterious about culling, nothing a person of average intelligence could not learn in a short while. First of all, start with the chicks as soon as they are out of the shell. Any that are obviously deformed should be killed at once. Culling should be made a continuous process from that time on.

At least once a month the growing stock should be looked over and the undesirable removed from the flock. All thin, undersized, scrawny, "crow headed" birds should be discarded. Such pullets will eat their heads off, but will never develop into profitable layers so you are better off without them than with them. Further culling will be in order when the young birds reach laying age. Those that are backward in maturity should be discarded. Two hundred days is a fair age for a pullet of the heavy breeds or 150 to 165 days of the light breeds to start laying, but those taking much more than that are unlikely to develop into good layers.

For mature birds, the time of the molt is an important indication of laying habits, although other factors should also be considered. Generally speaking, hens that molt late in the fall are the best layers. The poor layer exhausts her energies early and may start molting anytime during June, July or August. The hen that is just beginning to molt late in August, early in September or later is usually the one to keep. All small undersized hens for the breed should be discarded. The eggs they lay are usually small, and they should never be used as breeders.

During the normal laying season, there are a number of points by which the laying capacity of hens may be judged more or less accurately. The eye of a good layer is set in an oval socket. The comb and wattles will be large, full, smooth, waxy to the touch and bright red in color. Poor layers will show exactly opposite characteristics in these respects.

The state of the vent is another important indication of laying condition. The laying hen has a large, moist, dilated vent. That of the non-layer is small, hard and puckered.

The back of the good layer will be long and broad all the way out. In the poor layer, it will be narrow near the tail. On either side of the vent may be felt the points of the pelvic, pubic, pin or lay bones. In the good layer these bones are thin, straight and flexible. In the poor layer they are curved, thick, with layers of fat and rigid. The measurement of these bones is taken at the terminal or extreme end and includes also the skin, fat and gristle over them. If the spread between the pelvic bones is two fingers or less, the hen is probably not laying. If it is two fingers or more, it generally indicates that she is laying.

To accommodate the extra food a good laying hen must eat and the expansion of the laying organs, the rear or the keel bone of the good layer will be a greater distance from the pelvic bones than it will be in the poor layer. This shows abdominal capacity, which is very important and measured by the number of fingers that can be placed between the keel bone and the pelvic bones. With smaller breeds like Leghorns, a spread of three or more fingers indicates laying condition. With larger breeds, the spread should be four fingers or more. Other things being equal, a long bodied fowl measuring three fingers, is equal to a short bodied fowl measuring four.

Absence of yellow color around the vent and a whitish or pinkish color of the skin indicates that the hen is laying. If we also find a bleached eye ring, white bleached legs and beak she has been laying for some time.

I have discussed in as great detail as space permits, some of the more important points by which to be guided in culling. (Further information will be gladly given to anyone writing to me in care of this newspaper.) Do not depend on any one factor in judging your hens, but form an opinion based on all considered together. Cull carefully, persistently and relentlessly, and before long you will have a flock of real dividend payers. It takes time and patience, to be sure, but the reward is well worthy of the effort.

Littlefield

(Lamb County Leader.)
Mrs. Dollie Wiseman, born September 11, 1850, died February 15, at the home of her daughter Mrs. J. R. Burns, four and one-half miles southwest of Littlefield. She was past 78 years of age at death, and was a native Texan having been born in Collin county.

There were about 250 people, including a number from Littlefield, who attended the sing song held at Fieldton last Sunday afternoon.

H. L. Snow, age 63, died Sunday night. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at the Baptist church, Rev. Roy Kemp officiating.

The following teachers attended the Lamb County Teachers' Association meeting held at Olton last Saturday: Supt. B. M. Harrison, Prin. J. E. Chisholm, Coach John R. Tucker, Misses Helen Moore, Louise Thaxton, Thelma and Lucille Killough, Audie Terrell, Ruth Matthews, Polly Porter, and Mrs. Stanley Lambert.

Mrs. Trowell entertained the ladies of the Auxiliary at the home of Mrs. T. P. Wright, Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. W. G. Street, as vice-president, presided in the absence of Mrs. E. A. Bills.

Sheriff Lon Irvin and son, Driskill, made a trip to Wichita Falls last week to place Mrs. Fred Anderson in a state institution.

The Missionary Society of the Methodist church met Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. C. Thaxton.

Rev. and Mrs. H. C. Anderson and children left Littlefield Monday morning for Richland Springs, where

Mr. Anderson will be pastor of the Baptist church.

Amherst

(Amherst Argus.)
The Junior B. Y. P. U. met last Sunday and organized with the following officers: Jerry Jean Pennington, president; Jonnie Mae Hunter, vice-president; Leola Johnson, secretary and treasurer; Elizabeth Earl Luce, group captain 1; W. H. Barry, group captain 2.

Rev. Mat Harder and wife of Sudan were visitors in the home of Rev. Hembree the past week end.

A deal was consummated Wednesday whereby E. B. Luce and C. A. Duce became the owners of the J. S. Laine farm a few miles north of town. Mr. Laine acquired the Luce building on the east side of Main street in the deal.

Miss Morean Williamson became the bride of Mr. Lloyd Davenport at Olton on Saturday, Feb. 16, at high noon. Rev. Calloway, Methodist pastor of Olton officiated with the ceremony.

Injuries received in a fight at a dance between Sudan and Amherst, Saturday night, proved fatal to a young man by the name of McDuff, reported to have resided at Sudan.

In the contest put on by C. M. Williams for a name for his newly acquired service station, Mrs. E. D. Parker, of Amherst, won the first prize of $5.00 with the name "Short Stop Station."

Last Friday at the regular time the Yellow Jackets met in the auditorium for their program. The program was well balanced and interesting to everyone.

Levelland

(Hockley County Herald.)

A. H. Gadberr, who resides a few miles south of town, last year grew two fine crops of Irish potatoes from the same plot of ground.

Miss Jeannette Miller, whose forthcoming marriage to T. W. Mendor of Post was recently announced, was tendered a shower by the Civic Club Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Elmer Birdwell in the west part of the city.

Building materials are being placed on the site of the ice factory, and actual construction is scheduled to begin within a very short time.

Mrs. Lewis, Misses May, Nugent and Starnes were hostesses at a tea and reception given Mrs. Edgar Brasch, who came here only a few days previous as a bride from Quanah.

Levelland schools were victorious in the County Basketball Tournament held on the local court here Friday and Saturday of last week. Practically all of the schools of the county were in attendance and took part in the event.

Mary Ada, the little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Lusk, was carried to Lubbock Sanitarium Saturday afternoon suffering from a relapse of the measles.

Mrs. J. W. Walls died at the Lubbock Sanitarium to which place she had been carried Sunday suffering from pneumonia, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

METHODIST NOTES

The pastor of the Methodist church, Rev. C. R. Hooton, will be back in the pulpit here both Sunday morning and evening. At the morning service the sermon subject will be "The Power of the Cross," after which the Sacrament of the Lord's supper will be administered. There should be 100 per cent of the membership of the Methodist church present at this beautiful service.

At the evening hour the pastor will bring an evangelistic message of immediate concern to the entire community. These are testing times with us. Our evening services are growing in interest. In fact, many say that the night service is more interesting and helpful even than the morning, for the reason that there is less formality of worship. Come out and enjoy the great congregational singing, the playing of the orchestra, and the old-time gospel message the pastor seeks to bring at each of these services.

The Workers' Council of the Sunday school has fixed the third Sunday in March as Decision Day. Every officer and teacher of the school is trying this month to cooperate with parents in prayer and personal effort to the end that our boys and girls, men and women may have an urgent opportunity this month to accept Christ. Following this service on Decision Day, the pastor will instruct the class of 40 or 50 that are expected to decide for Christ in what it means to become a member of the church. However, making the decision will not require joining the church. But we hope all who take this most important step in life will come into the class and learn what our privileges and duties are in regard to church membership.

Come to Sunday school Sunday morning promptly at 10:00 o'clock, and find your class. Meet your friends and study God's word with them in one of our fine classes.

The Junior Board of the church will meet in regular session at the parsonage Monday night at 7:30.

The Epworth Hi-League will meet with a good program Sunday night at 6:45. Sunday night preaching at 7:45 o'clock. Come and worship with us.

SCHOOL TRACK MEET MARCH 8

Due to custom in Texas today, Sudan High School is a member of the University Interscholastic League, the largest organization of its kind in the United States. To help in the elimination for this meet and to give all a chance to view our prospects for it, a preliminary school meet will be offered in the Sudan school March 8. This meet will begin promptly at one o'clock and will run through the afternoon, for the one time only. The different classes of the schools will compete against each other in an attempt to gain class honors. The three winners of the different events will represent the school at Olton, March 22 and 23.

Over a Billion Deadly Germs in a Single Drop of Water

Germs are so small that there may be as many as one billion, seven hundred million of them in a drop of water. And just a few of these tiny germs, if they get into your blood through a cut in your skin, may make you so sick you will be in bed for weeks—may cause the loss of a limb through blood poisoning—may even infect you with that most dreadful and fatal of diseases, lockjaw.

Just because you can see no dirt in a cut does not mean that it is clean. You cannot see germs. The only safe and sane thing to do, is to thoroughly wash every cut, no matter how small, with Liquid Borozone, to kill the germs, and then dust it with Borozone Powder, to hasten the healing. Liquid Borozone costs 30 cents, 60 cents, $1.20 and $1.50; Borozone Powder, 30 cents and 60 cents, and can be had at E. G. Ranby Drug Store

SAFETY and TRACTION on the New GOODYEAR TIRES

You don't pay much attention to tires until you have trouble with them. But did you ever stop to think how important it is to have your car equipped with tires that will grip the road and STOP when you apply the brakes, and grip the road and START when you apply the gas?

The new Goodyear will do both these things better than any tire we know of.

A simple way to demonstrate this is to place the palm of your hand, flat on top of the tread of the new Goodyear and press down firmly. You'll feel the tread grip and PINCH the flesh of your hand. It grips, and actually pinches, the road in the same way.

Come in and try this yourself whether you need tires now or not. We want to explain this and the other reasons why the new Goodyear is called The World's Greatest Tire.

WELLINGTON.—A good road be-tween Wellington and Memphis will be secured if the steering committee working on the route is successful at its next meeting. State and fed-eral designations are in sight for a route to run from Turkey through Memphis and Wellington and on to Oklahoma City and St. Louis.

UVALDE.—What is believed des-ined to become the largest improv-ed pecan grove in the United States was assured here when it was an-ounced that J. H. Rhodes of San Antonio and his associates had pur-chased the Lane Taylor ranch of 5,000 acres, seven miles south of this city, in the Leona river valley. One thousand acres will be planted in pecans this year, work to start immediately, and an additional 1,500 acres will be planted within the next year.

PORT WORTH.—Approximately 400 woolled fat lambs paid a return visit to Port Worth stockyards after having been fitted for the market in the Plains country. They were bought on the local market as feed-ers last July along with their moth-ers—a ewe and lamb costing $12. The lambs sold Wednesday for $15.45 per 100, which was the top for the day, and averaged 83 pounds. They brought a total of $12.88 or 88 cents more than the original cost of a ewe and a lamb. C. G. Goodman of Plainview was the owner of the lambs.

FARWELL.—A. L. Tandy, promi-nent farmer east of town, was ap-pointed as county commissioner Mon-ay to fill out the unexpired term of C. E. Christian, who died January 31st. Mr. Tandy assumed his offi-cial duties immediately.

ARLINGTON.—J. E. Arnold, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Arnold of this city, who enlisted in the Marine Corps Jan. 4, an dis now at San Diego, Cal. writes home sending the following range record: He made "expert" with the pistol, 309 out of a possible 350; on the .32-caliber range he broke the range record of 340 by two points, with a 342 out of a possible 350.

FARWELL.—During the next few weeks two Farmer county school dis-tricts will vote on bond issues for the purpose of erecting new school buildings in their respective districts.

BRYAN.—Contracts amounting to $171,056 will be awarded by the Bry-an city commission for the construc-tion and equipment of the new munici-pal building, the Travis Elementary School and an addition to the Howie Elementary School. Construction is expected to start soon.

FARWELL.—The county commis-sioners in session Tuesday applied the knife to the salaries of the fol-lowing county officials: county judge, county clerk, and county treas-urer. The salary reductions were slight with the exception of the judge's pay check, which was shaved $25 per month.

BROWNSVILLE.—Date of the opening and inauguration of an in-ternational air mail line at Brownsville has been postponed from Feb. 23-24 to March 9-10. Amelia Earhart, first woman to cross the At-lantic ocean in an airplane, will be in Brownsville both days of the cel-ebration, according to plans announ-ced by the committee.

PORT WORTH.—When Billy Stewart acted as bartender while his friend went to get a shave, he did not think about prohibition agents paying an unexpected visit, he told Judge Wilson in Federal District Court as he faced an indictment that charged prohibition law violation. He admitted he knew there was beer in the icebox. "Five hundred dol-lars fine," said Judge Wilson.

SAN ANTONIO.—Domingo Rios, 35, escaped serious injury when he was run over and dragged 50 feet by a Missouri Pacific freight train. Rios' automobile was struck at a street crossing and ground to bits under the cars. Trainmen worked 30 minutes before they extricated Rios from the wreck. He suffered only minor bruises.

CANYON.—Flashing championship form, the West Texas State Teachers' College Buffalos overwhelmed the Matadors of Texas Tech by a score of 48 to 26.

Menard.—Herman Sydow, 35, oil field worker, is dead as a result of preparations he made for a brief rest. Sydow stopped beneath a pecan tree and lighted a fire to keep warm. Apparently the warmth of the fire and his exhausted condition caused him to fall asleep. The fire evidently burned its way to the pecan tree and ignited it. The flames ate their way into the dry tree until it crashed to the ground, crushing Sydow beneath it. He was dead when the accident was discovered.

WASHINGTON.—Senator Morris Sheppard of Texas is to become the democratic whip of the senate, suc-ceeding Senator Peter G. Gerry of Rhode Island, who retires from the senate March 4.

SNYDER.—Work on Snyder's new 200-acre airport will start as soon as the weather clears up. A water line is being laid to the property line.

AUSTIN.—Revenue from grazing leases on University of Texas land amounted to $260,612.09 in 1927-1928, according to the twenty-third annual report of the University Board of Regents to Governor Dan Moody. The cost of handling has been in recent years about 1 per-cent of the receipts.

PLAINVIEW.—Fred Madison, manager of the Mistletoe Creameries of Plainview, was elected president of the Central Plains council, Boy Scouts of America at the annual meeting of that organization held here last week.

SANTA FE, N. M.—The tri-state compact between New Mexico, Colo-rado and Texas for allocation of the waters of the Rio Grande was signed here by Delph E. Carpenter for Colo-rado, Francis C. Wilson for New Mexico and T. W. McGregor for Texas.

AUSTIN.—"Not guilty" was the verdict reached Thursday afternoon as to the charges against the High-way Commission, and the joint legis-lative committee will so report to both houses. And the report will carry a clean bill of health and ex-oneration. The same bill of health will be given in behalf of the Board of Control.

PAMPA.—Alex Schneider, 75, pio-neer hotel man and organizer of the first Panhandle bank at Mobeetie in 1887, died here Thursday last after a long illness. He was part owner of the Schneider hotel here.

AUSTIN.—Appointment of a re-ciever and recovery of $224,000, claimed due in taxes and penalties, is asked in a suit against the Primitex Refining Company of Dallas, filed on behalf of the state of Texas in the Travis County District Court Satur-day. The action was brought by T. M. Tilley, assistant Attorney General, at the instance and request of S. H. Terrell, Comptroller.

RULE.—Two small children of Ernest Lott were Friday overcome by gas fumes while riding in the back seat of their father's car. They com-plaind of having a headache, but the father thought nothing of it. Upon reaching his destination Lott found both unconscious.

TERRELL.—Rev. W. Harrison Bak-er has presented the local Masonic Lodge with a gavel made of stone from Solomon's quarry, which is lo-cated beneath the city of Jerusalem. The gavel is inscribed with the Ma-sonic emblem. The handle is made of olive wood from the Mount of Olives. It is to be enclosed in a glass case with a suitable inscription as to its origin.

MEMPHIS.—Thirteen petitions bearing the names of 558 voters of Hall county, were mailed to Gov. Dan Moody Friday by the president of the Hall County Ministerial Asso-ciation. The petitions pray the gov-ernor for the removal of District At-torney James C. Mahan, of the 106th judicial district, on the grounds that his conduct has been immoral.

SEAGRAVES.—An expensive mon-ument was taken from the grave of Miss Sue Elder in Seagraves cemetery last night. The monument had been there for about seven years.

WASHINGTON.—The United States' foreign trade with Latin-America is proving a boon to the southwestern states, through which nearly all of it is handled, the com-merce department said following a de-tailed study of this country's com-merce with the southern continen't. Five cities—San Antonio, El Paso, Galveston, New Orleans and Port Ar-thur—handle the great bulk of Amer-ica's commerce with Mexico and South America, the department found.

GREENVILLE.—Rewards totaling $2,750 were offered here for infor-mation leading to the conviction of the slayer or slayers of Glen A. Cou-son, prominent Greenville capitalist, shot to death in his hotel apart-ment here February 15.

NEW LAW PROVIDES BIRD SANCTUARIES

WASHINGTON.—One or more bird sanctuaries in every state and in Alaska will be established under the provisions of the Norbeck migratory bird bill signed last week by Presi-dent Coolidge. Not only will migra-tory and game birds be protected but all wild life is to live unmolested in the sanctuaries. The program for establishment of the refuges is ex-pected to be completed within 10 years.

The bill has been sponsored by Senator Norbeck of South Dakota, and Representative Andreson of Minnesota aided in shaping the measure.

CUTTING Lubricating Costs

Our volume of sales on Conoco Amalie Oils is growing larger each month, and there is a reason for this growth.

Our customers are buying these oils time after time and they are telling their neighbors about the lubricating satisfaction they are getting.

In this way the news is spreading that the CONTINENTAL OIL COMPANY is the one to go to for cheaper lubricating values.

Tests are proving that tractor owners are getting more hours of running on Conoco Amalie Oils, and are holding up a better pressure on their indicators than with any oil they have ever used.

Car owners are finding their oil looks better and has a better body when drained from their car after a THOUSAND MILES OF RUNNING than other oils they had used after five hundred miles of running.

The proof is there before their eyes that by using Conoco Amalie Oils they are CUTTING THEIR LUBRICATING COSTS.

By this time Mr. Paul's auto had come up. Mr. Paul jumped out of the car and came up on the porch. He nodded in response to the newspaper men's greetings and then turned to me and Josephine and said, "Good morning." Then he turned back to the newspaper men. "I hope I'm not interrupting you gentlemen," he said. "Oh, no, not at all," chorused two of them. "We were just going when Miss Dinsmore suggested that we wait and ask you to tell us where Mr. Dinsmore is."

Mr. Paul shook his head. "I haven't heard anything from him," he declared. "I came out here to see whether Miss Dinsmore had heard anything."

"His properties will suffer badly in the stock market today if he doesn't turn up to support them, won't they?" asked one of the reporters.

"I don't know, I don't know," responded Mr. Paul. "Of course we'll miss assistance, but we'll try to protect his holdings for him. Still, of course, the situation is serious. You know that it wouldn't do any good to me to deny it."

"It is rumored that the X Y Z has already gained control of Mr.

Nothing to say," replied Mr. Paul. "I can't deny all the fool stories you young men invent."

Dinsmore's railroad. Is that so, Mr. Paul?"

Mr. Paul shook his head. "If it is don't know it," he replied.

"The Gazette says there was a reachery among Mr. Dinsmore's supporters," suggested another reporter, and that some one in his confidence knew how down. How about that?" "Nothing to say," replied Mr. Paul. "I can't deny all the fool stories you young men invent."

"How do you explain the large sales of X Y Z stock yesterday?" demanded another reporter.

Mr. Paul seemed a little startled. "I hadn't noticed that there were any large sales of X Y Z," he said. "I don't think there were, though I must admit that I've been more interested in watching our own road than in bothering about the X Y Z. I don't suppose the sales can be of much consequence. Now, gentlemen—" He paused.

This time the reporters took the hint and turned away. When they were out of earshot Mr. Paul turned to me and Josephine.

"Is that story in the Gazette this morning substantially correct?" he inquired.

I nodded. "Yes, it's about right," I said. "Except that neither Josephine or I are quite the noble self-sacrificing and altogether fair damsels that Fred made us out to be."

"And you haven't seen your father?"

I shook my head. "No, I haven't seen him, but I have—"

Josephine trod on my foot again.

This time I didn't show any emotion. I had gathered that Josephine did not want me to tell the newspaper men that I had heard Father's voice on the telephone, and now I grasped the fact that she didn't want me to tell Mr. Paul, either. I couldn't understand why she didn't want him to know, but I knew that Josephine never acted without pretty good reason, and she acted at all. So I turned the subject quickly. "We haven't seen any one; and we haven't seen anybody who could tell us about him," I said.

"In fact we haven't seen anybody but Fred James, and he just said that he was sure Father would win out."

"Humph!" Mr. Paul grunted. Then he looked at his watch. "I've got to hurry back to town for the opening of the market," he said. "In all probability it today will show considerable perturbation, and I want to be in reach of it. If you hear anything of your father's whereabouts be sure to telephone me at once. Don't forget. This is extremely important. It may affect your father's entire fortune." He pulled out a card. "My telephone number is on this card," he added. "Don't fail to call me."

I took the card he offered. "I won't forget," I said.

Mr. Paul got into his car and started toward the break in the wall. As I stood watching him idly; I saw a woman coming along the road toward him and, of course, toward the house. She was a long way off, but I recognized her at once as Miss Labert. I couldn't mistake that prancing walk of hers. Mr. Paul seemed to recognize her, too, for he stopped the car suddenly, though so far as I could see she had not even noticed him. Of course I could not hear what they said and I could not see Mr. Paul, for the car concealed him, but I could see Miss Labert and I watched her with much interest.

The conversation was short. Miss Labert listened for a moment; then she tossed her head and came on toward the house Mr. Paul's auto stood still for a while and I could imagine him staring after her. Then he went on.

Then I heard a sort of rumbling beside me and looked around and saw Perkins glaring toward Miss Labert, thrusting his head in and out and cursing beneath his breath. I couldn't understand a word he said, but I knew it was cuss words. It couldn't have been anything else.

This gave me something to think about. I suddenly remembered that August day long before when Perkins had glared after Mr. Paul; and I remembered how he had dived between the plants in the ballroom after Miss Labert only the night before. Now he was glaring at both of them. A dim suspicion began to shape itself in my mind.

Miss Labert was Perkins' lost wife and Mr. Paul had been the villain who had enticed her away! I was perfectly certain of it.

Miss Labert was still some distance away. I glanced toward her and then turned to Mrs. James, intending to tell her of my discovery.

But she beat me to it. "Was that Mr. Paul?" she asked. She seemed a little disturbed.

I nodded. "Why, yes," I said. "Do you know him?"

"He called on me a week or two ago about a thousand shares of stock I owned in the A-B-C railroad. He said that your father wanted to buy them. I refused to sell, and then he asked for my proxy for use at a meeting that he said was about to be held."

A dim recollection of the conversation between Father and Mr. Paul came into my mind. "Yes," I nodded. "That must have been the thousand shares that father asked Mr. Paul to trace. I think he said some one had taken them West a good many years ago and that unless he got them he would lose control of the road."

Mrs. James looked doubtful. "Mr. Paul didn't tell me that it was so necessary as all that," she said. "But these may be the shares for I did get them from the West. I inherited them from an uncle who died in San Francisco two or three years ago. I gave Mr. Paul the proxy."

"Thank you ever so much," I said. "I'm beginning to recollect pretty well now, and I know Father wanted the shares pretty badly. He said that with that thousand shares he would be all right and without them he would be all wrong. It was awfully good of you. But"—I glanced toward Miss Labert, who was now very near—"but there's something I want to tell—"

Mrs. James interrupted; you know how women do interrupt. "I was glad to do it," she said. "I've always been satisfied with your father's management of the road. From what Fred told me last night I gathered that some one was trying to take it away from him, and I was glad to help him retain it. I wanted to ask Mr. Paul about it. From your father's having disappeared I was afraid that there might have been some mistake."

"No, there wasn't any mistake," I said. "Father told Mr. Paul to get the shares for him and if he did so it's all right. But I want to—" I broke off. It was too late to tell my suspicions, for Miss Labert was almost upon us.

So perforce I turned to greet her. Mrs. James and Josephine had fallen a little back and I decided not to introduce them. I didn't think she was a proper person for Josephine to know—or me either, for that matter. Still in the interest of—er—in Father's interests, I would risk her. "Good morning," I said.

Miss Labert returned my greeting cheerfully. "Ain't it the truth," she said; "it sure is one good morning. I reckon these October days are about the flossiest in the year. How's Mayo today?"

Mayo indeed! Almost I flashed out at her. How dared she—how dared Perkins' wife, even if she hadn't disgraced herself—how dared she call Mr. Braxton by his given name? I shook all over for a minute; then I quieted down. I couldn't be jealous of a creature like her. And, besides, she was a lot older than I was.

"Mr. Braxton has gone," I answered, sweetly.

"Gone! Good Heavens!—Where?" The woman's consternation was evident.

"I don't know," I answered, still sweetly. "He went away very early. The doctor took him, I believe. He did not wake us to say good-by. He left a note for us."

Miss Labert's face cleared. "Say, that was a real rotten thing to do," she exclaimed, with conviction. "I didn't think it of Mayo. He's always been real gentlemanly. However, if the doctor's got him it's all right. So long," she nodded and turned away. Then abruptly she glanced back and burst out. "Don't you worry, kiddo," she said. "He'll come back all right. Take it from me!"

She turned away again and this time she did not look back.

It was just as well, for I was completely flabbergasted. Great Scott! Did I betray myself so plainly as all that? Very nearly I fainted with mortification.

Mrs. James' voice brought me back to earth. "Who is that remarkable person?" she asked, as she and Josephine came forward.

Instantly Perkins flashed into my memory. "Who is she?" I echoed. "Who is she? She calls herself Miss Labert, but that isn't her name. She's Perkins' runaway wife and she eloped with Mr. Paul."

If I had wanted to create a sensation I had succeeded beautifully. Josephine gasped and for once broke out in speech.

"Edie!" she cried, in horror-stricken tones. "Are you sure? How did you find out? Does Perkins know?"

I was about to tell the whole tale when Mrs. James interrupted. "You're wrong, Edith," she said, positively. "I knew Mary Perkins well, and she isn't half the size of Miss Labert, and she doesn't look a bit like her."

CHAPTER X

The long afternoon and evening wore away and night came at last. I was delighted to see it come, for I hoped it would bring something to pass that would wipe out the memory of my ridiculous blunder in regard to Perkins and Miss Labert.

Luckily the day was exciting enough to prevent my brooding over my blunder. Something was happening all the time. It was happening in town and not at Dinsmore, but the news was penetrating to us and keeping us on the anxious bench.

Wall Street, for instance, was hopping. I don't know much about stocks and bonds and things and I don't care to learn. But I do know that fortunes change hands when Wall Street hops. And fortunes were changing hands on that particular day, all right. About two o'clock a second batch of newspaper men (reporters for the next day's morning papers) came out, and they were all full of the fight. They said that Father's interests were being slaughtered and that by night he wouldn't have any interests left. They refused to believe that he would have given in and let himself be ruined this way if he were in town; and they insisted that he must really be the man on the steam-er. They were so positive about it that I began to wonder whether I had been mistaken in thinking I had recognized Father's voice on the telephone. Any way, from all accounts it seemed that Father was ruined. Which was a very pleasant state of affairs—not.

Late in the afternoon the papers came out; and for the first time I got a dim idea of what had been happening.

An Unpleasant Subject

All of the functions of life are not pleasant to consider. Perhaps this is why some mothers refuse to think that such symptoms as restless sleep, loss of flesh, lack of appetite or itching nose and fingers in their children, can be caused by round or pin worms. Many mothers have proven, however, that a few doses of White's Cream Vermifuge, that sure and harmless worm expellant, will make these symptoms disappear. You can get White's Cream Vermifuge for 35 cents per bottle from H. G. Ranby Drug Store.

Interesting Letter

Graphic description of the Battle of San Jacinto is given in a letter written in 1836 by J. W. Hassell, Texas patriot, to his father. Photostat copies of the letter have been secured for the University of Texas Library. Mrs. H. J. O'Hair of Coleman, relative of Hassell and a member of the Board of Regents of the university, submitted the letter for photostating.

Hassell was rewarded with 640 acres of land by the Republic of Texas for his heroic part in the war for Texas independence. Following is Hassell's account of the decisive battle of San Jacinto.

"On the twenty-first of April, 'hey (the Mexicans) received a reinforcement which augmented their number to about 1,500 strong. Our number was about 800. We were encamped within half a mile of each other in plain view. Our officers determined to give them a battle at four o'clock in the evening. Accordingly, at the above stated time the drum beat a general parade which was cheering to every man. We then marched up with 762 men and formed a line of battle within 200 yards of the enemy, where they stood in good order to receive us. We then marched up within good rifle shot, our men and officers elegant and cool and as brave as lions. Firing then commenced from both sides. Our colonel then ordered 'Yankee Doodle' played and beat in double quick time and we were commanded to charge, and it appeared to me that we were among them in an instant and it would have done your heart good to have seen them fall. Our cannons, our muskets and our rifles and pistols played, it seemed to me, the most delightful tune that ever I heard since the world commenced. I had a first rate rifle and about this time I was using her, sir, with all my might. She run about 49 to the pound and shot first rate. I took notice to some of the big yellow bulles. When Betsy would bore a hole in them, the blood would rush out as large as a cornstalk. One big fellow, I remember, I shot in the neck, and it appeared to me that it had nearly cut his head off. It seemed to do me more good at that time to see them shot or a bayonet run through them than anything that I have ever yet seen—and it appeared to be the prevailing sentiment. When we got so near them as to shake hands with them, they could not bear that. They appeared rather bashful at such a meeting as that and turned their backs upon us. They beat their way off. About that time we were slaying them like cornstalks. This was an open field fight.

"We gained complete victory over them in about sixteen minutes. We took about 700 prisoners, a large number of whom were wounded. A large number of the wounds proved mortal. We took all the officers except one lieutenant-colonel and one captain, who made their escape. We have Santa Anna now a prisoner with three other of his generals, with officers to the number of about 30. There were many officers killed. We had six men killed and two died from their wounds; we had about 25 wounded. The people are determined to kill Santa Anna and, I expect, with all his principal officers. I told you the Mexicans marched in three divisions. We defeated Santa Anna's division in an armistice was entered into. The Mexican army then marched away to Matamoros, and our wise men are trying to make a treaty with Santa Anna. They effected it as they thought, and put him on board a vessel to send him. But the people would not stand it. They brought him back.

"We got the news on the nineteenth instant that the same army was retracing their steps back to Texas and swearing to exterminate every American to the Sabine River or never see Mexico again. Their number is ten thousand. The people are ordered to turn out in mass and repair to the seat of war with all possible haste."

Due to the time at which it was written, the letter ended without giving the subsequent results from the battle.

Prepare for Lean Years

Egypt had plenty for seven straight years,
Then seven so lean they might have brought tears;
But Joseph had vision; he said to the king,
"Your dream says plainly: save, is the thing."
So the king said "Save," and Egypt got by;
And you can do likewise if you will try.
The world still runs in cycles today,
And we should prepare the very same way.
