THE AMERICAN CREED

"I believe in the United States of America and the principles of freedom, justice, equality and humanity upon which it was founded and for which American Patriots have given their lives and fortunes.
 "I believe it is my duty towards my country to love it; to support its constitution; to obey its laws; and to defend it against all enemies."

Any erroneous reflection upon the character or reputation of any person, company or corporation which may appear in these columns will be gladly corrected upon its being brought to the attention of the management.

"BOOST OR MOVE."

NOW'S THE TIME.

Now is the time for the merchants of Sudan to go after business aggressively for fall and winter. Don't wait for it to come to you. Start now to create new business from over this community—to stimulate the buying mood among old customers—to create good will—to step out in front of competition, and to spread optimism. Local merchants can spread their message to the greater number of homes in this community through the columns of The Sudan News. A new jewelry store was opened in Kansas City recently and it will be a big success. The owners of the store are heavy, consistent, persistent advertisers. The opening of the new store was announced by starting off with four full pages of advertising in the leading newspaper. No business can live by itself and prosper. Advertise!

WHY DEMAND PROOF OF THE OBVIOUS?

Senator Howell of Nebraska suggested that President Hoover clear Washington City of bootleggers. The president retorted by demanding that the senator produce evidence that Washington City was infested with the bootleggers. Will Rogers suggests that here is rich picking for the truckmen if the senator will have the empty bottles gathered up and carted to the White House.

But seriously, why demand proof of the obvious? Surely Washington is no different from other cities in the United States. Can the president point to a single one of them that is free from the gentry?

But at that, the senator was speaking out of turn. Why make an exception of Washington?

HOIST BY THEIR OWN PETARD

At a special session of the commissioners' court at Olton last Monday, a rather peculiar incident arose which finally placed the new Home Demonstration Agent and removing County Agent D. A. Adam, to Olton.

For some time it had been rumored that Littlefield was seeking to locate both agents within her portals, and of course Amherst was contending that they remain in Amherst, thereby benefiting a majority of the farmer population of the county the most.

Finally a vote by the commissioners' court revealed two commissioners voted for Littlefield, two for Amherst, and with County Judge Simon D. Hay holding the upper hand of the situation. Judge Hay would neither vote for Littlefield nor Amherst. District County Agent Evans of College Station, then came forward with the statement that when the commissioners' court failed to agree on placing the agents, then the College located them at the county seat. Judge Hay should have voted either for Littlefield or Amherst. Now, when the people on the south side wish to see the county agent, they must go from 30 to 40 miles, necessitating a great deal of added expense.—Amherst Argus.

The Sudan News has not asked Judge Hay's reasons for refusing to vote on the matter. However, he would have been thoroughly justified in his course had he based it on the action of Amherst and the Argus in the recent county seat election. Naturally, when the electorate decided that the county seat remain at Olton, nobody could blame the County Judge had he even insisted that the county officers reside at the county seat. Had Amherst and the Argus recognized the situation as it actually existed, Olton would have been eliminated from the present contest, and Judge Hay probably would have voted for "either Littlefield or Amherst." His failure to do which the Argus so sorrowfully deploras. Verily do our actions return to plague us.

EFFECT OF THE MACHINE.

One of the new harvester combines used this season cut a swath of 34 feet and turned 100 acres of standing grain into 3000 bushels of wheat in one day. This is a good illustration of one reason for the unemployment problem. The combine is a labor saving machine, but with all the labor saving machinery in the world people are becoming a charge upon the country because there is not the work for them to do. Obviously, the moral is not to smash the labor saving machine, but to evolve a better distribution of work and of the wealth produced by these machines.

THE SCHOOLS.

"Judge every city by its schools" says Arthur Brisbane, world's most widely read and highly paid newspaper writer. Sudan can well be proud of its splendid schools. Indications point to another successful school year. The public schools are the foundation stones of our country. All the children should be in school and taught and trained and graduated. Every one in the community should support our schools and help to make them as strong, sound and efficient as possible. Dollars are not the only reward for the three r's.

The best way to meet a bad condition is to meet it face to face in the middle of the road.

Smile more and growl less.

REDFATH CHAUTAUQUA TRAVELS IN CHEVROLETS

For the first time in its 16 years existence Redpath Chautauqu is employing passenger cars to transport the members of its deluxe circuit. Buses and trains have been used in the past, but the comfort that the passenger car alone affords accounted for its ultimate selection.

The cars are Chevrolet six-cylinder sedans and the task to which they are placed in transporting "bag and baggage" the 40 members of the company is indeed a formidable one. The itinerary of the group trails jaggedly from Florida to northern Wisconsin. The jaunt started April 1 and will not conclude until September at which time approximately 7,000 miles will have been traversed.

Unless one has traveled with a Chautauqua troupe it is almost impossible to realize the rigors entailed by travel of this sort. In the first place, the troupers are in the strictest sense not troupers at all. They are persons who because of an outstanding reputation are drafted to traverse the smaller cities, many experiencing the use of the road for the first time.

Among the celebrities who are traveling by Chevrolet this year over the deluxe circuit are Mrs. Nellie Taloe Ross, former governor of Wyoming, Anne Campbell, the celebrated newspaper post, and Captain Dennis Cook, former British army ace and holder of the world's record for the longest solo flight, a trip from London to India, a distance of 7000 miles.

For four months now the Redpath troupers have been making one night stands and then hopping on to the next stopping place. The Chevrolets have never failed to get their occupants to their destination at the appointed time. Already more than 100 towns in a dozen states have been visited. When the tour ends 140 towns will have been visited.

Redpath is perhaps the best known Chautauqua in the country. About five years ago it gave up almost altogether the custom of traveling by train. Awakening at early hours to catch trains resulted in jaded nerves and sometimes in missed engagements. Later, until this year, large buses have been used with an occasional passenger car here and there.

Not only do the Redpath Chevrolets transport the troupers but they also serve as baggage cars. A departure shortly before noon allows ample chance for rest. Then the smooth running Chevrolet sixes click off a hundred miles in three hours. There is none of the hurry or bustle that characterized these jumps when they were made by train.

Don't Launder Eggs for Market

Old Mother Jones was a character of the type once common enough, but now almost extinct—a genuine "befo' the wah" reactionary to whom all new fangled ideas were works of the devil designed solely to corrupt God's children on earth. She eked out a slender existence with all sorts of odd jobs but derived her principal income from a flock of non-descript fowls that certainly did lay eggs whatever else might be said of them.

So long as the old order persisted in Northville, she got along famously. Then the antiquated general store gave place to a shiny spic and span chain store, the old barter and trade system became a thing of the past, and a "creamery" of the new era became her outlet for the chief product of her little establishment.

Imagine, if you can, her dismay when the white-aproned young man behind the counter appraised her first offering of eggs at several cents below the current market price. The impertinent young pup actually had the temerity to suggest that if her eggs were not soiled they would command as good prices as anyone else's.

After much vain argument and no little show of resentment, she finally accepted the proffered sun and departed sincerely convinced that there was some sort of vile plot in operation against her. A few days later she returned with another batch of eggs. This time all were as immaculately clean as a schoolboy's face the first time he goes out with a girl—and quite as obviously scrubbed. She gave the basket a vindictive shove across the counter. "There, young man," she challenged belligerently, "I reckon them eggs is clean enough to suit you."

"Yes, Mrs. Jones," he replied soothingly, "they certainly are nice and clean, but I'm sorry to say I can't give the full market price for them."

Her suspicions were confirmed. It was a plot—nothing less. She determined to get to the bottom of it.

"Why not?" she demanded explosively, literally trembling with indignation.

"Well, you see," patiently explained her involuntary tormenter, "they have been washed."

"Washed? Yes, of course they have. I spent hours scrubbing them up because you didn't want 'em dirty and now you don't want 'em clean. What in tarnation do you want?"

It would take too long to continue the dialogue any further. So let it suffice to say that only after a long and impassioned debate was Mother Jones finally made to understand that washing eggs reduces their keeping qualities to an almost unbelievable extent. It is an actual fact that washed eggs come out of even a brief stay in cold storage as much as 50 per cent inferior to unwashed eggs. That puts the owner of soiled eggs between "the devil and the deep blue sea" to be sure, but there is really no excuse for having dirty eggs in any great numbers.

The solution is a simple one and really much easier of accomplishment than the washing of eggs. First of all, nests should be placed in a dark place so that hens will only go to them when they wish to lay, and they should be protected from above so that they cannot be befouled by droppings. Two-inch mesh wire netting should be tacked onto the lower side of the roosts to keep the hens off the dropping board which will prevent soiling of the eggs with their dirty feet. Eggs should be gathered once or twice each day and all dirty or soiled eggs should be used at home.

Furthermore, the nests should be thoroughly cleaned out frequently and all soiled straw or whatever is used replaced with new material that is fresh and clean. If these simple precautions are observed and hens are kept confined during muddy weather there will be little necessity either for washing eggs or for accepting a lower price for dirty ones.

Washing destroys the gelatinous coating which nature puts around an egg to protect the contents. When it is washed off or otherwise removed the spores of mold and the bacteria of decay enter easily through the porous shell and evaporation is appreciably accelerated. Storing for any length of time becomes impossible thereafter, so it is no wonder that the up-to-date dealer is willing to accept washed eggs only at a discount which will protect him against loss if he cannot turn his stock quickly.

It is the old, old story—"an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure"—only in this case washing can hardly be accurately called a cure. Cleanliness is still next to godliness, but so far as eggs are concerned, a lot depends on how the cleanliness is brought about.

FARMERS GIVE DETAILS ON WORM PLEA TO U. S.

LAMESA Sept. 27.—Farmers in the pink boll worm area want the federal government to determine if regulatory measures are still necessary and to repay them for losses incurred under present restrictions. These two requests are the principal items in the petition sent Texas congressmen several days ago by a committee in the affected area, according to a statement issued here today by Representative Carl Rountree, Lamesa, one of the leaders in the fight against present boll worm regulations.

In his statement Rountree charges that the state is helpless to pass its own regulatory measures, as the federal government intervenes and threatens to quarantine the entire state. He adds that the federal government ought to pay at least half of the loss to farmers, and the state the other half.
