Farmer, 72, Takes Own Life

After shooting away the left side of his face, W. T. Bishop, 72, a farmer, reloaded a shotgun and shot himself in the chest, falling dead with the weapon clutched in his hands. Deputy Sheriff Bob Miller of Littlefield said after investigating the death which occurred about noon Sunday.

Bishop shot himself at his home in the Fieldton community, northeast of Littlefield. As reconstructed by Deputy Sheriff Miller, Bishop loaded his shotgun with one shell, placed the barrel at his chin and pulled the trigger. Walking into a room and looking at a mirror, the farmer evidently decided the shot would not prove fatal, reloaded the gun, returned to a porch where he had first fired, pulled the trigger with a wire, he had placed the gun out against a post, the barrel on his chest, and pulled a wire tied to the trigger.

"BOOST OR MOVE"

Why Not Be Fair To The Utilities?

In solemn convocation assembled the latter part of the week in Fort Worth, mayors and others from many West Texas towns in a group passed a resolution which to the News-Times seems the most unjust and unfair thing we have encountered in years. Following is the verbatim report as it appeared in Saturday's Star-Telegram:

"While the Texas Railroad Commission is investigating gate rates charged by the pipe line companies beginning with those of the Lone Star Gas Company, cities of Texas are urged by a resolution adopted at the gas meeting of the Texas League of Municipalities at The Texas yesterday to pass ordinances arbitrarily lowering existing consumer rates without investigation to determine their fairness."

"The purpose of the motion offered by Mayor Ernest Thompson, Amarillo, as explained by J. Bouman, recitor, city attorney of Austin, and president of the league, is to swamp the utilities with litigation forcing them to compromise and to give consumers the benefit of lower rates this winter pending settlement of the rate controversies."

The News-Times holds no brief for the Gas Companies of the Southwest—is not on their payroll—owes them nothing—and is not arguing as to whether or not gas rates to the consumer are too high. The News-Times does not know. It will not, however, countenance a proposition urging city councils over the State to pass ordinances arbitrarily lowering rates without investigation to determine their fairness."

Public utilities are entitled to a square deal just as any individual or any corporation is entitled to a square deal. It is possible that in some instances rates for the services rendered by our gas, electric, telephone, and other utilities are too high. The only way to determine that fact is by a survey of the properties investment, the operating expense and the net revenue of such companies in each particular instance. That can be done, and until that is done, no city has a right to demand lower rates or to pass local legislation which arbitrarily lowers the rates without regard to their justness or fairness.

The method outlined above by Texas Municipalities League to my mind is comparable to blackmail. The big idea seems to be to either force the reduction up in so much litigation in rates or tie the gas company that it will cost them more than the reduction of rates would amount to. I'm glad that my home city didn't become a party to such unfair and unjust action.

I have been engaged in a public business for many years and have taken an active part in community development projects of every kind all during that time. I have yet to find any utility company in any town where I have been that did not carry on its part of the community load in taxes, in support of the chamber of commerce, in donations to charities or in any other particular you can mention. Not only do they do their part, they do it cheerfully, willingly and wholeheartedly. I have never gone to them with a reasonable request that was not considered and granted. These same utilities have done more for my town than any other class of business and they are doing it today.

 Odessa would be only a wide place in the road, and on a bad road at that, today if it were not for the building activities stimulated solely by our utilities. The T. & P. Railroad, the Texas Electric Service Company, the West Texas Gas Company, the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, the Western Union Telegraph Company—take these away from Odessa and there wouldn't be much left.

I hold to the opinion that these utilities are entitled to a fair return on the investments they have in Odessa and Ector county. As a matter of fact I doubt if they are getting that under existing rates. I don't think Odessa is any worse off than the majority of towns represented at the Fort Worth meeting, and I believe the same thing will apply in most all of them.

I want to see industry and commerce prosper in West Texas. I want our gas company to make money along with the balance of us. I'm going to stand flatly for a square deal for the public utility as well as the private individual. I'm in favor of paying for service rendered, whether it be gas or soap grease. When I find beyond a doubt that the rate is too high, I'll be strong in the demand that it be lowered, but once again I'm strictly opposed to the passing of ordinances here or elsewhere to "arbitrarily lower rates without investigation as to their fairness."
 —Odessa News-Times.

Other good oils lubricate working parts after the motor starts and oil is pumped from the crankcase through the motor, which takes several minutes. A "hidden quart" stays up in your motor and never drains away. Only Germ Processed Oil can give you this sure protection at all times, because only Germ Processed Oil can penetrate and combine with metal surfaces... an exclusive characteristic called "penetrative lubricity." So you can see... any oil would be better oil if Germ Processed!

HEART OF THE NORTH

BY WILLIAM BYRON MOWERY

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—Six bandits came aboard the steamer, Midnight Sun, while she was tied to the bank of the Mackenzie. Father Claverly and the other passengers on the boat are amazed at the sight of bandits in this Great Waterway country, a thousand miles north of Edmonton. Jimmy Montgomery, who had spent years with the Canadian Mounted, draws his gun in the face of the revering rifles and sees a bandit's rufians. He is shot through the heart by a half-breed. The bandits get away with gold dust and choice peltry.

CHAPTER II—Corporal Bill Hardsock brings the news of the crime to Sergeant Alan Baker, at the Mounted Police post at Fort Endurance. After a brief dispute over plans with his incompetent superior, Inspector Haskell, Alan starts out with the bandits in the big police launch with the corporal and four constables.

CHAPTER III—Reaching the Midnight Sun, they stop long enough for Alan to board her and consult with the skipper, Alan Baker, and the skipper to put Jimmy Montgomery's orphaned four-year-old daughter off at Fort Endurance and leave her in the care of Alan's fiancée, Elizabeth Spaulding. At the MacMillan trading post, at the Big Alouka, Joyce MacMillan is alone, awaiting the return of Dave, her father, from a fur-buying trip. She is thrilled when the police launch ties up there for the night. She has not seen Alan Baker for months. Secretly she had hoped to marry him, then she was attracted by the news of his engagement to Elizabeth. She is happy now to perceive from his halting talk that the planned marriage is not definitely certain.

CHAPTER IV—Larry Young, one of Alan's men, discovers in MacMillan's fur shed a half-ounce of stolon from the Midnight Sun. The evidence incriminates Alan so strongly that Alan is compelled to tell Joyce. She hotly defends her father. Alan leads his expedition up the Big Alouka. Compelled by Haskell's foolish orders to divide the party, Alan fails to capture the bandits. The police expedition returns to Fort Endurance with Larry badly wounded.

CHAPTER V—Haskell, who is Alan's active enemy and is trying to win Elizabeth, blames Alan for the failure and orders his demotion to the rank of sergeant. He orders Alan to split the police party and return to the coast. A second expedition against the bandits being only one way now to go after the bandits, Alan leaves Joyce's father from the charge resulting from the obviously planted evidence. Alan bids good-bye to the Mounted. Haskell gives Alan his release on condition that he sign a paper to the effect that Haskell did not give the order to split the expedition.

CHAPTER VI—After making arrangements with Hardsock and old Dad Pence to look after Joyce's safety while she is in the care of the MacMillan post (her father being tied at Fort Endurance), Alan starts out of the country. Alan's car canoe. As the days pass and she does not hear from him, Joyce is heart sick for Alan.

He knew how deeply Baker was rooted in his work and friendships and life in this northern country; and he could scarcely conceive of a man deliberately throwing away a long brilliant police record at one irremediable step.

But there was no doubting Baker's words, no doubting his grim manner. Baker was demanding to buy out—to get out for good. As he studied the sergeant, Haskell drew back warily. Baker might be laying some trap for him.

He refused. "I'm too short-handed here as it is now."

"I don't give a d—n about that. I'm buying out."

Haskell's confidence was returning as he saw that Alan intended no physical violence. "If you buy out, your record ends. You'll have to start all over."

"I'm buying out for good. There'll be no starting over again. I'm getting out of the Mounted, out of the country."

Haskell debated swiftly. He was after news to Baker cutting his own head off; and he saw now there was no trap laid for him. But there were other things to be considered. His sober judgment, casting back over the last nine months, recalled the score of times Baker had corrected his mistakes and kept the post running smoothly. Wisdom whispered to him that he needed the man, needed him desperately. And Elizabeth Spaulding...

...Was she going away with Baker? Was Baker taking her with him?

If she went, his act in busting the sergeant would prove a boomerang against himself. He tried to temporize.

"I haven't the authority to let you go. You'll have to make out application and wait for permission from headquarters."

"That's the rule for close-in detachments. Down north here where a communication would take several months, it's understood that an officer can accept a buy out on his own responsibility."

"That'll not be your affair, thank God! I'm leaving here. Tonight. That all you need to know."

Haskell started a little. Tonight—no boat coming past—it meant Baker was going by himself! Meant Baker would not go with him but would stay here at Endurance!

Very thoughtful, he looked away, debating. Baker's motives, his reasons for this precipitate move, were dark and puzzling. But he saw no way in which they could possibly harm him. Hardsock, an experienced northern man, would still be available, a reliable veteran to turn to, especially if baited by the hope of this vacated sergancy.

Hardsock would be easier to manage, too. Since Elizabeth was going to stay here, at least temporarily, why shouldn't he let Baker go? The farther away he was, the better.

The more he studied the situation, the more it seemed too good to be true that Baker was deliberately cutting his head off, buying out, getting out of the country, leaving Elizabeth here alone, killing any possibility of the investigation that he secretly dreaded.

"I'll consent on one condition to your buying out. Otherwise you'll have to wait for official and regular approval."

"What's the condition?"

"There seems," Haskell said steadily, with the ability to look Alan squarely in the eyes, "to be a difference of opinion between us about the responsibility of this Alouka patrol. If you'll sign a statement to the effect that you had complete charge of the detail and split your party on your own initiative—if you'll do that, you can buy out. Otherwise you can't."

Alan wavered. Signing a brazen lie, taking all the stinging disgrace upon himself, strengthening Haskell's guilty hand. But then his thoughts leaped to Jimmy and Larry and Dave MacMillan, and to Joyce, pinning her last hope to him. What did it matter, his signing a lie? Would it change one jot or tittle of God's truth? What did a rag of paper matter on his long free-fung hunt for those murderers, avenging his partners, shielding Joyce?

He said: "I'll sign. Load it as heavy as you like. But don't knock Hardsock or Pedersen or Younger."

Haskell wrote out the declaration of responsibility. Alan read it. As he wrote his name, he sneered:

"If I were you, I'd frame that inspector, and hang it on the wall. It's a certificate of your dishonor."

Not answering, Haskell went on looking up the remaining enlistment period and figuring the amount. Whipple brought over the forms and filled in the data. Both Alan and Haskell, with the constable as witness, signed the numerous official sheets of the procedure.

Folding his copy of it, Alan walked out of the door, out of service, out of the Mounted Police.

CHAPTER VII
The Dark Hour.

IN HIS cabin Alan took off his uniform and changed to civilian clothes.

It seemed to him he was stripping off his foot-free adventure life with that uniform money he had on hand.

Several hundred dollars, he had tucked carefully in his shirt pocket. His expenses on this trip ahead would be heavy; he would have to borrow. But he was going to take that Victoria job, and he knew Colonel Steele would gladly give him a salary advance.

Then he made up a slender pack—single blanket, a change of clothes, food for a week or ten days. That was all. No camping outfit, no weapons, no equipment for wilderness travel.

As he was buckling his pack to Elizabeth, unexpectedly she came into the cabin. As she stepped into the light, she exclaimed: "Alan!—at MacMillan girl told Mrs. Drummond that Haskell demoted you! That you're a constable! That he put all the blame of this patrol on you!"

"That's what he did," Alan answered, straightening up, facing her. "I didn't believe he was capable of it. But I shouldn't have been surprised; he's given me cues enough for his nature."

"And you're going to stand for that?" Her voice rose, sharp, nagging. "You're going to be his orderly, a constable, disgraced, bossed around? I'd think that any man would—would—"

She checked herself as she saw the government property laid out on the bed and noticed that Alan was in civilian clothes. He said quietly: "You were a bit hasty. I didn't stand for it. I bought out. I'm out of the Mounted. Out for good!"

PAUL IN CORINTH

GOLDEN TEXT—And now abide faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity. LESSON TEXT—Acts 18:1-17. PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Working for Jesus in a Great City. JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Working and Preaching in a Great City. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Working for Christ in a Great City. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christianity in a Cosmopolitan City.

The establishment of the church at Corinth is an example of missionary endeavor for all ages. I. The True Missionary Method (vv. 1-3).

Paul came to Corinth a stranger. He did not have an advance agent to do his advertising, neither did he have his photograph put in the daily paper with a sensational announcement upon his arrival at Corinth. His method of gaining a foothold in Corinth was:

1. Finding a home (v. 2). This he found with Aquila and Priscilla, Jews who were recently expelled from Rome by the cruel edict of Claudius.

2. He toiled for his daily bread (v. 3). He was of the same craft with his hosts, who were tent makers. Every child among the Jews was taught some trade by means of which he could gain a livelihood should occasion require. Missionaries and Christian workers today should not be above honest toil.

3. Preaching in the Synagogue at Corinth (v. 4).

1. Though compelled to toil for a living while getting a foothold in Corinth, he did not lose sight of his main work (v. 4). He reasoned in the synagogue every Sabbath, persuading the Jews and the Greeks.

2. His activity was increased when Silas and Timothy came (v. 5), which resulted from three causes:

a. They brought good news from the church at Thessalonica (I Thess 3:6). To hear of the steadfastness of those who had confessed Christ under his ministry put new vigor into his labors.

b. They brought pecuniary gifts from the Macedonian church (Phil 4:15; II Cor. 11:9). Being relieved from the necessity of toiling for a living he could now devote more time and energy to the preaching of the gospel.

c. Silas and Timothy became as assistants to Paul in the work.

3. Paul opposed (v. 6). His increased activity was met with increased opposition. As the Lord's ministers became more aggressive in their work, the ministers of Satan put forth corresponding efforts in opposition.

4. Paul announces his purpose to turn to the Gentiles (v. 6), because of the blasphemy and opposition of the Jews.

5. He did not go far away (v. 7). He remained sufficiently near those whose hearts God had touched so that they could easily find him.

6. His success (v. 8). Crispus, the chief ruler of the synagogue, was converted. Perhaps Paul's severity in turning away from them moved Crispus to act. Pressure to an immediate decision is helpful to some. They realize that it is now or never. Many others followed the example of Crispus. Paul varied from his usual custom and baptized Crispus who was an important man (I Cor. 1:14).

III. Paul's Vision (vv. 9-11). His experiences since coming to Europe was very trying. He needed encouragement at this time. It is just like the Lord to come at the time of the servant's greatest need. Note the Lord's words to him:

1. "Be not afraid." When one is executing the commission of the Lord he need not be afraid.

2. "Speak and hold not thy peace." The one who has heard the voice of God cannot refrain from speaking.

3. "I am with thee." The Lord is with everyone who faithfully carries out his command.

4. "No man shall set on thee to hurt thee." The one sent by the Lord to do a work is immune from harm until his work is done.

5. "I have much people in this city." It is most encouraging to know that in the great cities the Lord has his own people and that the one who goes in his name shall have fruit for his service.

IV. Paul Before Gallio (vv. 12-17). 1. The charge against him (v. 13). They accused him of persuading men to worship God contrary to the law.

2. Gallio's decision (vv. 14-16). He decided that it was not his concern to settle disputes concerning matters of the Jewish law.

3. Sosthenes beaten (v. 17). In all probability he was leading the attack upon Paul. The Greeks seemed to have sympathized with Paul. Therefore, they turned against his enemy.

SUDAN CO-OP. ORGANIZATION COMPLETED

At a meeting of the temporary representatives of the Sudan Co-operative association held Thursday night of last week at the court house in Oilton, completion of the organization was effected, permanent officers elected and application for a loan of $350,000 made to the Intermediate Credit Bank at Houston.

The meeting was well attended by interested representatives of the organization and business dispatches with much speed and harmony.

Frank Triplett, of Plainview, was elected president; Roy E. Harberer, Muleshoe, vice president; Arthur P. Duggan, Littlefield, secretary-treasurer. Triplett, Duggan and Ray Griffith of Muleshoe were named an executive committee to have charge of any emergency business that may come before the organization.

Representations were made to banks in Dallas and Fort Worth asking for a temporary advance of at least $100 per hundred for Sudan seed, until such a time as the Government was ready to take in hand the financing of the new organization.

It is reported on good authority that large elevator concerns in Amarillo, Plainview and Lubbock have forwarded bids to the Co-op. association to handle the elevator storage for the organization. Information is also out to the effect that numerous grain dealers in the large cities in the central states are now asking for price quotations on Sudan seed in quantities varying from 50,000 to 100,000 pound lots.

The prevailing idea now is that as the organization is completed, and conditions become more stabilized in the financial realm that the price of Sudan seed will gradually advance.—Muleshoe Journal.

INVENTOR FILLS GAS TANK OF AUTO WITH AIR

Los Angeles, Oct. 20 (AP).—Roy J. Meyers, inventor, predicted Tuesday that motorists soon may refill their tanks with air instead of gasoline. He demonstrated an aural type engine, minus the usual carburetor and ignition and cooling systems, but equipped with a compressed air tank, filled to 500 pounds pressure. He pulled a lever and the car picked up speed quickly and smoothly, with a slight hiss of air from the exhaust valves. The motor was geared so the maximum speed reached was 35 miles per hour. As the air goes through the down, much of it is recaptured engine forcing pistons up and and recompressed by a compressor built as part of the engine, Meyers said. The cool air returns to the pressure tank from batteries and generator, which is heated by electricity. This heating he explained, expands the air in the tank, increasing the pressure. Meyers said he expected his invention to be more valuable to airplanes since it would eliminate the heavy gasoline fuel loads now necessary.

POSTMASTER RELEASES STAMPS PREMATURELY; PHILATELISTS EXCITED

Excited philatelists Tuesday were seeking the 2 cent commemorative stamps marking the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Yorktown which were placed mistakenly on sale last week in advance of the official release date by a Texas postmaster. The stamps are to be placed on sale next Monday at Yorktown, and Tuesday at all other offices. Postmaster George C. Young of Dallas, in whose division the erring postmaster is located, was forced Monday to report this mistake to the Postoffice Department in Washington. There is nothing else to do, he said.

Envelopes bearing the prematurely canceled stamps will have an added value to collectors if any obtain them.

Mr. Young announced that a series of special stamps commemorative of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington will be engraved in twelve denominations ranging from one-half cent to 10c. They will be on sale on January 1, 1932, in Washington, and on January 2 at other offices.

Mrs. Kate Lyle and son J. C. returned to their home in Arkansas after spending several weeks in Sudan with her brother Sam Branch. Mrs. Lyle came to Sudan with the intention of remaining until Christmas but owing to the uncertainty of the re-opening of school decided to return to her home in Arkansas.

FRENCH BANK OFFICIALS ARRIVE FOR CONFERENCE

New York, Oct. 19 (AP).—Vice Governor Charles Farnier of the Bank of France and Robert LacourGayet, director of the bank's economic section, arrived Tuesday on the liner Euro-pana to confer with Federal Reserve officials here on the world financial situation. They said they came to discuss problems "of mutual interest." Andre Citroen, motor magnate, who is called the "Henry Ford of France," also arrived on the ship. He said he believed there would be no recession from France's comparative "prosperity," probably because the country's agricultural products are protected.—Dallas News.
