Texas and Pacific Lot Started Ranger's Schools

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of several stories on the history of Ranger's Public Schools. Much of the information found here, was taken from J. R. (Dutch) Ervin's thesis "A Short History of the Ranger Public School" written in partial fulfillment of his M. A. degree obtained at Hardin-Simmons University. Other information was gained through interviews with local residents.

In 1856 John Flannigan emigrated from Kentucky to Texas, settling in Parker County. When new counties were created, the frontier beckoned with irresistible arms and he moved to Eastland County with his family (a wife and four children) to build a home on Colony Creek, about 11 miles from the center of the county. He was the first white man to move into the county, and the Flannigan log cabin became very probably the first school house in Eastland County.

During the fall and winter of 1880, the townsite of Ranger was plotted by the Texas and Pacific Railroad Co. On June 1, 1881 the railroad company deeded a lot to Judge J. T. Hammond, according to early deed records, which was later transferred to the trustees of Ranger Independent School District in 1886.

This began the history of Ranger's schools. On this same property now stands the high school building.

First building erected upon the property was opened in October of 1881. This small one-room building was constructed at a cost of $89.90.

About the same time, Ranger "Camp Valley School Community No. 80" was operating with all the "modern conveniences." It had a small cast iron stove for a heating system, hard benches (with four to eight pupils on a bench.) Each pupil had a slate and state pencils, but a few had sponges to erase their figures (according to a statement of Mrs. C. E. May contained in the thesis).

This building, after being sold and remodeled two or three times was converted into a one and one half story rooming or apartment house.

Although there is some difference of opinion when school began in the present Ranger system, it seems probable that a rift developed about 1881 and two private schools drew pupils. This condition existed until 1900.

The Ray Academy was attended by J. R. Ervin and several other local people (now living in Ranger) during the school year of 1896-97. During this time and for some time later all private and public schools kept the boys and girls in separate classes.

In some instances, schools were so strict as to not even let the boys talk with the girls (except for special occasions) and often they were segregated in different parts of the building.

Founded by the late C. E. Ray the Academy was attended by Amy Brown and Clarence Steward and the late George Blackwell of Gorman, among others.

At the same time, students attended Ranger High School.

Early teachers, during this period were Professor Whipple, Mrs. V. Vincenbeller (who was the first private school teacher) and B. M. Terrell (who drew $40 a month) and H. H. Daise (with the highest salary of $60 per month).

plan school administration began in the present district system. And Eastland County was one of the earliest counties of the state to take advantage of this change.

Local boards of trustees were appointed to take over the school affairs of the district, and Ranger Camp Valley was established as Ranger School District No. 28 (August 2, 1883).

In the fall of 1884, a new room was added to the original one-room building, making more space available to two new teachers and 57 pupils enrolled at the time.

Two state teachers were employed during the school year 1884-85 (while the private schools were still being conducted by Mrs. Vincenbeller). Professor A. P. Collins was employed as principal, with Miss Maggie Smith as assistant.

On September 1, 1885, Ranger School District No. 4 was incorporated in an election and a new board of trustees were elected. E. O. Davis was president of the board. With 106 pupils living in the district, and many others being transferred in, conditions became crowded in the small two-room building. A near-by residence had a spare room that was soon rented and fitted up for the system.

By the beginning of the term in 1886-87 a new two-story building ing was ready for use (see photo on this page), according to a statement of W. M. Blankenship. Erected upon the same lot as the original building, facing Marston St., the frame building had step in a half window shape.

Later the building was rearranged, with a broad porch running full length and the old steps removed from the inside to the outside.

The original school building, then, underwent a series of changes. It was sold to Dr. C. E.

removed and used as an apartment house (according to a statement of the late C. E. May).

READY FOR SCHOOL.—In 1886 the two story wooden building (pictured above) was Ranger's only public school building. Shown here are probably some living Rangersites, but no one could identify them. Call at the Times office if you think you are in this picture. Note the stairs on the outside. Later, this building was split into two sections and used for apartments. A two-story brick structure (built behind this building) replaced Ranger's first major school building. Lumber from this structure may still be found in some of Ranger's homes. ### Farmers Can Save $112 Million Farmers could save themselves and the nation over $112,000,000 a year if they would inaugurate a vaccination program against a cattle and swine disease known as leptospirosis, the American Foundation for Animal Health suggested today.

The disease causes premature births of calves and pigs. In recent years, however, vaccines have been developed which will prevent it, and a vaccination campaign is now being urged on a nation-wide scale.

In calves, leptospirosis usually causes fever, prostration, labored breathing and jaundice, with death losses reaching considerable proportions. It also can cause a sharp drop in milk production among dairy cattle.

The disease is especially serious as a breeding hazard for swine, and infected animals may be spreaders or carriers for many months.

"We are foolish to confront one hundred million dollars in losses from a cause like this, when we now have a tool which will save us that huge toll," the Foundation said. "Systematic vaccination will pay great dividends to the farmer, and to the nation's economy as well."

AS IT LOOKS FROM HERE

OMAR BURLISON, M. C.
11th Dist. of Texas

WASHINGTON, D. C.—At this time during every session of Congress the feeling constantly arises that the Country would be better off if adjournment had come a month ago.

This is the time when legislation is pushed so rapidly it becomes very difficult to know the details of every bill under debate. Adjournment is still indefinite, but it appears it will require another several days before the curtain is hauled down.

By reason of the nature of the Committee of which I serve as Chairman, it will be necessary to remain in Washington to clean up the details. There are some things which simply can not be done until the final bell sounds.

It will be my intent to visit over the fourteen counties of the 17th Congressional District during the fall. It will be necessary to return to Washington at intervals to attend to Committee matters, but it is with anticipation I look forward to seeing as many of my constituents as possible for the purpose of rendering a report of my activities as your congressman, and to exchange views on matters of mutual interest.

Elizabeth Alford Is Honored with Morning Coffee

Miss Elizabeth Alford, who became the guest of Acker Everitt of Ranger Sunday afternoon, was honored with an informal morning coffee Friday. Mrs. Larry Kinard was hostess for the coffee in her home at the Leon Village.

On the domestic side the Congress is about to leave Washington after a spending spree unlike any known in peacetime. The atmosphere of economy and retrenchment was dissipated with Sputnik and the necessities. It gave way to many ideas and schemes supposedly needed to meet the emergency.

On the other hand, by reason that some emergency existed, a field day was provided for many ready to take advantage to promote schemes which otherwise would not be possible.

On the Foreign scene a similar situation exists insofar as spending is concerned. At a time when the Country was ready to retrench in its foreign aid spending, the appearance of "Sputnik" took the lid off.

The best thing coming of it all was an effort to improve our defenses, not only in terms of dollars and cents, but in a real effort to promote greater efficiency in our military establishment. In this connection, it should be a continuing and unrelenting effort.

TRADE WITH YOUR HOMETOWN MERCHANTS

Arrangements of cut, garden flowers were noted throughout the home. Coffee, lemonade and cookies were served to the guests who called.

Those who attended or sent gifts were: Mmes. Waverly Massengale, L. B. Owens, Davy Mitchell, James Gilbey, Bruno Kaufus, R. D. Kelley, James M. Smith, Jack Reeves, C. W. Coan, Joe Pool and Hubert Jones.

The death of an interstate person (one who has made no will) may give rise to many problems regarding distribution of his separate estate. In the preceding column we investigated the manner of dividing the community estate upon the death of a husband or wife. Now we shall see that, where separate property is involved, a completely different set of rules applies in determining her share and apportioning the estate among the rightful claimants.

RETURNS TO ABILENE

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Blair and family returned Wednesday to their home in Abilene after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Blacklock. Miss Linda Blair remained in Ranger for a longer visit with her grandparents.

It may be well to recall that the separate estate of a husband or wife includes property owned by either before marriage, and that which is acquired after marriage by gift or inheritance. Any other property acquired after marriage is presumed by law to be community property until the contrary is clearly proved.

Now, here is a general idea as to how your separate property will be divided if you do not make a will with provisions prior to your death.

If your husband or wife survives and if, in addition, there are surviving children or descendants of previously deceased children, the children and their descendants immediately obtain a full (fee) title in two-thirds of the real estate involved. The surviving spouse receives a life interest in the remaining one-third of the real property, which passes on to the children and their descendants upon the death of the spouse.

The rule for distributing personal property—cash, stocks, bonds, furniture or any other items not constituting real estate—is different. Here the surviving spouse gets full ownership of one-third, and the children and their descendants inherit the balance.

New suppose your husband or wife survives, but there are no surviving children or their descendants. In this case the surviving spouse inherits all of the personal property involved.

With regard to real estate, the survivor obtains full title to one-half, and the other half is divided between your mother and father, if both survive you. If only one of them survives, he or she receives only half of his portion, and the other half (or one-fourth of the entire real estate) will be divided among your brothers and sisters (and their descendants) who survive. If there are no surviving brothers and sisters and their descendants, then the one surviving parent inherits the full one-half.

Where no parent survives, but there are brothers and sisters and descendants, the full one-half is divided among those survivors.

And, if there are no parents or brothers and sisters (and their descendants) surviving, then the surviving husband or wife inherits all of the real estate.

(This column, based on Texas law, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

I Give You TEXAS

By BOYCE ROUSE
One of the most colorful individuals I have ever met was Dr. ... frequently spoken of as "Doc" Brinkley—whose ... was linked with gland operations.

... was the owner of a radio station on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande. The station was so powerful that it could be heard over a large part of the United States. A large part of the mail handled by the Del Rio post office consisted of thousands of letters and cards from listeners and much of the patronage of the hotels was made up of visitors there in connection with the Brinkley Sanitarium.

Dr. Brinkley owned two planes. In fact it was at the Del Rio airport that we met Walter D. Cline of Wichita Falls, the president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, flew down in a private plane to speak to the annual Del Rio Chamber of Commerce dinner and D. A. Bandoen, then WTCC manager and I came along for the ride. (I was staff correspondent for the Fort Worth Star-Telegram).

The celebrated doctor was on hand to greet us. Also on hand—on his left hand to be exact—was one of the largest diamonds outside the British Crown Jewels and in his tie was the mate to this dazzling gem.

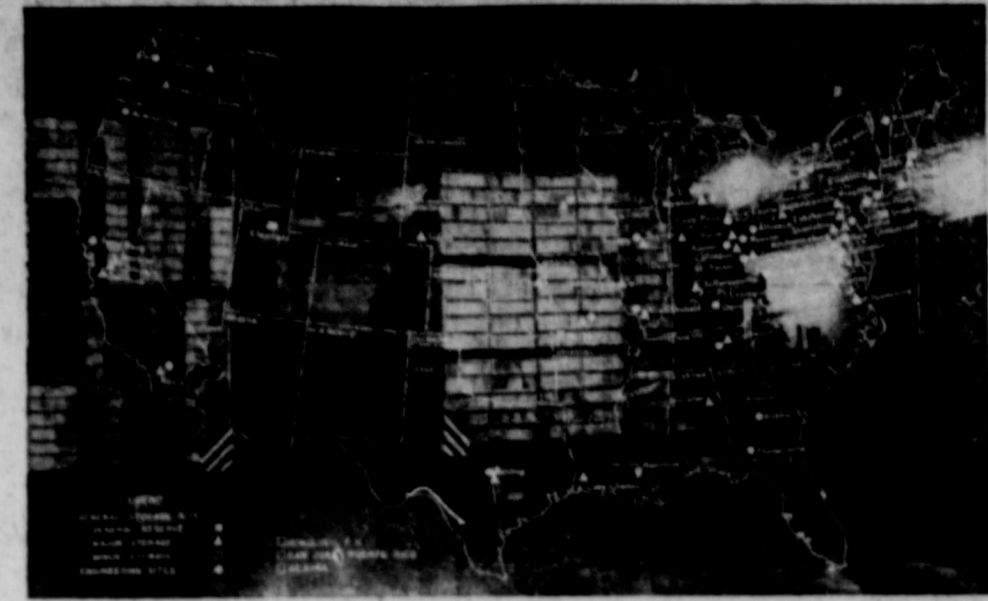

He wore costly clothes, was handsome had an impressive manner and a beard.

We saw one of his planes—a luxurious cruiser—and met his private pilot. Later we visited his mansion and admired the spacious landscaped grounds.

In the yard was a fountain and that night as we returned from across the river, we saw the shimmering waters, first a royal purple, then a brilliant green and then a rich crimson. The fountain was the first of the kind I had ever seen. It cost several thousand dollars.

It was related that a man who had had several drinks in Villa Acuna was returning to Del Rio and when he saw the rapid succession of colors, he figured he was "seeing things" and he exclaimed "I'll swear off drinking."

Some years later, I was in Del Rio to speak at the high school graduation and the greatest applause of any senior was accorded Dr. Brinkley's son.

It has built-in automatic sprinklers and special ventilating equipment. The Office of Defense and Civilian Mobilization has stockpiled here for use after attack about 2,500 tons of supplies, including Army hospital cots, stretchers, and supplies and equipment for 200 complete civil defense emergency hospitals of 200 beds each.
