

Graduation Set For Forty-seven Seniors

As I See Ranger

By Gene Townsend

With Graduation at high school coming up next week, everyone is coming up with some advice for the graduating seniors. So I will extend to them one bit of advice and one warning.

I would like to advise all the seniors to sit hard on the task of ambition and rise quickly to the heights of success.

And the warning is to be careful while sliding down the banister of life and don't stick a splinter in your career.

The Lone Star Producing Company and Premier Oil and Refining Company has built some swings and donated them to the City Park. These are a welcome addition to the park facilities, and improve the appearance of our park.

Here Is Class History

Graduates Started To School In 1948

Long ago seems the fall day in 1948 when a group of scrubbed, but smiling children trudged into the first grade at Hodges Oak Park, Young, and St. Rita's, Walker, Sandra, Barbara Craig, Linda, Norma Gayle, Bobby, Sally, Jimmy Needham, Johnny, Marinell, and Vendelle started school life at Hodges while Jack, Glenda, Sue, Alfred, Rita Underwood, Jerry Hamilton, Charlie White, and Nellie Sue went to Young. The second grade in Hodges welcomed Jimmie Stroud from a school in New Mexico and Mary Kay from St. Rita's, Patsy Vinson entered the second grade at Young. From St. Rita's, Mike and Karen entered the third grade at Hodges and Pat Graham and Nancy joined the Hodges' fourth grade. Mac, from St. Rita's, joined the fourth grade at Young. Jimmy Burnett came to Hodges' fifth grade as Barbara Crabb and Douglas went to Young. Thomas joined the sixth grade class at Hodges. Rozelle and I, from Bullock, came to Hodges' sixth grade.

We changed not only grades, but also buildings. Awed by our surroundings at first, we soon became accustomed to life in Junior High. During the seventh grade we added Jerry Anderson and Homer to our ranks. Jerry Wilson and Don Adams joined us in the eighth grade.

In the fall of 1956 a band of freshmen entered the halls of Ranger High School. Our class officers were Karen, Barbara Craig, and Norma Gayle. Jimmy Needham was elected class favorite. Jerry Anderson and Homer were on the football team. Barbara Crabb and Jerry Anderson were elected as Best Sports.

Oh, happy the day when we became Sophomores! Important? Yes! Big? Yes! Ignorant? Oh, no! Class officers for the year were Jerry Anderson, Barbara Crabb, Mary Kay, Mike, and Norma Gayle. Nina joined us during our Sophomore year. Karen was our class favorite. Barbara Crabb was elected Personality Plus. In football were Jerry Anderson and Charles White. Mary Kay was a

Giants Retain League Lead

The Giants and the Indians were the winning teams in the Little League games Thursday night, unless a protest made by the Braves manager stands up and the Giants and Indians have to replay their game. The Giants downed the Strawn Braves 7 to 5 and the Indians defeated the Yankees 11 to 5. The Dodgers were idle.

Seniors Leave Much To Heirs

By Nellie Sue Vinson. We are assembled here today to hear the reading of the last will and testament of the Class of 1960 of Ranger High School. Perhaps some of you are wondering what we have to bequeath since none of us are wealthy; but before I have finished, you will realize that we possess many worthwhile things. Since we can not take them with us, it is fitting and proper that we bequeath them to those who will be most benefited. We have given a great deal of time and attention to this matter, and we trust that you will agree we have acted wisely.

A THINKING MAN—Gene Babb, head of Ranger College Art Department and assistant coach, displays oil painting titled "Rider Engulfed in Heat" at Art Show recently held in Ranger by members of his College Art class. Incidentally, price tag on painting was $150.

GENE BABB SAYS

Artist or Coach; Why Not be Both?

Mighty pretty piece of art work there... isn't that what you call "Modern Art"? "Yes, sir, it is." "Are most artists turning to this form of art?" "Well, sir, I don't know. You see, I'm a professional football player." "Oh, I see... a man who thinks for himself..." Yes, that is the story of Gene Babb, head of the Art Department, Ranger College. Because, you see, Gene is also the assistant coach of the Ranger College Rangers, stands 6 feet 4 inches tall, and weighs 210 pounds.

Look To The Future Shows Class on Venus

LINDA DRENNAN. I don't think I'll ever forget the day I chose our parts for Class Day. I chose the Class Prophecy. The world spun madly around. How could I know what the members of our class would be doing fifteen or twenty years from now? That night I started thinking. I suppose I thought about it so much I dreamed about the future that night.

As I looked, I saw the oddest thing. A rocket was preparing to take off from the Ranger Airport. A stream of people was boarding the ship. The rocket's name, "The Weekly Venus Express," was over the door. It seemed that this ship was taking an ideal group, selected by scientists, to set up a city on Venus. Can that distinguished looking gentleman boarding the ship be Jerry Anderson? We always knew he would be a success. He's going to set up a church in the new city. Looking at the role of passengers, and seeing several familiar names, I decided to board the ship. As I left my lab, one of the many in the new atomic power plant located in Ranger, the ship was preparing to take off. Just as I entered, the doors closed, and we were off. I was really surprised to see Jimmy Needham talking to the pilot. Jimmy said he had invented a new atomic hot-rod rocket. It was all the rage with the teenagers.

Barbara Craig was the hostess in the rocket, but she said this was her last trip. She wanted to set up a hotel on Venus so she could see everybody. It only took us three hours to get there, but then we were traveling at an average speed of 30,000 mph. A few days after we arrived, I decided to walk around the newly built town. There were beautiful green grass and multi-colored flowers everywhere. Judy Ram-

Texas SCS Head Is Honored by Pq Department

The man who heads the high-producing organization of the U. S. Soil Conservation Service in Texas, Henry N. Smith of Temple, today received the Department of Agriculture's Honor Award for Super Services. The award was presented in special ceremonies here this afternoon by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson.

Smith was cited for exceptional leadership in the direction and administration of the Soil Conservation Service program in Texas. An accompanying account of Smith's achievement as Texas' state conservationist since 1954 revealed that well over half of Texas' farmers and ranchers are actively cooperating with the state's 178 soil conservation districts. More than three of every five of these are working on complete soil and water conservation for their farms and ranches.

Smith began his work with the Soil Conservation Service a quarter-century ago. He had served as the head of the animal husbandry department at Tarleton State College. Before his appointment as state conservationist for Texas, he was chief of operations for the four-state region which was disbanded with the other SCS regions six years ago.

Included in the achievements accredited to Smith is the state's program in the Great Plains Conservation Program and the Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Program, both movements administered by the Soil Conservation Service. Texas has nearly 1900 Great Plains Conservation Program plans in effect in the 83 western counties in which the program is operating. This is 45 percent of the total for the entire 10 state area of the Plains. The program provides cost-sharing for complete soil and water conservation on a long range basis.

In the six-year Watershed Protection Program, Texas also has made rapid progress. There are 20 of the projects underway in the state, their objective to give local citizens in small watersheds technical help and cost-sharing to solve water and erosion problems.

The citation of Smith commented also on the Texas' skill in leadership in "the development of staff and line officers into a hard hitting, enthusiastic team" and its influence in producing "initiative and high morale among employees throughout the state Soil Conservation Service organization."

Smith also was commended for his efforts toward continually improving relations with other groups and organizations in agriculture in the state.

Wedding Vows Exchanged by Miss Johnson and Eugene Kitchens

Miss Linda Johnson and Dwayne Eugene Kitchens were married before an altar of tall baskets of white gladiolas and palms at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Flatwood Church of Christ with Minister Milton Underwood officiating the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Finis Johnson of Flatwood. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Kitchens of Abilene.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kidd attended the couple as matron of honor and best man. Wedding music was presented by Mr. and Mrs. David Fry, who sang "Because" and "The Wedding March."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a streetlength dress of white satin with a full overskirt of chantilly lace attached to a white velvet ribbon band. The sheath style dress was accented by a scalloped V-neckline. The double elbow length veil was attached to a white petal ribbon s'ell which was highlighted with gleaming rhinestones and seed pearls.

The bride's bouquet was of white carnations atop a white Bible. She carried out the tradition of something old, something new, something borrowed and something blue, the old being a linen handkerchief, the new a string of pearls a penny in her shoe and the customary blue garter.

The reception was held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Cross on the Eastland-Carbon highway immediately following the ceremony.

The couple are now at home at 609 W. Plummer in Eastland.

man and Buddy Prather. Painting was an easy job. All they had to do was to turn the huge painting machine on and the whole house would be white in minutes. For colors, they used chemical rays on the parts to be colored. Sometimes, though, Thomas said he pushed the wrong button and came out with orange or turquoise instead of black or green.

He told me about two builders who were racing against each other to see who could build the largest number of houses before the next rocket of inhabitants landed. I was surprised to find that they were none other than Don Chatham and Jerry Don Hamilton, whom I remembered from Mechanical Drawings. As I inspected some of the homes, I was curious to know where the electricity came from since there were no electrical lines. Mac Jacoby, the electrician, explained his new system, using magnetism and electricity where I would only have to place the magnet on the end of the cord against the wall and wires in the wall would transmit electricity. Mac also told me about a new heating system devised by Dick Jolly where the whole city was under an invisible glass dome which controlled the temperature. The layout of the city was different from anything that I had ever seen. The streets and houses were all sorts of geometrical figures. I was told the architect was Bobby Fron.

By now, nothing surprised me very much. At least I thought it didn't until I went downtown. There I saw Vinson's Restaurant. Going in I discovered the owner to be my old friend Patsy Vinson. I sat down at the table with Norma Gayle Emfinger. She told me that she had a clinic with the hospital where Sally Mendez was the Supervisor, Karen Killingsworth the head nurse, and Sue Rodgers the special nurse. As they told me more of their clinic, they said there were only two doctors, Bill Stuart, Psychiatrist, and Nina Henry, surgeon. As I sat there in the restaurant, a group of business-proprietors came in. Norma Gayle pointed out Mary Kay Rush, who had a chain of ladies stores; Sharon O'Donnell Jones and Nancy Cantrell, who were fashion designers; Jimmy Don Burnett, who owned a huge supermarket; and Johnny Pirkle, who ran a service station. All you had to do in Johnny's station was to drive your car in and have your atomic fuel recharged. Finishing my meal, I decided to stop in the library. There I found a meeting of the school officials. A group of scientist from earth had selected the best teachers to set up a perfect school system. As I listened ed to them talk, I found that Dr. Glenda Rains, college professor; Hamer Montgomery, School Superintendent; Francis Veale, high school principal; and Nelly Sue Vinson, history teacher, were discussing the subjects to be taught. English was taught only in grammar school because it was relatively unimportant. High school students were to take Nuclear Physics, calculus, organic chemistry, atomic cooking. And Rocket Driv'g Training, among many other subjects.

As I started to leave, I bumped into Vonelle Wells, the librarian. She pointed out Walter Blackwell sitting at a table absorbed in a Nuclear Physics book. Vonelle told me that although Walter was the Mayor, he had little to do because Sandra Cooper, bookkeeper; Rita Underwood, interpreter; and Barbara Crabb, secretary made all the necessary arrangements with the Venetians.

Everywhere I went I ran into Alfred Rodgers, who seemed to be the busiest person in the city. Alfred, who was a Nobel Prize Winner on Earth, was now the star reporter in charge of printing newspapers and sending articles back home. Alfred introduced me to the two scientists who planned the city, Pat Graham and Mike Herrington. We always knew they were dreamers, but—to plan a city on Venus!

I was curious to know where the food came from. Mike told me that the farm expert, Don Adams, had found a way to provide all the food necessary through hydroponics. A huge dairy had been set up by Jerry Wilson. Jerry had invented a way to pasteurize milk by exposing it to radiation for 1/100 of a second. Maybe his physics in high school paid off after all.

Next, I saw Jack Hazard, a high pressure car salesman. He was really going wild with his new atomic powered cars. As we tried out one of his cars, we barely missed Rita Sipes, who came dashing madly down the wide superatomic highway. Rita, an interior decorator, must have been on the way to pick up her latest decorating material.

Going to the theater, I heard a piano concert by Neda Hodges. Gail Rapp, the world famous singer whose recitals had been heard in Podunk, Metropolis, and Soviet Union, sang for us. Charlie White was there to invite everyone to his base ball team's Premier the next night. Th game was to be announced by Douglas Rogers. Douglas had established a school which guarantees to make perfect announcers out of block heads.

This new city had everything except families and children. I found out that Rozelle Hatton, Jimmie Stroud, and Marinell Shockey had been chosen to come and bring their ideal families. Jimmie was the head of a large baby-sitting cooperation. No doubt she had had plenty of experience with her own children. Awakening, I realized that that was our whole class. The Ranger High School class of 60 must have been the ideal class. May our future really bring us success and true happiness.

Double Ring Ceremony Unites Miss Bobby Sue Estes, Frankie Landtroop

Miss Bobbie Sue Estes of Dallas became the bride of James Franklin Landtroop of Denton Saturday evening, May 14, in a candlelight ceremony at 7 p.m. in the home of the bride's parents.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Estes of Ranger, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd Landtroop of Ranger.

Rev. Ed Scarbrough, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, read the double ring ceremony before an archway of greenery topped with an arrangement of gladioli, flanked with candelabra and palms. A kneeling bench was centered before the arch.

Miss Betty Jo Tamplin of Grand Prairie was the maid of honor. She wore a white dress and a pink corsage. Bridesmaids were Miss Betty Estes, sister of the bride, and Miss Linda Landtroop, sister of the bridegroom. They wore identical dresses of white nylon trimmed with pink. They carried bouquets of pink carnations.

Jimmy Arrendale of Ranger was best man. Groomsmen were Lanny Smith and Dan Dixon, both students at North Texas State College at Denton.

The wedding music was furnished by Miss Becky Brown of Ranger.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length white nylon gown, which was covered with tiny ruffles. The dress featured a sweetheart neckline. Her veil of net tulle fell from a pearl studded tiara. Her only jewelry was a pearl necklace and she carried a white Bible topped with a white camellia, showered with white agapanthus and satin streamers.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Estes chose a dress of powder blue linen with white accessories, and a white gardenia corsage. Mrs. Landtroop, mother of the bridegroom, wore a black and white lace dress with white accessories and a corsage of white gardenias.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the home. The table was laid with a white lace cloth over pink. The three tiered wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and groom and served by Mrs. Jim Pepper of Denton. Mrs. H. E. Angus of Ranger aunt of the bridegroom, ladled the punch.

For a short wedding trip the bride wore a two-piece white linen dress.

The bride is a 1957 graduate of Arlington High and is presently employed by the Civil Service in Dallas.

The bridegroom is a 1957 graduate of Ranger High School. He has attended Ranger College and the University of Texas, and is now a junior accounting major at North Texas State College in Denton.

Among the out-of-town guests and relatives present were: Mr. and Mrs. Wilson of Grand Prairie, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Estes of Arlington, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Savage of Fort Worth, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Peppers of Denton, Jackie Neely and Bill Creager of Austin, Miss Patty Waldrip of Houston, Joe Bob Greer of Abilene and Travis Werner of Irving.

After the wedding trip, the couple will be at home at 2301 Bernard Street, in Denton.

DON'T BE MISLEAD

The B. B. S. (Burkett, Bailey, Starr) campaign advertises the fact that Paul Brashear voted for taxes during the last session of the Legislature.

As a matter of fact, the legislature had an obligation to vote enough taxes to pay the state's bills, including school teachers, state employees and those entitled to pensions.

Paul Brashear doesn't like taxes any better than the B. B. S. combine. But he had an obligation as a legislator, and he did not shirk his responsibility in this or any other matter that affected our district or state.

In view of the Governor's recent announcement of new tax levies it becomes increasingly important that the citizens of this district be represented by a representative that is both experienced and capable in order to avoid unjust tax levies and to effect maximum economy in the State Government.

Sunday Devotion-

(Continued from Page One) reflecting about the existence of evil in our world. Why is there sickness, suffering? Why are some rich, some clever, some lucky? Why are some good looking others idiots, the blind, the deaf, the dumb, the crippled? Why do so many things happen, like accidents and tornados? Why do the rich get away with so much? Why do the consequences of sin fall on the innocent? It is a long and endless list.

We know the answer in part but only in part. 1. We know that of all creatures, man is capable of suffering more than any. Suffering is due to a nervous system. Yet without a nervous system, we cannot feel anything, neither sympathy nor joy, nor indignation, nor love. Suffering or the possibility is the price we pay for the many good things to which we are entitled as human beings and would not want to give up.

2. But that is not all. We do not live alone in this world. We learn to love each other. Because it is so precious that is why it is painful. 3. Of course there is the problem of why some people seem to get more than their share of the burdens. It may be questioned if this is so. God made us separate so that we may be sympathetic and cooperative. There is no other way we can learn.

Evil then is a problem when it appears as suffering and suffering is not an unqualified evil. Without the possibility of suffering there could be no social life and we could never develop character. The existence of suffering is a perpetual challenge to eliminate that which leads to it.

God does exist and He does care for us. It is not His will that one of his children suffer. He does not deal with us alone in isolation from other people. What happens to them is bound to affect us.

God is more concerned that we develop character than we enjoy material blessings. With God's help there is no evil that we cannot become a blessing.

So when we say it is God's will we should be careful. That what we mean has the ultimate purpose of good. God views our destiny from the point of eternity and not earthly life and death. If life were easy there would be no challenge. If life were too hard we would give up. But life is what it is. A perpetual challenge and those of us who take the hand of God will find a life of happiness.

church, they went to a nearby creek for their picnic. Those attending were Ann Raney, Nancy Veale, Mary Carol Mitchell, Nancy Bradford, and the counselor, Mrs. D. B. Raney.

Glenda Rains
Did you listen to the Class Gumbler? Honestly, I began to tremble when he got up, and his final words fairly made my teeth rattle. The unpardonable sin couldn't possibly be worse than inflicting such a gloomy outlook on a group of people gathered for what should be a pleasant occasion. Perhaps I can say something which will overcome the effect such ideas are bound to have on unsuspecting listeners.

I think Ranger is a grand town, and Ranger High School is a super-grand school. The teachers know their business, and every one of them is interested in every single pupil in the whole school. Nothing anyone could say would change my mind. In Mr. Ruz's classes, it is true that no one needs hearing aids, and we all sit up and pay attention and in that way we are guided into learning. Mr. Wilhelm may always give Don the hardest problems but I think each of us has had his share of hard problems and each of us is a better student because of that fact. And, as far as the rules and regulations, there are not any which do not make life better for all of us if we obey them. Nobody, I am sure, would want to live in a country without an

... "I do not prize the word CHEAP. It's not a word of hope, nor cheer, nor inspiration. To the contrary, it is a badge of dishonesty, the sign of distress. Cheap merchandise means cheap men and cheap men a cheap country." The quotation reminds us of a friend who bought a ranch in another state, demanded a cheap abstract and got it. He's busted now and the abstracter who accommodated him died of a broken heart. The moral is, don't do it!

himself or herself to occupy it. Don would probably have even objected to Class Day and Commencement Programs if it hadn't given him a chance to tell every one his pet peeves. I think Class Day is wonderful. It gives the graduates a chance to dress up in their best b's and tucker, and all their parents a chance to sit in the audience and enjoy what their children are doing. Don would probably want the President of the School Board to hand us our diplomas as we left the building the last day of school and then the members of the class would be deprived of the privilege of waving across the stage with all the dignity they could muster.

And then Don said Homer thought so much of himself because he was a football star. All of us knew Homer put his best into what he was doing even though he didn't know which one was in man. And after all, don't you think that Dick's idea of staying on the bottom of the pile to keep warm was a pretty good one?

One time I heard a man say the difference between a pessimist and an optimist is that when everything looks dark the optimist turns on a light, but the pessimist slips up and turns it out!

We need optimism all through school. Some way, it makes everything better when you can catch a gleam of hope and find something beautiful in what otherwise might be humdrum. To me, optimists are people who see things as they are, as they could be if people everywhere looked at them right and did their best to engineer the world's affairs so they would remain right.

Don and I have been looking at the name building, the same people, and the same circumstances. Think over what each of us has said and decide for yourself what you will believe and how you will govern your own life.

GREETINGS:

By Don Adams

All my life I've been told I shouldn't find fault and be disagreeable, no matter how I felt, but when Mrs. Deffebach assigned this subject to me she said I could say anything I pleased. Like as not I'll never have another chance, and, believe me, I'm going to take advantage of it!

You've heard how wonderful our class is and how Ranger High School is such a grand and glorious place, but let me tell you there are plenty of things I would change if I had a chance. What's more, I'm sure the world would be a whole lot better for the changes, too.

This school business is funny anyway — don't you think so? Kids five and six years old were never supposed to sit still but just let them try running around unless somebody tells them they can't! Even after they are up in the grades they can't do as they please. Folks in High School are practically grown, but just look at the rules and regulations which are made to keep them down! It's positively ridiculous! Wouldn't it be grand if the world was the way it should be? Do you think it is waiting for some bright member of the class of 1960 to come along? My father always said the average fellow doesn't have a chance, and I believe he's right. If he wasn't I could have been elected president of the class of 1960, but you'll notice I wasn't.

Maybe Homer Montgomery is big and fat, but he doesn't need to get the bighead just because he made a few lousy tackles and got a star on his football letter. Of course, Homer never missed blocking his man on passing plays, he just never knew which one was his man!

Along this same line, we have the star of the Eastland game,

Richard Jolly, who found the secret of staying warm in sub-freezing weather — he on the bottom of the pile!

Teachers are funny, too. They think you ought to spend all your time studying, especially studying whatever they happen to be teaching. I think there are a lot of things more important than that—such as hand, football, volleyball, basketball, and why shouldn't they be! Who cares whether we have algebra and geometry and a lot of other things? Why don't schools let people study what they want to study and let the rest go? That's one gripe I've had ever since they made me repeat spelling one year. I was plenty mad about it, but I didn't dare say a word.

Most of the students in High School, including myself, have had the opportunity of taking a subject under Mr. Wilhelm, and he has two bad habits. One—he is not fair, and two—he picks on me. He is unfair because he gives each student different problems, and he picks on me by always giving me the hardest problems.

Although treading on dangerous ground, I have a few comments on our Superintendent, Mr. Rush. Outwardly, one would think he is a model superintendent. But we that are physics students know that he does have a few small defects. For one thing, one-half of the class is expected to need hearing aids at the end of the year because of bursted eardrums. However, he doesn't push us too much to turn in assignments, because he has a small lazy streak, and if we don't turn them in, he doesn't have to grade them. He has to get someone out of a tree on the average of five times a day, and will buy everything but a wrong answer.

Sometimes I wonder if school teachers and school board members really are human beings. They look so stern most of the time, and, to hear them talk, you'd think pupils, even seniors, shouldn't have a thought in their heads that didn't fit right in with the program they have worked up for schools. Do you suppose they were always like that, or does having authority make them forget what it was like to be young?

Yes, there are a lot of things that have pained me as far back as I can remember—having to go to school whether I felt like it or not, having to study when I'd rather be outdoors, having to be polite when I wanted to stick out my tongue and make ugly faces—oh, there isn't any end to the gripes I have held back. I actually thought I'd have to live to be an old, old person—maybe even 'til I was dead—before I could get these things off my chest. I didn't even know there was a subject like this on the program, and I nearly fell over when Mrs. Deffebach said, "Well, Don, here's your chance to say just what you think without anybody finding fault." After I got the diploma which has cost me so much misery safely put away in the bottom drawer, the chances are I'll think of a lot more things I'll wish I had said, but at least I've said this much, and I am sure my fellow classmates agree with me. Perhaps I have spoken for them as well as for myself.

My time is up, and I must stop. If you'll take a few minutes to think without prejudice, I'm sure you'll understand what a relief it has been to rid myself of all this. Thanks for listening and remembering that there are a few good things about this school, but I will leave that for other speakers.

Army Needs Men For MP Corp, Sergeant Says

Sgt. Robert Butler, U. S. Army recruiter, said today his service is interested in contacting young men, who are interested in the US Army Military Police Corp. Young men who enlist for the Military Police Corp are trained in law, methods of apprehension, search, jufo and techniques of investigation. The military policemen must know rules and regulations governing conduct and behavior of military personnel, according to the Sgt. The physical and mental requirements to join the Army Police Corp, in addition to the normal requirements are, be at least five feet seven inches tall and be effective in meeting emergency situations. The military policeman gains complete knowledge of the operation of law enforcement agencies. This would greatly assist a young man interested in becoming a civilian law enforcement officer, the Sgt. said. Young men interested in the corp are invited to contact Sgt. Butler at Breckenridge, or call collect MI 7-4006 for more information.
